Mr. Percy Hutchison and his clever company are at the Coronet this week in Brewster's Millions. The famous scene aboard ship on the steam yacht "Flitter" is reproduced exactly as seen at the Hicks Theatre a short while ago. The cloud effects, as invented by Mr. Joseph Menchen, of New York, are very fine and realistic in the extreme, and the electrical effects by Digby's also lend considerably to the realism of the scene. This is a piece which excites the active interest of the beholders from start to finish, and many successive audiences will doubtless assist at the squandering of Monty's millions with amazement, anxiety, and awestruck amusement. Mr. Percy Hutchison is admirable as the intrepid and resourceful hero of this "wonderful will" story, Monty Brewster. He runs through the gamut of the emotions—delight, despair, cheerfulness, chagrin, confidence, and consternation are all splendidly portrayed in tense and natural fashion, and he carries the action of the play along at break-neck speed, so that the interest never for a moment flags. It would be difficult to better his performance. Before his dazzling meteoric display of histrionics the others "pale their ineffectual fire" somewhat, yet there are some excellent performances given. Miss Cicely Stuckey is charmingly winsome, gentle, and attractive as the simple, loyal, and lovable Peggy Gray. Miss Lilias Earle is good as Mrs. Dan de Mille, and the same may be said of Miss Sybil Walsh as Trixie Clayton, whilst Miss Frances Davie contributes a clever character sketch as the "manly" believer in platonism, Janice Armstrong, and Miss Eva Stuart looks pretty as Barbara Drew; Mr. Cyril Rawdon is capital as Charlie Harrison, Mr. Robert Forsyth as Grant, Mr. A. Andrews as Col. Drew, whilst the Archie Golding of Mr. Henry Hampson and the Joseph McLeod of Mr. Aubrey Mather stand out in bold relief; Mr. Charles Esdale also does good work as Frank Bragdon, and Mr. Douglas Greet is amusing as the opera composer and discoverer of hidden talent, Tommy Smith; Mr. Frank Hill scores as the butler, Rawles, and Mr. A. P. Kay, who stage-manages, is diverting as the fussy Frenchman, M. Bargie. Other small parts are satisfactorily rendered. Mr. J. E. Watson is general-manager and Mr. Geo. Clarkson business-manager.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 30, the Drama, entitled

"THE SILVER KING."

The Silver King, the attraction this week at the Dalston Theatre, proves as engrossing as ever. Mr. Fred D. Daviss as Wilfred Denver imparts to the character just that amount of intense vitality which is necessary. Miss Edith Goodall is Nellie Denver, the ever-trusting wife of the much-persecuted Wilfred, and that she has the audience fully in sympathy with her from start to finish is proved at every call before the curtain. Miss Flossie Hale Daviss is also a great favourite as Cissie; and Mr. Edward J. George makes an ideal Daniel Jaikes. The Captain Herbert Skinner (the "Spider") of Mr. E. Stanton-Sharp is a careful study of gentlemanly villainy; and his confederates, Henry Corket (Mr. George Belmore), Elijah Coombe (Mr. Arthur Wright), and Cripps (Mr. Fred May) can be described as excellent character sketches. Mr. Arthur H. Rooke as Geoffrey Ware enacts the brief part satisfactorily. The Samuel Baxter of Mr. E. Stidwell is a cool and well-thought-out bit of work. Mr. Percy Store is quaint as Mr. Parkyn; and Messrs. Bingham and Hatchway add to the humour as a couple of village worthies. The light comedy of the piece is supplied by Mr. J. Randall as Gaffer Pottle, Mr. L. Sisley as a tipsy railway passenger, Miss Lucy Cato as a lady passenger, Mr. C. Grant as a railway inspector, Miss Mabel Gardener as Mrs. Gamage, Miss Margaret Rooke as waitress at The Chequers, and Miss Louie Hale as Tabitha Durden. Miss Kathleen Maude makes the character of Olive Skinner interesting.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, Nov. 30, the Musical Comedy, entitled

"THE CATCH OF THE SEASON."

Particular powers of attraction are possessed by The Catch of the Season, with the prolonged success of which, in London, Mr. Seymour Hicks and Miss Ellaline Terriss were so long associated, and the well-managed and admirably-appointed house on Lavender Hill has been extensively patronised this week by lovers of a merry and tuneful piece. There is no lack of up-to-date allusions, and many a laugh is aroused by reference to topical events. The company engaged is that of Mr. Dudley Bennett and Mr. T. G. Wray, and the members enter thoroughly into the humours of the comedy, while an efficient chorus render the various concerted numbers melodiously. For that most volatile of aristocratic youths, the Duke of St. Jermyns, Mr. William Greene is responsible. Mr. Greene has a taking appearance, is full of animation, and has a sense of humour that enables him to give effect to every line and characteristic of the part, out of which he extracts all possible worth. His energy is limitless, as is proved in the song, "The Church Parade," in which he is assisted by the chorus of charming ladies. A winsome Angela is found in Miss Gladys Guy, whose youth and good looks render her admirably suited to the part. She is a graceful dancer, and has a voice capable of expressive modulation. She sings remarkably well, and "I'll be a good little girl" and "Molly O'Halloran" gain especial favour. Her duet with Mr. Greene, "I don't know," is also charmingly rendered, and both artists share in the enthusiastic recall. Mr. H. C. Barry's Isaac Isaacstein is the cause of continuous mirth. Mr. Barry's drolleries have more of the Cockney than the Yiddisher touch, but they always score. The page Bucket is taken to the hearts of all, so amusing is he rendered by Master Ernest Grata, who adopts a peculiarly quaint style. His singing of "Our little 'ome" is the cause of much delight and many encores. An eccentric view of the character of Mr. William Gibson is taken by Mr. Geoffrey Berwick, whose odd antics and grotesque dancing are much appreciated. Mr. Franklin Miles is a dignified and often pathetic exponent of the henpecked Sir John Crystal, whose wife has an irrepressibly imperious representative in Miss Alice Hamilton. The two daughters are invested with suitable hauteur by Miss Kate Robertson and Miss Barry Eldon, the latter obtaining a well-merited encore for her singing of "Cigarette." A great favourite of the cast is Miss Grace Hampton, who makes of Lady Caterham just the lovable, womanly personage required, and Miss Claire De Vere succeeds in presenting the Duchess of St. Jermyns in the most favourable light. The comedy is elaborately mounted and tastefully dressed, some of the costumes being exquisite. Mr. H. Percival Young, the resident acting-manager has had to welcome large audiences, who have been highly delighted.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 30, the Play entitled,

"PETER'S MOTHER."

Mrs. Henry de la Pasture's clever dramatisation of her charming book was most excellently rendered by the Hutchison's capable company this week, and one could not desire a better cast. Mr. Townsend Whitling's conception of Sir Timothy Crewys was in the best spirit, the testy yet kindly sufferer being brought before us most effectively. Miss Violet Ley as Peter's mother, Lady Mary Crewys, well represented the warm affectionate nature of the woman, whose son is her all in all. She played delightfully, and her appearance made it very easy to realise her attractiveness for the Q.C., John Crewys. That part was powerfully and tellingly acted by Mr. Eille Norwood. In his scene with Peter in the third act Mr. Norwood was at his best, not a word of his lengthy speech being lost and not a point missed. As Peter, Mr. Vivian Gilbert looked surprisingly boyish, although from his handling of the somewhat difficult part it was evident that no experience was lacking. He was especially good in the scenes with his mother and fiancée. Miss Mary Griffiths as Lady Belstone, the relict of a long-departed Admiral, was genuinely funny without effort, and her encounters with her maiden sister Geraldine, as carefully played by Miss Josephine Rae, who in her make-up did not spare herself, were most welcome as the very best form of the necessary "comic relief." Mr. Walter Russell gave a refined and natural portrayal of the old Canon Birch, being quite the real thing in voice, manner, and appearance, and Miss Ada Rainey as Mrs. Hewell was agreeably unaffected. With Miss Hilda Sims as Sarah Hewell, Peter's fiancée, the genuineness of the love interest was secured, and her rendition was enhanced by her clear delivery and charm of manner. Some incidental and introductory music by Mr. Eille Norwood gave an additional interest to a pleasing production.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 30, the Comic Opera, Music by Edward German, entitled

"TOM JONES."

The love-story of Tom Jones and Sophia Western, as treated by the joint pens of Mr. A. M. Thompson and Mr. Robert Courtneidge, set to the tuneful melody which the genius of Edward German has composed, makes a fascinating comic opera, and one which has not lacked appreciative auditors at Kennington Theatre this week. If there is one blemish, it is of undue length, and one or two of the third-act situations might be compressed; but, notwithstanding this slight defect, the piece is of all-round excellence, and full justice is accorded it by Mr. Courtneidge. The company is of the first water, containing stars of accepted brilliance, and a strong and well-trained chorus, who treat the concerted numbers with splendid effect. The vocalisation throughout the night is of high quality, and reminds one of the palmy days of light opera. The staging and dressing leave nothing to be desired, and quite a gay and picturesque scene is presented in Ranelagh Gardens, in the third act, with its eighteenth-century pageantry. Miss Florence Smithson makes a huge success as Sophia Western, presenting the figure of a dainty, trustful, and lovable girl to the life. Not only is she a charming actress, but her wonderful voice finds ample scope in several solo numbers, and on Monday she was rapturously encored after each magical vocal effort. Mr. Harry Welchman fills the title-rôle in quite ideal fashion, making the beau ideal of a chivalrous, reckless, but withal honest, lover. His Tom Jones is quite the right conception to catch the fancy of a romantic girl, and, in addition, he sings finely. Of course, the comedy side of the piece is adequately catered for in the hands of that lively and versatile comedian, Mr. Dan Rolyat, to whom is allotted the part of Partridge, the village barber. Mr. Rolyat is quite at his best, which is saying a lot, and whenever he was about on Monday the house was convulsed with merriment at his quaint eccentricities. He is ably supported by Mr. J. T. Macmillan, Mr. Walter Rignold, and Mr. Lionel Braham, the three grotesque servants of Squire Western. Mr. Ambrose Manning furnishes a clever sketch of the part of the Squire, accentuating his extravagance of manner with great fidelity. Mr. Deane Percival has a thankless rôle as Blifil, but he fills it well; and the Squire's friends are ably impersonated by Messrs. J. Edwardes, A. W. Frougerond, and W. W. Biddlecombe. Miss Alice Oppitz displays histrionic talent of the best kind as Lady Bellaston, giving a spirited interpretation of the character; while Miss Isabel Dillon is a bright and lively Honour. Miss Cecilia Wellman is equally happy as the landlady of the village inn.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, Nov. 30, the Drama, entitled

"TWO LANCASHIRE LASSES IN LONDON."

A capital booking, and one entirely to the liking of well-filled houses, is Two Lancashire Lasses in London, as presented by Hardie and Von Leer's company at this popular South London playhouse. The drama goes with a swing from start to finish, the witty sallies of the Lancashire characters being much appreciated. Mr. Chris. Mason distinguishes himself as Sam Hallett, a regular Lancashire lad, who at once leaps into favour on account of his breezy North Country dialect and homely manner. The short shrift he gives the brutal Jim Price is vigorously applauded. Mr. Herbert Pearson enacts the part of John Edmunds, the inventor, who nearly goes to the gallows for the sake of his starving wife and child. Mr. E. Kayson-Cousens is the good-natured clergyman, Frank Selby. Mr. Fred Morgan is the outwardly calm and calculating villain, Jonas Deane, and if hisses go for anything he would fare very badly at the hands of the virtuous gods. Mr. Jack Miller makes a truly repulsive Jim Price, and Mr. W. Watersley, as his companion in crime, Natty Grabbitt, looks the loafer to the life. In the parts of the Lancashire Lasses, Miss Alice Defoe makes a truly pathetic figure as the younger sister, Nellie, and Miss Rosslyn Vayne is to be commended for her rendering of Constance, the elder sister. As Bessie Edmunds Miss Marguerite Trevosper evokes much sympathy. Miss E. Shaw scores greatly as the jolly Jane Adelaide.

THEATRE ROYAL, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Nov. 30, the Play, entitled

"THE PRINCE AND THE BEGGAR MAID."

Under the direction of Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard, the talented and experienced members who form the cast in The Prince and the Beggar Maid are meeting with a hearty welcome this week at the Royal, where there is nightly gathered an interested crowd, who bestow keen attention on the unfolding of the plot of this well-mounted and gaily-dressed play. Judging by the applause which is so enthusiastically meted out from time to time, the play is a complete success. The unsympathetic part of Prince Hildred is very capably undertaken by Mr. Alfred Brandon, who portrays the necessary brutality in a fitting manner. Mr. Melville Bickford as Prince Michael offers a very effective study, and shows to great advantage. Mr. Ernest Cox as the hero, Prince Olaf, infuses dramatic effect into the character, and delivers his lines with excellent judgment, and is successful. Mr. W. S. Mills scores highly as Captain Hector, and acts in a spirited and manly fashion. Mr. Kenneth Black is well placed as the Bishop of Illyria. Mr. H. Burton as Nathan is deserving of praise. Mr. Reginald Payne imparts much humour to the character of Lieut. Karl Stromberg. Miss Ethel Bracewell gives a clever impersonation of the part of Princess Monica, infusing much daintiness and charm. Miss Gertrude Branscombe renders the part of Camiola, a beggar maid, with delicacy and feeling; while Miss Jessica Black makes a pretty and lively Viola.

ARTILLERY THEATRE, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Nov. 30, the Drama entitled

"ALONE IN LONDON."

The highly popular drama of Alone in London, written by Robert Buchanan and Harriet Jay, is attracting considerable attention at the above theatre and drawing well-filled houses. The numerous members of a talented company, under the generalship of Mr. J. F. Elliston, render their parts in a very efficient manner. The mounting is also worthy of note. Mr. W. S. Hartford is well suited to the character of John Biddlecombe, the slow-and-sure miller, which he assumes in a natural fashion; Miss Theresa Osborne essays the exacting rôle of Annie Meadows very skilfully. As the adventurer and villain, Richard Redcliffe, Mr. Percy Rhodes distinguishes himself; Mr. Frank Sutherland is amusing as Spriggins; Miss Mary Stafford Smith supplies a clever study of Gipsy Tom, and receives a flattering reception; Mr. Percy Bell does ample justice to the part of Jenkinson; Mr. Harry McCleland as the benevolent and rich banker Mr. Burnaby acts with sincerity and conviction; Mr. Blundell Fenton is judiciously placed as Walter Burnaby; Mrs. Nellie Lauraine offers a capital delineation of Mrs. Maloney, an Irishwoman, and achieves distinction; Miss Rose Grey makes a dainty Ruth Clifton; Miss Gertie Douglas contributes a lively impersonation of Liz Jenkinson; Little Paul has a suitable representative in Miss Elsie Clarke. The remaining members of the cast show a due sense of their responsibilities.

NEW LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Nov. 30, the Drama, entitled

"THE CONVICT'S DAUGHTER."

This popular drama is drawing well at the above house, and it is an undoubted fact that it is Mr. Frank Bertram's delineation of the various characters—Weary Willie, Michael Grahame, Convict 89, and A Mystery—that is proving the chief attraction of the play. Mr. Bertram is to be highly commended upon the skilful manner in which he interprets these various characters. Mr. William Burgess does well as Frederick Neville; Mr. Escott Robson gives an entirely satisfactory performance in the orthodox style as the villain, Jasper Thorne; Mr. Walter Graham plays earnestly as Harold Trevalyan; the heroine Edith is interestingly and sympathetically acted by Miss Lillian Dean; Miss Nellie Waddington does good work as Marion Thorne; Mr. H. Loye-Staples as Inspector Harper, the Superintendent of Blackmoor Gaol, shows much ability; very amusing is Mr. Willie Black at Patrick O'Laragan, and as his sweetheart, Betty Hyne, Miss Amy Randolph helps considerably in the laughter-making. The play is satisfactorily staged.

BRITANNIA THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 30, the Drama, by Joseph Le Brandt, entitled

"ON THE STROKE OF TWELVE."

The play submitted this week is attracting large audiences. The principal character is admirably represented by Mr. Harry Tresham, who plays in a happy-go-lucky manner the unfortunate Jack Routledge. His companion in misfortune is agreeably performed by Mr. Herbert Young, who gives a good impersonation of George Bainbridge. The rôle of Jack's father, Henry Routledge, is undertaken in a capable manner by Mr. Conrad E. Clarke; the schemer, who is responsible for the misfortunes of the friends, is undertaken in a masterly manner by Mr. H. Ryeland Leigh, and his representation of James Horton is very fine; Mr. H. G. Brandon is responsible for some very amusing moments as the representative of Moses Levi, a character which suits the actor; Mr. D. J. Hennessy is seen in a small, but important, character, Van Dyke, and is brought prominently to the front by his forcible acting; and Mr. C. Alan Hineson as Pat O'Flynn causes hearty laughter by his impersonation of the Irish servant, but his talents are wasted in such a small part. Miss Lalla Stanhope as Doris Routledge acts in her usual charming and graceful manner the character of the sorely-tried heroine; Miss Florence Barnes is also to be congratulated for her admirable impersonation of the equally unfortunate Jess Rainbridge. Miss Ethelyle Gordon Murray is, of course, excellent in her interpretation of Marie Bergerre, the villain's accomplice. The drama is well mounted and staged, and the orchestra renders some tuneful selections during the evening under the capable bâton of Mr. T. W. Hatley. The Barrascope concludes an excellent entertainment with some good pictures, including a very amusing film entitled Wanted, a Son-in-law on Trial, which causes hearty laughter. The courteous manager, Mr. Fred A. Fowler, is kept busy attending to the wants of his numerous patrons. The attraction next week is an original play from the pen of Mr. H. G. Brandon, the stage-manager and producer.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, Nov. 30, the Play, entitled

"THE CHRISTIAN."

Mr. Wentworth Croke's company is here this week, with the new version from the Lyceum Theatre, of Mr. Hall Caine's popular play, The Christian. The talented company is receiving a due meed of welcome and praise from good audiences. Mr. Roy Redgrave makes a stalwart and powerful John Storm, and his finely limned portrait of the earnest young cleric quite captivates the house. Miss Daisy Scudamore plays admirably the rôle of the wayward Glory Quayle, and looks very charming in the part; Mr. Wilfred Noy is excellent as the young aristocrat, Horatio Drake, and well indicates the latent good in the character. Mr. Herbert Hewitson as the profligate Lord Robert Ure supplies a powerful character sketch; and Mr. Fewless Llewellyn is a dignified Father Lamplugh. Mr. John Hooker as good as the worldly Archdeacon Wealthy. Miss Cora Deane is pathetic as the poor outcast, Polly Love; and Miss Molly Haydon is admirable as the outspoken Mrs. Callender. Miss Florence Hunt contributes an able character sketch as the repentant demi-mondaine, Black Meg. Miss Harriet Russell does well as Mother Kent; and Mr. Thomas Barry is good as Rosenberg. Mr. Bruce Lindley is an effective Parson Quayle; and Miss Kitty Symons is a sympathetic Lady Robert Ure. The scenery and effects are beyond reproach. Mr. Jack Parson is the business-manager for the company.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 30, the Drama entitled

"TWO LITTLE SAILOR BOYS."

For the third week in succession the prolific Mr. Walter Howard is providing the current week's attraction with his stirring naval drama. The play is produced by the excellent company Mr. W. H. Hallatt, who has so long toured it, has gathered round him, and the pictures of Plymouth, with stirring episodes, arouse enthusiasm from local patrons of the drama. Miss Blanche Steel, as usual, gives an altogether admirable performance of the wicked Lola Grey. Miss Effie Crawford plays very naturally the part of Cyril Grey and Miss Ivy Millais is likewise perfect as Tom Yorke, the two little sailor boys. Admiral Grey is well sustained by Mr. C. W. Spencer; the villain of the piece (Lieut. Redstone) is strikingly portrayed by Mr. Horace Booth; Mr. H. E. Herbert gives a commendable impersonation of Commander Tregarthen; Mr. H. M. Clifford is a good Captain Tom Yorke; Jack Jolly is capitally enacted by Mr. Sidney Fiennes; and plenty of fun is provided by Mr. Tom Sinclair as Ben Baxter and Miss Lizzie Chambers as Lucy Wilson. Mildred Grey found a dainty exponent in Miss Muriel Dean. The play is nicely staged and mounted.

BROADWAY THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 30, the Comedy entitled

"THE ELDER MISS BLOSSOM."

Mr. and Mrs. Kendal were greeted with enthusiasm on their appearance here on Monday evening in the charming comedy The Elder Miss Blossom. Mrs. Kendal is seen at her very best—and how good that best is we all know—as Dorothy Blossom. Mr. Kendal is as thoroughly artistic and finished as ever in the part of Andrew Quick. Mrs. A. B. Tapping repeats her clever performance of Cooper; Miss F. Noble is very good as Mrs. Wells, and Miss Jessica Thorne is an attractive Sophia Blossom; Mr. W. M. Rutherford is excellent as Christopher Blossom; Mr. Bassett Roe plays with his usual success as Major Twentyman; Mr. T. Holding is good as Arthur Leacroft; Mr. R. Burnett gives a characteristic portrait of Tyrel Jones; Withers and Wells are capitally represented by Mr. Metcalfe Wood and Mr. F. C. Pool respectively. The Elder Miss Blossom was billed for repetition Wednesday and Friday, while for Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday The Whirlpool was the attraction, with Mrs. Kendal as Miss Constance Livingstone and Mr. Kendal as Elijah D. Tillottson.

FULHAM THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 30, the Play in Four Acts, by E. M. Royle, entitled,

"A WHITE MAN."

The recent Lyric success, A White Man, is now at Fulham, and Mr. Sleath's first-rate company is drawing good houses. The players are all quite at home in their parts, some of which are of a type not often seen on the stage, even in these cosmopolitan days. Not the least attractive feature of the performance is the splendid energy with which the characters from the wild and woolly West are represented. Mr. Frank Petley is very good in the title-rôle, Jim Carston, and makes a fine manly figure as the rancher; and, where it is required, he shows command of excellent pathos. Mr. Lewis Broughton does well in the sympathetic part of Lord Kerhill, and Mr. H. Wilmott Jackson gives a good study of Sir John Applegate. Mr. W. Dempsey plays effectively as the solicitor Petrie, and Mr. Louis Ashmeade shows good sense of humour as the Dean of Trentham. Passing now to the Transatlantic characters, there is Mr. Henry Hare with a delightful rendering of the foreman, Big Bill, with whom everyone ought to be in love by the end of the play. Mr. Thomas Swem as Shorty, Mr. Martin Henry as Andy, and Mr. T. W. H. Saree as Grouchy, Jim Carston's "cow-punchers," are responsible for three good studies of character, each excellent of its kind, and showing three well-differentiated types of character. Mr. J. T. Earle, as the obnoxious Cash Hawkins, acts with splendid force. It is a curious character, and Mr. Earle makes it live. The same compliment may be paid to Mr. A. C. Hardie, as the Sheriff, and to Mr. T. Floyd as Nick, the bar-tender. The Indian chief of Mr. Eric Hudson is a fine piece of work, and quite out of the common run; while Mr. F. Thornton also displayed skill in dealing most eloquently with an unintelligible tongue. The small parts of Mr. and Mrs. Doolittle are efficiently taken by Mr. Robert Hamilton and Miss Kathleen Mervyne. The rôle of Little Hal was well filled by little Miss Rosina White. Miss Gertrude Price shows much dramatic power as the Dowager Lady Kerhill, and Miss Eleanor May acts with great sincerity and charm as Diana Countess of Kerhill. The exacting part of Nat-u-ritch, Carston's Indian wife, is admirably played by Miss Margaret Fairleigh, who may be congratulated on a clever piece of work. The play is well staged, and the briskness of the action and its smooth running reflect credit on the stage-manager, Mr. Martin Henry.

A Copy of "The Era" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

Minutes of the Council meeting held at 353, Strand, on Tuesday, Dec. 1. Present: Mr. Frederick Morland (in the chair), Messrs. Jackson Wilcox, Clarence Derwent, Franklyn Walford, and Clive Currie, Miss Rose Mathews, and Mr. Hubert Blount, secretary.

The chairman read a letter from Mr. J. Sebastian Smith informing the Council that he would be unable to take charge of the rooms any more on Thursday evenings. The secretary was instructed to thank Mr. Smith for having done so during the past eight weeks, and also to put up a notice that at present the rooms would be closed on Thursday evenings at seven o'clock. In the meantime he was instructed to find a member of the Council who would undertake to take charge of them.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and passed.

The chairman read a letter from Miss Lucy Sibley enclosing the finance report, which was read and accepted.

The chairman read a letter from Miss Lind enclosing a statement of the dance, from which it appears that a profit of £7 1s. was made. The secretary was instructed to post a statement in the Association's rooms. The Council passed a sincere vote of thanks to Miss Lind for all she had done in connection with the dance, which not only proved to be a very pleasant and enjoyable evening for all concerned, but also a financial success. The Council instructed the chairman to write a letter of thanks to Miss Lind, as well as to Miss Pereira, Miss Leycester, Miss Barton, Miss Lydia Busch, and Miss Georgina Hamilton.

The hon. solicitor reported that he had seen a member, and advised him.

Mr. Manville Morton was elected a member. The following members announced their intention to resign from the Association at the end of the current year:—Louis Mercanton, Mary Ainslie, and Lawrence Derrick.

The secretary reported four engagements with the following managers:—Frank Lascells, T. W. Scott, Herbert Bird, and Cyril Harcourt.

The secretary placed before the Council the revised bye-laws for the new Year Book, and the Council decided that the books should remain as at present, but gave the secretary authority to insert any bye-law which he thought necessary.

The chairman instructed the secretary to write, on behalf of the Council, a letter of condolence to Mrs. Cory Thomas.

A letter was read from Mr. Gilbert Esmond with regard to a wooden box being placed round the telephone in the office, and the secretary was instructed to reply to the effect that the matter would be considered.

The following gentlemen were appointed medical officers of the association:—Mr. H. Dalby, The Rosary, St. Mary Church, Torquay; and Dr. Flamant, 30, Spencer-street, Carlisle.

ACTORS' UNION.

Mr. H. Tripp Edgar presided at an extraordinary general meeting of the Actors' Union held at Hummums' Hotel on Tuesday afternoon, for the purpose of considering and voting upon the following proposition:—"Resolved that the present form of annual subscription be altered from 6d. a week for forty weeks, to 1s. 8d. a month, or 15s. per annum, payable in advance. To be in benefit the monthly subscription must be paid by the 7th of each month, and the yearly subscription by Jan. 21 in each year."

The Chairman, in opening the proceedings, said that they were met for the specific purpose of rescinding the old method of payment of the subscription and of bringing about a new method. Hitherto the members had paid sixpence a week for forty weeks, but the financial committee, who had given great consideration to the subject, had recommended the placing before an extraordinary general meeting of a proposition on the lines of that submitted. He (the Chairman) thought that the adoption of the new method would immensely simplify matters in connection with the collection of subscriptions and their relation to the amount of office work. The new arrangement would have the further advantage of bringing members into closer touch with the central officials.

The resolution was then formally proposed by Mr. Braithwaite, and seconded by Mr. Rignold.

Mr. Arthur admitted that the sixpence a week method of payment of subscription had been a failure, but he moved an amendment to the effect that the payment be four shillings and sixpence per quarter, or fifteen shillings per annum if paid in advance. This was seconded by Mr. Frank Gerald.

On the amendment being put to the vote of the meeting, it was found that thirteen declared in favour of it, while twenty voted for the resolution, which was, therefore, declared carried.

The usual committee meeting of the Actors' Union was called for Thursday, the 26th ult., but owing to so many of the members of the committee having matinées on that day, no quorum was obtained. The following were present:—Messrs. Edwin J. Collins, Gerald Mirrielees, Cecil G. Calvert, and F. Rawson Buckley. The meeting was therefore adjourned until the following day, when the following were present:—Messrs. H. Tripp-Edgar (chairman), Edward Y. Rae, Cecil G. Calvert, Gerald Mirrielees, Doré Lewin-Mannering, and Kenneth Blackmore (secretary).

The resolution to be placed before the general meeting on the 1st inst. was drawn up.

The secretary was instructed to inform the secretary of the Actors' Orphanage Fund that the committee would be pleased to place a collecting card of that body in the A.U. office.

The resignation of a member was accepted with regret. Three new members were elected.

It was decided that the third A.U. dinner be held at Hummums' Hotel on Sunday, Dec. 13.

All the arrangements for the A.U. dinner are now complete, and members wishing to be present are requested to apply for their tickets on or before Tuesday next, Dec. 8. As only a limited number can be accommodated, application for tickets will be dealt with strictly in the order in which they are received. The tickets are 3s. each, and evening dress is optional.

THE WEST LONDON THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 30, the Drama entitled

"THE DANGERS OF LONDON."

The several fine situations in this powerful play appealed very strongly to the dramatic instincts of Mr. William Bailey's patrons, and at times they were very lavish with their applause—and rightly so. As Frank Forrest, Mr. Henry L. Osmond has a part quite to his liking. This energetic actor never lets an opportunity slip, but invariably emphasises the various points at the right moment. Mr. John C. Carlyle presented a clever character study of the ne'er-do-well Percy Weir, and proved himself an actor of all-round ability and resource; Mr. Charles Tolcher made the most of his opportunities as Shadrach Brander, his efforts being well backed up by Mr. Harry Cooke as his son Nimrod; Mr. Cuthbert Taylor delineated Dick Royal in a painstaking way, and Mr. H. Elmore Frith enacted Walter Forrest in distinctly easy fashion. Although suffering from the disadvantages of a nasty cold, Miss Winifred Chalmers sustained the important rôle of Gertrude Weir with plucky determination and skill; Miss Mabel Tremere was entirely satisfactory as Margaret Cloud; Miss Lillian Burns made many friends by her realistic portrayal of the unfortunate Mary Stanhope; and Miss Jeannie Thomas was full of life and go as Letty Brander, her performance being crisp and sparkling.

NEW THEATRE.

On Friday afternoon, the 27th ult., Mrs. Patrick Campbell inaugurated a series of matinées at the New Theatre, which was continued during the present week. On the programme were two pieces, the first of which was

"DEIRDRE,"

A Legendary Verse Play, in One Act,
By W. B. Yeats.

First Musician ..... MISS SARA ALLGOOD
Second Musician ..... MISS OLGA WARD
Third Musician ..... MISS VIOLET LUDDINGTON
Fergus ..... MR. H. R. HIGNETT
Deirdre ..... MRS. PATRICK CAMPBELL
Naisi ..... MR. CLAUDE KING
A Messenger ..... MR. DENNIS CLEUGH
Conchubar ..... MR. ARTHUR HOLMES-GORE

There are some fine poetic lines in Mr. Yeats' play, but its dramatic qualities are weak. Cut down to about half its present length, and the dialogue made more pointed, a great improvement would be effected. The piece is founded on a famous Irish legend. Deirdre was the Irish Helen and Naisi her Paris, and Conchubar her Menelaus. Conchubar was High King of Ulster, and Naisi king of a district, and the scene of the play is laid in Conchubar's guest house. King Conchubar kept Deirdre shut away from the sight of men, in a mountainous place, during her early girlhood so that none might see her or covet her beauty. The youthful King Naisi, son of Usnach, saw her, loved her, and carried her away. They wandered in distant lands for seven years, enduring perils and many hardships, until Conchubar, pretending to forgive them, sent an old friend, Fergus, to bring them home. The play opens at the moment of their return. Fergus arrives at the guest house, and begs the musicians to sing a song of welcome as Naisi and Deirdre approach. One of the musicians, however, tells Fergus of Conchubar's preparations to receive a bride. He silences her. Deirdre is uneasy at finding no welcome. The musician tells her that a bride is expected. She believes her and begs Naisi to escape. It is too late! Naisi tells her to sit down and play a game of chess and calmly await the end. Conchubar comes to the door to spy upon them. Naisi rushes out to kill him, but falls into a net which has been spread upon a dark leaf-covered path a little way from the guest house. Whilst Deirdre pleads with Conchubar in vain, Naisi is led behind the curtain and there put to death. When Deirdre finds that Naisi is dead, she says she will be Conchubar's queen if she can lay out Naisi's body as a good wife should. Conchubar gives her leave. She goes behind the curtain, and when Fergus returns and surrounds the house with countrymen with scythes and sickles, she is found dead by the body of her husband.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell acted with distinction in the rôle of Deirdre. She brought out with wonderful intensity of speech, expression, and movement all the tragedy of Deirdre's soul as she learns of the fate of her husband. Mr. Claude King was a fine figure of a man as Naisi, and his representation of the part was in all aspects praiseworthy. To Miss Sara Allgood commendation is due for the beautiful delivery of her lines and her solos as the First Musician, and the Misses Olga Ward and Violet Luddington rendered able assistance as the Second and Third Musician respectively. Mr. Arthur Holmes-Gore furnished an admirable portraiture of the stern, unyielding King, and Mr. H. R. Hignett was dignified and picturesque as old Fergus.

The second item was

"ELECTRA,"

If Deirdre, with its many dirge-like passages, brought on a fit of "the blues," then Mr. Symons's translation of Hugo von Hofmannsthal's modern study of the old Greek legend used by Æschylus, Sophocles, and Euripides was even more depressing. In point of fact, the Electra has not gained by being modernised. In Herr Hoffmannsthal's version we do not get the inherent beauty and the exalted morality which characterised the writings of the old Greek dramatists, but, at any rate, it can be said that a very good attempt has been made to adapt ancient mythology to the purposes of the present-day stage. The scene, which is laid in the inner court of Clytemnestra's palace, shows Electra soliquising. She is haunted by the memory of her dead father, and she lives only for the moment when her brother, Orestes, will return to avenge their father's death by slaying their mother and her lover, Ægisthus. Chrysothemis, her sister, who does not share her anguish, enters and begs her to flee from the house, telling her that their mother, Clytemnestra, has been dreaming of Orestes, and crying out in her sleep as "one cries out being strangled." Then follows a scene between Clytemnestra and Electra, Clytemnestra seeking aid from Electra, whom she believes knows of magic rites that can drive away bad dreams. Electra finally turns upon her mother, telling her that when Orestes returns and the right blood is spilt, "then you shall dream no more." Suddenly the slaves enter and whisper in the ear of the Queen that Orestes is dead, and that strangers have brought the tidings. Electra is left on the stage wondering at her mother's sudden joy. Later, from Chrysothemis, she hears the news. Electra cries that it now falls upon them—the two sisters—to do the deed. Chrysothemis, in terror, refuses; Electra curses her, and says that she will do it alone. At this moment Orestes enters, disguised as one of the strangers. Eventually Orestes slays his mother and the usurping king Ægisthus. At this supreme moment Electra, in her effort to dance a mighty dance of triumph, is weighed down by the victory of her own fierce passion, and dies.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell again distinguished herself by her passionate acting of Electra. The effort of sustaining in consistent fashion the tragic quantities of the rôle must have been a severe strain, even upon such an experienced and accomplished actress as Mrs. Patrick Campbell, and the applause that broke out from the audience indicated that they realised how masterful her exertions had been. Mr. Vernon Steel delivered his lines well and altogether succeeded admirably as Orestes, and Miss Florence Farr was imposing and spoke excellently as Clytemnestra, while Miss Sara Allgood created a highly favourable impression as Chrysothemis. As will be noted from a glance at the cast given above, Mrs. Patrick Campbell's son and daughter were entrusted with small parts, which, by the way, were suitably performed.

MISS MARJORY CARPENTER.

THE LYCEUM'S RED RIDING HOOD.

Miss Marjory Carpenter, the twelve-year-old daughter of Mr. Ernest Carpenter, managing-director of the Lyceum Theatre, was seen in a clever exhibition of dancing at the Rehearsal Theatre on Wednesday afternoon. Little Miss Carpenter is to appear as Red Riding Hood in the pantomime of that name which is to be produced at the Lyceum at Christmas. Mistress Marjory has studied and practised the terpsichorean art under Mr. Edouard Espinosa, and for her six months' training she shows remarkable knowledge and ability. Of course, it can be at once assumed that her natural aptitude lies in the direction of dancing, but one could scarcely believe, as she performed numerous difficult and original steps on the stage of the Rehearsal Theatre, that her tuition had been of such brief duration as the period mentioned indicates. Her knowledge of technique is really remarkable for so youthful an artist, and Mr. Espinosa must be very proud of his protégée. It was very evident, too, that her father shared that pride as he watched the dainty movements of his small daughter.

She opened her demonstration with a cleverly-executed classical dance, after which she treated the select audience—composed mainly of sternly critical members of the Press—to an invigorating hornpipe and a new "scarecrow" dance, which is to form a feature of her work in the pantomime. Then, out of a list of fifty-seven "steps," members of the company selected titles at random, and Miss Carpenter immediately performed the desired motions, thereby demonstrating her talents as a dancer and proving the possession of a capital memory.

It appears that Marjory made her first appearance on the stage at the age of eight, when she enacted the rôle of Sleeping Beauty at a big charity performance at Bristol. There she won signal success. In addition, she has on several occasions appeared at theatres at benefit performances as well as at school entertainments. Her theatrical education has been conducted during the intervals of her school life at Castelnau College, Barnes. In conversation with Mr. Espinosa, we found that gentleman enthusiastic in his encomiums upon the advancement of his pupil. He said that Marjory had been with him barely six months, and yet her technique and knowledge of dancing and its rules were perfect. "You observe," he added, "that she does not merely dance with her feet, for she uses her brain as well."

Miss Carpenter looked quite an engaging little heroine in her green jersey and skirt as she tripped the "light fantastic" before the appreciative gaze of the spectators. We have no doubt that the promise she gave at this preliminary exhibition will be fully justified in the forthcoming pantomime.

MR. GEORGE ALEXANDER made an eloquent speech at the St. James's Theatre on Thursday afternoon at the matinée for the benefit of the Royal National Orthopædic Hospital. The programme included the names of M. Emile Engel, Mr. Gervase Elwes, Mrs. Cecil Raleigh, Mr. C. V. France, and Mr. Tom Reynolds in The Belle of the Wash-tub, Mr. Edward Goll in selections from Chopin, Mlle. Kyasht in a selection from her Empire dances, Miss Valli Valli, Mr. Alfred Lester, Mr. Cyril Maude, Mr. Eric Lewis, Mr. Sydney Paxton, Mr. Charles Maude, and Miss Jen Alwyn, in the dressing-room scene from The Clandestine Marriage, and Sir Charles Santley in "Maid of Athens" and "To Anthea." Miss Gertrude Elliott read Oscar Wilde's "The Happy Prince," with incidental music by Mme. Liza Lehmann; Miss Winifred Emery, Miss Beryl Faber, and Miss Pollie Emery played in Soldiers' Daughters; Mlle. Antonia Dolores deputised for Mme. Albani; Mr. C. H. Workman gave "I can't think why," with admirable humour; and Mme. Jane Bathori-Engel and the Mitchell Quartet also appeared.

Mr. Alexander, in the course of a grateful speech, recounted an incident in his own career. His first rôle after he became an actor-manager was the part of a cripple boy in the play he was then putting on the stage. The ambition of the boy was to make the people whom he met love him, haunted as his gracious and sensitive temper was by the dread that, owing to his deformity, he would be shunned and disliked. Such was the terror that came into his mind when he looked into the mirror, giving back the sense of repulsion. The idea touched Mr. Alexander keenly, and he went to this very hospital to mingle with the cripples and enter into their feelings, that he might the more exactly reproduce the character. That was an experience which one could not feel without also feeling for these children. The blessings of health were, perhaps, given by Nature as much to the poor as the rich. But there came a difference. Sickness or deformity afflicting the offspring of the rich could, speaking generally, be cured or alleviated, so that they might, as men and women, enjoy the comforts and the friendships of life. It was for all of us to give these distressed little ones, in a modest way, a like privilege. That was why the matinée was given, and why he appealed to the audience and to a wider circle to help the hospital.

THE RISTORI MATINEE.

The universality of art was exemplified in a signal way on Monday afternoon, when representative English players united in a tribute of respect to the memory of a great Italian actress. The immediate object of the matinée, for which Mr. Beerbohm Tree generously gave the use of His Majesty's Theatre, was to augment the fund for the erection of a memorial to Mme. Ristori in the village of Cividale, where she was born in the year 1822. Such a combination of dramatic talent as that which was got together on Monday is rare in the annals of the stage, and it is a striking proof of the unanimity that existed that out of the seventy odd artists drawn from West-end theatres who officiated there was not one who did not put in an appearance. It was an afternoon of enthusiasm, and out of the four and a half hours during which the entertainment was in progress no small share of the time was devoted to the recalls bestowed on each popular favourite by a house crowded to the doors at double prices.

The dramatic literature of the British stage, both of an earlier and the present date, was represented in the programme, in which Shakespeare fittingly held a prominent place, the poet being represented by excerpts from four of his works. First came the Rialto scene from The Merchant of Venice, in which Mr. Beerbohm Tree received a hearty welcome on his appearance as Shylock. His make-up was complete in every extraordinary detail, and the power of his performance asserted itself completely, the envenomed spite and cunning of the aged usurer being again expressed with remarkable vehemence. Mr. Basil Gill was once more a handsome and gallant Bassanio, and Mr. W. Haviland played Antonio with distinction. Immediately following came one of the newest little plays typified in Cosmo Hamilton's episode, entitled Soldiers' Daughters, in which Miss Winifred Emery played with natural sweetness as the brave and unselfish Helen Meredith. Miss Beryl Faber pathetically represented her sister, and Miss Pollie Emery repeated her quaint exposition of a London landlady. A particularly warm reception was reserved for Mr. H. B. Irving, who submitted proof of agreeable gifts of comedy in the recitation of "Etiquette," which he delivered with an appreciation of humour that gave the familiar story quite an element of freshness.

MME. RISTORI.

The most interesting performance of the afternoon, perhaps, was that of the Play scene from Hamlet, with one of our most finished representatives of the title-rôle, supported by a cast of "stars." Mr. Forbes Robertson was the Prince of Denmark, and his polished performance, admirable alike in conception and execution, was followed with the keenest admiration. Miss Gertrude Elliott was a winsome Ophelia, Mrs. Tree enacted the Queen with regal dignity, and Miss Evelyn Millard was a most engaging Player Queen. Mr. Lyn Harding vividly portrayed the terror of the guilty King; Mr. W. Haviland represented Horatio with sincerity and feeling; Mr. Alfred Bishop was a benign Polonius; Rosencrantz and Guildenstern had talented representatives in Mr. Harcourt Williams and Mr. Ben Webster; Mr. Henry Ainley represented the First Player with skill; and the Second Player was personified by Mr. Hugh Montgomery, who has enjoyed the distinction of acting with Mme. Ristori herself. With such a cast, surely no finer representation of Shakespeare's masterpiece could be conceived.

An eagerly-awaited item of the bill was the second act of The Thief, in which Mr. George Alexander and Miss Irene Vanbrugh were associated. Mr. Alexander's dramatic resource and impassioned utterance were again employed with remarkable effect in his superb embodiment of Richard Telford; and Miss Vanbrugh's accomplishments as an actress of remarkable reality and intensity were again agreeably displayed in her rendition of Marise. At the end of the strenuous scene in which the deceit of Marise is laid bare the applause of the audience was loud and prolonged. Miss Marie Tempest was here to have made one of her rare appearances as a vocalist, but the charming artist attended, as she said, in person to offer her apologies, having temporarily lost her singing voice, adding, amid laughter, that it would be as painful for the audience to listen as it would be for her to sing.

The boisterous humour of The Taming of the Shrew was next displayed, and an exhilarating performance was the result. Mr. Oscar Asche's buoyant and vigorous Petruchio and Miss Lily Brayton's tempestuous Katharina—two of the best assumptions on record—gave great delight. Miss Muriel Ashwynne's grace and refinement were conspicuous in the part of Bianca; Mr. Herbert Grimwood was an amusing Baptista; and the effective cast was completed by Messrs. Caleb Porter as Gremio, G. Kay Souper as Lucentio, R. Ian Penny as Hortensio, Tripp Edgar as Tranio, R. F. Anson as Biondello, and Reginald Davis as a steward.

The note of kinship was sounded in an added degree when the celebrated tragedienne Miss Genevieve Ward appeared to deliver the sleep-walking scene from Macbeth. As a picture of Lady Macbeth's sense of utter desolateness and despair Miss Ward's rendition was superb, but she had hardly gauged the acoustics of the theatre, and the lines were heard only imperfectly. Mr. J. Fisher White and Miss N. De Silva shared the responsibilities of a Doctor and a Gentlewoman. Though Sir Charles Santley came near the end of the feast, his reception was none the less cordial, and he was obliged to sing three songs, the last of which was the old favourite "Simon the Cellarer." Another famous vocalist was heard in Mr. Ben Davies, who was in admirable voice, and delighted his hearers. A welcome visitor was found in Miss Lena Ashwell, who delivered as a "musical recitation" Tom Moore's "Love and Hope," and was accompanied by the composer, Mr. Stanley Hawley.

The older form of comedy was revived in the toilet scene from The Clandestine Marriage, in which Mr. Cyril Maude entertained with his artistic portrayal of the senile fop Lord Ogleby, Mr. Sydney Paxton was a bluff and hearty Sterling, Mr. Eric Lewis's Canton was an entertaining assumption, and Mr. Charles Maude played Brush capably. The revival also afforded the opportunity of a glimpse of Miss Jean Alwyn as a Scottish chambermaid, and her dainty performance was greatly enjoyed. The last of the playlets was found in The Conspiracy the clever one-act play which figured in Mr. Martin Harvey's present season at the Adelphi. Mr. Harvey, looking very fresh and youthful, acted with all his romantic vigour as King Konrad, and commanded the admiration of all. Mr. Charles Glenney repeated his sterling rendition of Baron Brunfels, Mr. A. E. Raynor was an able exponent of Count Staumn, and Mr. Alfred Mansfield gave a clever study of Herr Von Steinmetz.

The climax of the enthusiasm came with the apotheosis and allegory "Adelaide Ristori," arranged by Mme. Cavallazzi. The figures were impersonated by Misses Lilian Braithwaite, Dora Barton, Mary Barton, Nannie Bennett, Dorothy Brunt, Maud Cressall, Douglas Frere, Dorothy Fane, Doris Lytton, Beryl Mercer, Rosalie Toller, and Muriel Vox. The scene was a classic interior, in the centre of which stood a bust of Mme. Ristori, with a wreath at its base. A cupid, represented by Little Olivia, tripped on and executed a graceful dance. Then entered a number of maidens in Greek costume, who decked the statue with laurel leaves. Cupid, apparently looking for something, at length discovered at the wings Fame, who with her trumpet summoned Miss Genevieve Ward. Attired in flowing robes, the actress recited an ode specially written by Mr. Louis N. Parker. Miss Ward had now taken the measure of the auditorium, and she delivered the poem in grandly expressive style, and well measured inflexion. The first and last of the four verses will serve to show the spirit of appreciation which animated the writer, and the literary grace of his lines:—

Comrades in art, high-priests of the sublime,
Whose ill reward it is to leave no trace
Of toil, achievement, talent, vigour, grace,
To stand as witness in the halls of time;
Whose memory is but a passing chime,
Jangled at eventide a breathing space:—
Ghost of a voice and shadow of a face,
Fading in newer suns like Winter's rime;
To-day, at least, with full hands let us bring
To our great sister Fame's thank-offering.

Dear Italy! Dear sister Italy!
Home of our hearts, were England not our home:—
Thou lentest her to lands beyond the foam,
That all the pattern of thy best might see;
Yet, in thy struggle for new liberty
She played her part, till in Imperial Rome
Thy King sat throned; and in thy golden tome
Her name is writ beside Cavour's! With thee,
At Adelaide Ristori's feet we lay
The Patriot's laurel, and the Poet's bay!

Thus a memorable afternoon came to an end, leaving behind an impression of a most agreeable and lasting character, alike in respect to the excellence of the entertainment and of its influence on the history of the stage.

EVERYBODY knows Mlle. Rosalio Guerrero, the charming Spanish dancer, the rival of Mlle. Otero la belle, and who delighted Paris audiences with her beauty. Although not, strictly speaking, a great dancer, she always proved a "draw," and it was therefore not surprising that she had an engagement at the Olympia to the tune of £400 a month. When, however, the fair artist went to the cashier to receive her salary, she heard to her surprise that a jeweller in the Rue de la Paix had attached that money because, as he alleged, she owed him a large sum for jewels. Mlle. Guerrero violently protested against the allegation, and vowed that she never bought a single trinket at the plaintiff's shop. In vain. Her supposed creditor swore that she was the lady to whom the jewellery was supplied, and Mlle. Guerrero received a letter from her dressmaker, who informed her that he declined to send her the dress she had ordered unless she paid for it on delivery, because it had become known in Paris that her salary had been attached. Three weeks elapsed, and then it was discovered that the jeweller had made a mistake, and that Mlle. Guerrero had spoken the truth. She at once sued the jeweller for malicious prosecution, but when the case was brought into Court all she received by way of damages was the sum of £12. In England she would very likely have been awarded £1,200; but these are the eccentricities of the French law.

MR. E. P. JEAFFRESON, of Guildhall-chambers, E.C., is bringing out a capital reproduction, by a new process, of the picture of the late Sir Henry Irving as Louis XI., which was painted by Mr. J. Bernard Partridge, and which is admitted to be one of the best likenesses ever painted of the great actor. The picture has been so greatly admired by many personal friends of Sir Henry Irving that a limited number of copies have been made, and are offered privately at 7s. 6d. each, in deep sunk mounts. The size of the actual picture is 18in. by 16in, and, apart from the likeness, it is a very effective and artistic work of art.

"LA BOSCOTTE" has been written by a lady. This probably accounts for the fact that there is no traitor in the piece, and that the two wicked characters are impersonated by women, although extenuating circumstances can even be pleaded for these two erring creatures, because it was disappointed love that awakened the dark spirit of revenge in their otherwise gentle souls. A few years ago the story appeared in the columns of a popular paper, when it scored a certain amount of success. The authoress, therefore, felt tempted to dramatise the work; but she committed the mistake of undertaking this task unaided and without sufficient stage experience. With the material at hand a very good drama might have been produced if properly handled. In its present form, however, the work appears amateurish and naive. The story is as follows:—Antonine, the wife of the Marquis des Croissets, in the last stage of consumption, is carefully nursed by her husband, whom she adores. To her horror, she gathers from a whispered conversation between her husband and Reine de Breult that these two are in love with one another, and she jumps to the wrong conclusion that they have entered into a guilty liaison. Knowing that she has but a few more days to live, she hits upon an ugly scheme to avenge herself on the supposed treacherous couple, and as an accomplice she selects La Boscotte. The latter is a peasant girl called Julie whom the boys in the village have dubbed "La Boscotte" on account of her being slightly deformed. She is in love with Henri, a young farmer who has lost his heart to the beautiful Reine de Breult. La Boscotte, therefore, shares Antonine's hatred for Reine, although poor Henri only admires that aristocratic lady from a respectful distance. Antonine then poisons herself by swallowing a tremendous dose of arsenic, but arranges things so cunningly that her husband—should he ever marry Reine—will be accused of having murdered his first wife. For all that, she leaves a letter—to be opened two years after her death—wherein she proclaims her husband's innocence. This letter she deposits with Catherine Bourlette, Henri's mother. Antonine dies, and a few months later the Marquis marries Reine, whereupon he is at once denounced by La Boscotte. Antonine's body is exhumed, and as it is found to contain a terrific amount of arsenic the Marquis is haled before the Juge d'Instruction. La Boscotte, of course, is the chief witness against him, as she is supposed to have received special information from the dying woman. Things, in fact, are beginning to take an uncomfortable turn for the Marquis, when Henri is fortunate enough to come upon the famous letter, which, produced in Court, exonerates the accused. As for La Boscotte, she is killed by stopping Reine's runaway horse, saving her rival's life at the expense of her own. The work was well interpreted. Mlle. Barré, afflicted with a slight cold, was not able to do justice to her rôle, but Mlle. Cécile Barré as the Marquise and Mlle. Renée Ludger as La Boscotte were really excellent. That clever actor Séverin-Mars impersonated the Marquis; but the part did not suit him, nor would it have suited anyone else.

"LE PETIT FAUST" has been revived at the Folies-Dramatiques. It was brought out at that house in 1869, when the author played the principal rôle and Mihler impersonated Valentin. To-day Hervé's production appears oldfashioned, and I doubt whether the present generation will take the same delight in that class of entertainment as did our grandmothers. For all that, it cannot be denied that this parody on Gounod's Faust is in some respects exceedingly clever. These subtle touches, however, are lost on the average playgoer. Jaime and Crémieux, the librettists, possessed of a keen sense of humour, have parodied Barbier and Carré, who supplied Gounod with the booklet for his opera. Jaime and Crémieux have discovered all the weak spots in that work. They have understood that Marguerite, who remains chaste after having killed her illegitimate child, is farcical. They also felt that Valentin's flow of words at the moment of his death is so great that the man almost becomes grotesque. They make fun of Mephisto, who has only cheap pleasures to offer to his patron; and they deride the latter for naively believing in Marguerite's innocence. Works of that description, however, must be spiritedly played and well sung. This time the contrary has been the case, for we have had neither bright interpretation nor good singing.

GREENWICH THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 30, the Drama, entitled
"THE WAY OF THE WORLD."

This successful drama is giving great satisfaction here this week, and is capitally acted by the very capable company engaged. Miss Sydney Crowe scores heavily as Lady Adela Hardy, and Cecil Hardy could not be in better hands than those of Mr. Herbert Skardon, who is excellent throughout; Miss Marie Fontaine is very good as Kate Montague, the fair equestrienne; Miss Violet Vivienne looks and acts well as Polly Bell, the strong woman; Miss Edith Wynne is an attractive waitress, and little Miss Maria Marah is a clever Eric Malyon. Mr. Edward Avinal is an effective Scale; Mr. Clarence Temple plays well as Matthew Malyon; Mr. Victor Gordon is good as Horatio Bluff; Mr. D'Arcy Kelway as the circus clown is clever and amusing, and does much to insure the success of the drama; Mr. Pat Quin is an admirable Sir John Hardy; Mr. C. Barr as Giles, Mr. William Gibson as Tiny Green, Mr. Thompson as Bill Bridle, and Mr. E. Kerr as Sam Snaffle are all good in their respective parts.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Sir Charles Wyndham and Miss Mary Moore have kindly promised to give a matinée performance of Mrs. Gorringe's Necklace, on Friday, Dec. 18, at the Criterion, in aid of the London Poor Children's Boot Fund. The opportunity of renewing acquaintance with two of the most successful of the eminent artists' later assumptions should ensure an overwhelming audience. The Princess of Wales has given her patronage, and has graciously expressed her intention of being present.

Mr. H. B. Irving will revive the Hon. Edward Phipps's one-act play, King René's Daughter, as arranged for the stage by Sir Henry Irving, at the Shaftesbury on Monday. Miss Dorothea Baird will be seen for the first time in London as Iolanthe, and the cast will comprise Mr. Frank Tyars, Mr. Gerald Lawrence, Mr. Frank Cochrane, Mr. Stanley Howlett, Mr. Frank Randell, Mr. J. Patrick Curwen, and Miss E. Frances Davis.

Mr. and Mrs. Kendal will take an extended rest after the conclusion of their present tour, which finishes at the Broadway, New Cross, this evening. Subsequently the eminent artists will return to the stage for a tour of the chief provincial centres, after which it is expected that they will bid goodbye to the profession which they have so long and honourably adorned.

Sir Squire Bancroft and Mr. George Alexander were among the distinguished gathering at the funeral service for the late Lord Glenesk at St. Paul's, Knightsbridge, on Saturday. Sir Squire and Lady Bancroft also sent a wreath.

A new scene, and one quite unrehearsed so far as Miss Ashwell and her husband were concerned, was enacted at the Kingsway on Wednesday afternoon. The whole of the company and the staff, including several ladies and gentlemen who played in former pieces at the theatre but are not in the cast of Grit, clubbed together and gave Miss Ashwell a wedding gift, which took the form of a handsome silver rose-bowl of Cromwellian design, standing upon a silver plinth, which was inscribed with the facsimile signatures of 130 subscribers. The presentation, as we have hinted, took Miss Ashwell and her husband (who had been summoned to the theatre by telephone) completely by surprise, but evidently afforded them the greatest delight. In view of the fact that everyone in the house contributed to the scheme, the presentation was made by "Bobbie," the call-boy.

"Havana" is shortly to proceed on a long tour in the principal towns in the provinces. The last weeks of the popular musical play are therefore announced at the Gaiety Theatre.

Mr. Thomas Thorne, we regret to learn, has been very poorly for the last fortnight at 74, Royal Parade, Eastbourne, and is not able to leave his bed. The veteran comedian desires to thank, through our columns, all kind enquirers.

The new Gaiety piece may be expected early in the New Year, when a number of favourites will be welcomed back. Miss Gertie Millar, fresh from her American successes, will again grace the Gaiety boards, and Mr. Edmund Payne and Mr. George Grossmith, jun., will also make their re-appearance on the scene of many triumphs. Miss Denise Orme, Mr. O. B. Clarence, and Mr. J. E. Fraser will be in the cast, and Miss Kitty Mason retains her place as principal dancer. The foundations of the new musical comedy are laid in Harrod's Stores, and it is "provisionally" entitled The Girl from the Stores.

Mr. George Edwardes has decided upon Christmas Eve for the production of The Dollar Princess, which is destined to see the light at the Prince's Theatre, Manchester. The new musical play, freely adapted by Captain Basil Hood from the original by Herr Wilner, with music by Leo Fall, has met with phenomenal success in many Continental cities. The Dollar Princess will play a month in Manchester, and will then proceed to some of the leading provincial towns, ultimately arriving at the Adelphi. An important member of the cast will be Mr. Richard Golden, who will embody an American millionaire, with an unalterable determination that every servant in his household shall be a member of the English aristocracy. The cast will also comprise Messrs. Robert Michaelis, Vernon Davidson, Howard Crudland, Harry Parker, Robert St. George, Willie Warde, Philip Simmons, and William Guilbert, Misses Hilda Moody, Alice Pollard, Mabel Duncan, Doris Dewar, and May Sarony, and Mlle. Arlette Dorgère.

Mme. Kate Flinn held an unusually big "at home" on Thursday. Amongst her pupils who made a great success was Miss Mabel Hope, who sang the waltz song from Tom Jones with fine effect, finishing on the D in alt. Two very fine contraltos, Miss Ruby Cobbett and Miss Chard, created a good effect, the former being particularly excellent in "Che Parlate D'Amor" and a song of Strauss. Miss Barbara Battishill sang very sweetly in songs by Liszt and Coningsby Clarke. Mr. Godfrey Nutting played some of his own compositions, and two of his songs were sung by Miss Ruby Cobbett and Mr. Roland Jackson, both being encored. Miss Le Hay is quite a miniature Margaret Cooper, and gave her songs with great spirit. Mr. Sivori Levey is inimitable in his recitations at the pinao, and Miss Isabel Hirschfeld and Mr. Horace Witty also contributed to the afternoon's entertainment.

Miss Vane Featherstone recited in her usual taking style. Miss Courage, a fine dramatic soprano, with a voice of admirable quality, gave "A star story" with such good effect that she was encored. A similar distinction was won by Mme. Flinn herself, who gave two charming songs. Miss Eva Bevis sang a delightful little song called "Stolen fruit."

The accomplished teacher received warm congratulations on the high state of efficiency attained by her pupils, whose talents had been cultivated in such varied degree. Amongst the numerous guests were:—Lady Susan Yorke, Lady St. David's, Lady Puleston, Lady Allen and Miss Allen, Lady Prescott, Lady Humphreys and Miss Humphreys, Lady Whittaker and Miss Whittaker, Baroness De Ville, Lady Lawson and Miss Olive Lawson, the Hon. Mrs. Mark Hovell, Sir William and Lady Selfe, Miss Fortescue, Miss Phyllis Broughton, Mme. Jolivet, and Miss Fanny Brough.

The matinée in aid of the Actors' Church Union will take place at the Playhouse on Thursday next. The performance, which has been organised by J. Maundy-Gregory and Rev. J. Stephen Barrass, is under the immediate patronage of Her Royal Highness, the Princess Royal, His Serene Highness Prince Alexander of Teck, and a large number of titled people.

The programme is of a particularly select character, and will be contributed to by Sir Charles Wyndham, who will appear in Still Waters Run Deep. Mr. George Alexander will give an act of The Thief; Mr. Cyril Maude and Miss Winifred Emery will be seen in The Clandestine Marriage; and other artists who will perform are Mr. H. B. Irving, Miss Cecilia Loftus, Mr. Rutland Berrington, Miss Phyllis Broughton, Miss Kitty Gordon, Mr. Joe Elvin, and Mr. George Mozart.

Miss Annie Hughes concludes to-day her tour with The Mollusc, with which she has been visiting all the principal dramatic centres in England, Scotland, and Ireland. Miss Hughes has been touring for two years with Jerome K. Jerome's Miss Tommy and the above-mentioned play, and it is surely time the popular and accomplished actress should be seen again in London, where she is held in such esteem. Miss Hughes has received a hearty greeting whenever her travels have brought her to the suburbs, and her appearance at the West-End, even in a character of minor importance, would be as warmly welcomed by her admirers as it would be agreeable to Miss Hughes herself.

Miss Evelyn Millard has acceded to repeated requests, and will revive Mr. Anthony Hope's Adventure of Lady Ursula at a series of Tuesday and Thursday matinées at the Garrick Theatre, beginning on Jan. 5. Miss Millard is sure of a hearty welcome in a rôle in which she obtained one of her most decisive successes on the production of the comedy at the Duke of York's in the autumn of 1898. Mr. Herbert Waring is fortunately available for his old part of Sir George Sylvester. Idols will still remain in the evening bill, and be given also on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons as usual.

Mr. Frank Boyd's Pelican Annual for this year is as bright, lively, and amusing as ever. It contains contributions from Sir Edward Moss, Miss Evelyn Millard, Mr. Beerbohm Tree, Miss Lena Ashwell, Mr. Arthur Collins, Miss Zena Dare, Mr. Matheson Lang, Miss Maud Allan, Miss Fannie Ward, Mr. Harry Grattan, Mr. George Edwardes, Miss Ada Reeve, Mr. Huntley Wright, Miss Agnes Hewitt, Mr. George Alexander, Miss Gertie Millar, Mr. Seymour Hicks, Miss Marie Studholme, Mr. G. P. Huntley, Miss Ellaline Terriss, Mr. Frank Curzon, Miss Isabel Jay, Mr. H. B. Irving, Miss Ruth Vincent, Mr. Alfred Butt, Mr. Martin Harvey, Miss Ethel Irving, Mr. George Graves, Miss Ethel Grace, Mr. J. E. Vedrenne, Miss Phyllis Dare, Mr. Gerald du Maurier, Miss May de Sousa, Mr. Frank Parker, Mr. Weedon Grossmith, Miss Jean Aylwin, Mr. Allan Aynesworth, Mr. Sidney Smith, Mrs. Edna May Lewisohn, Miss Dorothy Craske, Mr. A. E. Wells, Miss Lily Elsie, Mr. Charles Hawtrey, Miss Elizabeth Firth, Mr. George Robey, Miss Millie Legarde, Mr. Harry Fragson, and Mr. Alfred Phillips. Each of these contributions is a little gem in its way, and, of course, has additional interest from the popular personality of its contributor. The "annual" is tastefully and artistically illustrated with "process" portraits.

Miss Viola Tree made her début in grand opera on Thursday, when she sang the title-rôle in the Royal College of Music production of Goetz's Francesca at His Majesty's. Miss Tree acted the part superbly, while her singing showed that she had made progress in the vocal art. Her voice is stronger, though it appeared to be overtaxed with the difficult music. The performance was decidedly interesting, and one of considerable promise.

The wedding between Mr. Davy Burnaby and Miss Vera Turner was solemnised at St. Mary Abbots Church, Kensington, on Saturday last. The Rev. H. B. F. Burnaby, brother of the bridegroom, read the service, and the Rev. Killin Roberts gave the address. Mr. F. B. H. Margetts was best man.

The bridegroom is the clever exponent of the Comte Victoire, in The Belle of Brittany, while his success as Reggie Hankey, in The Education of Elizabeth, at the Haymarket and at the Apollo, will be well remembered. The bride is the daugther of J. A. Turner, M.B., executive health officer, Bombay. She wore a plain satin dress and beautiful Honiton lace veil, and carried a sheaf of lilies. Six bridesmaids attended her, dressed in pink chiffon, with black sashes, black hats, trimmed with blue violets and pink roses. They carried bouquets of the same flowers.

The reception was held at Kensington Palace-mansions, when the wedding presents—about 300 in all—were on view. They included a grand piano, from Dr. and Mrs. Turner (father and mother of the bride), and a crested plate canteen (Mrs. Turner). Among the gifts to the bridegroom was a silver cigarette-box, from the members of the Belle of Brittany company, with the names of George Graves, Walter Passmore, Lawrence Rea, Maud Boyd, Maudi Darrell, and Lily Iris engraved upon it. After the reception the happy couple left in a motor for the Savoy Hotel, where a three days' honeymoon was spent.

The Actors' Benevolent Fund annual dinner will be with us in a week, and a large attendance at the Hôtel Métropole on Sunday, the 13th inst., is expected, seeing that such influential speakers are announced. Mr. Cyril Maude will occupy the chair, and propose the toast of the evening. Sir Charles Wyndham will speak for "The Drama," to which Mr. Alfred Sutro will reply; and the hero of Mafeking, General Baden-Powell, will also be heard.

Old Bensonians will regret to hear that Mr. Frank Bentz, formerly acting-manager of Mr. F. R. Benson's Midlands company, and subsequently Press manager to H. B. Irving, has been lying seriously ill at King's College Hospital for the last month. Mr. Bentz recently underwent an operation for an internal complaint, and is now making slow but satisfactory progress towards recovery.

Mrs. D'Oyly Carte corrects a misapprehension which has arisen consequent upon her forthcoming retirement from the Savoy, and desires it to be understood that she will continue her opera business in the provinces as usual. The announcement will be welcomed by playgoers in the country and suburbs, by whom the visits of the D'Oyly Carte operas have ever been liberally patronised.

The young lady who has been engaged by Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree as Fairy Queen, in his production of Pinkie and the Fairies, is a pupil of Miss Elise Clerc, late Empire Theatre.

A brilliant gathering assembled at the Ritz Hotel on Tuesday to do honour to Mr. Robert Ross, who has done so much towards rehabilitating the memory of the late dramatist, Oscar Wilde. A fashionable and cultured assemblage included the Duchess of Sutherland, Mr. George Alexander, Mr. W. W. Jacobs, Sir Robert Chalmers, C.B., Lord Howard de Walden, Mr. William Archer, Mr. Max Beerbohm, Mr. A. B. Walkley, Mr. W. Somerset Maugham, Lady Tennant, Lord Grimthorpe, Mr. Roy Horniman, and Mr. Murray Carson.

In proposing Mr. Ross's health, Mr. H. G. Wells said that that gentleman stood there for social courage and friendship. It was easy to stick up for a friend when he was prosperous, but it was very difficult and hard to stick up for a friend when he was wrong and the world was against him. Mr. Ross stood up for his friend when the whole weight of public opinion was against him. Mr. Ross, in reply, said that in six years after his death, all Wilde's debts, which amounted to some £6,000, had been paid off; and that it was Germany that had really done it. Wilde's posthumous reputation was certainly made in Germany. Mr. Ross said that two days ago he received a cheque for £2,000, with which to erect a monument to Oscar Wilde in Paris.

Elegant and useful is the souvenir with which Miss Evelyn Millard marked the hundredth performance of Idols at the Garrick on Monday. The souvenir consists of a specially bound copy of the novel, interleaved with artistic portraits of the author, Mr. W. J. Locke, and of the adapter, Mr Roy Horniman. There are in addition similarly excellent photographs of Miss Millard and the principals of her company, together with some of the most striking scenes in the play, all beautifully reproduced.

Miss Ellen Terry's matinée of Captain Brassbound's Conversion proved an immense success at the Ealing Theatre on Wednesday. The ever-popular actress, who upon her appearance was greeted with a furore of applause, was well supported by her husband, Mr. James Carew, and a specially-selected company, including Mr. George Fitzgerald, Mr. Story-Gofton, and Mr. Max Montesole. Mr. Walter Gibbons and his manager, Mr. J. A. Molloy, it will thus be seen, are making full use of their "two-stringed bow," a double licence, in pressing the fortunes of the Ealing house.

Mr. J. Bannister Howard will conclude his third season at the Crystal Palace Theatre next week, for which he has secured Mr. George Edwardes's No. 1 company in The Merry Widow. The booking is already well advanced. With the exception of two performances of My Lady Molly, which will be given by the Sydenham Hill Operatic Society on Dec. 18 and 19, the theatre will then be closed for rehearsals of Robinson Crusoe, opening on Dec. 24.

Mr. Howard will be running no less than three pantomimes this year, viz., Robinson Crusoe at the Crystal Palace, Cinderella at the Theatre Royal, Plymouth, and last year's Crystal Palace success, The Forty Thieves, which will go on tour, opening at Cheltenham for a short season, and then proceeding to Bath.

"Victoria," a story with songs, in three acts, written by George V. Hobart, and composed by Victor Herbert, was produced for copyright purposes at the Victoria Hall, Bayswater, on Nov. 27.

Miss Helena Head, who returned to the States a few weeks ago, has now resumed her part of Florence Trenchard with Mr. E. H. Sothern, in his revival of Lord Dundreary.

The engagement at the Crystal Palace Theatre that has been looked forward to this season with the greatest amount of interest is perhaps that of Mr. George Edwardes's company, in the popular musical play, The Merry Widow. Astonishing is the only adjective that at all describes the tremendous popularity that has been gained all over the world by this most fortunate piece. It is the rage in the United States to-day as much as it is in England, and, some months ago, when it was performed at the State Opera House, at St. Petersburg, £100 was refused for boxes, and £5 was the lowest price for the humblest seat. Only the other day one of the audience, expressing his delight at the representation given by the company to be seen next week at Sydenham, told the manager that he had already seen the play thirty times in London.

By permission of Mr. Bannister Howard, the Sydenham Hill Operatic Society will give two performances of My Lady Molly, at the Crystal Palace Theatre, on the evenings of Friday and Saturday, Dec. 18 and 19.

The British Empire Shakespeare Society gave a dramatic reading of Twelfth Night on the afternoon of the 26th ult., at the Excelsior Hall, Bethnal Green, E., before a crowded and enthusiastic audience, which included Princess Louise Augusta of Schleswig-Holstein, at whose suggestion the reading was given. The cast comprised Mr. Acton Bond, Mr. Percy D. Owen, Mr. Shakespeare Stewart, Miss Victoria Addison, and several of those who took part in the Society's recent performances of the same play at the Memorial Theatre, Stratford-on-Avon. At the close of the meeting, the Rev. Woollcombe alluded appreciatively to the size of the audience, and thanked the Princess for having so kindly arranged the reading.

Mr. Hamilton Deane is concluding two and a half years' starring engagement with Messrs. Armitage and Leigh, and is engaged by Mr. Richard Flanagan for Octavius Cæsar in his forthcoming revival of Antony and Cleopatra at the Queen's, Manchester, this being his third engagement under Mr. Flanagan's management.

"Her Secret Lover," a drama in four acts, by Mrs. F. G. Kimberley, was produced for copyright purposes at the Opera House, Dudley, on Dec. 1.

Le Cercle Artistique will give their next performance on Sunday evening, Dec. 13, at the Rehearsal Theatre, Maiden-lane. The programme will include a one-act play, Mademoiselle Fifi, adapted from the French of Guy de Maupassant; an original monologue by Laura Leycester; a wordless play by Joan Pereira set to classical music; selections from Browning, and a scene from Denise in the French. The following will take part in the entertainment:—Messrs. Fredk. Annerley, Chas. Bruce, Frank Cochrane, Laurence Grove, and H. Lodge; Mesdames F. Fauvel, Laura Leycester, Rosetta McLaren, Joan Pereira, Alys Rees, and Rita Sponti.

"A Repentant Sinner; or, Thy Name is Woman," will furnish the Christmas production at the Alhambra, Stourbridge.

Mr. G. S. King, the energetic manager of the Metropole, Devonport, has secured a strong attraction for next week in the Moody-Manners Operatic Company. An interesting plan was adopted of ensuring the presentation of the most popular numbers by circularising the residents of Devonport as to the pieces they desired presented. In the result popular choice has fell upon Madame Butterfly, Faust, Maritana, Bohemian Girl, Tannhäuser, and Carmen.

The young lady who has been engaged by Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree as Fairy Queen, in his Christmas production at His Majesty's of Pinkie and the Fairies, is a pupil of Miss Elise Clerc, late of the Empire Theatre.

At Birmingham Special Sessions on Tuesday the licences of the Theatre Royal, Prince of Wales's, Metropole, Alexandra, Carlton, and Bordesley Palace Theatre were renewed. In the course of an address to the proprietors and managers of the various theatres, the chairman said he had been asked to say a few words about fireproof curtains. It had been reported to the Bench that an accident occurred at one of the theatres quite recently. The ropes supporting the counter-weight of the fireproof curtain gave way, and the counter-weight fell on the stage. It might possibly have resulted in a serious accident, and the magistrates were anxious that every precaution should be taken with regard to the arrangements for the casing in of the weights, and for the testing of the wires, and for the securing of the counter-weights to the satisfaction of the building surveyor. An undertaking was given to carry out any suggestions that the building surveyor might make.

Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's No. 1 company of Lady Frederick during their visit to Swansea last week played a flying matinée at Merthyr Tydvil, and Miss Love, in the title-rôle, received a great reception from a packed audience, most of the stalls and dress circle being booked weeks ahead. The company returned to Swansea in ample time for the evening performance, and played to another fine house.

Mr. Edmund Tearle, at the Opera House, Southport, on Tuesday night, performed Macbeth for the four-hundredth time. His first appearance in the part was with the late Miss Fanny Davenport, at the Walnut-street Theatre, Philadelphia, in the fall of 1881. He was then twenty-four years of age. In 1884 Mr. Tearle again visited America, this time as leading support to the late Mme. Adelaide Ristori, playing Macbeth in all the principal cities from the Atlantic to the Pacific. In view of the great demonstration this week in honour of Ristori, it is interesting to learn that Mr. Tearle was the last English actor to play Macbeth with the great tragedienne. On Ristori's farewell of the stage in New York as Lady Macbeth, the late Mr. Edwin Booth was the Macbeth and Mr. Tearle the Macduff.

Mr. Lionel Atwill, who has played Michael Sunlocks in The Bondman under Mr. Wentworth Croke's management since the first tour, is relinquishing that part shortly, and will join Messrs. D. Lyn Harding and Sidney Cooper, to play the lead in The Flag Lieutenant at Christmas.

Miss Kitty Gordon, the well-known actress, who in private life is the Hon. Mrs. H. W. W. Horsley Beresford, took a dislike to her motor-car, and determined to dispose of it. A dispute which occurred between her and the Grande Maison d'Automobiles (Ltd.) over the transaction led to the firm suing her for damages for breach of contract to buy a new car from or through them. The case was tried in the Court of King's Bench on Monday, when judgment was given for the plaintiffs for £102 and costs.

Miss Lilla Wilde, who claims the record for Nellie Denver, having played the part longer than any other actress on the English stage, concludes on Dec. 12 her second successful engagement as Hildn Corrode with Mr. Lester Collingwood's When London Sleeps company.

Owing to the sudden indisposition of Mr. Ian Maclaren, the part of Hamlet was taken up at a day's notice, at Devonport on Monday, by Mr. Matthew Boulton, who gave a successful performance. During the week he also played Shylock and David Garrick to enthusiastic audiences, and this evening will appear as Othello. Mr. Boulton will also play the title-rôle in Henry of Lancaster for Mr. Maclaren at Newport and Swansea next week.

Miss Gladys Harvey, who has been making such a success in Mr. Henry Arthur Jones's play The Hypocrites, has been engaged by Messrs. Meynell and Gunn to play juvenile leads in their company in Australia. Miss Harvey leaves England on Feb. 5.

Owing to Mr. Colin Coop having to rehearse for the Grand Theatre pantomime, Leeds, his part, Squire Bantam in Dorothy, will be played at the Marlborough Theatre next week by Mr. J. W. Hughes.

A fatal termination, we regret to state, has followed the sudden illness of typhoid which overtook Mr. Alfred Conybeare Gough, a member of Mr. Fred Terry's company, in The Scarlet Pimpernel, at Liverpool a fortnight ago. Mr. Gough, who was only thirty years of age, had been touring with Mr. Terry's company during the past couple of years, and was considered to have a most promising stage career before him. He was the son of Mr. J. M. Gough, of Derby-road, Withington. During his illness Mr. Gough was an in-patient at the Liverpool Infirmary, where he died.

We learn with regret of the death at Newport on Wednesday morning of Mr. James De Rees, who some years ago had a number of fit-up companies on the road, visiting public halls throughout the country. Deceased, who had been in bad health for the past three years, leaves a widow and a family of ten children.

Mr. William H. Brougham concludes on Dec. 5 his 1010th night as the Messenger, with Mr. Fred Mouillot's A Message from Mars company. Mr. Brougham is re-engaged for the next tour commencing Boxing Day.

Mr. Gelderd, who has been supporting Miss Decima Moore as Gerald Halstane during the autumn tour of Mrs. Dot, has been engaged for the spring tour of My Wife and Her Father. Meanwhile he goes to Glasgow for a short season to reappear in the Caste comedies.

Mr. James Welch, who has been delighting Newcastle audiences during the past week, played an unusual part on Monday last—that of bazaar-opener. In that capacity the inimitable comedian officiated at the inauguration of the annual sale of work, held in aid of St. Luke's Church, Newcastle-on-Tyne, and was a great success.

Unforeseen circumstances developed by cablegrams the last few days have compelled Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer to cancel her Indian tour.

Shakespeare's Two Gentlemen of Verona is seldom seen on the stage nowadays, and the revival of the play by the Edinburgh branch of the British Empire Shakespeare Society last Monday evening at the Theatre Royal must have been a novelty to many of the audience. The amateurs showed much intelligence in the performance, the success being in a great measure due to the experience and skill of Mr. Graeme Goring, a popular member at one time of Mr. George Alexander's company, who stage-managed the production. Mr. Goring has now settled in Edinburgh, where he is well known as a teacher of elocution and stage deportment.

It is proposed to revive the annual theatrical football gala at Liverpool. During the course of about twenty years this event, which was generally held during the reign of pantomime, resulted in the raising of many thousands of pounds, which were distributed among local and theatrical charities. A couple of years ago the gala was allowed to lapse.

The famous comic opera Dorothy will grace the stage at the Marlborough Theatre next week, with the exceptionally strong cast that includes Mr. Hayden Coffin, Mr. John Coates, Mr. Arthur Williams, Miss Ruth Davenport, and many additional performers of proved ability.

Last week, at the Theatre Royal, Chesterfield, Miss Leonora Castelle was called upon at a moment's notice to play the lead, Marion Thornton, in Hardie and Von Leer's Two Little Vagabonds company. She came through the ordeal successfully, and was complimented by the local manager on her performance. She is now playing the part permanently. Miss Castelle is the wife of Mr. George Denham, the leading man and business-manager of the company. Mr. and Mrs. Denham have been re-engaged for the same parts for the spring tour, opening Boxing Day at the Royalty Theatre, Morecambe.

Miss Decima Moore to-day brings to a conclusion her engagement as Mrs. Dot with Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison. Miss Moore may take pride in the fact that during two and a half years' continuous work in All of a Sudden Peggy, The Truth—of which 300 performances were given—and Mrs. Dot she has only once been out of the bill.

At the Shakespeare, Clapham, on Monday, Mr. Wentworth Croke will present his No. 1 company in the new version of The Christian, by Hall Caine, direct from the Lyceum and Shaftesbury Theatres. New scenery, dresses and effects are provided.

During his engagement at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, Mr. Norman V. Norman will give two performances of David Garrick, in which Miss Beatrice Wilson will play Ada Ingot. The principal piece will be preceded by a one-act play by Affleck Scott, author of Breaking it Gently.

Miss Louise Moodie has just returned to town after a successful tour with Sir John Hare, playing the part of Lady Owbridge, in The Gay Lord Quex.

Mr. Robert Minster, the leading man in Mr. Percy Hutchison's Lady Frederick company, which is this week at Wolverhampton, acted as judge for the local Shakespearean Society's elocution class on Tuesday. Lady Frederick's tour terminates on Saturday at Cardiff, and recommences on Jan. 4.

At the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin, on Tuesday, owing to the sudden indisposition of Miss Ruth Davenport, who is playing the title-rôle in Messrs. Hayden Coffin and John Coates's company of Dorothy, her understudy, Miss Leamy Green, was called upon to play the part, and gave a performance which won for her a very cordial reception at the fall of the curtain.

Miss Millie Legarde will take up the rôle of Denise in The Belle of Brittany at the Queen's Theatre on Monday, in succession to Miss Lily Iris, who is to play principal boy in the pantomime at the Tyne Theatre, Newcastle.

Contributions from a number of leading actors and dramatists go to swell a little book which is to be published this month on behalf of the funds of the Royal Hospital for Incurables, Putney Heath. The booklet contains messages from fifty well-known people who have written appreciatively of the work carried on by the charity, and includes articles by Sir Squire Bancroft, Sir Francis Burnand, Sir W. S. Gilbert, Sir Gilbert Parker, Mr. Beerbohm Tree, Mr. George Alexander, Madame Albani, Mr. Lewis Waller, and Mr. Ben Davies.

Fulham meets Tottenham in the Second Division this afternoon at Fulham, the kick-off being at 2.30. The home team consists of Skene, Charlton, Lindsay, Collins, Parsonage, Suart, Threlfall (or Carter), Dalrymple, Harrison, Brawn, and Lipsham. In the London League Fulham Reserves are opposed to Deptford Invicta, and begin the match at 2.30 at Deptford.

"Hannele," the English adaptation of Hauptmann's impressive drama, with which the Afternoon Theatre starts operations at His Majesty's on Tuesday, has now been licensed by the Lord Chamberlain. The piece will be played on three occasions only, but each succeeding piece will have six or eight representations. It is intended to produce a new play every month throughout the season.

Miss Lena Ashwell's North company of her Kingsway Theatre success, Diana of Dobson's, brings its autumn tour to an end at the Theatre Royal, Bolton, this evening. The play has proved one of the greatest attractions in the provinces, and the large audiences who have witnessed this delightful comedy of Miss Cicely Hamilton's have been enthusiastic. Mr. H. B. Fitzgibbon has been retained by Miss Ashwell as her business-manager for a spring tour, this being his fourth engagement with the Kingsway management.

We regretfully record the death of Mr. George Macmahon, manager of Mr. F. Macmahon's Irish repertory company, at Ballinamore. Mr. Macmahon was carrying out his duties in front of the house, when he complained of indisposition. He went home, where he expired less than an hour afterwards, the cause of death being the fracture of a blood-vessel in the lungs. The funeral took place on Tuesday, and was largely attended.

Mr. Ernest Cox was taken ill with pneumonia and pleurisy during last week at Wolverhampton, but is making progress towards recovery, when he will return to take up his part of Prince Olaf in The Prince and the Beggar Maid.

The first of the winter series of Sunday evening concerts given by the new Frances Club, 435, Strand, was held on Sunday in the club-room. Those who kindly gave their services were Messrs. Sutherland, Mackey, Profit, Newmark, and Mark Hyam, and the Misses Josephine Richards, Tina Martine, Dora Gascoigne, Lily Roberts, Louise Lund, Marie Brown, and Constance Walton. The excellent programme provided by these artists was enthusiastically received by the members and their friends, who spent a most enjoyable evening.

Mr. Hugh Fleming, who concluded last week a three years' engagement with Baron Harriss's Prince of Pilsen company as advance director, has been engaged in the same capacity by Mr. Wilfred Cotton for his principal Butterflies company, which opens at the Royalty Theatre, Glasgow, on the 21st. By a curious coincidence Glasgow, which happens to be his birthplace, has been the starting-point of no fewer than five of Mr. Fleming's previous engagements.

Miss Lina Nazeby, who has been playing for the past eight months in Mr. Montgomery's stock company at the Grand Theatre, Stockton, was on Monday last the happy recipient of numerous birthday presents, including a handsome dressing-case, a silver-backed hair-brush, a gold charm, a silver coin bangle, hair combs, silver-mounted umbrella, gloves, &c.

"Dorothy" is shortly to find a home at the West End, and we congratulate the Messrs. Maundy-Gregory on their enterprise in reviving this favourite example of real comic opera. Mr. Hayden Coffin will play his original part, in which he looks as young as ever, and Mr. Arthur Williams will fill his former rôle of Lurcher. The event is definitely fixed to take place on Dec. 21 at the New Theatre, where the opera will remain for a certain period, after which arrangements have been made to carry the entire production to another theatre.

Mr. Pennington Gush concludes next Saturday a twelve weeks' special engagement as Colonel Brinthorpe in Mr. Louis Calvert's production of Sunday during Mr. William Giffard's absence.

Act 1 of Mozart's Magic Flute, followed by Act 2 of Bizet's Carmen, will be given at the Royal Academy of Music by the students of the operatic class, under the direction of Mr. Edgardo Levi, on Friday evening next. On the following evening the Balcony Scene from Romeo and Juliet, J. B. Buckstone's Good for Nothing, and Miss Brown, by Robert Buchanan and Charles Marlowe, will be performed by the students of the dramatic class, under the direction of Mr. Richard Temple.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Mr. Tree's Little Girls.

MISS FELICITY and Miss Iris Tree, who are to be the hostesses at the final rehearsal of Pinkie and the Fairies at His Majesty's Theatre, on Dec. 18, and are aged respectively thirteen and eleven years old, have received an interviewer from the Express. "We simply love gardening," said Miss Felicity, who was wrestling with a wheelbarrow almost as big as herself, "and we'd much sooner garden than act." "So would I," chimed in her sister Iris. "I'd much rather ride and play games and dig in my garden than act in a theatre. I'm not a bit keen on that." Walpole House, Chiswick, is an ideal home for children who love an open-air life, and the youthful couple spend most of their time out of doors. Lessons they "hate," but riding and gardening they "simply adore."

THEY insisted on showing the Express representative their own particular gardens, in which they were planting bulbs, and waxed eloquent on the subject. "Talking of fairies," said Miss Felicity, "all the children who are rehearsing for Pinkie just love it. They have great fun, and thoroughly enjoy their games. We're very much looking forward to it, too," she added, "and we do have such heaps of letters. Father brings great stacks of them back from the theatre, and some are from the tiniest tots you could imagine."

MISS FELICITY TREE is two years older than her sister Iris, and naturally takes the lead in all their games and plans. "I love playing golf almost better than anything," she said, "and when we go to the country and there are golf links I play all day. Iris is going to learn golf, too, but at present I am the only one to play."

Mme. Albani on Variety.

MME. ALBANI, who made her first appearance on the variety stage at the Grand Theatre, Blackpool, on Monday, says, according to the Mail:—"My first impressions are all pleasant. After all, the change is not very great. I am still singing to practically the same public, though under different conditions, and I shall be reaching others who have not heard me before. So long as I am singing to the people I am happy."

A Wise Choice.

"MR. GEORGE ALEXANDER," says the Star, "told a story of Oscar Wilde at the recent dinner to Mr. Robert Ross at the Ritz Hotel. The actor-manager told how he commissioned Wilde to write a play for him, and gave him £100 at the same time. In due course Wilde presented the play, which happened to be Lady Windermere's Fan, Mr. Alexander read it through, and then, turning to Wilde, said, 'I will give you £1,000 for this.' To which Wilde made the characteristic reply, 'I have such confidence in your judgment, my dear Alexander, that I can only refuse.'"

Fun in the Gallery.

MISS OLGA NETHERSOLE relates a curious Boxing Night experience in Cassell's Saturday Journal. She was playing a somewhat tragic part, and had the stage to herself, when she suddenly perceived that a section of the audience were laughing. Thinking perhaps there was something wrong with her "make-up," Miss Nethersole stole a glance at herself in a mirror which hung conveniently near. She could discover nothing amiss. She tried to continue as if nothing had happened. Then she thought she could distinguish among the tittering the words "Miss" and "Bull's-eye." Finally, the disturbance became so serious that the performance had to be stopped. While the popular actress waited on the stage she discovered the cause of all the merriment. The bald head of an old gentleman sitting in the dress circle had attracted the attention of some boisterous youths in the gallery, who conceived the idea of throwing orange-peel and nuts at the shining pate below. When the shot missed there was a subdued "Boo"; when they struck, "Bull's-eye" was recorded. Those merry spirits soon found themselves outside in the cold street, and the play was continued.

Such a Jolly Christmas.

"MR. HUNTLEY WRIGHT," says the same paper, "has cause to remember a certain Christmas he spent in Yorkshire. He had been through a particularly trying week at a small theatre, and had tramped home to his lodgings on the Christmas Eve tired and dispirited. However, he awoke next morning with the determination to banish dull care and enjoy a really jolly Yorkshire Christmas. Even the fact that the carpet of his sitting-room still held the crumbs of the previous night's supper failed to suppress him, and, undaunted, the rang for his breakfast. When the landlady appeared with a tray Mr. Huntley Wright wished her a merry Christmas, which she dolefully acknowledged. Then the actor, in his politest tones, said: 'Now, Mrs. M——, I want to forget all my cares in a good Christmas dinner—you can supply me with roast beef and Christmas pudding and things, eh?' Mrs. M—— wiped what was obviously meant for a tear from her eyes. 'Well, Mr. Wright,' she faltered, 'I'd be much obliged if you could get your dinner out to-day. You see, my poor husband—he died at Christmas, and I like to spend the day in the cemetery'! Mr. Wright dined out."

Brock's Best.

"WITH Gilbert," says Mr. Rutland Barrington, "there was always a certain feeling which I can only describe as a sensation of living in a kind of mental firework factory. But, mind you, Brock's best all the time; none of your common squibs and crackers, and he seemed to keep the fuse alight all the time without the slightest effort. On one occasion, when rehearsing Pinafore, he said, 'Cross left on that speech, I think, Barrington, and sit on the skylight over the saloon pensively.' I did so, but the stage carpenter had only sewn the thing together with packthread, and when I sat on it it collapsed entirely, whereupon he said like lightning, 'That's expensively.'"

"THE ANTELOPE."

Musical Play, in Three Acts, adapted from the French by Adrian Ross; Music by Hugo Felix; Lyrics by Adrian Ross, produced at the Waldorf Theatre on Saturday, Nov. 28.

Mr. Adrian Ross's libretto of The Antelope owes its origin to a three-act farce called Le Cabinet Pimperlin, by Hippolyte Raymond and Paul Burani, which was produced at the Paris Athenée in the April of 1878. It was adapted into English by C. M. Rae, and produced at the Vaudeville Theatre in the March of 1886, with Messrs. Fred Thorne, Charles Groves, Charles Glenny, E. M. Robson, Fuller Mellish, Sophie Larkin, Helen Forsyth, Maude Millett, and Louisa Peach in the cast. The original grossly indecent story, now—as Pope says in his "Essay on Man"—"through some gentle strainers lightly teased," forms the outline of a bright, lively, and amusing libretto, which only wants vigorous and judicious cutting to be quite acceptable. A peculiarly feeble song and dance duet in the third act should be certainly sacrificed, and this last act wants also to be strengthened with some striking numbers like those so liberally encored in the second and first. The music is quite suitable for this class of entertainment, being pleasing, effective, and having a certain refinement in its gayest effusions. With such a fine cast, and so much really good material, Mr. Smith should find no difficulty in moulding The Antelope into a success. The company contains several artists who are accepted favourites; and the score sparkles with brightness and musical pleasantry.

The action opens in the office of Bennett Barker, who keeps an agency at which anxious husbands may insure themselves against the possible unfaithfulness of their wives. The incidents arise, firstly, from the anxiety of Barker not to have to pay any of the amounts for which he is liable to his clients in the case of their marriages not proving permanent; and, secondly, in the irresistible attractiveness of the good-looking painter Guy Daubeney to the wives of Barker's clients. Daubeney really loves a young heiress named Iris Fenton; but Mrs. Derrick, the Italian helpmate of a stupid mason and contractor, beseeches him to elope with her to Italy; and he is also pursued by Araminta, wife to Montagu Mosenstein, an inane picture-dealer. Mrs. Derrick threatens to leave her husband before his policy of insurance expires, which will be in a month, and if she carries out her intention of running away with Daubeney Barker will have to pay the husband £200. So he applies an antidote to Mrs. Derrick's advances by instructing his own wife, Gwendoline, a clever and pretty woman, to open a flirtation with Daubeney. In this way, at the end of the second act, just as the artist is about to yield to the fascinations of Mrs. D., he is induced to stop in London and dine with Mr. and Mrs. Barker. In the last act, which takes place on the Upper Thames, complications reach their climax, and the embarrassed Barker is bullied by all parties, the piece concluding with the happy union of Daubeney and Iris.

The unflagging exertions of a very clever and capable cast kept things moving through the first and second acts very spiritedly, and the progress of the piece was punctuated with encores and applause. Mr. Fred Wright, jun., with a profusion of quaint gags and business, was comic vivacity itself as Bennett Barker, and his singing and dancing were very much admired. Mr. Farren Soutar well groomed and with a gentle suavity that was very prepossessing, enacted the too-attractive artist very pleasantly and with an agreeable repose and confidence; and that admirable comedian Mr. Fred Emney was delightfully droll as the dense, uncultured "housebreaker," Derrick. Mr. John Brabourne played Montagu Mosenstein with an irresistibly funny air of imbecility, and a cleverly contrived make-up; and Mr. Jack Cannot enacted a Tyrolese simpleton with light and easy assurance and sang the music smoothly and well. One of the greater successes of the evening was gained by Miss Maudie Thornton, whose riante pleasantry and genial, good-tempered spirit won the hearts of the audience entirely. She created intense enthusiasm by her rendering of a serious song about the drummer boys in Kipling's story of "The Drums of the Fore and Aft," and the dramatic ditty was several times encored. Miss Florence Lloyd's engaging personality, fine figure, and excellent voice were very valuable in the representation of Gwendoline, which she played most pleasantly and prettily; and Miss Hilda Stewart was efficient and acceptable as Araminta. Miss Jose Collins made a strong impression by the earnestness which she put into her delivery of a sentimental song in the first act, a number which is likely to be popular; by her emotional acting in her scenes with Mr. Soutar; and by her neat and graceful dancing. Miss Collins worked extremely hard, and secured a decided success, some of the best numbers in the score falling to her share. Miss Vivienne West was a dainty maid; and Miss Kitty Gordon made a magnificent and imposing appearance as Speranza, acting with great breadth and vigour, singing splendidly, and greatly assisting the general effect by her powerful and artistic performance. The Antelope was very prettily dressed and mounted, and the chorus was both comely and capable. The over-friendly redemands of a certain section of the audience seemed to create a reaction in another party, and there was a division of opinion at the conclusion, Mr. Smith coming forward and pouring oil upon the waters in a clever and conciliatory little speech.

"SIR ANTHONY."

Comedy, in Three Acts, by C. Haddon Chambers, produced at Wyndham's Theatre on Saturday, Nov. 28.

Clarence Chope	MR. WEEDON GROSSMITH
Mrs. Chope	MISS HENRIETTA COWAN
Victoria Chope	MISS NINA BOUCICAULT

Matilda	MISS MARY LESLIE

The problem of supplying Mr. Weedon Grossmith with one of those comic, but not entirely contemptible, characters in which he excels, and also writing an entertaining and interesting play, is by no means easy to solve, and Mr. C. Haddon Chambers's comedy, though clever all through, is somewhat thin in texture, and makes large demands for support on the excellence of the acting of those engaged in its performance. Mr. Haddon Chambers has endeavoured to paint the humours of suburban life; and if—as in the scene in which his people behave with callous rudeness in talking aloud while a good-natured youth is singing a sentimental ballad only a few feet away from them in a room—Mr. Chambers has caricatured, rather than drawn, the class he depicts, on the whole the picture must be accepted as a fair and impartial one. His piece is amusing throughout, and is admirably acted.

The scene of the first act is Mrs. Chope's sitting-room at Herne Hill. It is a typically middle-class and early Victorian apartment, with vase-ornamented overmantel, a family portrait of the most uncompromising grimness, and engravings after Landseer. Here assemble Mrs. Chope, an affectionate mother and an unpretending housewife; her daughter Victoria, a young person of much natural shrewdness and decidedly superior to her surroundings; Olive Bruton, a rather silly but pretty girl; and Robert Morrison, a clerk at a bacon curer's, and an alleged athlete. They are awaiting the return from America of Mrs. Chope's son Clarence, a clerk employed at a bacon-curer's, who on the voyage out made the acquaintance of a certain Sir Anthony Mellish, and has used his name in giving evidence in a law case in New York. His brief association with the well-known baronet has worked a complete change in Clarence, who imitates after his fashion the manner and phraseology of the great man, and even goes so far as to use a single eyeglass in mimicry of his model. When Clarence returns to the bosom of his family he is respectfully received by his mother and sister, who have heard of his "friendship" with Sir Anthony, and by his sweetheart, Olive, who is also beloved by the pugilistic Morrison, who strongly contemns Clarence's affectations. The Congregational minister of the parish, Mr. Delmar, calls to ask Chope to use his influence with Sir Anthony to get him to subscribe to a charity; and his employer, Mr. Bulger, wants Clarence to induce his baronet friend to put his name at the head of the prospectus of the company into which Bulger is going to turn his business, and even asks his clerk to dinner in furtherance of this intent. But at the end of this act a letter comes to Clarence from Sir Anthony's secretary disowning all connection with him. He, however, conceals his dismay, and continues his career of deception.

In the second act we find the personages of the comedy gathered at Mr. Bulger's big house at Balham. Morrison, distrusting Chope's statements about Sir Anthony, has induced Bulger to write to the Baronet himself. There is some humorous dialogue, in which the affectations of the magnificently-attired Mrs. Bulger are amusingly ridiculed. The simple minister, who has called upon Sir Anthony and has discovered Chope's imposture, reproaches him in a private interview; but Clarence "bluffs" him off with a plausible explanation, which deceives Mr. Delmar completely. There is no explaining away Sir Anthony's reply to Bulger, however; it topples over Chope's house of cards completely, and he is left alone, scorned and reproved, to the kindly ministrations of Victoria, who comforts him.

In the last act Chope, under the influence of his sister, reforms himself completely. He writes Sir Anthony a defiant letter, breaks his eyeglass, and engages in a pugilistic combat behind the wood-shed with the boastful Morrison, whom he defeats after a terrific struggle. His employer is delighted with his spirit, and takes him back into favour; his sweetheart, who has wavered, returns to her allegiance; and he renounces for ever the society of the great.

Mr. Weedon Grossmith's Clarence Chope adds another to the long list of his successes in parts of the "little cheeky snob" sort. The adventures of Chope are at points tragic, and the grip which Mr. Grossmith had on his audience at the end of the second act was shown by the silent seriousness with which they took Chope's despair. Every detail of the creation was supplied with all the skill and finish of which Mr. Grossmith is acknowledged to be a master; and the abnormal self-esteem of the little clerk, his egregious self-satisfaction, his assumption of superiority, and his distant imitation of a statesmanlike pose, were all depicted by Mr. Grossmith in the most finished, complete, and artistic style. That charming and clever actress, Miss Nina Boucicault, sustained with bright intelligence and characteristic acuteness the part of Victoria Chope; and Mr. Edmund Maurice, fearfully and wonderfully dressed and admirably made up, loomed large and imposing as the massive and magnificent Bulger. A quietly subtle piece of comic acting was contributed by Miss Suzanne Sheldon as Mrs. Bulger. It was unobtrusive, but extraordinarily effective; and the humour, though never forced or exaggerated, was undeniable. Miss Christine Silver gave an irreproachable embodiment of Olive Bruton, and Mr. J. D. Beveridge played the oily and urbane Mr. Delmar with his usual ease, authority, and complete command of his resources. Miss Mignon Clifford was decidedly amusing, and showed considerable smartness as a diminutive servant; Mr. Evelyn Beerbohm's Robert Morrison was a study from life of genuine realistic merit; and Miss Mary Leslie was thoroughly efficient as the Bulger domestic. Mr. Julian Hicks's scenery was appropriate and sufficient. Sir Anthony was preceded by Mr. Nelson Jackson in an amusing musical monologue.

'THE PIRATES OF PENZANCE; OR, THE SLAVE OF DUTY."

Comic Opera, in Two Acts, Written by W. S. Gilbert, Composed by Arthur Sullivan, Revived at the Savoy Theatre on Tuesday, Dec. 1.

Major-General Stanley	MR. C. H. WORKMAN
The Pirate King	MR. HENRY A. LYTTON
Samuel	MR. LEO. SHEFFIELD
Frederic	MR. HENRY HERBERT
Sergeant of Police	MR. RUTLAND BARRINGTON
Mabel	MISS DOROTHY COURT
Edith	MISS JESSIE ROSE
Kate	MISS BEATRICE BOARER
Isabel	MISS ETHEL LEWIS
Ruth	MISS LOUIE RENE

The Pirates of Penzance was played for the first time in England at the Opera Comique Theatre on April 3, 1880, with Mr. George Grossmith as Major-General Stanley, Mr. Richard Temple as the Pirate King, Mr. George Power as Frederic, Mr. Rutland Barrington as the Sergeant of Police, Miss Marion Hood as Mabel, and Miss Emily Cross as Ruth. "The first performance," says Mr. Rutland Barrington in his book on himself, "very nearly had to be postponed on account of an accident to Miss Everard, who was to have played the part of Ruth; she was delightful as Little Buttercup in Pinafore. She was standing in the centre of the stage at rehearsal one morning, when I noticed the front piece of a stack of scenery falling forward. I called to her to run, and got my back against the falling wing and broke its force to a great extent, but it nevertheless caught her on the head, taking off a square of hair as neatly as if done with a razor. The shock and injury combined laid her up for some time, and there was consternation in view of a postponement. Fortunately I was able to suggest to Carte a clever and dear old friend of mine, by name Emily Cross, who I felt sure would be capable of replacing Miss Everard in the time. She was telegraphed for, and after much pressure she consented, and with only two days' study and rehearsal appeared and made a great success."

The first act of the opera was written by Sir Arthur Sullivan soon after his arrival in America in 1879, the second, without the orchestration, having been already composed in England. The libretto does not bear revival quite as well as those of some others of the series; but the score contains some of the sweetest music that Sullivan ever wrote. All the most popular numbers were encored, some of them again and again, at Mrs. D'Oyly Carte's reproduction of the piece at the Savoy on Tuesday; including, of course, "Poor Wandering One" and the ever-amusing "Policeman's Song," rendered in irreproachable style by Mr. Rutland Barrington, who played the Sergeant of Police as of yore in flawless fashion. Mr. Henry Hibbert has a nice voice and uses it agreeably, and his Frederic has all the necessary ingenuous earnestness and pathetic simplicity. Miss Dorothy Court, the Mabel, was obviously too nervous to do herself justice, and at times sang a little out of tune; but she has evidently been thoroughly well taught, and possesses much agility of organ. Her appearance is prepossessing; and she acts with dainty expression and delicate grace. The part of the Pirate King loses none of its amusing effectiveness in the hands of Mr. Henry A. Lytton, who sings the music admirably, and delivers the mock-serious arguments of the ocean Monarch with excellent distinctness and discretion. Miss Louie René's Ruth is all that can be desired, dramatically and vocally, and her face and figure are well suited to the character, except that she is too comely to justify the jeers of the pirates at Ruth's alleged attractions. That clever artist Miss Jessie Rose, Miss Beatrice Boarer, and Miss Ethel Lewis are delightfully arch and active as the trio of leading daughters; and Mr. Leo Sheffield, with a striking make-up, is a powerful and picturesque Samuel. Mr. C. H. Workman not only enacts Major-General Stanley with a crispness and smartness that give to each line its full value, but sings the Major-General's song in the second act quite musically. The chorus, who had the honour of a special call at the close of the performance, was altogether excellent; and Mr. François Cellier, who responded on their behalf, well deserved the recognition of his services in training and selection. Mr. Albert James's capable stage-management had much to do with the brisk way in which all the business was performed. The two sets were very pretty, Mr. A. Terraine's Cornwall Coast scene being full of light and colour, and Mr. W. Raphael's Ruined Chapel having a very realistic rippling water effect in the background. Mr. Gilbert was called for at the conclusion, but was not in the house.

THE AFTERNOON THEATRE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—The correspondence received at His Majesty's Theatre, in connection with the Afternoon Theatre, reveals certain misunderstandings as to the nature of this new institution. I beg to be allowed the hospitality of your columns to state:—(a) The performances of the Afternoon Theatre are public performances, and seats can be booked at the box office of His Majesty's Theatre and at the libraries in the usual way. (b) The Afternoon Theatre is not a private society, such as the Incorporated Stage Society or the Play Actors. It is a public institution, producing its plays at His Majesty's Theatre. (c) The inaugural performances of Hannele, by Hauptmann, and Emily, by Miss Mack, will be given under Mr. Tree's personal direction, on Tuesday next, Dec. 8, and on Thursday and Friday, Dec. 10 and 11, at 2.45 p.m.—Yours faithfully,

FREDERICK WHELEN,

His Majesty's Theatre, Dec. 1, 1908.

Bloaters for Breakfast.

SIR ARTHUR SULLIVAN, says Mr. Barrington, was somewhat of a bon viveur whenever he could escape the grip of his chronic malady, but was also most emphatically a gourmet, and invariably had an excellent chef in his employ. Gilbert, calling there one morning, was chaffing him about this, and Sullivan defended it by insisting that even the most simple dishes sounded more attractive in French. "For instance," said he, "look at my menu there for breakfast, and you will see what I mean." Gilbert picked it up and said, "Quite so. I see. Bloaters!"

ACTORS' CHURCH UNION SERVICE.

A development of the work of the Actors' Church Union was made on Tuesday afternoon, when a series of addresses to actors, actresses, and music-hall artists was begun at the Church of St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, Charing Cross. The idea, we were assured, was not so much to draw together a large number of the profession as to promote interest in the Union. An invitation, we understood, had been left at every theatre in London, and, allowing for the fact that rehearsals are in progress for the Christmas novelties, and that the hour fixed was identical with that at which the weekly meeting of the Actors' Union is held, it was surprising to find that the attendance did not exceed a dozen. The Rev. J. Stephen Barrass, rector of St. Lawrence Jewry, and chaplain of the Actors' Church Union, was the speaker, and after a short service of hymns and devotions, said he asked them to come on the four Tuesdays of Advent in order that they might have, first of all, a brief service of prayer, and by that means members of the Actors' Church Union might become more united in the spirit and purpose of the work of the Union. He did not anticipate that they would have a very large number of people, so that he was not discouraged, and he hoped they would not be censorious. Like all new departures, it was more or less trying if people were sometimes shy, but he thought they might get more next season if they made up their minds that day as to what that service was for—namely, to bring them together for prayer, so that they might more clearly understand the great purpose of their movement. That purpose was not, as a great many people erroneously supposed, a mission to the stage, but an attempt on the part of the Church to perform a duty which ought to have been long ago performed, and that was to recognise those who were within the fold of the Church, and through them, of course, to influence others who were without. The object of their Union, then, was to draw together the members of the dramatic and music-hall professions, a very large number of whom were active members of the Church of England. He need not go into all the ramifications of the work. It would suffice to say that they came together to join first of all in prayer, and then just think together over the style of life as they lived it that day. That would be the subject during that very solid season of Advent. Life as he and they lived it seemed to be full of sorrows and trials, and it seemed to be very long. If they would cast their minds back to the very early days of youth—he was not going to insinuate that they were all in the sere and yellow leaf—they would remember how they longed to grow up and take their place in the world. Yet, as they went on in years and looked back, it seemed but yesterday. All the incidents seemed to come flying before them like a kind of living papyrii, and it seemed as though no time had elapsed. When they were young they were longing to grow old, but when they were old they were longing to grow young. Among the many people who came to him at his City church was a young fellow of nineteen. There was no harm in him; like all young fellows of the same age, he was a little bit wild, but there was no mischief. His mother thought there was mischief in some little idiosyncrasy. "I had a confidential chat with the lad," said the speaker, "and he said in confidence, 'The fact is, I want to be twenty-one.' I said 'Precisely; that is what I want to be. We all want to be twenty-one, only you are on the right side and I am on the wrong.' I think you see the philosophy underlying my remark. Life presents itself to us in this way—when you are young you are looking forward, and when you are old you are longing to be back." Life, added the preacher, is full of disappointments. There was no power that he knew of on earth that could save them from the disappointments of life. There was only one power, and that was the power of Heaven, that could save them from feeling the sting of life's disappointments. If they lived the higher life, with the love of God as their standard, then life would have neither surprises nor disappointments for them. A great many people had the idea that there were forces in this life which would mitigate the sting of disappointment. Let them examine some of those forces. First and foremost there was wealth, which a number of people believed was a most potent agent in the mitigation of disappointment, that where wealth was there must be joy; but that was not the case. He would not say the acquisition of wealth deprived one of happiness; wealth sometimes allowed the faculty for enjoyment to remain, but that faculty would only remain when the joys and tastes were simple, and he would go further, and say when there was a higher standard of enjoyment. No less illusive was the idea that power and position could yield happiness. That was, perhaps, one of the greatest snares and pitfalls of life. They saw it in every class of the community; in one the desire to move in high society, in another to move in fast society; in another it was ambition, in another it was the desire for publicity, the craze for notoriety. It was a shortcoming that was not confined to any class, but was present in varied degree in every section of society. It could be expressed in one word, "vanity," which was one of the besetting sins of manhood and womanhood. He wanted to ask them to set their thoughts on things above, not on things of the earth. Let them try to seek their standard in God. Where God was, love was; where Christ was, light was. There could be no darkness, no hatred, where they had Christ. They would thus have an altogether different standard of life, and life would yield them infinitely greater happiness than they had hitherto experienced. They would see something nobler in their fellow men than they had ever been able to see before; they would see not only the base, but they would see first of all the good. He would ask them as they met together on the Tuesdays during the Advent season to try to fix their thoughts upon the subject of life—its snares, its pitfalls, its hopes, its aspirations, and its infinite possibilities.

MISS IRENE MONCRIEFF, who has been suffering from intercostal neuralgia, is happily gaining strength. She sets out to-day for a fortnight's stay at Bournemouth, where she hopes to attain complete recovery.

DANTE AND SHAKESPEARE.

"We have seen that, in respect to moral philosophy, Shakespeare and Dante are akin," writes Mary Winslow Smyth in the Nineteenth Century for October. "It would be easy to show, also, that in some of their political ideals, such as their convictions as to a man's duty to his country and the relations of the individual to the community; in their thoughts about the duties of kings; and the dangers that beset kings; in their hate of outward show and pomp as in their realisation of the fact that high birth does not create nobility of character—that in all these Shakespeare and Dante are also akin. But having obtained a sufficient philosophical basis for our consideration of the poets' treatment of actual life, we must now turn to the portrayal of character as found in Dante and Shakespeare. Three questions especially must be answered, in order to judge of Dante as compared with Shakespeare in respect to the power of depicting actual life. First, are Dante's character real? Secondly, do we come to know them as thoroughly as we do those in Shakespeare's dramas? And, thirdly, does Dante show a knowledge of human nature in as great a variety of its aspects as does Shakespeare? Our first question answers itself, for no one ever thinks of doubting the reality of Dante's characters; even those who most insist upon the allegorical interpretation of Beatrice admit that she is too real to be wholly allegorical. Moreover, Beatrice is as real a woman when enthroned in glory—and this is the wonder of it—as when she modestly walked the streets of Florence and thrilled the youthful Dante with her sweet salutation. Dante's Beatrice combines the sweetness and lovableness and strength of Imogen, the ideality of Miranda, the purity of Isabella, the intellectuality of Portia, the reserve of Ophelia, the dignity of Hermione, the tenderness of Desdemona, the depth of intense devotion of Cordelia. She is thus intensely human and real, though at the same time she is the Beatrice, symbolic of Theology, whose religious zeal and spirituality are found in none of Shakespeare's characters. As for Virgil, whatever he may symbolise, however idealised, he is always the helpful friend, the human poet whom Dante had loved and looked to for inspiration even from youth. Virgil's humanity may be most felt, perhaps, when we see him carrying Dante in his arms, and when we notice with what emotions he is overcome at various stages of the journey, as when he is angered at the refusal of the demons to unbar the gates that lead to the city of Dis.

"And what of Francesca? We see her not merely as a spirit condemned to Hell, but as a woman capable of noble love and true devotion, tender, sympathetic, possessing the delicate grace of sweet womanliness, yet fallen and doomed. It is her life on earth, her sin, her frail humanity, which we feel even more than her punishment. And so with each and all of the people whom we meet throughout this strange journey; their reality is what most impresses us. This reality will become more apparent as we try to answer our second question, namely, do we come to know Dante's characters as thoroughly as we do Shakespeare's? Probably nine persons out of ten would, at first thought, answer this question in the negative, and the reason of all would be the same; it may be given in the words of a Dante scholar who might be expected to be more favourable to Dante. Gardner says that 'there is no development, as there is in Shakespeare, no interaction of character.' But this answer must not be allowed to pass, as is so often the case, without critical examination. Just what is meant by the phrase, 'development of character'? That Macbeth is a different man when convicted of murder from the Macbeth who, at the beginning of the play, heard the witches echo his own secretly cherished desires and intentions, which needed but the spark of opportunity to kindle into a blaze? Is Cordelia's love developed by her father's misfortunes in the sense that it first becomes apparent when the play is half over? Is Lear's insanity a sudden phenomenon, brought on by the circumstances with which the drama opens? Or do we feel that it was inevitable, brought on by a long chain of causes which reach far back, and which Shakespeare makes us know? The only real development of character that the greatest poets show us is the coming into actuality, as Aristotle would say, of potentialities, or, as a modern critic has put it, 'the blazing up of powers and passions out of quiescence into activity,' and this is only development in the sense that, as the same writer says, 'Every act . . . and every outbreak of passion' is 'one link in the casual chain determining as well as indicating character.' That Shakespeare recognised this principle, he may himself testify:

> "'There is a history in all men's lives,
> Figuring the nature of the times deceased;
> The which observed, a man may prophesy,
> With a near aim, of the main chance of things
> As yet not come to life, which in their seeds
> And weak beginnings lie intreasured.
> Such things become the hatch and brood of time.'

"In discussing what is apparently a marvellous change in Henry the Fifth from the wild Prince Hal to the wise and noble king, Canterbury and Ely decide that miracles are past, and the prince merely 'obscured his contemplation under the veil of wildness,' and it grew fastest in the night. What Shakespeare really does is to concentrate in the supreme moment of a man's life his whole past, and in this critical moment are implicit all the spiritual changes which every life must show. Take, then, Macbeth; when we first see him affected by the witches' speech, we know what he desires, and will do; when we see him later, come to a realising sense that all that should accompany old age—respect, love, and joy—cannot be his, there is a flood of light shed backward, and forward too, in such a way that we see his life whole, reflected in this supreme moment which we had foreseen from the very beginning. And what of Lear? When heartbroken, conscious that it is now too late, he cries in despair, 'Cordelia, stay a little'; are we surprised? His entire life is, rather, spread out before us, its final despair the necessary consequence of its early mistrust. Hudson says of Lear that he is among Shakespeare's finest instances of the art of representing in the 'to-day . . . the slow cumulative result of a great many yesterdays,' and this not by way of narrative, but by suggestion, 'the antecedent history being merely implied, not related, in what is given.' This is the art of the Greek tragedians, and of Pindar. And this is precisely the power of Dante, as all commentators are practically agreed. Take an instance typical of all the rest of Dante's characters; when we see Francesca reaping the whirlwind, and listen to her few simple words, the whole story of her past life is flashed before us as if by lightning. We see both her and Paolo, who shares with her in Hell the consequences of their sin, not merely on that eventful day when the reading of Launcelot overpowered them, but in all the stages of their devotion, from its first innocent beginnings to the time when Francesca's husband, doomed to a place in Hell, called Caina, even now awaiting him, so cruelly separated the lovers, as it seemed. But there is more than this; in the suggestion of Francesca's indignant husband, who tore Paolo from her, we have a glimpse of the interaction of character, for Dante succeeds in making vivid the husband's watchful jealousy, and its effect upon the lovers, who try to conceal their passion, and we cannot help thinking of the three people together in all their relations."

SHAKESPEARE AND A NATIONAL THEATRE.

"What purpose the National Theatre would serve is not yet clear," writes Mr. Charles Whibley in the National Review for July. "Doubtless it would attempt to justify its name and origin by the occasional performance of Shakespeare's plays. Doubtless it would gather together a classic repertory, and it would give a first aid to the unacted. The unacted, indeed, though they come last on the list, are the most eloquent and the least disinterested champions of the scheme. Were it not for them we should have heard little of a National Theatre. Shakespeare may very well be left to take care of himself, and he will tempt the ambition of the actor-manager until the end of time. The unacted tempt nobody, and nothing short of a public subsidy will remove what we are told is a grave injustice. No sound reason is given why one art should be encouraged by the Government while the others perish of neglect. Poetry, worthy the name, has no better chance than the drama of securing attention or reward. But, say the unacted, the cost of its production may easily be sustained either by poet or publisher. A play cannot be put upon the stage without a vast expense. That this is true is the fault of none but the managers, actors, and dramatists. Reckless extravagance is not an inherent necessity of the drama. It is only in the last fifty years that the true purpose of the theatre, the decent interpretation of the drama, has been utterly obscured. To-day carpenters, costumiers, and wig-makers throw the humble playwright into the shade. Dramas are over-mounted, over-dressed, and over-acted. The risk of production has become so great that managers prefer to put upon their stage the musical comedies, which they know will amuse an idle audience, than to encourage the dramatist of talent, whose quiet excellence may not hold its own against the noisy insistence of the carpenter. But it is not for the State to correct this vulgarity, which has been ensured by the universal greed of the theatre, and at which the dramatists themselves have eagerly connived. If it became the fashion for men of letters to have their works printed in gold upon vellum, illustrated by the greatest painters, and adorned with jewelled bindings, very few books would find their way to print. Would the world of letters be justified, therefore, in asking the aid of the Treasury? Assuredly not. The world of letters, I hope, would check its love of vain display, and return to the sane and modest conduct of its craft.

"The dramatists, in fact, who now clamour for help would be performing a more useful task if they insisted upon an economic simplicity in all corners of the theatre. And they might do it with a clearer conscience because every decrease of expense would mean an enhancing of the artistic effect. It cannot be said too often that decoration and archæology are the bane of the drama. What is called realism on the stage instantly destroys a sense of reality. The theatre lives for and by illusion. In a world illumined, not by the sun, but by the footlights, and bounded by a backcloth, there is no room for solid sets and costly furniture. Unless Hamlet is to die nightly by the sword of Laertes, the palace of Elsinore should be as flimsy as canvas can make it. You cannot translate one part of the drama into the terms of realism and let the rest be spoken in the language of emotion without ensuring a manifest absurdity. And this manifest absurdity, long ago ensured by our actor-managers, has corrupted the taste of the people.

"The reason why our unacted playwrights ask for a National Theatre is the reason why such a theatre, were it established, would be foredoomed to failure. A public, deceived into believing that the stuffiness of stage decoration is 'artistic,' would not be content with a neat simplicity. It would demand at its National Theatre the same extravagance to which speculative actor-managers have accustomed it, and thus the theatre would be either emptied or ruined.

"Those who support the project of a National Theatre are never weary of citing the example of the Comédie Française. They tell us in impassioned prose how much they have learned, what pleasure they have taken in the House of Molière. Their pleasure and profit are alike indisputable; they also seem to me wholly irrelevant. The Comédie Française is an institution which all the money in the British Isles would not avail to purchase. It contains that which is beyond the reach of wealth—a noble tradition. Did it not exist, not even the taste and intelligence of France could create it. It was born of opportunity, and cradled in genius. The descendants of Molière obtained for themselves something more than a habitation. They set before them a splendid example and a noble method. At the Comédie Française you may see Molière presented to-day as he was presented before the Court of Louis XIV. The modern actors proceed from the ancient in an unbroken line. Unbroken also are the habits of the theatre. Within its walls there is no room for the star that shines in solitary magnificence. An imperious discipline insists upon equable presentment. Its actors and actresses must speak the same language; they must act within the same frame; none of them may walk alone in the glare of the limelight. And they must study many parts, they must be obedient to the voice of the director, they must conciliate their comrades for a modest salary which the English actor would refuse with a magnificent gesture of contempt. Even if a prodigal Government or private munificence gave us the finest theatre which human ingenuity could contrive, how should we people its stage? "Men, not walls, nor empty ships, are the city," said Nicias to his army. So we, echoing his sentiment, may say that it is actors, and not an empty building, who make the theatre.

"The success which have been won upon our stage have been won not by well-trained talent, but by unexpected genius. For good or evil the history of our stage is the history of individuals. In the splendour of Garrick we forget his contemporaries. It was the genius of Kean, not the management of a wise committee, that made the fortune of Old Drury. These great men were each a law unto himself; they founded no school; they left behind them no pupils. It is improbable that either could have bequeathed a lasting tradition. Our stage, like our literature, has been uninfluenced by academics. Ours is not the best soil on which to sow the seeds of order and good government. That which suits the Latin temperament is ill-adapted to the lawless temperament of the Anglo-Saxon race, and the one chance of our stage is the advent of a dramatist who can make his own terms with actors and managers, and restore to the theatre the forgotten truth that the play is he theatre's real excuse, and that even the interpreter, to-day omnipotent, is none the worse if he encounter something not unworthy his art of interpretation."

Lady Violet Greville in the Graphic examines the causes which contribute to so many marriages between Peers and actresses. Lady Violet considers the principal factor is, perhaps, the glamour of the footlights and the fact that their (the actresses') beauty is made the most of; secondly, the enormous advertisement given by photographs and the Press nowadays to young actresses; thirdly, the fact that the girls are clever enough to desire and insist on marriage, and, lastly, the want of attraction of girls in society. The latter do not lay themselves out to please men as they used; they are too engrossed in their own amusements and games to care, and they associate so much en camarade with their male friends that the glamour, the mystery, the aloofness which are carefully cherished by the stage, have disappeared.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Nov. 30, for the first time in London, the Drama in Four Acts, by Chas. H. Phelps, entitled

"MAN OR BEAST?"

Lord Newton ..... Mr. Fred Newland
The Hon. Jack Newton .... Mr. J. W. Boyling
Sir Richard Tremere .... Mr. Ernest Vaughan
Col. Bruce Anderson ..... Mr. Chas. D. Pitt
Capt. Donald Macdonald Mr. Chas. H. Phelps
Christopher Sharp ..... Mr. Fred Boyes
Lothario Sinclair ..... Mr. Alf. Kitson
Dr. Watson ..... Mr. Frank Rogers
Pat O'Brien ..... Mr. Fred Gresham
Inspector Gresham ..... Mr. John C. Gray
Annitta ..... Miss Phyllis Elton
Marie ..... Miss Marie Pemberton
Lottie Fairfax ..... Miss Teresa Phelps
Lady Constantine Winscope
Miss Winifred Lester
Bella Newton ..... Miss Irene Carrington
Rosie Newton ..... Miss Madge Douglas

Melodrama has supplied us with wicked women galore, and in the predominating personage of Man or Beast? we have the "worst woman's" counterpart. It is the doings of Sir Richard Tremere which put the query—a plausible, heartless scoundrel, with the outward appearance of a gentleman. When we first meet him he has already besmirched the fair name of his cousin, Bella Newton, and is about to cast her off, while he has also contracted an alliance with an Indian nurse Annitta. Tremere is already the heir to Lord Newton, the father of Jack Newton and of Bella and her sister Rosie. These three have been practically disowned by their parent through the machinations of Tremere, but the old man becomes enlightened as to his nephew's real character, and in his last moments makes reparation to his son. Seeing poverty staring him in the face if the new will is brought to light, the desperate man hastens his uncle's end, but, unfortunately for him, his Indian wife, who has got herself installed as Lord Newton's nurse, witnesses the crime, as well as outwitting the villain for possession of the true will. Having this power, she extorts a promise that he will make valid their Indian marriage. Another witness to the murder of Lord Newton is his son Jack, now returned from abroad, and the latter, powerless without actual proof, vows to bring Tremere to justice, for he already has his sister's honour to avenge. Sir Richard Tremere has no intention of carrying out his promise to Annitta, for he covets the pretty, light-hearted Rosie, who has become betrothed to the easy-going, woman-hating Captain Macdonald, whose friend, Colonel Anderson has in the meantime married her sister Bella. Anderson knows nothing of his wife's former liaison with Tremere, and this is the lever which the villain brings to bear to forward his suit with Rosie. To save her sister, she will make the sacrifice, and Sir Richard Tremere sees the realisation of his schemes in view. But he does not wed his "scorched butterfly." His tether is nearly at an end. His marriage is to Annitta, who has replaced Rosie and hoodwinked Tremere. While waiting at the church is Jack Newton with detectives, who "take" Tremere for the murder of Lord Newton, on the confession of Annitta, and as recompense to Rosie, who is in bridal attire, Jack has brought a special licence for her to marry Macdonald.

The representation of the piece is in the hands of Mr. Ernest Vaughan's company, under the direction of the author, Mr. Charles H. Phelps, and the performance is extremely creditable to all concerned. Mr. Ernest Vaughan makes Sir Richard Tremere a most obnoxious personage by his cool, collected, unforced acting—the type of caustic, cynical cad that one yearns to take outside and kick. Mr. J. W. Boyling depicts the outspoken and manly Jack Newton with vigour and virility; Mr. Charles D. Pitt admirably portrays Col. Bruce Anderson; and Mr. Chas. H. Phelps as the woman-hating Captain Donald MacDonald, who is finally led to the altar, plays in capital comedy vein. Miss Irene Carrington handles the part of Bella Newton with much tact and sympathy, and Miss Phyllis Elton, whose clear diction is very welcome, plays most convincingly as the Indian nurse Annitta. Miss Madge Douglas is pretty, vivacious, and dainty as Rosie Newton (albeit adding quite a poignant touch to her performance in Rosie's troublous times), and with her excellent voice should find her way into musical comedy. Miss Marie Pemberton is chic and smart as the French maid Marie. Mr. Fred Boyes cleverly presents an exaggerated type of London solicitor in Christopher Sharp; Dr. Watson is well played by Mr. Frank Rogers; and Mr. Fred Newland makes the most of his opportunities as Lord Newton. Mr. Fred Gresham is an amusing and entertaining Pat O'Brien, and he also scores vocally. Remaining parts are in quite capable hands, and a special word of praise must be bestowed upon the mounting and dressing of the piece.

Man and Beast should certainly add another leaf to the laurels of Mr. Chas. H. Phelps.

Miss Mellon, says Mrs. Wilson, in her "Life of the Duchess of St. Albans," was one evening standing near the green-room fire, and while waiting for the play to begin she was humming some popular dance, and just tracing the steps unconsciously. She was roused by the voice of Miss Farren, whispering, "You happy girl; I would give worlds to be like you." Poor Miss Mellon, recollecting her thirty-shilling salary, thought she was ridiculed by "a lady with thirty guineas a week, who was to marry a lord"; and she replied with some slight vexation, "that there certainly must be a vast deal to be envied in her position by one who commanded what she pleased!" Pressing her hand kindly, Miss Farren's eyes became full of tears, as she replied, "I cannot command such a light heart as prompted your little song."

At the matinée at the St. James's Theatre on Friday, on behalf of the funds of the National Orthopædic Hospital, some verses by Miss Marie Corelli were printed on the programme. They were entitled "Outside the Church," and the last verse was as follows:—

> "The wind sighed and the trees swayed—
> And I heard as in a waking dream
> A jocund tune that the fiddles played
> Close under the footlight's gleam.
> Where actors acted their well-worn parts,
> To solace and strengthen suffering hearts
> And succour those in need.
> And I thought that even a priestly theme
> Could scarce teach more of the God above
> Than the force of the player's working creed
> Expressed in a labour of love;
> For surely close to the Throne of Grace
> 'Sock and Buskin' have found a place."

"THE EARL OF IONA."

Musical Comedy, in Two Acts, by H. Gerald Ransley, Produced at the Florence Institute, Liverpool, Nov. 28.

Gordon Bruce ..... Mr. Gerald Ransley
José Gonzaga ..... Mr. George Alsop
Cholmondeley Chunks ..... Mr. Jo. McGrath
Freddy Wood ..... Mr. Arthur Terry
Thompson Tadpole ..... Mr. A. Philips
Claude Dumas ..... Mr. Alex. Richardson
Derrick Van Winkle .... Mr. J. Sidney Gorrie
Number 22 ..... Mr. Fred C. Dare
Gus Freeman ..... Mr. Geo. Parry
Arthur Green ..... Mr. Victor Farquhar
Marie Dalmay ..... Miss Vera Moulton
Carmen Pastia ..... Miss Stella Raine
Countess of Helsby ..... Miss Mary Vernon
Hon. Lucy Coverdale ..... Miss Mariel Harris
Sadie Chunks ..... Miss Maude Barry

Previous efforts of Mr. Ransley have been in the dramatic line, and several well-written plays have come from his pen, but his latest is of a lighter character. The Earl of Iona has certainly much to commend it, for the dialogue is crisp and entertaining, and the music and lyrics, by the same author, exceedingly appropriate. The work was most cordially received by a large audience, and encores of several numbers loudly demanded, although the artists were all amateurs.

Briefly, the story is that the Earl is kidnapped in Paris by a couple of foreign adventurers, named Dumas and Van Winkle, and transported to San Sebastian, along with a French dancing girl named Marie Dalmay, who, by means of a forged marriage certificate, pretends to be his wife, the object being blackmail. The proprietor of the Hôtel Grande offers to disguise and shelter him on condition that he undertakes the blowing up of the Royal Mail, which is desired by Anarchists. The Earl, however, succeeds in postponing the committal of the act, and meanwhile his friends, including his sweetheart, Lucy Coverdale, and her mother, the Countess, arrive, and the conspiracy of the two adventurers is frustrated.

Mr. Ransley was amusing as the terrified Earl, his duties in the disguise of a waiter provoking great laughter; Mr. George Alsop made a creditable hotel keeper; the humorous part of the American, Chunks, was well filled by Mr. J. McGrath; Messrs. Richardson and Gorrie were a couple of funny adventurers; Miss Vera Moulton danced gracefully; Miss Maude Barry, possessed of an excellent voice, was loudly appauded for her songs "Love, love, love" and "I don't want a dandy boy"; and Mr. Ransley with his amusing number "The terrible-torial army" afforded great pleasure. The orchestra, under Mr. Tom Devaney, did justice to the appropriate music.

THE THEATRE FURNISHING CASE.

In the King's Bench Division on Tuesday, Mr. Justice Darling, in the action by Messrs. James Shoolbred and Co., Tottenham Court-road, against Sir Charles Wyndham and Mrs. Albery (Miss Mary Moore), gave judgment for the defendants, with costs, plaintiffs being allowed costs on the issue respecting some carpets and on the counter-claim.

His lordship said the action was a peculiar one. The whole object of the work was to produce a certain effect. A certain colour scheme had attracted the attention of Miss Mary Moore—a mixture of yellow and new blue. The jury had not found that the material used was exactly according to sample. There was no finding that the defendants were unreasonable people, and it must be taken that they were capable of being satisfied. They were not satisfied, and it was honestly and in good faith that they were not satisfied. The plaintiffs had undertaken to satisfy Miss Moore. They did not give her the exact thing, and she rejected it. As they failed to satisfy her she was entitled to judgment.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

The programme of the students' concert on Wednesday commenced with a piano solo, "Toccata," by Schumann, neatly played by Miss Pattie Norris. A somewhat difficult task for a student was the first movement of Vieuxtemps' "Fantasie Appassionata" for violin, but Miss Alice Kershaw displayed considerable ability, and received hearty applause. Mrs. E. M. Shergold sang "At the mid hour of night" with good expression, and was equally successful in Cowen's other song, "A Birthday." Mr. C. G. Belle has a pleasing voice, but, of course, lacks as yet the experience required for such important music as "All hail, thou dwelling pure and lowly," the famous "Salve Dimore" from Faust, and he did not improve matters by dragging the time. Miss Grace Elvey was heard in "Ah, fors è lui" from Traviata; and Mr. R. A. Fletcher, who has an excellent baritone voice, showed no little skill in his careful singing of the aria "Si tra i ceppi" from Handel's Berenice. A very young performer, Master Cecil Hay (Advanced Grade Certificate), did his professor great credit by a well-executed piano solo "Ballade in A flat" (Chopin). The Rita Mandoline Quintette, pupils of Mme. Waldahoff, proved an attractive feature of Wednesday's concert. Dressed in a pretty costume, the young ladies gave a most successful interpretation of Mahlendorf's "Pregheira" and the clever Spanish Dance of Monte. After a pretty song, entitled "To-night," by Zardo, ably sung by Miss L. Tooley, Dr Cummings announced that owing to the absence of Miss Julie C. Huntsman, set down for a recitation, Mr. R. A. Fletcher would sing Vulcan's air from Gounod's opera, but Dr. Cummings begged the indulgence of the audience for Mr. Fletcher, owing to his recent illness. The accompanist was Miss Jenny Hyman.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, Nov. 30, the Play, entitled "THE PRINCE AND THE BEGGAR MAID."

Messrs. Paumier and Howard's principal company, in the Lyceum success, The Prince and the Beggar Maid, was welcomed by a large and enthusiastic audience on Monday. The acting was in every way excellent, and the scenery and mounting in admirable taste. Mr. Herbert Ford played with distinction as Prince Olaf, and Mr. Ivan Cleveland's conception of Prince Hildred commanded attention. The crippled Prince Michael was delineated with care by Mr. Graeme Campbell and a dignified prelate was found in Mr. Francis Hawley, who portrayed the Bishop of Illyrica. Miss Annie Saker gave aperformance of Monica that was full of power and incisiveness. A rendition of much charm was presented by Miss Isla Garnet Vayne as Fiola; and Miss Dido Drake was satisfactory as Camiola. The other parts were capably sustained.

HORRORS ON THE STAGE.

"The interest of curiosity," says Mr. A. B. Walkley in "Drama and Life," "has a very humble place in the region of art, while the interest of horror has no place in that region at all. And, first, as to curiosity. That is the distinguishing mark of the child in civilised, and the adult in savage, communities. The state of mind which is always wondering what is going to happen next, rather than forming judgments upon what has happened, is a naïve state. In primitive periods it accounts for the importance of oracles, prophets, and soothsayers. It still makes kitchen-maids the ready victims of 'fortune-tellers' and the eager readers of 'Zadkiel's Almanac.' In a higher stratum of intelligence it means the popularity of the 'detective novel'; curiosity here becomes a mere amusement, a form of dilettantism, so that men of really gigantic intellect, but of an intellect which is dormant on the artistic side—Darwin and Bismarck are illustrations of the type—are accustomed to take delight in the stories of Gaboriau, du Boisgobey, and Conan Doyle. To the average mind a 'mystery' is always more fascinating than the co-ordination and analysis of ascertained facts. That is why someone or other will always be discovering Bacon 'ciphers'; such things appeal to the average man more intimately than the pleasure of reading either Bacon's or Shakespeare's works for what they are. The same feeling, the preference of the mysterious, the unaccountable, to the rational, scientifically explicable, moved the numerous supporters of the Tichborne claimant. So the interest still taken in the authorship of Junius's letters is an interest wholly unconcerned with the literary or political importance of their contents. The clever 'boom' of 'An Englishwoman's Love Letters' is another case in point. To return to drama, the aim of the great artist is not to surprise the spectator with an unforeseen, but to gratify him with an 'inevitable,' action. It is not to provoke his curiosity about what is going to happen so much as to excite in him a keen desire that a certain thing shall happen, and then to satisfy that desire to the full. To the Greek dramatists the interest of curiosity was virtually unknown; or, if they knew it, they despised the use of it. Œdipus Tyrannus is perhaps an exception, though even in that play the spectator's feeling is not so much curiosity about what is going to happen as sympathetic anguish for the victim of a fate which the spectator knows, but the victim does not know, to be impending. The state of feeling is very like that excited by Macterlinck's poignant little play Intérieur, wherein the spectator sees a drowned body being brought home. The shadows of the as yet happy family are seen on the window-blind, and the interest is not in what will happen behind that blind when the body is brought in—we all know the commotion, the horror, the grief that will ensue—but in the contrast between the present happiness of the household and the thought of the sudden end to that happiness which is impending. So indifferent were the Greek dramatists to the interest of curiosity that they did not scruple to announce their plot in advance. Euripides used prologues for this very purpose. Lessing, commenting on the practice in his 'Hamburg Dramaturgy,' maintains that 'the dramtic interest is all the stronger and keener the longer and the more certainly we have been allowed to foresee everything,' and he adds, 'So far am I from holding that the end ought to be hidden from the spectator that I don't think the enterprise would be a task beyond my strength were I to undertake a play of which the end should be announced in advance, from the very first scene.' Lessing was something of a fanatic where the Greeks were concerned, but he had the root of the matter in him. And the fact remains that the question put in Cæsar's Wife—which of two possible women is guilty of an adulterous intrigue?—is a trivial question compared with the questions which the playwright treats as of minor importance—why the guilty woman came to be guilty, and what will be the consequences of her guilt?

"As to the theatrical use of sheer horror, there is always a tendency to it. In the first place, the spectacle of helpless physical suffering has a secret attraction for the primeval brute—the gorille féroce as Taine calls it—which slumbers in all of us. A poor dog run over in a London street will attract a fascinated crowd, gathered not to assist but to gloat. Burke said that a theatre where a tragedy was a-playing would at once be deserted by an audience who learnt that a real execution was going on outside. But in default of real bloodshed the audience will content itself with the sham. Dandin, the judge in Racine's comedy of Les Plaideurs, offers to amuse Isabelle by the spectacle of a little torturing. 'Eh! Monsieur,' exclaims Isabelle—'Eh! Monsieur, peut-on voir souffrir des malheureux?' and Dandin, in his reply, speaks for a large proportion of the human race: 'Bon! cela fait toujours passer une heure ou deux.'

"Hence the popularity of the torture scene in La Tosca. Besides, there is a law in æsthetics which corresponds to the physiological law that a steady level of sensation can only be maintained by increasing doses of stimulant. Tastes jaded by the merely terrible crave for the horrible. And so we have such exhibitions as that of Heard at the Telephone, wherein a man, conversing with his wife at a great distance by this instrument, is driven raving mad by hearing thieves breaking into the house and murdering her. He can do nothing; it is as though the murder were being committed in his presence while he is gagged and bound. Now such incidents do not belong to dramatic art, because that art deals with the collision of human wills, whereas in this incident we have merely the spectacle of human powerlessness. They humiliate our common human dignity. A man overwhelmed by an avalanche is no more than a fly or a gnat. Conceive some man revered among men, a Socrates or a John Wesley or a George Washington, fallen among cannibals, tortured before our eyes, then cooked and eaten—you turn with a faugh! even from the mental picture. So there are things in the massacre of Cawnpur which no one to this day dares to think of. There are some calamities so dreadful, so irreconcilable with a rational universe, that we can only writhe over the thought of them with an agonised cry of Why? Why? Why? The dramatist who uses such themes as these (and the telephone story is one of them) is travelling outside the region of art. They belong to the region of what Aristotle spoke of as being sheer accident, misadventure, the irrational element of life. The sensation excited by the picture of them is too violent to be an æsthetic sensation, we are oppressed and shocked by it; whereas the aim of all art, even of tragic art, is to exhilarate and relieve. For the same reason no skill is demanded for such exhibitions. There is skill in the first scene of Heard at the Telephone, wherein we see the family of women left unprotected in the lonely house, and fear gradually mastering them as a sense grows upon them of something uncanny, some hidden presence in the place. It is the same effect which has been attained, on a higher plane of workmanship, in Maeterlinck's L'Intruse. But in the actual telephone scene there is no skill. The idea suffices of itself. The pit receives the scene with 'thunders of applause'? Yes, and the fact suggests a train of by no means agreeable reflections. Evidently the primeval man lurking within us is more potent than some of us had thought; evidently the lust for a strong emotion is a far more considerable force than respect for art; evidently we still have our Dandins, with their 'Bon! cela fait toujours passer une heure ou deux.' Once more the commonplace is brought home to us, that our civilisation is only skin-deep."

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

[We cannot undertake to answer the inquiries of correspondents by post. In all letters names and addresses must be given as a guarantee of good faith. Initials only or pseudonyms will be used in the replies if so desired.]

ENQUIRER.—You can dramatise a novel without the author's permission unless he has already published his work in the form of a drama; but in the Little Lord Fauntleroy case (Warne v. Seebohm) it was held that the making of copies of a drama taken from a copyright novel was an infringement of the copyright in the novel.

LYDIA DONOVAN.—Madame Sarah Bernhardt and Mrs. Patrick Campbell appeared together in the play Pelléas and Mélisande, at the Vaudeville Theatre on July 1, 1904. We cannot forward you a paper referring to the event, as it is out of print.

SIMS REEVES INQUIRY.—The late Mr. Sims Reeves received his early musical instruction from his father, a musician in the Royal Artillery. When the true quality of his voice asserted itself, he placed himself, at about the age of twenty-one, under the tuition of J. W. Hobbs and T. Cooke, and became second tenor in Macready's company at Drury Lane. He then went to prosecute his studies, first in Paris under Bordogni, and subsequently to Milan under Mazzucato. At fourteen Sims Reeves obtained the post of organist at North Cray Church, Kent.

NOMAD (Norwich).—Mr. John Le Hay was the original Tom Strutt in Dorothy on the production of that comic opera at the Gaiety, Sept. 25, 1886. Mr. Ben Davies, later in the run, became Geoffrey Wilder in succession to Mr. Redfern Hollins, the original.

FARFALLA.—You do not mention the length of your drama. Is it in one act or five? Does it play three hours or thirty-five minutes? If a lengthy piece send it to the manager of a local theatre producing popular plays. There is no particular method of getting your work produced. It depends entirely on its merits. An agent would only be of use in the halls.

H. B.—The piece you name has several years of copyright to run, and if you produce it anywhere without permission and the payment of fee you will most certainly be proceeded against.

W. BINDON.—We cannot tell you where the sketch is at present, as the people responsible do not advertise their engagements in our paper. The matter is of very slight importance.

R. C. NUNN (Ipswich).—We are holding over your question until next week.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, & DEATHS.

The charge for inserting in "The Era" an announcement of a Birth, a Marriage, or a Death, or an "In Memoriam" notice, not exceeding twenty-four words, is One Shilling and Sixpence.

As a guarantee of good faith, the name and address of the sender must accompany each notice.

BIRTHS.

FREDERICKS.—On Dec. 3, the wife of Conn Fredericks, jun. (Conn and Conrad), of a daughter.

KEEBLE.—On Nov. 28, at Fernbank Villa, Southgate, Pontefract, wife of Harry Keeble, ventriloquist, of a fine son. Both doing well. Saves buying figures.

JEFFERSON.—On Dec. 1, Margaret, wife of Arthur Jefferson, professionally known as Madge Metcalfe, peacefully passed away. R.I.P.

KEMP.—Cissie Kemp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kemp, aged half-hour. Interred at Preston Cemetery, Monday, Nov. 30.

KILBURN.—Nov. 29, at 20, Southerton-road, Hammersmith, Harry Kilburn, the dear husband of Ruth Kilburn, of acute pneumonia, through a chill caught in Aldershot, age 42.

LEES.—Nov. 23, accidentally shot at the Middlesex, Herbert Thomas Lees, variety artist, aged 27.

MACMAHON.—Nov. 28, George Macmahon, boy actor-vocalist, son of Francis Macmahon, Irish Dramatic Co. Mourned by his father, Francis, and Rose Melville. R.I.P.

RYTON HOARE.—Nov. 24, after a long and painful illness, patiently borne, Ryton Hoare, husband of Edith Adeson, in his 25th year. R.I.P.

IN MEMORIAM.

BAILEY.—In ever-loving memory of my dear father, Francis Bailey, who passed away Nov. 30, 1902. Never forgotten by his youngest daughter, Henrietta Manders.

GOLDING.—In ever-loving memory of George Golding, who died Dec. 8, 1906. Deeply mourned by his wife and family.

FOR CONDOLENCE.

CARLYON.—Mrs. Eleanor Carlyon, through the medium of our columns, desires to thank her many friends for their condolences on her severe bereavement—the death of her dear husband. These kind messages have been too numerous to answer personally

INTERNATIONAL AND COLONIAL COPYRIGHT.

Copyright confusion is, like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr. Albert A. Strong's new work, entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr. Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his textbook on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" Office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee.

Mr. A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes," which is at present required.—St. James's Gazette.

THE ERA

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 5, 1908.

THE KENDALS.

The rumour—happily unfounded—that Mr. and Mrs. KENDAL were about to retire from the stage revived in the minds of many old playgoers, vivid memories of past pleasures. For some time the KENDALS have made only occasional appearances in London; though, when they have done so—for example, in the case of The Elder Miss Blossom at the St. James's in 1899—Mrs. KENDAL proved that her art was as consummate and accomplished as ever. Great, indeed, have been the changes in the last twenty years. Well might Mr. W. S. GILBERT, in his own inimitable way, write, in the rhymed reminiscence at the LYDIA THOMPSON benefit in 1898,

"What changes here I see since that dim age
When little Goldenhair tripped on the stage!
The Drama, struggling then in lodgings shady,
Has made her fortune, and is quite the lady,
With endless hosts of highly cultured friends.
Think how she dresses now, and what she spends
On vast dramatic shrines—in sumptuous salaries,
In real Venetian-leathered pits and galleries—
In plays that run a year to houses packed,
And cost, to stage, a thousand pounds an Act!
Then, strangest thing, of playhouses yast crops!
Playhouses plentiful as grocers' shops!
Ten in twelve months! Well, I don't want to prate,
But if new theatres crop up at this rate
Where will you find your pièces, if you please,
And where your actors and your actresses?
Ten months will build a playhouse per contractor—
It takes at least ten years to build an actor,
And, as our best authorities insist,
Ten times ten years to build a dramatist!"

Mrs. KENDAL, like Miss ELLEN TERRY, afforded an example of the actress of the old school, trained from early youth in stock companies, and a perfect mistress of her art. She came of a long family of actors; and her ancestor JAMES ROBERTSON was a noted performer of TATE WILKINSON'S time. Her father, WILLIAM ROBERTSON, was connected with J. W. WALLACK in the management of the Marylebone Theatre in the early "fifties"; and it was on Monday, February 20, 1854, that the part of "Marie, a Child," in The Orphan of the Frozen Sea at the playhouse, was sustained by Miss ROBERTSON, who then made her first appearance on any stage. On another occasion she enacted one of the children in The Stranger, and convulsed the audience by calling out to her nurse in the pit, "Oh, nursey, look at my new shoes!" Mrs. KENDAL'S early stage education was gained with Mr. CHUTE'S famous stock companies at the Bristol and Bath Theatres. Her first London appearance was made at the Haymarket, under the management of Mr. WALTER MONTGOMERY, to whose Hamlet Miss MADGE ROBERTSON played Ophelia. But she had not done with the provinces, where she was already adored. On one occasion the great SAMUEL PHELPS came to Hull to "star" there; and Miss ROBERTSON was cast to play Lady Macbeth at a few hours' notice. PHELPS, whom something had annoyed, went on without her in answer to the calls at the end of the acts; but the audience was so indignant that a deputation from it waited upon WILLIAM ROBERTSON, saying that PHELPS had insulted "their MADGE," and if her father would only say the word they would "dook un in t' Hoomber." She charmed her Hull devotees also by her acting, singing, and dancing in one of WILLIAM BROUGH'S burlesques. She afterwards played with SOTHERN at the Haymarket, appearing in a play called The Wild Goose. In the last act of this SOTHERN had to shoot someone, and his pistol would not go off; on which he rushed at the lady and slaughtered her with a penknife! It was at the Haymarket that Mrs. KENDAL met HENRY COMPTON, and told him the following anecdote of his father, a characteristic of the past generation of actors: "Among the many hardships endured by provincial actors of that period was the oft-repeated order to 'march' some thirty miles or so, for the purpose of appearing at night in some adjacent town. On one of these occasions your father, Mr. CHIPPENDALE, and my father were companions; but one of the three, either from an accident or a low state of the funds, was only able to face the journey with one shoe. Under these circumstances, and knowing that the journey must be made, there was only one thing to be done, and, to the credit of the profession, be it said, they did it. They stuck by each other—as they always do, as they always have done, and, I hope, always will do—and took it in turns to walk with a single shoe until their destination was reached!"

Mrs. KENDAL has distinguished herself for her ability as a public speaker; and in a paper which she read at the Social Science Congress at Birmingham in 1884 on "The Drama" she dealt hard hits at theatrical self-advertisement, immoral adaptations from the French, prejudiced criticism, and other abuses. In this lecture she made the celebrated "chicken and champagne" allusion to the critics, which excited so much indignation.

It was a happy chance which united Mrs. KENDAL with her handsome and talented husband at St. Saviour's Church, Manchester, in the summer of 1869. They appeared on the same evening as Rosalind and Orlando; and the line, "Will you, Orlando, have to wife this Rosalind?" and the answering "I will!" were greeted by the audience with thundering plaudits. Those who have seen Mr. and Mrs. KENDAL at their best in suitable parts retain the recollection of an artistic treat, the charm of which it is impossible to analyse. In Mrs. KENDAL'S case, especially, outside the complete command of histrionic resources, was a peculiar personal charm, a delicate magnetism, and a suggestion of covert humour which bewitched and fascinated the beholder. The KENDALS, when they retire, will feel that they have had a long innings, and that they have "scored" artistically, financially, and socially.

SMOKING IN THEATRES.

The question of smoking in theatres has been agitated for a number of years. Petitions in favour of it were presented to the Lord Chamberlain and to the County Council about three years ago. The L.C.C., while sympathetic, was not prepared to act without the Lord Chamberlain, and the Lord Chamberlain was sorry he could not entertain the idea. He had received a more influentially signed petition from West End managers praying that smoking be not granted.

Petitions in favour of smoking had been got up and presented, and a resolution in favour of smoking in theatres had been passed by the Managers' Association, and the same by the Suburban Managers' Association (now the Theatres Alliance). From this body two deputations were received by the County Council advocating smoking. Mr. J. B. Mulholland, of the King's, Hammersmith, who, though disinterested in the matter, took it up on public principle, was spokesman on both occasions. On the first the advocacy had no effect; on the second, the County Council granted permission, and withdrew the clauses in their regulations and in their licences in respect of theatres under their control. This was something over a year ago. Over a year later, i.e., at the recent licensing, the Lord Chamberlain's office withdrew its prohibition of smoking in all suburban theatres under his Lordship's control. These approximately were—the Kennington, the Camden, the Dalston, the Elephant and Castle, the Broadway, the West London, the Crown, and the Marlborough. The following theatres are licensed by the L.C.C.:—The Court, the Coronet, the King's, the Fulham, the Shakespeare, the Greenwich, the Woolwich, the Lyric, and the Hammersmith. Although Mr. Mulholland strongly advocated the removal of the restriction, so that "to smoke or not to smoke" should be within the choice of each individual manager, he has never taken advantage of the concession at the King's, and the same applies to the managements at one or two other theatres mentioned, including, of course, the Court.

STEPHEN KEMBLE amused old audiences by his performance of Falstaff. He exhibited the humours of the jovial knight with skill enough to make the audience laugh. But he was perhaps the first actor who ever played the fat knight to the life. His remarkable corpulence qualified him to play the character without stuffing. The good humour of his visage was fully equalled by the protuberance of his stomach; and if the "totus in se teres atque rotundus" of Horace is the poet's definition of a good man, the actor rose to the summit of human virtue.

"INTO THE LIGHT."

Romantic Comedy, in Four Acts, by Gerald Lawrence, produced at the Court Theatre on Monday, Nov. 30.

Simon Langley	MR. FISHER WHITE
Felix Gottlieb	MR. GERALD LAWRENCE
Frederick Ramsden	MR. KENYON MUSGRAVE
Archie Goring	MR. DUNCAN YARROW
Doctor Ferris	MR. HENRY STEPHENSON
Peter	MR. WALTER CROSS
Ernest Camp	MR. COURTENAY FOOTE
A Postman	MR. J. WEYMAN
Lauterbach	MR. LIONEL BROUGH
Marceau	MR. OWEN GWENT
Servant	MISS MADGE SNELL
Margaret Ramsden	MISS ELAINE INESCOURT
Amy Ramsden	MISS JOAN RITZ
Mary	MISS MARY BROUGH
Alice Harley	MISS BERYL ST. LEGER

Miss Mouillot opened her season at the Court Theatre on Monday with a new play, entitled Into the Light, which introduces Mr. Gerald Lawrence in the four-fold rôle of actor, author, violinist, and composer. The piece, with its old-fashioned tone and trite story, it must be confessed, seemed rather out of place at a theatre whose stage has been concerned lately with what is known as the new school of dramatists, and more especially with Shaw. The chief novelty of Into the Light was Mr. Lawrence himself, who in the rôle of the hero played the violin, and displayed a considerable knowledge of technique and expression in "Simple Aveu" and in a "légende" of his own composition. He has unfortunately overweighted his play with rhapsodical ramblings that hinder the action, and the sentiment at times hovers dangerously near the regions of bathos.

We are asked once more to sympathise with one possessing the artistic temperament. Felix Gottlieb, a blind young fiddler, has found a home with a dear old maker of violins, Simon Langley, who keeps a shop, wherein most of the action takes place. Felix, by giving lessons and by fees at occasional small concerts, assists to keep the home going; but on the rising of the curtain poor old Langley deplores the fact that the last quarter's rent has not been paid, and that another is nearly due. One of Gottlieb's pupils is Margaret Ramsden, whose heart has been touched by the young maestro's misfortunes, and to this dangerous fascination her father is determined to put an end. Mr. Ramsden is old Langley's landlord, and his cupidity as a collector of violins has been excited by the sight of Gottlieb's Joseph Guarnerius violin, for which he offers £500. When Ramsden comes to the shop he repeats his offer—which is once more refused—and also breaks off all association between Margaret and her blind teacher, a rift that causes much distress to both.

In the second act, faced with the problem of paying the rent for the shop and keeping a roof over the head of his benefactor, Gottlieb walks to the suburban residence of the Ramsdens for the purpose of making a deal. His presence in the house is misconstrued, and the angry father, in his indignation, breaks the beloved Guarnerius across the back of a chair. The broken-hearted Gottlieb undergoes considerable tribulation, and hunger and exposure bring on an illness. He, however, finds a happy issue out of his afflictions. The discovery of his noble birth and the restoration of his sight overcome the parental scruples of Ramsden, who becomes reconciled and gives his consent to the inevitable engagement. From obscurity in a double sense Felix Gottlieb comes into the light, and will hand down his beloved Guarnerius, which has been skilfully repaired, to a later generation.

Mr. Gerald Lawrence, in the part of Felix Gottlieb, cannot quite rob the character of its priggishness and unreality, but such an able actor is always interesting. Mr. Fisher White makes a lovable old man of Simon Langley; and it is a welcome sight to see dear quaint Lal Brough once more on the stage, even though his rich and unctuous methods get very little chance in the part of Lauterbach, a thirsty pianist. Miss Elaine Inescourt quite conquers the hearts of the audience by the genuine feeling she exhibits in the character of Margaret Ramsden, the maidenly reserve of the heroine being very prettily and naturally suggested. Miss Joan Ritz, a clever young actress, should be singled out for special praise for her vivacity and girlish charm as the mischief-loving Amy Ramsden. Miss Mary Brough does exceedingly well as a conventional Irish domestic; and Miss Beryl St. Leger, a child actress, is highly intelligent in the short part of Alice Harley. Mr. Kenyon Musgrave does all that is possible with the artificial rôle of the elder Ramsden; Mr. Courtenay Foote is surprisingly good in the difficult character of an impossible dude; Mr. Duncan Yarrow is a lively Archie Goring; and other characters are adequately presented by Mr. Henry Stephenson, Mr. Walter Cross, Mr. J. Weyman, and Mr. Owen Gwent.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

César Franck's quartet for strings, in D major, was the opening item in the concert on Thursday evening, Nov. 26. Miss Dorothy Devin, Mr. Sidney Bostock, Mr. Frank Bridge, and Mr. Felix Salmond were the executants, and they succeeded in giving a good account of the work. A string breaking in the third movement slightly delayed matters, but it must be confessed a quartet for strings lasting over an hour is a somewhat trying ordeal for both performers and audience. In her 'cello solo "Canzona," by Max Bruch, Miss Ellen M. Bartlett received well-merited applause for her refined and expressive playing; and Mr. William Murdoch had a most enthusiastic recall for his admirable performance of César Franck's piano solo, Prélude, Aria et Finale, the pianist's fluent execution in the difficult finale being particularly able. A welcome feature at this concert was the appearance of two clever male vocalists, Mr. William J. Dodds, whose fine voice was heard in Schubert's song, "To the Lyre, received the honour of no less than four recalls; while Mr. S. Graham Boys was also very successful in "Wir wandelten" (Brahms) and C. Goldmark's "My garden holds a blossom." The other vocalist was Miss Mary Mellor, who sang "Romance" (C. Debussy) and Schubert's "Who is Sylvia," with much grace and refinement. The accompanists were Miss Alice Cotton and Miss Marjorie Adam. The concert ended with an organ solo, Passacaglia from Sonata in F sharp (Max Reger), played by Mr. Eric Gritton, A.R.C.M.

"THE FOLLIES" AT THE APOLLO.

A festivity of fun and frolic may be chosen as the phrase that aptly describes the entertainment presented on Tuesday by the Follies at the Apollo, and London gaiety is the richer by their return. Mr. H. G. Pélissier, we believe, once essayed to sing comic songs on the music-hall stage, but Fortune, then, to his thinking, unnecessarily unkind, kept him back, reserving him for a more distinguished and daintier dalliance with Thalia. Under the impulse of her inspiration he rolls out little thumbnail burlesques of current plays, and though these attractions are not so prominent in his latest programme, his Faust pantomime, with its comic scenery, is the best thing he has done. But even greater originality and ingenuity are shown in a fantasy called Love's Garden.

The story and music are by the versatile Pélissier, and the lyrics and dialogue by Arthur Davenport. The scene is a garden that may be in the neighbourhood of the Pierian spring, or may not. It is the hour before the dawn, and a nymph and satyr chase each other to the accompaniment of a stage nightingale's wheezy trill. Bacchus, it appears, has gone to sleep in Cupid's bower after too many split "nectars" at the Olympus Club. Possessing Cupid's bow and quiver, the vinous "god" determines on having some fun, and, drawing the bow at a venture, plants an arrow in the ribs of John Smith, a typical Englishman, who immediately becomes enamoured of Up-to-Data, an intensely modern young person, and Domestica, of the early Victorian era. The three find their way to the garden, and later arrivals are Mrs. Grundy, an Inspector of Nuisances having authority from the L.C.C., and a constable. Mrs. Grundy, who in her early years had been a toxophilite, again tries her skill, and fixes one of Cupid's arrows in the vitals of Bacchus, who at once acknowledges the sway of Venus and serenades the mistress of decorum, though she evidently regrets that her infatuated swain does not wear the breeks. Mrs. Grundy, by a ruse, finally obtains possession of the bow and threatens to shoot Cupid herself and doom him to hopeless misery unless he restores them all to their former happy condition. He consents, and she dictates her terms, which are that the gardens shall in future be entirely under the control of the London County Council.

The result of this arrangement is seen in the final tableau—quite the richest pictorial joke that has been seen for a very long time on the London stage. The flowers of the garden are railed round, the legend "Exit" is everywhere, the pretty lake has been changed into an excursion stream for the County Council steamers, and the utilitarian hand of London's governing body is to be seen in the various devices established for the people's pleasure. Really, the picture is not much exaggerated or over-coloured, and on Tuesday it evoked roars of laughter.

Pélissier's Bacchus-Cupid is very much like the corpulent John Reeve's must have been when a burlesque on the subject of Cupid was performed at the Adelphi in 1833. But "obesity" is only one of the chief points of the humour of Mr. Pélissier, as his serenade to Mrs. Grundy proves. Mr. Lewis Sydney gives the slily mischievous lines put into the mouth of Mrs. Grundy with great unction; and Mr. Dan Everard does exceedingly well as John Smith and a policeman. Miss Gwennie Mars makes a charming Domestica; Miss Ethel Allandale is daintiness itself as the nymph; and Miss Muriel George, a new member of the company, acts particularly well as the Girton girl Up-to-Data, and sings with culture and charm.

The final attraction of a programme received throughout with the most enthusiastic favour by a crowded house is the grand Christmas pantomime, written, composed, and arranged (i.e., cribbed) by H. G. Pélissier and Arthur Davenport, entitled Faust; or, Merry Mephistopheles and His Mysterious Mysteries.

Here again is there much fun in the scenery—fun that is really indescribable—from the first picture "in the clouds" to the Brocken, with its moving objects and its quaint "witchery" and comic figures. Then to conclude with we have a delightful "brush" travestie of the "grand transformation scene" such as might have been witnessed at Queen Victoria's own theayter in the sixties. Mr. Pélissier as an aerial Mephistopheles makes quite a sprightly figure in Cloudland, and just "weighs in" with a good-humoured burlesque of the Mephisto of His Majesty's. Miss Ethel Allandale's Marguerite has also a touch of burlesque, but its best moments are to be found in the song "All through a soldier," a capital travestie of the raucous-voiced serio. Mr. Dan Everard as Martha hits off the aggressive comedian who is particularly masculine when engaged for a dame part in a Christmas production. Mr. Lewis Sydney as Valentine and Mr. Blumé as Faust cause shouts of laughter during the duel scene; and Miss Gwennie Mars as a burlesque fairy (purposely wooden) and Miss Muriel George also add to the mirth produced by this cleverly-written skit.

Special scenery in the shape of a Whistlerian "nocturne" in black and white is the setting now adapted by the Follies for what may be termed their variety business, with which they open their programme. The chief novelties of this part were the capital stories of Mr. Lewis Sydney and the beverage quartettes — "Cyder," "Port," "Harrogate Wells," "Potheen," "Rum," and "Tea." The first and second of these were especially good in the way of character-sketches and concerted music; but the chief success was scored in "Rum," a quartet in which humorous topical reference is made to some of the chief admirals of the navy. It was vociferously encored, and cries of "Rum!" were heard all over the house on Tuesday, when Mr. Pélissier appeared before the pretty black-and-white curtain to make an announcement. His simple answer, "Speak your minds," raised shouts of laughter. Mr. Alfred H. West, a clever pianist, filled out the short waits by playing his "Heroine March Patrol" and his "Fantasie-Scherzo." Mr. Louis Laval and Miss Maud Evans at two grand pianos formed the orchestra, and did excellent work as accompanists.

THE PLAY-ACTORS.

"THE VAGABOND."

A Play, in Four Acts, adapted from the German of Dr. Richard Fellinger, by M. C. Washburn Freund, produced at the Court Theatre on Sunday evening, Nov. 29.

Harry Kibblewhite	MR. NORMAN TREVOR
Mary	MISS ETHEL WARWICK
John Hoskyns	MR. FRANK COCHRANE
Stone	MR. PHILIP KNOX
Brown	MR. JACKSON WILCOX

Driver Billings	MR. PATRIC CURWEN
Driver Hall	MR. ARTHUR L. BURKE
Driver Taylor	MR. H. EDWARDS
Driver Molony	MR. WILLIAM PRINGLE
Driver Walker	MR. HAROLD CHAPIN
Driver Jackson	MR. LAWRENCE GROVE
Boy	MR. WALTER CROSS
The Cook at the Depôt	MR. HERBERT SIDNEY
Orderly Sergeant	MR. ARTHUR MARINI
First Recruit	MR. GORDON CARR
Second Recruit	MR. ERNEST MARINI
Scottie	MR. BASIL OSBORNE
Peter Lane	MR. EDMUND GWENN
Zillah	MISS IRENE ROSS

If the Play Actors had produced no other piece than The Vagabond, seen for the first time on Sunday evening at the Court Theatre, they would have justified their existence as a society. Mr. Freund has given us a well-written, excellently constructed, and highly-dramatic play, and in the performance of it the principal members of the cast attained lofty heights of realism. The Vagabond should certainly—with a little alteration in the concluding act to make a decisive and happy ending—occupy the bill at one of our West-end theatres. The title-rôle (Peter Lane) is an exceedingly clever piece of character drawing on the part of the author.

The opening scene shows us the interior of a recruiting depot of an English garrison town. There is much joking concerning a new recruit, and the reason of it is understandable when a little later that individual makes his appearance. He is ragged and unkempt, and his general aspect is that of the criminal tramp. However, he is a spirited customer, and promptly indicates that he is not prepared to tolerate any aspersions being cast upon him by the very free use of his fists. He, of course, is the Vagabond of the play, and his name is Peter Lane. Fortunately for him, he discovers in the sergeant-major (Harry Kibblewhite) an old pal of days that Kibblewhite is none too pleased to remember. Lane, in the expectation of securing an easy time in barracks, does not hesitate to remind the sergeant-major of a burgling expedition they both engaged in at a miller's house, when Kibblewhite, in self-defence, killed the old miller. The identity of the assassin had been a mystery ever since. That was nine years ago. Shortly after the unfortunate occurrence Kibblewhite had joined the Army and had risen to the rank of sergeant-major. He now begs Lane to play the game and be a man, and he will give him every possible assistance. In his desire to improve the erstwhile vagabond and to make him a self-respecting human being, Kibblewhite employs Lane in his house. But although Lane certainly looks very clean and smart in the driver's uniform in which we see him in the second act, as a subject of reform he is perfectly hopeless. He is so far neglectful of the simplest points of military discipline as to address the sergeant-major as "'Arry"—the name by which he knew him in their tramping days. But that is not the worst, for he makes improper advances to Kibblewhite's very charming young wife. The sergeant-major promptly dismisses him from the private service, and Lane, who has already suffered durance vile in the cells, threatens to be revenged. It is then that Kibblewhite, feeling that the skeleton in his cupboard cannot be hidden very much longer, tells his wife of his secret trouble. At first she will not believe him. Then, when she realises that he is speaking the truth, she rushes out of the room in a hysterical outburst, leaving him to go to her parents. A number of Kibblewhite's comrades are the next to be told the truth about the death of the miller. They quickly forsake him, while undertaking, for the honour of the regiment, not to open their mouths on the matter. Kibblewhite determines on suicide as the only means out of his trouble. But his wife returns to him. She reproaches herself with having run away from him at a time when he stood alone and most needed her sympathy. She would not have him end his life, even in a presumably "accidental" manner. Will the judges, he asks her, take into account in meting out his punishment, his nine years' good service in the Army? She is sure that they will, but, whatever happens, she will stand by him, and even wait for him if he has to go to prison. And the curtain falls as Kibblewhite departs to unburden his mind to his commanding officer.

We have already referred to the admirable manner in which the piece was acted. To Mr. Norman Trevor as Kibblewhite we can offer our hearty congratulations for an exceedingly virile enactment of a rôle that must have put his abilities and energies to a severe test. He emerged from it triumphantly. He looked a fine figure of a soldier, and the picture he presented of a brave, strong-hearted, and strong-minded man facing awful trouble undauntedly was one that won entire admiration. No less can we compliment Miss Ethel Warwick upon her portrayal of the young wife. In the earlier scenes, before the coming of Peter Lane, Miss Warwick's Mary Kibblewhite was a light-hearted and engaging girl, who might have known of nothing but green fields and lover's smiles. But when the great sorrow fell upon her, and in the scenes which follow the confession of her husband, the pathos and tragedy that were represented were poignant in the extreme. Altogether, this study of light comedy and of tragedy was highly creditable to Miss Warwick. And it is a pleasure to be able to state that with the success achieved by these two artists Mr. Edmund Gwenn's name must be associated. As Peter Lane he had a part which required some degree of subtlety in the acting. In the first act, where he appears as the tramp rescued by virtue of his having accepted the King's shilling, he was responsible for no small amount of humour which was highly relished. For the rest, he cleverly portrayed a hypocritical, unmitigated blackguard. Miss Irene Ross submitted a capital bit of character work as a servant, and all the minor rôles were in suitable hands.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

It is stated on good authority that Mr. Walter Gibbons and Mr. Tom Barrasford will now fall into line with Messrs. Moss and Stoll, Henri Gros, Henry Tozer, and Walter De Frece. We are on the eve of very important developments.

Mr. W. H. Clemart has been elected to the position of general secretary to the Variety Artists' Federation by a considerable majority. He has tendered his resignation as vice-chairman of the Federation, and also as president of the M.H.A.R.A. He has entered upon the duties of his post.

Mr. Alfred Butt will present Miss Ellaline Terriss and Mr. Seymour Hicks on the 14th inst. in the sketch referred to last week, and entitled Fly by Night, or a musical aeroplane, with an "aero and arroine" by Mr. Paul Rubens. The production is noteworthy, not only as being coincident with the two principal artists' first regular appearance on the variety stage, but also as being the first time that any of Mr. Rubens' work has thus been presented.

Mr. Butt's engagement of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bourchier has fallen through for the present; and it is understood that there is some probability of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Sleath (Miss Ellis Jeffreys) being seen on the stage of the Palace Theatre in the near future.

The Crown Theatre, Peckham, closes next week, but will re-open on the 21st inst. as the Peckham Hippodrome. A first-class music hall entertainment will be provided twice nightly. It will be run in connection with the Gibbons-Barrasford halls.

A fascinating little musical fantasy is Polly Pickle's Pets, which will be seen at the London Coliseum at Christmastide. All the animal parts are to be taken by men and women, and are so thoroughly worked out that the effect should be extremely interesting. Miss Polly will sing "Has anyone seen a kitty cat?" "The feline flirt," and "The Jack o' Lantern Man"—three tuneful melodies of the whistling kind.

A notable bill will be presented at the London Coliseum next week, when Laurence Irving and Mabel Hackney appear on the same programme as the three "Queens"—namely, Marie Dressler, queen of American comedy, Cecilia Loftus, queen of artistic mimicry, and Evie Greene, queen of musical comedy. This, however, does not delimit the range of talent, for there are also Miss Carrie de Mar, famous on two continents as "Lonesome Fluffy," and other creations; and Miss Dorothy Grimston, the clever daughter of Mrs. Kendal, who will play the sketch The Money Spider, by M. E. Phillips Oppenheim.

Mr. Laurence Irving and Miss Mabel Hackney will appear in a new sketch which Mr. Irving has freely adapted from the Vagrant Boy Poet—Theodore de Banville's "Gringoire." The part of Grinqoire, played by Coquelin at the Théâtre Français and by Mr. Tree in The Ballad Monger, will, in its new and abbreviated form, be undertaken by Miss Mabel Hackney. Miss Hackney first showed her aptitude for playing romantic youths when she succeeded Mr. Martin Harvey under Sir Henry Irving's management in the part of the Dauphin in Louis XI. at the old Lyceum. Louis XI., a favourite part with his distinguished father, will be played by Mr. Laurence Irving. Mr. Harold Vicars, of Daly's, has composed the incidental music.

A pleasant ceremony was performed on Thursday last at Mr. Barrasford's offices, Leicester-place, when Mr. Will Sley, the well-known Manchester agent, was presented with an illuminated address, together with a Sheraton cabinet containing 400oz. of silver, comprising tea and coffee service, and a magnificent pair of candelabra, subscribed for by most of the London and provincial proprietors, managers, agents, and over 100 artists, to mark the occasion of his silver wedding, combined with twenty-five years as a variety agent.

After the presentation, over forty adjourned to the Hotel Boulogne, to lunch. Among the guests were Major E. Savage, Messrs. Frank Allen, Geo. Dance, Bertie Crewe, Tom Shaw, Geo. Foster, Fred Reeves, Eni Devere, Harry Day, Tom Pacey, and others. Messrs. Thomas Barrasford, Fred Wilmott, and Walter De Frece, chairman and vice-chairman, and Mr. Sam Richards, secretary and treasurer, ably did the honours.

At Mr. Sley's country house, at Flixton, on Saturday, the silver wedding celebrations were a huge success. A band of over forty performers played on the lawns for the guests during dinner, and at night a fine display of fireworks terminated a most pleasant event. The presentation cabinet (specially designed by Mr. Sam Richards) and silver were by Mappin and Webb, who, on this occasion, excelled themselves.

Miss Kate Carney, "The Darling of the Gods," has well earned this title. Her quick intuition, broad sympathies, and vivid powers of delineation, have made her supreme as an impersonator of characters drawn from "the people," and they recognise her artistic work at its true value. Next week, at the Hackney Empire, she will present her latest sketch, The Yiddisher Boy, a musical incidental occurrence happening in the vicinity of the popular East End Mart. It is full of funny situations, which cause uproarious laughter.

Mr. Bransby Williams, who on Sunday was the guest of the Manchester Playgoers' Club at a dinner at the Albion Hotel, gave a lecture on "Personality in Acting." In welcoming Mr. Williams, Judge Parry, the president, said it would be a great mistake to draw any line of demarcation between the theatre and the music-hall. Their guest, he added, had done a great deal for the stage, and his representations of Dickens's works had placed before thousands some of the work of one of the greatest literary men England had produced—a thing that any priest or clergyman could be proud of.

In his lecture Mr. Bransby Williams put in a plea for a little more character-acting and a little less personality. The authors seemed to write to suit the personality, and the managers kept an actor tied down to certain parts. It was not, however, so much the fault of the authors and the managers as the fault of the public.

Mr. Williams ventured to think that the old actors who played many varied parts in the stock company days were still the best men to-day. The younger actors had no chance of gaining that experience, no chance of becoming versatile. Acting could not wholly be taught; it must be in the man, who must feel the character he was portraying. Though he might learn how to pronounce words and deliver and modulate them, he could not have put into him the soul of acting.

Miss Bessie Butt says good-bye to the provinces next week for quite a long time. She opens in pantomime as principal boy at the Royal County Theatre, Kingston, after which she will make a six months' progress round the principal London halls. Miss Butt has devised a novel dance for pantomime, which, for the present it is sufficient to say, is marked by a number of dexterous little tricks and graces.

Mr. Clifford King has been appointed manager of the Boscombe Hippodrome.

Mr. Sidney Bacon has secured a long lease of the Oxford, Middlesbrough, which comes under his management on Monday next.

The King's Theatre and Hippodrome, the new variety house in Dundee, is nearing completion, and will be open about the end of January. It is associated with the enterprise of the United County Theatres Company (Limited), of which Mr. Alfred Moul, of the Alhambra, is one of the leading spirits.

The Liverpool Tivoli, Park Palace, and Paddington Palace will be reopened in a week or so by Mr. Jasper Redfern, who intends to provide bioscope pictures and vaudeville. Mr. Redfern has already done well with that form of entertainment at the Grand Theatre, Manchester, the Central Hall, Sheffield, and other places.

The Brighton Alhambra, which has been acquired by Mr. Alfred Smith (sole lessee and manager), one of the directors of the Lyceum Theatre, London, is closed this week, but will reopen on Monday next with a lightning programme.

The building of the Southend Hippodrome, to which a brief reference was made in our last issue, will commence early in the new year. It will provide seating accommodation for 2,000, with standing room for 600 more. The total cost will approach £20,000.

Miss Nance Elder has opened very successfully indeed at Her Majesty's, Walsall, on a thirty weeks' tour of the Moss and Stoll halls. She is introducing some new songs, all of which are her own writing and composing.

The New Hippodrome, Aston, which opens on Monday, makes the fifth music hall within the Birmingham radius. The house will not be run in connection with any syndicate, a separate company, consisting of those interested in Barrasford's Hippodromes, having been formed. The resident-manager is Mr. Thos. H. Middleton.

Mr. Edmund Sharrocks, who has been appointed assistant-manager at the Oldham Palace of Varieties, has been the recipient of a testimonial subscribed for by the members of the staff of the Palace, Manchester. Mr. A. J. Carter, the manager, made the presentation, which took the form of a purse of gold; and Mr. Jesse Hewitt, assistant-manager, referred in complimentary terms to the recipient, who briefly responded.

Dr. Walford Bodie finished last Saturday night at the Coliseum, Glasgow, amidst scenes of unbounded enthusiasm. Close on 9,000 people paid for admission to both houses. This is the Doctor's seventeenth visit to Glasgow, and his second visit with Mr. Stoll to the Coliseum. His visit has been a great artistic and financial triumph. This week, despite the dense fog, the Doctor, with his own company, has been packing the Hippodrome, Stalybridge.

The new Hippodrome, Accrington, of which the proprietors are Messrs. Wilmott, Vandy, Potter, and Weisker, is to be opened on Monday, Dec. 21. It is a large brick and stone structure, built close to the site of the old Hippodrome, which was destroyed by fire on June 26 last. Mr. Walter Mould is to be the resident-manager.

The city of Bradford has in the Empire one of the finest theatres of its kind in existence. The house has recently been most beautifully decorated, and the appearance of the front enhanced by the erection of a handsome verandah, with some fine examples of scroll work in wrought iron finished in cream and gold.

The marble steps from the front doors and the marble staircase to the upper circle complete the handsome appearance of the vestibule, which has been treated in a Moorish-Arabesque style, the colour-scheme being cream and gold, with a background of azure blue and crimson mouldings.

The auditorium has been treated in a similar decorative scheme to that recently employed in the ballroom at Buckingham Palace, the colouring being shaded green, cream, and gold. The ceiling is a rich feast of moulding and colouring, and the proscenium is surmounted with a fine painting and draperies symbolical of music and art.

The furnishings have been carried out in a lavish manner. Their colour, mainly terra-cotta, gives a warm and cheerful background to the delicately-ornamented columns and fronts of the circle and balcony, the beautiful plush curtains to the boxes and arches making a rich finish to the decorations. The draperies are effectively finished with plastrons of plush worked with silk cords.

The Brighton Alhambra closed its doors on Saturday, when the house was packed from floor to ceiling. At the close of the entertainment, after the band had played the King, "Auld Lang Syne" was sung by the entire audience. The popular manager, Mr. Ernest Lepard, is to have a testimonial matinée on Tuesday.

Mr. George Leyton's visit to the New Cross Empire next week with The Last Muster has prompted the enterprising Mr. Ernest Bridgen to arrange for a grand military night during the week, at which he hopes to secure the co-operation and support of the Lord Mayor and the local Mayors.

"The Collar Stud" made its first bow to Edinburgh audiences on Monday at the beautiful King's Theatre, and proved an enormous success. For fully three minutes after the raising of the curtain for the third time on the completion of the sketch, Miss Muir and Mr. Bartlett, with their clever little company, which includes Mr. Annesley Hely, had to bow to the plaudits of a delighted house.

Jean Macduff, the lady Lauder, who has been meeting with great success at the principal halls in Scotland of late, commences a tour of the English halls on Dec. 14 at the Hippodrome, Scarborough. Mr. Herbert Melville, her manager, has just secured a striking Scotch song, entitled "Bonnie Mary o' Argyle," which she expects to produce at her native Edinburgh on her visit to the King's Theatre there on Monday next.

Mr. Fred Karno's company in The Football Match sketch at the Grand Theatre, Hanley, on Thursday, the 26th ult., played a team of international veterans for the benefit of Alf. Underwood, the English international full back, on the Stoke ground. A pleasant game resulted, and a substantial cheque was handed over at the second house to the bénéficiare. The kindness of all is much appreciated in North Staffs.

A little Brighton girl of twelve summers a few days since sent a naïve letter to Mr. Alias, the eminent costumier, praying him to let her have a dress ("one that would cost about seven shillings") so that she might go to a fancy dress ball. The child, who also stated that she was unable to go the previous year owing to her shabbiness, said in her letter:—"I am going to try and be a great dancer, and I will buy all my dresses off you then." Mr. Alias, who was touched with the simplicity of the appeal, has found a dress for the little girl, whose name is Stella Rosalie Howard, so that, like Cinderella, she can go to the ball, and Rumour has it that it is not a 7s. one.

The late Mr. Edward Mosedale, the veteran coster comedian, was laid to rest on Tuesday in Finchley Cemetery.

Mrs. John Lawson produces Why the Third Floor Passed at the Metropolitan on Monday, Dec. 28. She is supported by a strong company.

Mrs. Percy Riess, the only daughter of Mr. J. L. Graydon, presented her husband with a fine boy on Nov. 26. Grandpa is receiving many congratulations.

In the action for commission against Mr. George Gray, known as "The fighting parson," a settlement was arrived at on Friday, the plaintiff, Mr. George Barclay, to receive £250 and costs.

Miss Marie Lloyd's indisposition, which overtook her at the end of her Leicester engagement, has kept her away from the Hippodrome, Southampton, where she should have topped the bill this week.

Mr. Ernest Rees was taken ill last week, and had to give up work. After rather a bad time, during which he just escaped appendicitis, he is picking up, and expects to open at the London Pavilion on Monday.

Miss Winifred Hare has contracted such a severe cold that she has been compelled to relinquish work at Hanley this week. In view of her engagement as principal boy in the Dublin Gaiety pantomime. Miss Hare, following out doctor's orders, will take a good rest before crossing for rehearsals.

Mr. Frank Stanmore will produce a new and original tabloid musical comedy entitled Gay Dogs on Monday next and during the week at the Palace, Stoke Newington. A strong company has been engaged, including Mr. Mark Lester, supported by a powerful chorus.

A special production of Mr. Cayley Calvert's new dramatic sketch Andromeda, for the purposes of copyright, was arranged on Wednesday at Sadler's Wells. The parts were played by Mr. Pete Murray, Mr. J. G. Forde, and Miss Ethel Wynne. The price of admission was 1 guinea.

"Chums Till Death" has met with unbounded success at the Metropolitan. This beautifully-mounted and well-acted playlet will be seen at the Empire, Holloway, during the next week, after which it will go on a short tour, having been secured by Messrs. Moss and Stoll for the Christmas and New Year holidays.

We regret to hear that, owing to the serious indisposition of Mr. Bernard Stavordale, the Stavordale Quintet, over whose destinies he presides, were reluctantly obliged to give up their projected visit to Hamburg, where they should have opened on Tuesday last. Mr. Stavordale, who has been confined to the house for some days with bronchitis, is now on the road to recovery, on which we tender him our hearty congratulations.

The death occurred on Thursday, at Alkham, near Dover, at the age of seventy-seven, of Mme. Rosina Lupino, who was once known as Mlle. Rosine, the "Columbine Queen." This graceful dancer was apprenticed in her childhood to a ballet master, and, thanks to her graceful pirouettes, soon made a name for herself on the London stage.

In 1858 she appeared as a columbine at the Surrey in Harlequin Father Thames and the River Queen, or Ye Lorde Mayore of London. The following Christmas she was in pantomime at the Lyceum. In 1862 she appeared at the Haymarket, again as columbine in an extravaganza entitled Little Boy Blue, in which Charles Leclercq was the clown, while Henrietta Lindley sustained the title-rôle. Mlle. Rosine also occasionally danced in the opera ballets at Covent Garden, and in the off seasons she toured the provinces with her husband, the dancer and pantomimist known as Mr. Lupino. It is long since Mme. Lupino last appeared, but elderly playgoers may remember her at Covent Garden, under the management of Mr. Rice, and later, during the management of John Hollingshead, at the Gaiety.

She was a dancer of distinction, and the mother of George, Harry, and Arthur Lupino, pantomimists and acrobats, and exceptionally clever in animal parts. Mr. Arthur Lupino, who died but a fortnight since, will be remembered as Nana, the dog in the original production of Peter Pan at the Duke of York's.

"The Yap-Yaps," written by Fred Karno and J. Hickory Wood, and produced on Monday last at Margate, is to be seen for the first time in London on Monday next at the Paragon. The principals in the cast will be Gus Le Clerq, Marjorie Cecil, H. V. Surrey, James Prior, Chas. Prince and Frank Rickards. The proceedings will be enlivened by a set-to between Johnny Summers, a feather-weight champion, and Young Josephs, light-weight. The great event of the evening will be "a fight to a finish' between "the Hon. Charlie Chinn" and "Ben Burley" (alias "Ben Ben, the Bruiser"). The sketch will be in three scenes.

"Puss in Boots" up to date, J. Collins's grand extravaganza, is to be produced at the Canterbury on Tuesday next. Miss Ethel Beech will appear as Juan; Miss Eva Ellis will be Princess Carita; Mr. Arthur Watts will play Sancho; Mr. Algernon Lee is to take the part of Pancho; Miss Elsie Donwill fascinate as Lola; Mr. William Benson will impersonate the Dame; and Mr. Wyn Weaver will misrule as King Kimolfe. There will be diversions by the Merry Andalusian Peasants and Toreadors, and specialities by the Collins's sextette of dancers and Collins's Eight Gems.

The two reindeer which will be a feature in the London Hippodrome Christmas production were to arrive at Liverpool-street station from Harwich on Friday. They have been brought from Lapland by Hagenbeck, of Hamburg, and Mr. Castang, of Leadenhall Market, specially for Father Christmas's sledge at the Hippodrome, where they will be housed under the care of Mr. Frank Parker.

The committee of the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund are giving away at their Thursday meetings an average of between £25 and £30 each week, and, unhappily, the applications are increasing in number. There are over thirty cases, all highly deserving, who are receiving weekly relief. During the past eleven months the Fund has paid all the funeral expenses of five variety performers, four in London and one in the provinces.

At the Empress Theatre, Brixton, extensive alterations, which will add greatly to the comfort and convenience of both audiences and artists, are now in progress. Mr. Bertie Crewe, under the instructions of the managing-director, Mr. W. J. Grimes, has designed a complete hot-water heating installation for the stage, huge coils of six pipes being fixed all round the walls, and heating has also been provided in the stage entrance and the orchestra. This work has been admirably carried out by Messrs. Goodacre, Glover, and Butler, of Nottingham. Other alterations consist of the construction of a new scene dock and property-room, and a new lounge and retiring-room for the stalls.

Miss Rachel Lowe has emerged from her temporary retirement, and is most successfully entertaining audiences at the County Theatre, Kingston, with her novelty song, "My boy Bill," written by John W. Bratton, composer of "My Cosy Corner Girl," and "Take me some place with you, Johnnie."

In the King's Bench Division an interim injunction has been granted in favour of Charles D. Hickman, author of monologues and sketches, to restrain infringement of his publications, "The Playlet and Monologue Magazine" and "P.A.D." (Patter and Dialogue).

"Lord" George Sanger, in producing on Monday at the East Ham Palace Mazeppa and the Wild Horse of Tartary, will revive in a measure the glory of Astley's in the days of Ducrow.

Mr. F. R. Griffiths, of the New Bioscope Trading Co., takes over the Palace, Greenwich, from Mr. Dave Barnard on Monday. Mr. Jess Smith will be the manager.

The Queen has graciously replied to a birthday telegram sent by the Union Jack Boys, who are doing uncommonly well at the Shoreditch Hippodrome, and the youngsters are highly delighted with Her Majesty's message.

Mme. Albani made her first appearance on the music hall stage on Monday at the Grand, Blackpool, where Mr. T. Allan Edwardes maintains the enterprise for which Blackpool's entrepreneurs are noted. If the great cantatrice is received as rapturously in other towns as she has been welcomed in Blackpool, then her success will be a phenomenal one.

Her first contribution was an aria by Mozart, her second "Ye banks and braes," and her last Edward German's "Daffodils are blowing." So prolonged was the applause that she had to bow her acknowledgments several times before the curtain was allowed to fall on a memorable performance.

La Belle Fatima, the Syrian lion performer, and her lions have arrived per s.s. Saturnia from Galveston, after playing twenty weeks in Mexico with the Ferari show.

Les Aero-Femmes (three ladies), by means of special mechanism, will be enabled to give a serpentine dance in the air at the Palace Theatre on Monday next. The show is daring, yet declared to be perfectly safe. It will be given with brilliant illuminations and prismatic effects.

"L'Arlesienne," Alphonse Daudet's rural tragedy, with Bizet's music, so cleverly reproduced at the Alhambra by means of pictures, was adapted for the English stage under the title of The Love that Kills by Mr. Jocelyn Brandon, an enthusiastic and hard-working member of the L.C.C.

A copyright performance of a melodrama, in one act and two scenes, entitled Cruel Coppinger, was given at the Shepherd's Bush Empire on Tuesday afternoon. The new sketch is written, invented, and acted by Mr. R. A. Roberts, who is off to the Cape to-day. It will be produced on his return next spring.

We are pleased to hear from Mr. George Bastow that it was only a slight hoarseness that prevented his appearance at the Manchester Hippodrome last week, and that he is starring with conspicuous success this week at the Hippodrome, Devonport, where he is singing eight songs nightly.

The Empire Theatre has just secured the exclusive rights for presentation in the West End of pictures of the race for the Grand National. The Perezoffs, who have already established themselves as Empire favourites, return there on Monday, with Lalla Selbini, who introduces an extremely novel act, described as a cycling pot-pourri.

In aid of the Licensed Victuallers' Asylum a grand matinée will be given on Thursday next at the Alhambra, by permission of the directorate. The variety company at present entertaining at the Leicester-square house will be reinforced by some stars of musical comedy, and there will be an excellent programme.

Mrs. Marie Spurr, the widow of Mr. Mel B. Spurr, desires to express through our columns her deep sense of the great kindness of Mr. David Devant and his wife, who, by their timely aid, saved her little home from the bailiffs. This is not all; for Messrs. Maskelyne and Devant have now headed a subscription list with the handsome donation of £25, on behalf of the truly grateful woman who thanks her benefactors for saving her from the union.

Miss Melinda May, secretary of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, would be glad to hear from proprietors and managers who have vacancies for caretakers or cleaners, having several women and men on her books with excellent references. She hopes with the approach of Christmas and its attendant extra work that occupation can be found for the willing and deserving, also sewing work in the pantomime wardrobes. She has already fixed three people for Christmas.

The variety world will shortly see a new recruit in Stanley Mellott, a blind match-seller, who is about to appear in London as a quick-change artist. He is being exploited by Fred Caughan, of the Belgrave Academy, Argyle-square, King's Cross, who has started so many artists on a successful career. Mr. Caughan has written Mellott—who, by the way, is genuinely blind—a special entertainment, and as a blind quick-change artist he is certainly a novelty.

Mr. John Lawson will appear at Olympia, Shoreditch, next week in a revival of the world-famous episode Humanity. A new scene has been constructed and a number of new effects introduced. The finale, it is calculated, will satisfy the most fervent of fighting men. John Lawson will, of course, play "Only a Jew." It was at the old Standard, Shoreditch, then under the régime of the Douglas family, that the celebrated fight in the drama of Humanity took place. The combatants were Mr. Edward Sass and the late Arthur Dacre.

The latest quotations for music hall shares are as follows:—Alhambra, 1 9-16, Canterbury ½, Empire (15s. pd.) 1⅛, ditto (10s. pd.) 1⅜, London Pavilion Ordinary 4⅛, ditto Pref. 5⅛, Metropolitan 15s., Moss' Empires, 5⅛, ditto 5 per cent. Pref. 4⅛, Oxford 6⅛, Palace 15-16ths, Tivoli 5⅛, and Variety Consolidated Theatres 11s.

Mr. Nevil Maskelyne, who presided at the third annual banquet of the Magic Circle, said that the record of the society continued to be one of steady prosperity. The public had been allowed to take a false impression of the true artistic standing of the capable magician. There had arisen an idea that magic was purely a subject of minor importance, an art mainly for juveniles. Magic, in point of fact, had always had an interest for men and women of the higest intelligence, and it was the object of the Magic Circle to prove that the abilities of the magician called for a full amount of education, skill, and artistry. In exposing fraud and in preserving what he might call public sanity, the better-class exponents of magic had rendered many public services.

The usual monthly meeting of the committee of the Music Hall Sick Fund will be held at the Crown Hotel, Charing Cross-road, on Wednesday next, at 4 p.m.

Glen Alva is specially engaged to play the title-rôle in Puss in Boots, with Mr. J. H. Savile at the Theatre Royal, Paisley. After ten days' rehearsal the pantomime will be produced on Dec. 19.

Mr. S. Handel Lancaster has succeeded Mr. W. G. Eaton as musical director at the Royal Hippodrome, Dover, and carries out his duties in an entirely satisfactory manner.

John Clempert, the original Siberian jail-breaker, has been introducing at the Palace, Stoke Newington, this week, his latest astonishing escape in full view of the audience from the Siberian torture jacket, never performed by anyone else in the world. He also escapes nightly from a galvanised iron tank filled to the brim with water, locked with two lids and eight padlocks.

Miss Maud Santley and Mr. Lloyd Chandos will be the vocalists for Sunday's concert at the Coliseum. Miss Maud Santley was the contralto who made such a successful Frika in the "Ring," and Maddalena with Tetrazzini in Rigoletto. The Imperial Military Band, under Mr. J. M. Glover, will also add to the pleasure of these popular Sunday evenings.

Answering a question as to the recent fatality at the Middlesex, the Home Secretary said in Parliament on Monday that the performance ought not to have been allowed. He was in communication with the London County Council on the subject. Two years ago, in June, 1906, a Bill dealing with dangerous performances was received unfavourably.

Mr. Thomas Howell, the new bass singer, has been secured by the management of the London Pavilion, and will, on the 14th inst., introduce to a London audience the song with which he created a profound impression at Birmingham during the month just ended. It is called "The Laughing Cavalier," was suggested by the famous painting by Hals in the Wallace Collection, and is from the graceful pen of Arthur du Soir, the music being by J. A. Tunbridge.

Miss Freda Sharlotte has been appearing this week at the Hammersmith Palace in her monologue, entitled Is Life Worth Living? by Paul Pelham, with considerable success. The idea is the dream of a society butterfly. She is asleep on a couch, when a pixie appears and calls upon the sleeper to follow her through Dreamland. The sleeper then tells of her dream in which she sees the deeds of various individuals which answer "Yes" to the question of the title. The people described are a nurse, a fireman, a lifeboatman, a footballer—each of whom is depicted in a tableau at the rear of the stage—and lastly Miss Sharlotte describes a race won by a horse of H.M. the King, and the last tableau is that of His Majesty. The tableaux were excellently arranged by Fox's, Ltd.

For over twenty years Professor E. K. Crocker travelled his wonderful show through Great Britain after many years' success in the United States of America. The show and its proprietor were known and appreciated wherever they went. No one has ever been able to say one derogatory word against either. Our readers will regret, therefore, to hear that Mr. Crocker, after retiring to the States some four years since, has had an unprecedented run of misfortune.

Persistent bad business, the long and serious illness of his wife, his own failing health, the misfortune of a broken leg, caused a few weeks' since in Michigan by one of his horses, comprise a 'battalion" of untoward happenings; and now, alas! news has come to hand that his whole show, including most of his valuable troupe of horses and ponies, has been lost by fire. Surely, he is a veritable Job to be able with patience and resignation to bear all this trouble. He deserves the sympathy of all who know him as a straight business man of generous heart.

Miss Marie Dressler, the latest lessee of the Aldwych, was born in Canada. Her father was a professor of music and a Crimean veteran. Her mother was a French Canadian, and also musical. In her early life she had quite a royal time, but when about seventeen, through the unwise speculations of her father, as she says, "the crash came," and so she had to do something. She tried her hand as assistant in a "dry store" (anglice, draper's shop), but found that if she wanted to stay she would have to marry the proprietor, so she left and joined, as a chorus girl, a touring company in the States.

The piece they were travelling was The Mikado, just after it had taken New York by storm. One night, when the actress who was playing Katisha sprained her ankle, Miss Dressler, through her persistence, and the fact that the understudy did not feel confident enough to take up the rôle, got her opportunity, and played the part with such success that she was engaged for four years in it. Her répertoire of songs would fill almost a column, so only a few are here enumerated. "That's why Adam sinned," "It's hard to be a lady in a case like that," "The lion and the glove," "A great big girl like me," "Hoopdeyoodledo," "Bully Bess," &c.

Mr. Dick Knowles, the American comedian, before leaving for the States sent a characteristic letter to Mrs. Pethick Lawrence, the suffragist leader, in which he says:—"The Inland Revenue Department of Great Britain state they have a claim against me for income-tax. I repudiate their claim, and as they have not been noticeably clever in the conduct of their case, I am sending with this a donation to the Women's Social Reform League, instead of remitting to them the amount claimed. I admire your methods, system, and organisation as much as I pity the sometimes contemptible conduct of your opponents. That brilliantly clever young woman, Miss Christabel Pankhurst, should have a place in the Cabinet, instead of two old ladies who cut such a sorry figure under her cross-examination."

On behalf of the committee of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, 61, New Oxford-street, W.C., Miss Melinda May (secretary) wishes to thank all those who were present at the general meeting, and for the generous gifts from the following:—V.A.B.F., £5 5s. for the children's Christmas tree; Mr. Fred Sinclair (Sinclair and Whiteford), £5 5s. donation to the Guild and £2 1s. collected by that gentleman at the Vaudeville Club, and a promise of further collections; Mr. J. Uccelli, £2 2s.; Dr. Crippen, £1 1s.; Mr. Herbert Shelley, 10s. 6d.; Mr. Frank Sylvo, 5s.; Miss Kohn, promise of six pairs of boots; Messrs. Sheard and Co., for parcel of music; Miss Millie Payne, 10s. towards helping a poor sufferer into a home for consumptives; Miss Maggie Bowman, for giving and collecting 6s.; and Mrs. J. Vane Sutton, 5s. for the same good cause. Mr. Tom Wootteil, Miss Ettie Albert, Miss Maud Atlas, Miss Marie Colmore, and Miss E. G. Clarke, A.C.U., attended purposely to collect at the meeting. Friends of the charity are heartily welcome to the tea and receptions held every Wednesday, four to five o'clock. Will all members please send addresses to Miss May so that she may post on votes for the election, which takes place shortly?

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

A STUPENDOUS and delighted audience, cheering as only Scotsmen can, shouted themselves hoarse on Thursday night on the occasion of the production of Mr. Robert Arthur's magnificent pantomime at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow. It was a veritable triumph for all concerned, and, as in former years, and as was a foregone conclusion—the songs of Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter evoked hurricanes of applause, among those especially coming in for unstinted applause and imperative demands for repetition being "Oh! Oh! Antonio!" (which set thousands of Caledonians almost crazy during Glasgow Fair week in the Isle of Man during the summer, when Miss Florrie Forde introduced it there); "Sue, Sue, Sue, I'm very much in love with you," "I'm afraid to come home in the dark," "I think I shall sleep well to-night" (given in Mr. George Robey's own inimitable manner), "I'm the best pal I ever had," the great march song "Bombardier," and that eleventh-hour success "Every fellow's in love with a girl." When it is remembered that these seven genuine "winners" in a first-class pantomime are but a tithe of the numerous tried successes "ear-marked" for production at foremost theatres everywhere in these islands it augurs well for the great music publishing firm's 1908-9 season. The success of the above-mentioned numbers was all the more marked and noticeable as they were all given without the aid of special settings, but were presented on their individual merits.

MISS VESTA TILLEY, who will be at the Palace, Shaftesbury-avenue, at Christmas, has in study for immediate production a new song entitled "To see if it was fit for father," by Edgar Bateman and Henry E. Pether.

APPLICATIONS are falling fast and furious upon Messrs. Francis and Day for the band parts of their pantomime overture, "The Goldmine," and the demand is now being satisfied with promptitude. This admirable selection of the famous firm's melodies, arranged by Warwick Williams, is also in great request among the musical directors of variety theatres, it being just the thing for the holiday programme.

MISS VESTA TILLEY during the week introduced to a Manchester audience her new song, "That's the time a fellow wants his ma," and made a big hit with the number, which is by Edgar Bateman and Archie Mills, of the Colwick Hall Pierrots, a well-known Nottingham troupe of entertainers, the music being by Maurice Scott. Messrs. Francis and Day have already issued the song.

MESSRS. FRANCIS AND DAY, among numerous other songs by first-rate writers, have secured for immediate publication the song which Mr. G. H. Elliott produced for the first time on Thursday evening entitled "Good-bye for ever," which immediately took the fancy of the house. The graceful lyric is by Henry F. Greenfield, and the melody—a particularly taking one—has been composed by the Chocolate-coloured Coon himself. The number, which has been arranged by Reginald W. Allan, sounded very fine when played by Mr. Walter Johnson's carefully supervised band.

A HIT in pantomime was made on Thursday evening last by Miss Meg Hamilton, the dashing Dandini in Robert Arthur's Glasgow production. Her song, "Have you got another girl like Mary?" was a huge success, and we may predict that the number will be whistled all over Glasgow before long. The Star Com. have placed this number everywhere.

MRS. LILLIE WILLIAMS, who produced the first pantomime of the season at the Gaiety, Dundee, very kindly wired Messrs. Feldman and Co. the good news of the big success made with two of their songs, viz., "A white man" and "Connemara." The duet, "Come over the garden wall," was also thoroughly appreciated by the vast audience.

A WONDERFULLY catchy chorus the song published by Messrs. B. Feldman and Co. and written and composed by Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford, entitled "Come round on Sunday." This number is being secured by all the principal producers in the kingdom, and will be a real delight to all—especially the children.

MISS MAY MARS has been making popular two of Messrs. B. Feldman and Co.'s songs on the music halls—so much so that they will both be heard in many parts of the country on Boxing Night. "It's good-bye to Maudie" is a number no pantomime will be complete in which it is not included, as it has a "once-heard-never-forgotten" style of chorus, and gets a laugh just at the right place. "In the fire-fire glow," by A. E. Sidney Davis, Castling, and Godfrey, is a rather quieter type of chorus, but is being eagerly sought after by both principal boys and girls.

MISS CISSIE LEONARD is making a real hit in Messrs. Feldman and Co.'s great new Irish song, "Connemara." This is one of the songs this well-known firm is "banking on" for pantomime, and their opinion is being cordially endorsed by both artists and the public. "Begorra, it's true!"

MISS GERTIE GITANA has been scoring heavily with her ballad "In the evening by the moonlight, dear Louise," at the Granville and Oxford. She has also accepted for early production a similar ballad entitled "When the harvest moon is shining, sweet Eileen," which will shortly be issued in their 1s. edition by the Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd.

MR. SAM MAYO'S successful song, "Listen to me and I'll prove that I'm right" (Stars and Stripes), will be issued this week by the Von Tilzer Music Co. This number is going well at the Oxford.

THE VON TILZER MUSIC CO. have had an unprecedented demand for their ballad, "Keepsakes," from principal girls and fairy queens; and other numbers in great demand among pantomime artists are "Let's have a song about the boys" and "Put me a girl inside."

THERE seems to be a steady growing demand for the Von Tilzer Co.'s slide songs. "Since daddy's been taken away," a pathetic child ballad, is now being featured both on the Macnaghten, Barrasford, and the Moss and Stoll tours, besides being sung in almost every large or small hall in Great Britain. Another slide song which bids fair to become a close rival in popularity to the above-mentioned number is "You're my girl in the springtime."

THE NATIONAL MUSIC PUBLISHING CO. have arranged for three of their songs to be in the forthcoming Drury-lane pantomime. Wilkie Bard is singing "Put me upon an Island where the girls are few," Neil Kenyon has decided up "You all want something to cuddle," and the other number to be used by a most prominent artist is "I wish I had a pal like you." The National Music Publishing Co. are charging no fee whatever for any of their songs.

LOWENWIRTH AND COHAN are making their usual success with the song written, composed, and sung by themselves, entitled "My Little Eva." This number is being made free for pantomime by the National Music Publishing Co. They have already reserved it for almost every pantomime in Great Britain.

THE AGENCY QUESTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—In reply to Mr. W. H. Clemart I would point out that the rôle of a prophet is a dangerous one in the twentieth century. A convolution of my words absolutely Clemartian is as follows: "It is delightful to hear that 75 per cent. of the V.A.F. are 'booked' for many years." I never used the word "booked," but "committed." My words still stand good. Please do not confound "booked" with "committed."

I fear W. H. C.'s imputation upon the honesty of the intelligent, intellectual agents minority is a further bar to any settlement, and doubtless the individuals attacked can look after themselves. I notice W. H. C. evades the direct challenges made by me last week, and I again repeat them, in order that they may not be lost sight of.

"I assert boldly that not more than 800 voted for any of the 5 per cent. resolutions, and the committee cannot produce the signatures of the above number, neither can they produce 1,000 records of attendances for any one Friday during the crisis. I assert also that 2,750 members took no part in the dispute whatever.

"I also assert the resultant resolutions are illegal, and as such are null and void."

W. H. C. says the position can be proved when necessary. I ask him how can a position which is legally wrong according to your book of rules be proved right?

It was decided at the committee meeting of Sept. 1, 1908, that the clauses as altered at the General Meeting should be deleted. The formal deletion of these clauses was moved, seconded, and passed at that committee meeting, and the Office Copy was doomed before it ever got to the General Meeting. The rest was easy. This is soon proved, and can be verified by any member who likes to exercise Rule 31, where it distinctly states by order of the Registrar that all books shall be open to inspection by any member. Now, then, you members who are in the dark, if you really want a way out, here it is. You say you do not know the truth—you have it in the above words!

Again I refer to Rule 19, paragraph 1, and ask a simple rule in arithmetic. I resigned, and prior to this it was the talk that the incoming secretary cast his shadow before. I am not annoyed at vacating the secretaryship; but I should have thought it would have been done legally. It took 126 men to elect me; it naturally follows that the resignation must be accepted by the 126 and not by the sitting committee of 25. As I understand the ballot of the full committee has not yet been taken on my resignation (the result of which I am certain is in the affirmative), it necessarily follows that your election, W. H. C., is also "null and void" until the usual formalities are observed. Such haste was not in good taste, even though the haste was intentional. I was fully aware of this, and I waited until I found the picture realised.

Rules—rules—rules! Why don't you follow them? I shall be content if the above information will bring about a movement to obtain a satisfactory settlement; and, in conclusion, I would point out to the members, they had little reason to envy me, who, by giving up social pursuits, by passing nights without sleep, and days without one glimpse of the beauty of Nature, was striving to maintain that laborious, that invidious, that closely-watched slavery which was marked by the name of general-secretary.—Yours faithfully,

MONTE BAYLY.

London, Dec. 5, 1908.

EARL'S COURT has been chosen by a wealthy syndicate of amusement caterers for the purpose of holding a variety of popular amusements at a very nominal admission fee. Three gigantic halls are to be devoted to the purpose, and the attractions will range from the circus to the latest pageant; from the exhibition to the side-show. The latest novelties from enterprising America, triumphs of art from France, the now famous Doll Pageant recently exhibited at Westminster, an exhibition of the world's production of toys, and a celebrated fairy pantomime are some of the attractions which will add to the popularity of the already famous amusement resort.

THE Fun City and Exhibition at the Drill Hall, Lower Bristol-street, Bath, is to be opened from Christmas Eve to Jan. 16, with a host of attractions, including mysteries and illusions from Earl's Court, beauty competitions, lightning sketch artists, thought-readers, gymnasts, swimmers, and others. There is also to be a hall of laughter.

MR. HENRY BARNATO, a partner in the firm of Barnato Brothers, who died at his London residence, 23, Upper Hamilton-terrace, N.W., at 1.30 on Monday afternoon was in a measure the founder of the fortunes of the famous house of Barnato Brothers. He was the first to emigrate to South Africa, where he arrived in the early days of the gold and diamond fields. There he dropped his original name, Isaacs, and became "Signor Barnato, the great wizard," earning a precarious livelihood as an itinerant conjurer among the diggers. Happily for him success did not reward his conjuring efforts, and he was forced to become a "kopje walloper," and so founded the fortunes of his family.

IN those days diamonds were found, without systematic digging, among the "kopjes," or small hills near the rough camp which then constituted Kimberley. Henry Barnato had the acumen to see the possibilities of the situation, and sent home for his brother Barney. The latter soon showed his peculiar talents for finance. He bought four claims in the famous Kimberley mine with £3,000 that had been saved, and finally, in 1880, was founded the house of Barnato Brothers. Later the brothers took in their nephews, Woolf, Jack, and Solly Joel, and the subsequent history of the firm is closely linked with the romance of South African finance.

L.C.C. AND LICENSING.

The London County Council held a special sitting at the County Hall, Spring-gardens, on the 27th ult., under the chairmanship of Mr. R. A. Robinson, for the purpose of considering the report of the Theatres and Music Halls Committee sitting as the Licensing Committee, upon licences heard by them at the Sessions House, Clerkenwell, on the 6th inst.

For the first time the Council acted under a new Standing Order, passed in July last, under which the whole of the discussion on each recommendation of the committee is conducted in private, and the representatives of the Press, as well as the counsel engaged in the applications, and the public, have to retire from the Council chamber during the debate. This order materially reduces the time occupied in considering the committee's recommendations, but it robs the proceedings of most of its public interest.

In reference to the London Coliseum the Council adopted the recommendation of the committee, "That a licence for music and dancing be granted to Oswald Stoll for the London Coliseum, subject to an undertaking that no intoxicating drinks shall be sold or consumed on the premises."

THE HIPPODROME.

The committee reported that Sir Horace Edward Moss, in his application for a renewal of a licence for music and dancing for the London Hippodrome, had applied for a removal or modification of the restriction attached to the licence that no intoxicating drinks should be sold or consumed on the premises. The committee recommended that the licence should be renewed subject to an undertaking that no drinks should be sold or consumed in the auditorium.

Mr. Pinhorn opposed the removal of the restriction on the usual temperance grounds.

Mr. Low, K.C., also opposed on behalf of the owner of an adjacent public-house, which forms part of the same building.

Mr. C. F. Gill, K.C., with whom was Mr. Sylvain Mayer, supported the recommendation of the committee, and pointed out that it was now generally recognised that there was no reasonable objection to the Council's policy that a drink licence was not necessary for a suburban music-hall, where people were close to their homes. In the case of the Hippodrome, however, the circumstances were different, because the performance lasted for about three hours, and the audience was composed almost entirely of persons who came from some distance. The owners of the Hippodrome considered that they had been unfairly treated in the past, and that the Council had taken a good deal too much upon themselves in dictating to such an audience that visited the Hippodrome whether they should or should not partake of intoxicating liquors. There was not the slightest reason why the Council should place upon the Hippodrome an indignity which they did not attach to any similar place of entertainment outside the suburbs.

After deliberating in private, the Council divided, with the result that by fifty-eight votes to twenty-five they rejected the recommendation of the committee, and decided to grant the licence on the condition that no intoxicating drinks be sold or consumed on the premises.

FINSBURY PARK EMPIRE.

This was an application by Mr. Oswald Stoll for a new licence for music and dancing for the Finsbury Park Empire, proposed to be erected on the land at the junction of St. Thomas's-road and Prah-road, Finsbury Park.

The committee recommended that a provisional licence be granted, subject to an undertaking that no intoxicating drinks shall be sold or consumed on the premises.

The recommendation was opposed by the Vicar of St. Thomas and others, on the grounds that the neighbourhood is already amply supplied with such places of entertainment, and is within easy reach of many other such in other parts of London; that the proposed music-hall will be detrimental to the quietness of the neighbourhood, and to the comfort and convenience of the inhabitants of the residential district within the limits of which it is proposed to erect it; that its erection will tend to depreciate the value of the property in the said district; and that it is feared that it will be prejudicial to the moral tone of the neighbourhood.

Mr. George Elliott, who appeared for some of the opponents, said this music-hall was not only not needed by the inhabitants, but if opened, would lead to the bringing into the neighbourhood of a large number of undesirable persons.

Mr. S. S. Christey opposed on the ground that the granting of the licence would seriously injure the prospects of the Alexandra Palace, which had been purchased at a cost of £150,000 by the ratepayers.

Mr. Gill, K.C., in supporting the recommendation of the committee, on behalf of the applicant, said the only real question was whether this music-hall would interfere with the quietness of the sylvan retreat of Finsbury Park. Apparently it had been overlooked that the site was close to the important railway station of Finsbury Park and tramway junction, to say nothing of the busy thoroughfare of Seven Sisters-road.

On a division, the Council confirmed the recommedation of the committee by forty-one votes to thirty.

CAMDEN THEATRE.

This was an application by Mr. Sidney Marler for a new licence for music and dancing for the Camden Theatre. The committee reported that the premises, which were licensed by the Lord Chamberlain for stage plays until September last, had recently been used for cinematograph entertainments. The committee recommended that a licence for music and dancing be granted subject to an undertaking that no intoxicating drinks shall be sold or consumed on the premises.

Mr. Horace Avory, K.C., opposed on the ground that the proprietors of the theatre had already broken the law by carrying on a form of entertainment for which they had no licence, and that by granting the licence applied for the Council would be encouraging people to break the law.

Mr. George Elliott, in support of the application, said he had never known a greater case of persecution than existed in this case, inasmuch as the persons for whom Mr. Avory appeared were actually suing his (Mr. Elliott's) clients for £400 as common informers. The opposition was an attempt to crush a rival trader.

The Council deliberated for a long time in private, and without a division reversed the recommendation of the committee by refusing the licence.

The Council adopted the recommendation of the committee to grant a provisional licence to the Lewisham Hippodrome for music and dancing, subject to no intoxicating drinks being sold or consumed on the premises, and to the Crown Theatre, Peckham, on the same conditions.

In the case of the application of Mr. Austin Heyes for a new music and dancing licence for the Paddington Empire, proposed to be erected in the Harrow-road, the committee recommended that the licence be not granted, and the Council confirmed that recommendation.

MR. CHARLES COBORN has been engaged this week on special concert work, in which he has met with the same enthusiastic receptions as he does almost everywhere.

MR. TOD LOWEN left Australia on Nov. 30, from Freemantle, after a most successful time—so successful, indeed, that he had to play four weeks extra, on top of his original contract. He is due to reach England on Jan. 2.

MR. EDITOR.—SIR,—In your notice of the company engaged at the Opera House, Burton-on-Trent, last week, you omitted yours faithfully, WISPER (the original comedy kid juggler), King's Theatre, Gainsborough, Dec. 3.

THE Correctional Tribunal of Paris has sentenced to a month's imprisonment and a fine of £8 the manager of a restaurant in Montmartre, who had organised dinners, during which displays of living statuary were given. The women were each sentenced to a fine of £2.

MR. GEORGE BROOKS, for the first time for quite a number of years, will at Christmastide discard the petticoats of the "dame," and will enact the part of the page in pantomime, having been secured for one of Mr. Milton Bode's productions.

COLONEL GASTON BORDEVEREY, the French pistol and rifle shot, is due at the Coliseum next week. He is the inventor of playing the piano with bullets. He will present, for the first time, his latest novelty—playing operatic selections with his repeating rifle on twenty-five musical chimes (bells) with twenty-five resonators.

THE directors of the Mammoth Roller Skating Rink at Empress Hall, Earl's Court, are organising a beauty show to take place on Dec. 9, 10, and 11. Already there are over 500 entries, and the competition will be of quite an international character, four Italian, one Hindu, forty-four German, and ten French ladies having entered. By far the most numerous applications come from Scotland.

MR. BRANSBY WILLIAMS on Tuesday was entertained by the Arts Club, Glasgow, and delivered another lecture on "The Actor" before a most select and artistic audience. It was another great success, and more flattering things were said about the brilliant young actor, who is naturally proud of such recognition of his work, of which the artistic worth was first discovered by music hall audiences.

HERBERT TRIGGS, seventy years of age, and still an athlete of no mean prowess, has walked the length and breadth of England, stopping at the milestones by the wayside to make shoes, which he afterwards sells. He recently walked from London to Brighton in twenty-four hours, pushing a hand-barrow, and had time to practise his trade on the way. On the stage he tells the story of his exploits, and sings some capital songs. The walking shoemaker is decidedly interesting.

THE keynote of the Fun City, which opens in the Olympia Annexe on the 7th inst., is to be "movement." Practically every show will be of a moving nature, and visitors will be able to indulge in twelve hours' continuous "whirl." This is brought about by the extraordinary success achieved in this country by the Scenic Railway, with the result that American showmen are now anxious to exploit in this country all the moving attractions that have made Coney Island.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

Fred. Elton is making a success with the 100-guinea song, entitled "When the Leaves are tinged with Gold." This is another of the National Music Company's pantomime successes, and will be in a good many of the pantomimes this year.

Mr. Wynyard Ryde's two sacred songs, "Peace be still" and "Far from my heavenly home," sung with such success by Miss Beatrice Felsted at Brighton, have been accepted by H.M. the Queen. Mr. Wynyard Ryde is writing three new songs for Miss Felsted for her spring tour, during which she will sing Mr. Bert Feldman's mascot "A tiny seed of love," by kind permission.

Mr. Henry E. Pether, Messrs. Francis and Day's musical editor, has received during the past few days many congratulations from various parts of the country on the success of his new valse lente "Cecilia." It is published by Messrs. Francis and Day.

When Mr. Graham Curzon started writing lyrics he was fortunate to meet with a happy collaborator in Miss Edith Fortescue, the composer of "Land of Sunset Glow," "Giver of Life," and many other successes. The new joint effort of these writers is "Starshine," and with its neatly-told story and the melodious musical setting it should recommend itself to every pantomime artist, boy, girl, or fairy queen, looking for a real success. It is published by Messrs. W. Morley and Co.

"Starshine" is being especially featured by leading pantomime producers. Lantern slides are issued by two different firms. Next week at Chelsea Palace Talbot and Pearce are singing "Starshine" nightly in their Japanese scena Cherry Blossom.

The Denmark Music Publishing Co. have just published a song that should be sung and whistled everywhere, entitled "Baden Powell's Scout," written and composed by Medley Barrett.

"Still your friend" is the title of Percy Ford's new song, which has been set to music by Medley Barrett, and is in the catalogue of the Denmark Publishing Co.

Mr. Bert Feldman, who is at Glasgow, has wired to us his unqualified delight at the enormous success of "A tiny seed of love," "White man," "I want you to see my girl," "Bubble and the sunbeam," and "Girls, girls, girls."

Mr. Harry Blande, the Canadian baritone, and Mr. Leo King write Messrs. Sheard that they are featuring their bass songs, "When the ebbtide flows," "Asleep in the deep," and "The old warrior" in pantomime, where they are both engaged for Demon King parts.

No more suitable song for Fairy Queen in Dick Whittington could be found than Miss Constance V. White's successful "Sleep and forget." The position for it is where Dick is discovered by the Fairy Queen worn out and asleep by the milestone on Highgate Hill.

Messrs. Sheard and Co. have made arrangements with Mr. Tom Woottwell for the immediate publication of his four great successes, "Blow'd if I didn't wake up," "I've got 'em here," "What did I do?" and "The little shirt my mother made for me," and are granting pantomime permissions for same. Two guineas per town either song.

This week's Australian mail brings Messrs. C. Sheard and Co. advices from their Australian agents, Messrs. Allan and Co., of Melbourne, of the fact that, in order to cope with the demand for copies of Stanley Gordon's great bass song, "When the ebbtide flows," they have printed a local edition. This song is also a great success in the United States, where it is published by Messrs. J. W. Stern and Co., of New York.

Two other songs from Messrs. Sheard's catalogue that Messrs Allan and Co. report a brisk demand for are "Just plain folks," a descriptive ballad telling of the cool reception given to his poor, but genuine, old parents on visiting the mansion of their millionaire son, whom they had not seen for years, when he ran away from home as a poor lad.

"There's no one in the world like you" is the title of the second song, which is of the "love" order, always in demand, as exemplified by the popularity of "Love me, and the world is mine." This is the refrain:—

"There's no one in the world like you, none half so true;
There's nothing, love, I would not do to prove my love for you, believe me do.
If you were all my very own, and mine alone,
I'd love you more each day, my darling, for there's no one else like you."

Pianists playing for Bioscope shows will find it to their advantage if they write Messrs. Sheard for their Shilling Collections of Entr'actes Intermezzos, graceful and fantastic dances, for they contain the very class of music for their purpose, being light, pretty, and delicate. Orchestrations are also published for some of them, viz., Malemberg's delightful dances, "Verona," "Nell Gwynne," and "The May Queen"; Bonbear's Russian Mazurka "Neva," and Bogetti's "Dulcina" intermezzo.

Messrs. Sheard and Co. have in the press a most delicate and charming little song, especially adapted for pantomime purposes. It is called "The Wedding of the Stars," and its dainty and graceful words and music are both by Mr. J. Anton Dailey, who has already achieved success, both in this country and America, with "Sweetheart days" and "Dreaming." The refrain runs:

"If you be my pretty shining star and love me every night,
I'll be ever at your side, Dear Heart, and keep you shining bright.
You're the only one I see, Sweetheart, to me you're just the card,
Just shoot this way, and name the day, and be my pretty shining star.

Perhaps the most suitable song for Cinderellas that has been printed for many years is Gilbert Adair and Marcus Hope's new song, "If I were a Fairy Queen." It is exactly the song for the Kitchen scene of Cinderella, before the good fairy appears. The words are distinctly good, and the music irresistibly catchy.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

THE L.C.C. AND AMUSEMENTS.

The weekly meeting of the London County Council was held on Tuesday, at the County Hall, Spring-gardens, Mr. R. A. Robinson (chairman) presiding.

THE FATALITY AT THE MIDDLESEX.

On the reception of the Theatres and Music Halls report,

Mr. Reynolds asked the chairman (Mr. Greenwood) whether, in view of the deplorable fatal accident at the Middlesex Music Hall, his committee intended to take steps forbidding the use of firearms on the stage.

Sir J. McDougall inquired whether any representations had been made to the licensee of the Middlesex in regard to this particular case.

Mr. Greenwood, in reply, said the Council had no statutory power to deal with questions of dangerous performances in regard to places licensed by the Council. It could, however, make representations to licensees, and such representations in the past had always received proper attention. The Committee always took action where the question of danger to the public was involved; but when it had not been a question of public danger, it had been the exception rather than the rule to take action. It was always difficult to determine what performances could be described as dangerous. The performance in question was one in which, if it had been brought to the notice of the Committee, a letter would certainly have been sent to the licensee; but as the lady performer was shooting over the heads of the audience, and as the fatality occurred very early in the time the performance was in progress, the matter was not brought to the notice of the Committee, and, consequently, as he had said, no letter was sent.

LEWISHAM HIPPODROME.

The Theatres and Music Halls Committee reported that they had considered drawings submitted by Mr. W. L. Griffiths of a music-hall proposed to be erected on the site of Nos. 135-9, Rushey-green, and to be known as the Lewisham Hippodrome. The premises will have accommodation for about 3,700 persons. The Committee recommended that provided the works shown on the six drawings submitted be commenced within six months, the Council will be prepared to grant a certificate under section 12 of 41 and 42 Vict., cap. 32, to the owner of such building, on being satisfied that the premises have been completed in accordance with the drawings referred to and the regulations of the Council, and that certain stated conditions have been complied with.

MISCELLANEOUS PROPOSALS.

The Theatres and Music Halls Committee also recommended approval of the following:—A drawing, submitted by Mr. S. Barnard, showing a proposal to partition off a portion of the circle lounge at the Elephant and Castle Theatre, so as to form a booking office; a drawing, submitted by Mr. F. T. Verity, showing a proposal to erect a screen and doors at the Leicester-square entrance to the parterre at the Empire Theatre of Varieties; a drawing, submitted by Messrs. F. Matcham and Co., showing a proposed alteration to the stalls at the New Grand Theatre of Varieties, St. John's-hill, Clapham Junction; a drawing, submitted by Mr. B. Crewe, showing a new cinematograph box, which has been constructed at the Surrey Theatre.

The recommendations were adopted.

Miss Gracie Grahame is almost inconsolable at the loss of her faithful little Pomeranian, "Sprightly," who has been her constant companion and faithful friend for years. He died on Tuesday.

Col. Cody, the War Office aeronaut, and inventor of a war kite, who formerly figured on the halls with a sketch called Klondike, was in a motor smash on Saturday, his wife having several ribs broken.

No class of entertainment could be more suited to such "toney" places of refined amusement as the Winter Gardens, Bournemouth, than the glassophone solos and expert piano manipulation of Miss Mabel Mavis, who made her début there last Monday with unexcelled success.

A. E. Hunt, chauffeur to Mr. C. Schuberth, manager of the Palace, Bath, was riding a motor-bicycle on Saturday in the direction of Wood-street, and when at the corner of Barton-street was run into by a taxi-cab which was coming from Queen-square. Hunt, thrown violently from his cycle into the roadway, was promptly removed to the Royal United Hospital, where it was found that he was suffering from a broken leg. Mr. Schuberth informed our correspondent on Tuesday that Hunt was making satisfactory progress, but it would be some weeks before he would be about again.

The net profits of the Variety Theatres Consolidated, after providing for interest on the mortgages, mortgage debentures, and all outgoings, amount to £11,041. In April last an interim dividend of £3 per cent. (less Income-tax) was paid; the directors now recommend the payment of a further dividend of £4 per cent. (less Income-tax) for the half-year to Sept. 30, equal to 7 per cent. for the year, the writing off of £2,000 from the premises, goodwill, and licences account, and carrying forward the balance to the current year's account.

Miss May Lilian Levey writes:—"Under the heading 'Pantomime Novelty,' I read that Mr. Robert Courtneidge is the first in London to introduce the two ugly sisters in Cinderella in the shape of two good-looking young ladies, instead of two comedians with a comedy 'make up.' I should like to inform those interested in pantomime production that I have played the last two seasons myself in London in the part of ugly sister, with a good-looking 'make up,' in Mr. Robert Arthur's Cinderella pantomimes at the Camden and Kennington Theatres, and I am also playing the same part this season for Mr. Arthur at the Theatre Royal, Nottingham."

Principal among the newcomers at the Hippodrome are Albertus and Jessie Millar, who will present A Scene at the Fairgrounds. Miss Millar is considered the world's best lady cornetist. She was featured with the Barnum and Bailey "Greatest Show on Earth" for three years, was solo cornetist of Sousa's Band, and is a native of Los Angeles, California. Mr. Albertus was the first with a partner to introduce a double club juggling act, both in America and England. This has since been so widely copied that he found it was necessary to produce something new. A Scene at the Fairgrounds consists of wonderful baseball throwing, sensational club throwing, the comedy being centred in a tramp's endeavours to win cigars by knocking down the dolls.

Indispensable! Rayne's "Pocket Date Book." Contents: Map (19in. by 10in.), showing the distance betwixt the various music halls at a glance. Will tell if one hall is within the barring radius of the other, thus saving fears, worry, and anxiety. All about artists' luggage, list of clubs, information about stamping contracts, foreign money table, London music halls and theatres, their telephone numbers, list of brougham proprietors, list and address of photographers, size of theatrical printing paper, names and addresses of theatrical railway managers, &c. Price 1s., post free. The proceeds from the sale will be divided equally amongst the two great charities of the dramatic and musical professions, the Actors' Benevolent Fund and the Music Hall Home Fund. "The Era" Buildings, 5, Tavistock-street, W.C.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE TIVOLI.

Mr. Joseph Wilson is directing at the cosy variety theatre in the Strand a programme that may, in the best and broadest sense of the term, be called cosmopolitan. The entente cordiale is crystallised in the entertainment of Harry Fragson at the piano. Here we have an Anglo-Saxon who has caught, during a long residence in Paris, the mercurial lightness of the French comedian, while losing little of the British stolidity, which occasionally will peep out. Mr. Fragson when in his beloved Paris gives out songs that show an intimate acquaintance with the topics that will tickle the boulevardier; but he is equally at home in the Strand, where his songs on the Employment Agency and the Licensing Bill are as witty and as clever as anything we have heard for a long time. Another comedian is Mr. Neil Kenyon—frae Bonnie Scotland, ye ken—who has made a study of Scottish character and the broad Doric that is spoken north of the Tweed, and is able to hold an English audience with character sketches as original as they are clever. As a packman or a postman ("postie") Mr. Kenyon is equally droll, and the mirth incited by his sly wit is unmistakable in its heartiness.

Of practical fooling there is plenty in Mr. Harry Tate's sketch Motoring, which, though it has been seen again and again by Londoners, is still punctuated with roars of laughter. America is well represented by Radford and Valentine, who are expressively and alliteratively designated the "jolly juggling jesters," a description that cannot fathom the rich store of humour contained in the antics of the mere male of the twain.

Exceedingly popular also is Mr. W. T. Ellwanger, who brings along a company in a comedy sketch entitled The Kiss, which was played for the first time in London on Monday. The imbroglio of this amusing farcelet is exceedingly simple. Lord Balme, an Irish nobleman, though he has wooed and married a pretty American, is not exactly the best of friends with her brother, Jack Bacon, who, with four of his chums, is at his brother-in-law's house. While in the drawing-room with Lady Balme, the lights go out, and the sound of a kiss is distinctly heard by his lordship as he enters the room. His very natural anger is hardly lessened by the tactics of Jack Bacon, who, taking each of his friends aside, persuades them to apologise to the nobleman for having kissed his wife. The result may be imagined when each interviews the irate Lord Balme, who has eventually to remain satisfied with Jack's explanation that the whole occurrence is an American joke, which is heightened by one of the characters being a stutterer—a hackneyed phase of comedy which is quite acceptable to the Tivolians.

Mr. G. H. Elliott is still singing delightful coon songs. His latest is "Good-bye for ever," which has an exceedingly pretty melody, and should secure as much popularity as his "Sue, Sue, Sue." Dan Crawley is irresistible in old-fashioned comedy; Victoria Monks is telling in chorus songs; Sanford and Lyons are capital dancers; and Bowden and Stol and Ruffell's Bioscope are also among the attractions.

Early in the evening Signor and Mme. Borelli sing the famous "Cat" duet, and play on a grand piano; Miss Ada Martine dances well; Miss Winifred Ward warbles in male costume of the "Girlie Girls"; and other turns include Miss Madoline Rees, Les Marbas, and Mr. Billy French.

HOLBORN EMPIRE.

Mr. E. Leslie Conroy, the able manager of the Holborn Empire, has a good list of attractions this week. Mr. Fred Karno's burlesque, The G.P.O., is the biggest item on the programme, and it is fruitful in its mirth-raising qualities. Mr. Fred Kitchen, in the chief part of Perkins, is exceedingly diverting, and his facial expressions alone are an entertainment. He has capital support from Miss Jessie Crammonde as Lucy Wilson, and from Messrs. Albert Bruno, Herbert Sydney, Herbert Landeck, and Lloyd King in other rôles.

Harry Ford is once more seen in whimsical mood, and his quaint song, "What did he do it for, I'd like to know?" is hugely relished, as is also his "dude" ditty. Mr. Louis Bradfield continues on the halls his success in musical comedy. At the Holborn his fine voice is heard to great advantage in a musical scena, his vocal number, "Her eyes," gaining him enthusiastic applause. He gets good assistance from Mr. Wm. Spray and a bevy of beautiful ladies, including the Misses Marguerite Penfold, Florrie Winstone, Lillian Carlyle, and Jessie Vokes. Miss Ethel Beech and her girls provide an enjoyable and somewhat novel singing and dancing act; and the Borghetti Troupe once more win admiration for their smart head balancing act.

Miss Lena Verdi, a most attractive comedienne and mimic, submits amusing imitations of Miss Marie Lloyd, Mr. Harry Lauder, and others in quite characteristic fashion. Miss Millie Hylton, who looks majestic in a superb costume, appears in her song scena "The Brinkley Girl." Concerning that up-to-date young lady she has a song to sing, which is given with her accustomed charm and cleverness, and we judge from what she tells us that the Brinkley Girl must be a very engaging creature. Mr. Herbert La Martine makes himself popular with his song "Just because he couldn't sing ——," but it is his wonderful performance of a difficult dance that gains him most applause.

Dan Thomas furnishes an interesting account of himself in a scene in which he enacts the character of a broken-down pantomime artist; and Wilson and Waring are delightfully funny in their comedy act. Mr. Frank Seeley also creates merriment with his ditty "I will have to take it back"; Barton and Franklin are a successful comedy duo; and Miss Cassie Walmer proves herself to be a talented eccentric contralto vocalist. The Imperial Bioscope displays some capital new film subjects.

HOLLOWAY EMPIRE.

This week finds a well-diversified programme, at the top of which, in more senses than one, is George Auger in the original playlet Jack the Giant-Killer. Mr. Auger, who is billed as the tallest actor on the stage, is some 8ft. high, and looks highly realistic as the giant; and Mr. Ernest Rommell, who is some 30in. in height, plays Jack. The latter gentleman is a clever little comedian, and sings and dances well, his scenes with Mr. Auger delighting the house. The show gained a great reception. Dick Tubb, an eccentric comedian, makes a big hit in two songs, his style appealing greatly to the audience. Tom Chits, the tenor, sang two songs with effect. May Edouin, comedienne, in a musical comedy act, proved very clever, and made a good impression. Bernard Crooke, a precocious juvenile entertainer at the piano, was good, but the idea for the business in his last item is rather threadbare. Lily Burnand, in two songs, does well, the first song being "Good-bye, Olga," and the second "Sally in the ballet." Jessie Buckle made a hit in "What you've got look after." Edie Endon, a comedienne and dancer, who opened the programme, proved herself to be a very expert acrobatic dancer, her reception being deservedly enthusiastic. An extra turn was included in the evening's entertainment, this consisting of an Indian sketch, played by six people. An English officer is giving a last flare-up in his quarters on the eve of his wedding. He has ill-treated his native servant, and when he bids him to bring in two dancing girls, he makes it his business to introduce as one of them the girl whom he has played with. In the course of two dances she appeals to him, and eventually stabs both him and herself. The principal feature is the two dances, a dagger and a snake dance, both admirably executed, and not a little of the success was due to the appropriate music performed under the direction of a special conductor. A big reception was accorded the novelty. The Bioscope is, as usual, good. Business continues good, a fact with which the admirable quality of the programme has largely to do. Mr. Camp's orchestra is, as usual, first-rate.

At the bottom of the bill is Mr. George Leyton in his new scena The Last Muster, another of his many military sketches, this time from the fertile pens of Messrs. Harrington and Tate, which succeeded in its appeal to the patriotism of the audience.

HACKNEY EMPIRE.

A capital programme is being submitted at this popular hall during the week, and audiences are large and enthusiastic in consequence. John Lawson and company form the principal attraction in a répertoire of his well-known sketches. On the evening of our visit Pigs in Clover was presented. This is a pessimistic story written round the subject of racial intermarriages. Always interesting, it presents Mr. Lawson with a good medium for the display of his histrionic gifts, of which full advantage is taken. Mr. Lawson is capitally supported, Miss Buena Bent as Pat, Miss Lucille Sidney as Rose, and Messrs. J. K. Reynolds as Calvert, H. Schlesinger as Bazan, and Pascoe Bioletti as Leslie all working hard and with the greatest success. The scenery and mounting are on a very elaborate scale, and have the additional advantage of capital incidental music, directed by Mr. Lawson's conductor. It is needless to say that the sketch went well, Mr. Lawson and Miss Bent taking a well-deserved call. Howell and Scott, Hebrew cross-talk comedians, do well, their eccentric dancing being clever. Miss Florence Smithers and company, in a comedy sketch, Our Mary Jane, quite caught the fancy of the house, Miss Smithers herself, in a low comedy part, carrying the show along in fine style, and being excellently supported by Mr. Owen Dacroy as the uncle, and another lady and gentleman not billed.

Walter Bellonini, a very smart juggler, gives a clever show, and has a humorous assistant. Jessie Lee is a dainty comedienne and a graceful dancer. The Three Welsh Girls are artistic singers, their second item being very effectively illustrated. J. P. Ling is a distinctly good and entertaining mimic, his portrayals of the various people who "oblige" at a village concert being very amusing. Alexandra Dagmar, in her new song, "A marriage of Mayfair," together with imitations and stories, got a very big reception, and her success was very evident. The Bioscope is showing pictures of the Hackenschmidt-Gotch match, but provoked no expression of opinion from the house. Phil Parsons is also in the bill. Mr. Walter Greco's band still maintains its high reputation; and Mr. Trussell is most courteous in the front of the house.

THE FORESTERS'.

Many novel and interesting items are included in this week's programme, the foremost being a thrilling romantic episode by the favourite actor Mr. Frederick Maxwell, who is assisted by a specially-selected company, which includes Miss Lois du Cane. The story is entitled Give a Man a Chance. The scene is a mill owner's office in British Columbia, where Mr. Darcy, the principal, is settling matters, having just despatched a servant to the bank for the weekly wages. A humorous scene is witnessed between Mr. Darcy and a simple young fellow, who is about to marry a lady against his wish. The owner's son arrives from up country with news of the death of his uncle, who has been murdered. During the conversation Loanda, an American Indian girl, enters, the father informing the lad that the girl was found wandering about the country, and he had allowed her to make her home with him. She has become greatly attached to his principal employee, Jack Kenyon. A stranger in the person of Hal Kenyon, known as Rodney Dene, signals to the girl, and the ensuing conversation between the pair divulges the secret that the murder has been committed by the newcomer in revenge for the wickedness of the deceased. Many good scenes follow, making the excitement intense, and the finale is reached by the culprit offering himself up to justice, after explaining everything, the verdict being that he is to be "given a chance."

The double character was capitally portrayed by Mr. Maxwell, Miss Lois du Cane acting excellently as Loanda; Mr. Murray Yorke and Mr. Dennis Clyde as the Darcys played well together, and greatly helped to make the little incident a great success.

Mr. Tom Collins, light comedian, has two good songs in "Too-ral-loo" and "When the Lute grew brown in autumn," both being capitally rendered. Miss Sable Fern's distinctive voice is heard to advantage in "Do, do, do" and "Mother Eve," the latter being a smartly-written number; Leo and Roland are extremely clever equilibrists their ladder feat being most remarkable; the Sivronis, lady and gentleman burlesque artists, supply an interesting few minutes, their business consisting of good singing, tumbling, dancing, the male partner supplying plenty of good fun which is thoroughly enjoyed. They are a hard-working couple, and obtain a good reception. Mr. Nat Watkins is a good comedian, his quaint expression, &c., causing much amusement. Miss Rose D'Aulby possesses a powerful voice, and renders "Red Wing" capitally; Miss Ethel Scheffer, in illustrated songs, renders in good style "Since daddy's been taken away" and "You're my girl in the springtime," the words of the chorus being displayed on the Bioscope. E. D. Nicholls and company in Wow Wow, Ki Ki, supply plenty of hearty laughter; and Miss Zetta Russell and Alex Lofton, together with Raymond's Bio-tableaux, complete an enjoyable bill.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

There was a return to varieties at the Kingston playhouse on Monday and during the week, there being again two houses nightly. Another first-class programme was presented, and has delighted crowded audiences. The two prime favourites are Miss Nancy Hearne and Tom Leamore. The bill also includes the Sisters Bronson, duettists and dancers; the Godfreys in The Lady and the Toff; Mr. Arthur Blount, patter comedian; Miss Rachel Lowe, comedienne; Miss Veronica Brady and company, in Miss Gretchen; and Miss Adèle Levey and Mr. Frank Lilliput in a comedy duologue. Varieties will be continued until the pantomime season commences.

QUEEN'S, POPLAR.

As usual, the programme presented this week at the cosy little house in High-street, Poplar, is quite up to the mark, and both Messrs. F. and M. Abrahams must exert a considerable amount of tactful energy in the arrangement of the programmes. In presenting Karno's Early Birds this week the management has hit upon the very thing which suits both the taste and enjoyment of their patrons. This is easily determined by the one continuous round of laughter which resounds throughout the house whilst the farce is proceeding. This skit has been described quite sufficiently, but we may note that it is staged with elaboration, that it scores the success achieved on its first production a few years ago, and that the various parts are sustained with high intelligence and close study, and the buffoonery and pantomimic fun are exceedingly droll.

Walker and May meet with a warm reception the former's dancing, considering his blindness, being a truly wonderful feat. A characteristic of this duo is that their items are always of an entertaining and quiet order, thus reaching an artistic plane that could scarcely be attained by the customary boisterous travesties of coloured artists. The evening's entertainment is pleasantly diversified by a clever juggling act, in which the comic element is rather freely introduced. Mimicry of notable stars is given by Harry Harris, who sings favourite items associated with their fame. Few mimics have reached the degree of perfection of this artist, and his success may be said to lie in the care and attention which he gives to even the most minute points. In his impersonation of an American Hebrew comedian he is specially happy. Frank Blythe sings a couple of songs in neat style; May Marton is entertaining; and the items of Rita and Roma are well up to the average. Cestria is amusing and clever in jugglery and burlesque, and Florrie Grant courts popular favour in a particularly irresistible manner.

The Four Breens figured also in the programme, and their item combines dexterity with buffoonery in pleasant style, their juggling with clubs and batons being most diverting. Some fine films add to the enjoyment of the bill. Mr. Charles Hector and Mr. M. Abrahams, jun., are energetic and courteous managers.

"FIRST STOP, LONDON."

Episode, in three scenes, written and "arranged" by Edward Marris. Produced at Sadler's Wells on Monday, Nov. 30.

Dave Stannard ..... MR. CECIL W. PARKE
Luke Dezzard ..... MR. GEORGE GRANT
Tat Spavvin ..... MR. JIMMY SALTER
Nat Wilson ..... MR. PERCY MAITLAND
Ezra Gamble ..... } MR. HELIER LE MAISTRE
P.C. Grant ..... }
Mary Stannard ..... MISS BARBARA ALLISON

Luke Dezzard, a dealer in smuggled goods, tries to ruin Dave Stannard, a young fisherman, and win from him his wife, Mary. Dezzard therefore places smuggled goods in Dave's house, shoots the inspecting coastguard dead, and charges Stannard with the crime. Dezzard then plans to get Mary away by train to London; but Stannard manages to escape from the police at the station, and slip his handcuffs on to Dezzard's wrists. He then substantiates his innocence, and defends Mary from the villain's advances. Mr. Cecil W. Parke played Dave Stannard with manly power and spirit; Miss Barbara Allison acted with expression and charm as Mary; Mr. George Grant's Luke Dezzard was a graphic and energetic rascal; Mr. Percy Maitland as the coastguard and Mr. Jimmy Salter as a railway porter supplied comic relief; Mr. Helier Le Maistre doubled Ezra Gamble and a police-constable cleverly. The sketch was well mounted and warmly received.

"THE EXPERIMENT."

Sketch, by Mrs. Albert Bradshaw, produced at the Battersea Palace, on Monday, Nov. 30.

Dr. Wendover ..... MR. CHARLES WEST
Mrs. Wendover ..... MRS. ALBERT BRADSHAW
The Experiment—Amelia Honeydew
MISS RUTH WALLACE

The "Experiment" in question is made by Mrs. Wendover, a believer in Socialism and equality, who introduces into her household from the East End a "rough diamond" named Amelia, who treats her master and mistress with blunt familiarity, and by her behaviour to her master makes Mrs. Wendover so jealous that there are "ructions," and Amelia, in a violent scene, gives notice to leave. There is much amusing matter in the little piece, and it was well developed by the members of the cast.

PIRATE CAPTURED.

A serious revival of the publication of pirated music was brought to the notice of Mr. Paul Taylor, at Marylebone on Monday. Before the Court was an elderly man named William Vinson, a hawker, of Malvern-road, Kilburn, who was charged with exposing for sale 116 copies of pirated music. Under the instruction of Arthur Preston, the chief agent of the Music Publishers' Association, a young man named Haugh visited Chippenham-road, Harrow-road, on Saturday night, and saw the prisoner with a bundle of music under his arm offering copies for sale. Having seen the prisoner sell a copy, he called a policeman and gave the prisoner into custody. Prisoner pleaded guilty. In reply to the magistrate, Mr. Preston said there had been a lull in the sale of pirated music, but recently it had broken out again. That was shown by the fact that on the prisoner was found forty copies of various pieces of the newest publications. These hawkers could purchase them at the rate of one halfpenny a copy, and sell them at 4d. or 6d. each. Mr. Paul Taylor: Really! Continuing, the magistrate remarked that this was as much stealing as robbing a till of its contents. He fined the prisoner the maximum penalty, namely, £5, or one month.

ROLLER SKATING AT STAFFORD.

What with roller rinks in all the big cities, it was to be imagined Stafford would follow suit. Messrs. Brierley and Berry, who control the British Syndicate Skating Rink Co., Ltd., opened here on Thursday, Nov. 19. The ceremony was performed by the Mayor (Alderman Taylor) and officials of the Corporation. Prof. Alec Payne, late of the "White City," Manchester—whose recent marriage on roller skates on the rink there caused quite a sensation—is manager, and in conjunction with H. Lisbon gives a wonderful display nightly. The popular Professor shortly leaves for Cairo, Egypt, to control rinks there under the same syndicate.

MR. EDITOR.—SIR,—Your report in The Era dated Nov. 28, of the Hippodrome, Bury, mentions Will and Archie Frohman, musical duettists. This should read Will and Alicia Frohman.—Yours faithfully, WILL FROHMAN, 146, Rumford-street, Manchester, Nov. 29.

FOR several weeks much curiosity has been excited in Brighton by the official Parliamentary notice of a scheme for the construction of a "Brighton Casino and Marine Palace" at the seaward end of a pier to be built opposite West-street. The local authorities knew nothing about the matter, and were much surprised that they should not have been approached, particularly as the Bill seeks, amongst other things, to authorise the Corporation to contribute £100,000 to the cost of the scheme.

A FEW persons whose property is likely to be affected by the structure went to the Town Hall on Tuesday to inspect the plans, which had been deposited over-night, but the information available was of the most meagre description. The document simply showed a T-square jetty, extending about eight chains into the sea, and the character and extent of the proposed buildings at the pier-head were not indicated. The identity of the promoters is a complete mystery. It is already certain that if the scheme proceeds it will meet with the strongest opposition from the Town Council and both the existing pier companies.

THE Variety shows twice daily in the centre transept of the Crystal Palace next week will include Knoto, a wonderful contortionist, and the mysterious Howards, the world's greatest exponents of second sight and mental telepathy, who have appeared with such success at the Palace Theatre, London. Stoll and Milton, in their gymnastic pantomime act, entitled Robinson Crusoe; Eddie Clay, an American comedy musician in an amusing and novelty act; and Percy Victor's wonderful dog minstrels. These remarkable animals will play instruments.

"THE YAPP YAPPS."

This three-scene sketch, written by Fred Karno and J. Hickory Wood, with music by Dudley Powell, was produced for the first time at the Hippodrome, Margate, on Monday, when a crowded house roared with delight, and gave it an enthusiastic welcome. Scene 1 opens on Brighton Promenade, where there is a meeting between the Yapp Yapp boys and some bewitching promenaders, who sing a pleasing opening chorus. The Yapp Yapps, it must be explained, are the members of an exclusive club, an effeminate and dandified lot of feather-brained youths, who are making themselves notorious by their extravagance of dress and the frivolity of their conduct. Their time seems to be spent pretty equally between admiration for their Captain, the Honourable Charlie, and incidentally for themselves and the bashful beauties of Brighton. It transpires that Charlie has, in a moment of undue elation at his club, and in view of the fact that the club is meant to foster the noble art of self-defence, backed himself to fight Burly Ben of Westminster for £100, and he is in a state of trepidation in consequence. There is nothing in this scene to call for comment, except that it is made particularly realistic by a piece of stage mechanism which raises a very real squall of wind, and causes a profuse display of lingerie.

In the next scene, outside the National Sporting Club, Reggie unfolds his plot for helping his little chum to defeat the burly Ben, whose size and weight overtower Charlie tremendously. Mollie also intercedes on her brother's behalf, but Ben has never yet sold a fight, he declares, and further, anticipates an easy victory.

The last scene is a well-set presentment of the interior of the club where the fight takes place. There is a preliminary spar between two professional boxers, in which Will Parke is declared the winner. Then comes the momentous fight, Charlie Chinn of Mayfair v. Big Ben of Westminster, in which poor Charlie is knocked about like a shuttlecock by his brawny opponent. He is all but knocked out in the first round, but Reggie is a friend of resource. He has come provided with a pump of oxygen which, inhaled by Charlie, puts such vigour into him that he speedily turns the tables and vanquishes the giant in next to no time.

The skit upon the discussion that has been going on as to the value of oxygen for athletes was hugely enjoyed, and the curtain fell to the accompaniment of long-sustained applause. The sketch was briskly played throughout, the staging was perfect, and the scenery and dressing elaborate.

"MEXICAN JOE," the travelling conjurer who was found dead with his throat cut at Swadlincote, near Burton-on-Trent, has been identified as Herbert Notting Turner, a native of Pontefract, Yorkshire.

PUZZLED by the fact that the defendant in a judgment summons case was known by two names, Judge Willis, at Greenwich County Court, on Friday in last week, asked the reason. The defendant replied that he had been well-known on the London stage as dancer and comedian. "Hold up you face," said the judge. "A comedian!" he continued. "I now understand that you have a comic face." Then remarking that he had often heard it said that those who amuse others have many and heavy cares, the judge made a small order.

"THE DUCHESS OF DEPTFORD."

A Comedy Sketch, produced at the Standard Music Hall, Pimlico, on Monday, Nov. 30.

Catherine Upstarch ..... MISS NETTIE FRENCH
Mlle. Vermicelli ..... MISS LILY GOLD
Jinks ..... MR. JOHN MANNING
Alphonse ..... MR. LIONEL ERNEST
Bonaparte Biggs ..... MR. JOHN RIDDING

The Duchess of Deptford is one of those irresponsible farcical sketches, the presentation of which can always be relied upon to while away in amusement a pleasant twenty minutes or so. The scene is a tailor's shop in Jermyn-street, and we are told that the period is that of Napoleon. The men of the scissors and the cloth is Bonaparte Biggs, who has advanced in his trade from the position of the little man in the back room at Deptford to the sartorial honours of the West End. He is visited by Mlle. Vermicelli, a dancer, for whom he professes great affection, and she arranges to call upon him a little later. Then there comes on the scene one Catherine Upstarch, a laundress, who had known Biggs in his less prosperous days, and who is now called by him the Duchess of Deptford. It appears that he had made advances to her too, and she now judges that he cares for her no longer. Ergo, she will end her life. She places a dummy figure in a water-butt, and then, disguised, gains admission as a detective, telling Biggs that he will be charged with murder. Biggs, who has been warned of the disappearance of Catherine by Alphonse, a perruquier, in love with the dancer, has disguised himself, and now says that he is a waiter. So that when Mlle. Vermicelli returns, Catherine tells her that Biggs is out, and that the man she sees is a servant. In the end Biggs is so terrified that he says he would agree to marry Catherine if she could be brought to life, and, of course, the bogus detective very quickly becomes the laundress, and Alphonse is left in indisputable possession of the dancer. Mr. John Ridding cuts a ludicrous figure as Biggs, and succeeds in entertaining the audience, as do also Miss Nettie French as the laundress, Miss Lily Gold as the dancer, and Mr. Lionel Ernest as the perruquier. Snatches of songs are sung by the two principal characters, and it would be better, in order to sustain the claim for a "musical comedietta," as well as to improve the little piece, if a good song were allotted to Mr. Ridding and Miss French, both of whom possess vocal talent.

THE Pier Theatre of Varieties at Llandudno is closed for alterations.

NEW CROSS has had a fair-week of "Hooch aye." Funny Frame, the man from the Heilans, gave on Friday night, Nov. 27, the memory of the immortal bard, Robbie Burns.

CHARLES OSBORNE'S fine song "The one word, 'Mother,'" was strongly brought to mind a few days since in a court of law. "Drop that Latin!" came sharply from the Bench, when a witness persistently spoke of his mater. "Drop that Latin, and use the word 'mother.'"

ON Wednesday evening, at the Town Hall, Birkenhead, was given a Masonic concert, promoted by the Bohemian Lodge, No. 3,294. The entertainment was supported by various artists from the local places of amusement, who appeared by the kind permission of their respective managers. A large and fashionable assemblage attended.

CHURCH WORK ON THE FAIR-GROUNDS.

THE GUILD CHAPLAIN'S REPORT.
PART II.

The Guild service at Birmingham Trinity Fair, my next centre, was a gratifying success. A special and most impressive feature was the procession of the clergy and choir from St. Stephen's Church, adjoining the fairground, to Collins's No. 2 show. The white-robed choristers, headed by the cross-bearer, sang as they proceeded, "Onward Christian Soldiers," and the impression created by this procession of choir and clergy was very marked. The show was crowded to its utmost capacity, and the Guild service was rendered in a most hearty congregational manner, the choir leading the singing. I took the service and preached. The lesson was read by the Vicar of St. Stephen's (the Rev. T. S. Dennison), who also delivered a short, but most telling, address. He warmly welcomed the showpeople to his parish, and expressed his desire in every way to further the work of the Showmen's Guild. He begged the showpeople to remember that both he and his colleagues (the parish clergy) were at their disposal to minister to them in every possible way; if there were any sick amongst them, they were ready to offer consolations of Holy religion. If any unbaptised children, they were ready to afford every facility, and to suit the convenience of the parents, that the children might be brought to Holy baptism.

At the Church of St. Stephen's close by the fair ground there was a daily celebration of the Blessed Sacrament. He hoped that that might be a possible opportunity for any of the communicant show people to make their communion. He knew, considering the exhausting nature of their Saturday night work, that it was almost impossible for any of them to attend the early services of Sunday morning; but, he added, after the rest of the Sunday, it might be possible for some of the show people to attend the Early Celebration at St. Stephen's Church on Monday morning. Anyhow, as their parish priest for the time being, it was his duty to tell them of the opportunity, so that if possible it might be used. He prayed God's blessing upon the travelling show people, and wished them God speed in their work.

The Vicar's address was listened to with the greatest attention, and the service concluded with the Benediction.

The Guild in Wales.

From the capital of the Midlands to the heart of Wales was my next journey. At Porth, in the Rhondda Valley, I have held, for many years past, services for showpeople on the fair Sunday. The service is always sung by the united choirs of the parish, and this year, with the parish clergy was the Vicar of Abercynon, a visitor at Porth for the day.

The splendid show pavilion was thronged by an attentive and devout congregation. The hymns in the Guild service were sung gloriously to Welsh tunes. The Vicar of Porth (the Rev. W. Thomas, hon. local chaplain for Wales) intoned the service, the curate (the Rev. G. Martin) read the Lesson.

At the conclusion of the service the vicar said that although he had no intention of giving them a second sermon, he wished to express to the show people present his appreciation of the great and good work of their Guild and its earnest and hard-working chaplain.

This was not only for its special work—ministering on the fairgrounds—but also for the good work done to the parish by the chief chaplain, Mr. Horne. At St. Paul's Church that morning the congregation had listened spellbound to the impressive sermon of the chaplain.

He was glad to anounce to that meeting that Mr. Horne had also promised to preach at the Mother Church of the parish that evening. For this valuable help given by the Guild chaplain both he and his people were grateful. He had known Mr. Horne since the commencement of the Guild work in Wales. Of his zeal and ability in the special field of labour to which he had devoted himself there could be no question.

No one could be in Mr. Horne's company without feeling the deep earnestness of purpose and wholehearted devotion of the man.

He himself was proud to know, as Mr. Horne had told them that morning from the pulpit of St. Paul's, that Porth was the second town in the United Kingdom to have an hon. local chaplain of the Guild. How the work had grown since he became their chaplain for Wales could be seen on reference to the list of such hon. chaplaincies in the Service Book.

He must, he added, speak a word of thanks to Mr. John Studt for the use of the splendid pavilion in which they were now assembled. He ventured to think that it would be all the better show on the Monday for the good use they had made of it on the Sunday.

He and his colleagues in the ministry were only too glad to be of any use possible to the show people when in Porth, and they felt it an honour and a privilege to be associated with the chief chaplain in his work on the fairgrounds.

He prayed God's abundant blessings on the work of the Guild and the people whose interests it sought to serve.

The service at Porth is always in the afternoon, and is followed by a Guild Chapter. This meeting of the Chapter is my great opportunity, year by year, of coming into touch with the whole body of Welsh show people, the Welsh section of the Guild being very enthusiastic in its support and appreciation of the work the Guild is doing for the whole body of itinerant entertainers.

Amongst Scotch Showmen.

My big gathering of Scotch showpeople this year was at Greenock Fair. I held a general meeting of the Guild in a show on the fair ground. Great interest is taken in the work of the Guild by our Scotch members, and generous financial support is given. Although, owing to different methods of local government, Scotch showpeople can derive no benefit from the trade protection part of our enterprise, it is a great pleasure to me, year by year, to visit the Scotch members, and to help to deepen the sense of fellowship in a common work, even though the business interests differ between the English and Scotch members of the Guild. For many years past a number of ladies in Greenock, with the assistance of the clergy, have carried on Christian work at the time of the fair. I am quite satisfied that it only remains for me to help forward that work when I visit Greenock. I was one of the speakers at the annual meeting thus organised and held in the Temperance Hall on the Sunday evening of the fair.

This year I was able to visit Glasgow, and for a few days before Glasgow Fair was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Green, at The Carnival, Gallowgate, adjoining the fair ground. I saw Glasgow Fair in the making; but previously-arranged work in Yorkshire demanded my presence, and beyond seeing my people arrive for the fair, I could do nothing.

My next conference and service were at Bramley Feast, near Leeds—in fact, an industrial suburb of that city. Both meetings were well attended, and were, as usual, in a show on the fair ground.

Longsight Wakes.

For fourteen years past the Rector of St. Agnes's Birch, Manchester, has provided a service for the showpeople at their annual visit to his parish for Longsight Wakes. At his request I have taken part in this work, generally preaching in the evening at the parish church, close to the fair ground, and then assisting at the Guild service for the showpeople and their friends, held in the mission room adjoining the wakes ground. Concerning this part of my yearly work, the Rev. H. Norburn, Rector of St. Agnes's Church, Manchester, who for the past fourteen years has been honorary local chaplain to the Guild, writes:—"The more our fathers of the Church know of your Showmen's Guild the more they feel its importance. Instead of coming into my parish as outcasts and intruders, the showmen now meet the clergyman as an old friend, whom they will not grieve by any uncomely act lest they should lose his respect and their own acquired good standing. Your work now for years done amongst them has not merely humanised these wanderers, but in many cases Christianised them. That these men should maintain a chaplain is a surprising thing indeed, and speaks volumes. I sincerely believe your championship of their rights has changed the public, and also the official attitude towards them. I wish you God-speed."

At Holbeck Feast.

In accordance with a custom of many years standing, the Vicar of Holbeck, Leeds, arranged a service for the show people. This year and last the Guild chaplain has been able to co-operate in the work of the local clergy. The vicar, the Rev. S. F. Sykes, and the senior curate, the Rev. E. N. Deane, visited every van on the fair ground, and left a notice of the forthcoming Sunday service. The notice paper read as follows:—"Holbeck Feast. You are invited to a Guild service on Sunday, Sept. 13, at 8 p.m., in Mr. Murphy's Pictorial Palace. An address will be given by the Guild chaplain, the Rev. T. Horne. The Holbeck Church Choir will lead the singing."

Mr. Murphy's beautiful pavilion, seated to hold 500 persons, was filled to its utmost capacity. The chaste and beautiful interior decorations, brilliantly illuminated by powerful arc electric lights, transformed the show into a most appropriate chapel of ease to the parish church. The Holbeck Church choir and a considerable body of friends from the church congregation rendered heartily, as Yorkshire folk are so well able to do, the beautiful hymns of the Guild service. The Vicar of Holbeck intoned the service, and I was the preacher. Before the blessing, the vicar, at my request, delivered a short address, in the course of which he earnestly begged his showman hearers to make use of the clergy if any necessity should arise during their short stay in his parish. Whilst he might, for the quiet carrying out of his own parish work, hesitate to desire to have a Holbeck Feast Sunday every Sunday, he had no hesitation at all in desiring more frequent opportunities of meeting the showpeople. He felt that it was extremely difficult to know them and to enter into their life when he could only have that opportunity once a year.

He gladly welcomed them, and he heartily agreed with their efforts to amuse the people. He also welcomed the work of the Showmen's Guild into his parish, and was glad to have Mr. Horne, the Guild chaplain, with them. It was in such work as the service they were now engaged in that they hoped to find the uplifting not only of the showmen and the betterment of the amusements of the people, but that the Church of God should reach and minister to the people whose business in life caused them to travel from town to town.

I was celebrant at the early morning Eucharist at the parish church, held my usual afternoon conference for showmen only, and at Evensong preached at St. Cuthbert's, a neighbouring church.

Gloucester Fair.

In the city of Gloucester we have a striking example of the improvement possible under municipal control of open-air amusements of the people. In both departments of its work the Guild has actively co-operated with the corporation. An old street fair has been removed from its most unsuitable site under modern conditions of traffic to a new and spacious corporation fair ground, within a penny tram ride from all parts of the city. One of the annual public meetings of the Guild is held at Gloucester, and the Mayor usually presides, and a number of the aldermen and city councillors attend, and I deliver an address on the general work and aims of the Guild. This year's meeting and the Guild service at night were highly successful. The show, capable of holding 800 persons, was crowded upon both occasions. A particularly interesting fact must be recorded of the service at Gloucester Fair. For the first time in my experience the organist, the choir, and every assistant in the service were drawn from the showpeople themselves. This was necessary, owing to the coincidence of the Sunday-school anniversary sermons at St. Nicholas's, the parish church of the fair ground This clash of dates made it impossible for the vicar or his helpers to assist me at the Guild service.

The Rev. J. J. Luce, Vicar of St. Nicholas's, Gloucester, and honorary local chaplain to the Guild, writes:—"You are engaged in a work which has my hearty sympathy, and having now had the advantage of joining with you in your efforts during the past two or three years I can confidently recommend both you and the Mission to Showmen. You have deservedly the ear and the respect of this class of our fellow-men, and you most certainly have their highest interests very much at heart. I pray God to bless your endeavours more and more."

Hull and Rotherham Fairs.

Another important centre of the work is Hull Fair. The corporation recognises the Guild, and the Mayor usually takes the chair at the afternoon meeting. This gathering is of a public character, and great interest is shown by the people of Hull. At Hull, for the Guild service, I have the assistance of the vicar and choir of St. Mary's Church, Dairycotes. Writing of the service in his parish magazine the vicar (who is an hon. local chaplain of the Guild) says:—"The Rev. T. Horne, chaplain to the Showmen's Guild, and Hull Fair.—The above-named gentleman gave two forcible sermons at our Church on Hull Fair Sunday, Oct. 11, and after Evensong he conducted a service in Enoch Farrar's beautiful show pavilion. Our choir assisted Mr. Horne in this service, which was thoroughly hearty and congregational, by travelling with him in a brake to the fair ground, under the leadership of the choirmaster, Mr. F. C. Heaven, and our trumpeters and choirmen, Mr. H. Moss and his pupil, Master H. Hargrave. The choir were fully vested, and accompanied by the cross-bearer, Mr. H. Ramsbottom."

My last Guild service on the fair grounds was at Rotherham Statutes Fair on All Saints' Day. For eighteen years in succession this service has been held. This long record is owing to the fact that in 1890 I was serving the curacy of Whiston, Rotherham, and at the request of the showmen made arrangements for a service on the fair ground. In this work I have had the co-operation of the local clergy, and the Rev. H. Greenway, hon. local chaplain, has held the service upon the few occasions I have not been able to attend. This year I addressed a public meeting in a show in the afternoon, and conducted the service in the same booth at night. I had, as usual, the assistance of the choir of St. Michael's Church. I preached at St. Michael's at the mid-day Eucharist and assisted at an early celebration.

Other Workers in the Same Field.

Although I am dealing with the work of the Guild in this report, it must not be supposed that no work of this kind is being done either by diocesan or parochial agency. The dioceses of Salisbury and Exeter reach the showpeople of the west by missioners attending the Wiltshire and Devonshire fairs and regattas. I know of work being done at the fair time by the local clergy at East Retford, where the vicar has undertaken the local chaplaincy at Neath and Pontardawe, in Wales, and some of the village feasts in the diocese of Durham.

I regret to say that this year I have had to refuse several invitations to attend important fairs, entirely on account of the clashing of dates with other places. As far as the itinerant part of my work is concerned, I am single-handed, and any development of that work must be on diocesan lines. A fixed principle of my organisation has been to establish local chaplaincies at every important centre where useful Church work is possible, my highest ambition being to assist the parish clergy in dealing with mission work that demands specialisation and an intimate knowledge of show life. The following clergy have already taken part in the work, and have consented to act as hon. local chaplains:—Rev. W. H. T. Bateman, the Vicarage, Mexborough; Rev. H. S. Butler, the Vicarage, Preston; Rev. E. Chorley, Salisbury; Rev. N. J. Devereux, St. Mary's Vicarage, Hoxton, N.; Rev. A. Dixon, Denton; Rev. Fenwick Ward, Albert Memorial Church, Manchester; Rev. G. Francis, Porth, Wales; Rev. H. Greenway, Northfield, Rotherham; Rev. B. W. Hancock, St. Swithin's, Lincoln; Rev. G. S. Hand, All Saints', King's Lynn; Rev. R. C. M. Harvey, the Vicarage, Dewsbury; Rev. A. Huddle, St. Nicholas's, King's Lynn; Rev. E. W. Legg, Salisbury; Rev. T. Lennie, St. John's Rectory, Greenock; Rev. J. J. Luce, St. Nicholas's, Gloucester; Rev. T. F. Maddrell, St. John the Baptist's, Penzance; Rev. F. J. Metcalfe, Killamarsh; Rev. H. Norburn, St. Agnes's, Birch, Manchester; Rev. W. S. Probert, Parish Church, Wrexham; Rev. R. Gordon Roe, King's Lynn; Rev. C. F. Rogers, the Vicarage, Penzance; Rev. J. S. Shields, D.D., St. Matthew's, Hammersmith; Rev. G. Smallpiece, All Saints', King's Lynn; Rev. Howard Swinstead, Berwick, Salome, Oxford; Rev. R. De C. Thelwall, Burbage, Wilts; Rev. W. Thomas, Porth, Wales; Rev. J. Thomas, Brentwood; Rev. T. Tissington, Treorchy, Wales; Rev. J. Vavasour Hammond, Holy Trinity Rectory, Ayr; Rev. R. T. Heygate, the Vicarage, Boston; Rev. F. L. Donaldson, S. Mark's, Leicester; Rev. J. T. Mumford, Vicarage, East Retford; Rev. G. Martin, Porth, Wales; Rev. F. S. Sykes, Holbeck, Leeds; Rev. W. H. Butler, Hull; and Rev. T. S. Dennison, St. Stephen's, Birmingham.

OLYMPIA SKATING RINK.

On Monday, after a lapse of some eighteen years, Olympia is again to be utilised for the purpose of a roller skating rink, this time under the managing directorship of Messrs. C. P. Crawford and F. A. Wilkins. The wave of roller skating popularity which, upon the initiative of Mr. C. P. Crawford, of America, began to spread itself over England some twelve months ago, has at last touched the metropolis, and the new rink to be established at Olympia is the outcome. During an interview with Mr. Crawford we gained some interesting particulars as to this rink. The roller skating business has now, both in England, Scotland, and Ireland, been exploited with great success and financial benefit by those prepared to adopt methods of initiative and administration similar to those which obtain at any or all of the rinks at Liverpool, Dublin, Edinburgh, Leeds, Glasgow, Sunderland, and Llandudno, under the control of Messrs. C. P. Crawford and F. A. Wilkins. Another turn to the wheel of enterprise has now been given by Messrs. Crawford and Wilkins, and as a consequence Olympia possesses a roller skating rink what Mr. Crawford tells us is beyond question the finest skating rink the world has ever seen. The capacious interior of the building has been specially fitted for the use it is intended to serve. The skating area is 475ft. in length and 175ft. wide. This vast expanse of floor-space will be quite open and free from any such obstruction as posts or stanchions. Thus there will be approximately 100,000 square feet of skating room. It will provide a race track of four laps to the mile.

For the purpose of making a first-class skating surface two floors have been laid upon the present one. The first is a pine surface, and upon that has been super-imposed a floor of maple specially imported from America at great cost. A period of less than a week has been devoted to the work of laying the maple floor and doing the other things necessary to convert the vast hall into a skating rink. To execute the work in this amazingly small space of time three shifts of 300 skilled joiners have been engaged continuously for the full twenty-four hours of each day, besides which the services of four patent American electric sand-paper surfacing machines have been requisitioned. The maple is in narrow planks of 2½in. wide and ⅜in. thick. It is laid in these narrow strips in order to prevent warping or buckling through atmospheric fluctuations. Each length of maple is tongued and grooved both at the sides and ends, in order that the floor shall remain as level and smooth throughout the whole period of its use as it is on the first day. The planks of maple, if laid end to end, would extend to an aggregate length of no less than 113¾ miles.

The rink will only be operated for three months in each year, from December to March, and at the end of the third month the magnificent maple floor will have to be ruthlessly ripped up and disposed of as firewood or for dunnage purposes. Messrs. Crawford and Wilkins have entered into a contract to take the Olympia for three months in each year for a period of not less than three years. Thus it is obvious that in order to make the undertaking remunerative—taking into account the initial heavy cost—patronage must be on a colossal scale.

To everyone acquainted with the use and merits of roller skates it is a sine qua non that the Samuel Winslow steel ball-bearing roller skates represent, up to the present time at any rate, the last word in efficient and artistic skates. It is this unique skate which alone will be used at the Olympia Rink. No fewer than 6,000 pairs of 1908 models of these skates have been ordered. From this it is apparent that the management is sanguine as to the success of the undertaking. A corps of forty skilled professors of skating will be upon the floor in the capacity of instructors and attendants, and to these the public may look at certain times of each day for free assistance in their endeavours to acquire the graceful accomplishment of roller skating in its higher forms and phases.

A military band (the 87th Irish Fusiliers) of fifty performers will furnish a choice programme of music at each session. There will be three sessions each day—10.30 a.m. to 12.30 p.m., from 2 to 5, and from 7.30 to 11. The charge for admission at the morning session will be sixpence, and at the afternoon and evening sessions one shilling. Skates will be on loan at the charge of one shilling per pair, and books containing thirty tickets for admission and skates will be sold at £2 each.

So far as the conduct and management of the rink is concerned, it may be said that the general amenities will be of the highest possible standard of refinement and good taste. Nothing in the remotest degree coarse or unruly will for an instant be countenanced. Ladies may visit the rink with the utmost confidence that they will neither see nor hear anything which can in any way offend either their ears or their eyes. There will be lady instructors for members of the fair sex.

Mr. J. F. Farrell will be the assistant general-manager and Mr. H. L. Massie the resident-manager of the rink. Both of these gentlemen have had considerable experience in the management of undertakings of this character.

OPERATIC BURLESQUE.

In his "Book of Burlesque," the late Mr. Davenport Adams writes thus of "the burlesque of opera:—Two of Donizetti's operas—L'Elisir d'Amore and La Fille du Regiment—were travestied by Mr. W. S. Gilbert; the former under the title of Doctor Dulcamara, or the Little Duck and the Great Quack, the latter under that of La Vivandière, or True to the Corps. Doctor Dulcamara was played at the St. James's, with Frank Matthews in the title-part. La Vivandière (1868) was written for the Queen's Theatre, where it employed the talents of Miss Henrietta Hodson, Mr. Toole, Mr. Lionel Brough, Miss Everard (the original Little Buttercup), and Miss Fanny Addison.

Of Verdi's operas two have been singled out for special attention—Il Trovatore and Ernani. The first of these suggested H. J. Byron's Ill-Treated Trovatore, seen at the Adelphi in 1863, and another version by the same hand, played at the Olympic seventeen years after. Byron also wrote a travestie of Ernani, which he called Handsome Hernani (Gaiety, 1879); but in this he had been anticipated by William Brough, whose work was seen at the Alexandra Theatre in 1865.

Three travesties have been founded on the La Sonnambula of Bellini. The first, which was played at the Victoria Theatre in 1835, was from the pen of Gilbert Abbott a'Beckett, and entitled The Roof Scrambler—a title explained in lines spoken by Rudolpho and Swelvino:—

"Rud. I tell you, there are beings in their dreams
"Who scramble 'pon the house-tops.
"Swel. So it seems.
"Rud. Roof-scramblers they are called; for on the roofs
"They walk at night—Molly is one."

Molly is the name here given to Amina; Swelvino, of course, is Elvino. He is a sexton, and has plighted his troth to Lizzy; but before the piece opens, he has transferred his affections to Molly Brown, a charity girl—"a Greasy Roamer over the tops of houses." Swelvino and Molly are about to be married, when there arrives at the village Rodolpho, the new Inspector of Police, who introduces himself as follows:—

"Ah, here I am again!—I know this scene,
In which, when I was young, so oft I've been.
I recognise each spot I see around,
The stocks know me, and well I know the pound!
The sight of these my eyes with tears is filling:
I knew that pound when I had not a shilling!"

Molly, walking in her sleep, enters Rodolpho's apartment, and is found there by Swelvino, but is vindicated, like her prototype in the opera, by being subsequently discovered in a somnambulent condition. The story of La Sonnambula is, in fact, followed closely, but caricatured throughout. W. Rogers, who was the Swelvino, and Mitchell, who was the Molly, appear to have been highly successful in exciting the hilarity of their audiences. The latter portrayed the heroine as "a waddling, thick-set, red-and-ruddy, blowzy-faced goblin, with turn-up nose and carroty hair, wrapt in a pea-soup or camomile-tea-coloured negligée, and carrying," in the sleep-walking scene, "a farthing rushlight in one of Day and Martin's empty blacking-bottles." Of Swelvino's appearance we may judge from a remark made by Molly to her lover:—

"I, by looking in your face, can tell
What are your feelings excellently well.
Oh, yes! the fulness of that ruby nose
Your love for me doth passing well disclose;
Your agitated whisker shows full well
What throbs of passion underneath it dwell!"

The two other skits upon the opera were the work of H. J. Byron, who produced the first at the Prince of Wales's in 1865, under the title of La! Sonnambula! or the Supper, the Sleeper, and the Merry Swiss Boy; "being a passage in the life of a famous 'Woman in White': a passage leading to a tip-top storey." Miss Marie Wilton was the Merry Swiss Boy (Alessio); Miss Fanny Josephs was Elvino; Mr. Dewar, Rodolpho; "Johnny" Clarke, Amina; Miss Bella Goodall, Lisa; Mr. Harry Cox undertaking the rôle of "a virtuous peasant (by the kind permission of the Legitimate Drama)." This was Miss Wilton's first production at the Prince of Wales's, and it was a great success. In 1878 Byron brought out at the Gaiety a piece which he called Il Sonnambulo, or Lively Little Alessio. In this he introduced several variations on the operatic story; making the Count (Edward Terry) the somnambulist, instead of Amina—in burlesque of Mr. Henry Neville's sleep-walking scene in Wilkie Collins's Moonstone. Miss Farren was the lively little Alessio, and Mr. Royce the "local tenor," Elvino.

Of Bellini's Norma, the first burlesque produced was that which W. H. Oxberry, the comedian, contributed to the Haymarket in 1841. In this the title part was played by Paul Bedford, with Wright as Adalgisa and Mrs. H. P. Grattan as Pollio. The piece had no literary pretensions, and it would be unfair to compare it, in that or any other respect, with The Pretty Druidess, or the Mother, the Maid, and the Mistletoe Bough, which Mr. W. S. Gilbert wrote for the Charing Cross Theatre (now Toole's) just twenty-eight years later. This was one of the best of Mr. Gilbert's operatic travesties, the dialogue being characterised by especial point and neatness.

The Gazza Ladra of Rossini lives on the burlesque stage in the counterfeit presentment furnished by Byron's Maid and the Magpie, or the Fatal Spoon. This was one of the writer's greatest triumphs in the field of travestie. Produced at the Strand in 1854, with Miss Oliver as Ninette, Miss Marie Wilton as Pippo, Bland as Fernando, and Clarke as Isaac (the old-clothes man), it at once hit the public taste, as it well deserved to do, for it is full of clever writing and ingenious incidents. The best scene of all, perhaps, is that in which the broken-down Fernando reveals himself to Ninette—a happy satire upon a familiar melodramatic situation.

Turning to the burlesques of opera of the German school, we begin, naturally, with Mozart, whose Don Giovanni found humorous reflection in two pieces, by H. J. Byron and Mr. Reece. The former's Little Don Giovanni belongs to 1865, when it was performed at the Prince of Wales's, with Miss Wilton (Mrs. Bancroft) as the hero, Clarke as Leporello Miss Fanny Josephs as Masetto, Mr. Hare as Zerlina (probably his only appearance on the stage in petticoats), Miss Sophie Larkin as Elvira, and Miss Hughes as Donna Anna. Don Giovanni was the last burlesque written by Byron for Miss Wilton, and, moreover, it was the last burlesque part she ever played. She records in her Memoirs that an amusing feature of the piece was the spectacle presented in the last act by the Commandant's horse, which, in allusion to a recent freak in Leicester Square, had been covered with a variety of spots, and "looked like an exaggerated Lowther Arcade toy." Mr. Reece's burlesque was called Don Giovanni in Venice, and came out at the Gaiety in 1873.

In 1842 Macready revived at Drury Lane Handel's delightful Acis and Galatea, and the opera was promptly caricatured by W. H. Oxberry in a piece produced three days afterwards at the Adelphi. The travestie of Acis and Galatea, which was seen at the Olympic in 1863, was from the pen of Mr. Burnand. Its full title was Acis and Galatea, or the Nimble Nymph and the Terrible Troglodyte; and the Nimble Nymph (described as "a Nymph of the Sea, who also visits the land—a nymphibious young lady") was played by Miss Hughes. The puns were prolific, and so were the parodies, the best of which were written in caricature of the absurd English translations in the operatic "books of the play."

FILM GOSSIP.

Showmen and Managers throughout the United Kingdom, and in every English-speaking country, will find in this column particulars of some of the best and newest Films in the Market. Many of these Films we have seen ourselves, and can confidently recommend showmen to add them to their list of attractions.

Pathé Frères.

A DIFFICULT FATHER-IN-LAW.—In this interesting film it is made clear that American law protects women very efficiently, for the man who breaks his promise of marriage has to pay heavy damages for same. Mr. Sampson, a very practical Yankee, on the look-out for an eventual son-in-law, surprises a gentleman bold enough to whisper sweet nothings in the ears of his daughter. Mr. Sampson jumps at him, terrorises him, and finally invites him, with his revolver in his hand, to marry the girl he has spoken to in that way. The gentleman does not withstand such arguments, and he signs a contract by which he engages himself to pay 50,000 dollars to Miss Sampson, and moreover to submit the conduct of his actions to the experience of Mr. Sampson, her father. From that time, the exacting father-in-law chases his son-in-law without respite, and with the contract in one hand, and a revolver in the other, he makes him obey him like a puppet. Where the story becomes exciting is when the poor hunted son-in-law arrives at the house of a lady friend for a few minutes' rest, closely followed by the old man, who is now barring the door. The younger man, having donned a gown belonging to his friend, goes out, and in the street looks like a fascinating lady, and as such, wins the heart of the old bear. Availing himself of the opportunity, he takes the contract; then discarding his woman's attire, he shows himself once more as the son-in-law of the man he has just beguiled.

NEW CENTURY THIEVES.—Three rascals, being hard-up, are asking one another what to do in order to renew their finances. Suddenly the leader has a brilliant idea, which he imparts to his friends. The trio arrive at the door of a nerve specialist, and go in. Immediately the leader is seized with nervous movements, which make him cut capers, throw himself on his hands, and lift his feet, thus displaying signs of the most acute nervous complaint. They are shown into a waiting-room with other patients afflicted with all sorts of nervous diseases. The presumably sick man is now in the presence of the doctor, who has his hands full with keeping him quiet with the aid of his servant. In the meantime the others are stripping the waiting-room of its valuables; then the three accomplices leave as hurriedly as their legs will carry them.

ELIXIR OF DREAMS.—In this we get fairy tale and fiction. Pierrot is painting away at his easel with a feverish haste. He has not eaten for a long time, however, and his head is swimming. Gradually he goes to dreamland, where a fairy appears to him, saying, "I am the fairy illusion, take this phial, it contain the elixir of dreams." Pierrot drinks, and his idle fancy carries him into an Oriental fairy palace, amongst dancers and the fumes of opium. He himself is a rajah, and pretty Indian girls fan him, and offer him all sorts of delicacies in golden vessels. Then Pierrot is sent away by the caliph, and he is on the point of being killed by his enemies when he is awakened from his nightmares by a man who comes to buy his picture.

BEHIND THE MASK.—After exchanging bitter words, and throwing at each other all sorts of things, a married couple go to their rooms in a bad temper, but the announcement in the paper of a masked ball makes them change their mood, and they both prepare for it, unknown to the other. In the large crowd of the public ball, the husband and wife are so pleased with each other's appearance and ready wit, that they have a very nice time until, the masks falling, they recognise each other with amazement. After such a thing, it is impossible for them not to make it up, and the film ends with the reconciliation brought about by very comical circumstances.

THE ROMANY'S DAUGHTER.—A young fop has fallen in love with a gipsy girl endowed with rare beauty. Her father, who watches over her jealously, has hindered her several times from joining the young man. When he has to leave the van, he locks her inside and places a man of his gang at the door to prevent her from running away. But the fop, who does not heed any obstacle, comes to the van with stealthy footsteps, and through the window throws a bundle of men's clothes, and a letter timing an appointment, into the van. The watchman has seen everything, and he warns her father. The latter, not being able to bear it any longer, pays a tramp to kill the fop when he comes to the appointed hostelry. The tramp throws the inn-keeper into the cellar through a trap door in the floor, and waits. An elegantly-dressed young man pushes the entrance door, the tramp kills him, and wrapping up the body in a blanket, he carries it to the beach, where the father is waiting for him. The father, on uncovering the face, sees that it is his daughter who lies dead at his feet, for the murderer has been deceived by her male attire.

A LOVER IN THE STRAW.—A charming idyll is suddenly interrupted by the arrival of a farmer in his cart. Quickly the little peasant girl buries her lover in the straw, and binds him up with ropes carefully. The farmer, his suspicions aroused, carries the bundle of straw to his cart, but the jolts and jerks of the latter soon land the poor lover in the middle of the road, where he is picked up by tramps, and left by them under the wheels of a motor-car. After this experience, the bundle is thrown from the top of a cliff, on the beach, by some fisherwomen, and the poor man inside struggles desperately for freedom; but a child thinks it would be nice to see the straw ablaze, and soon long flames issue from the ill-fated bundle. After several attempts the lover succeeds in leaving the burning heap, and throws himself into the water, where he at last rids himself of the flames which made him look like a living torch.

Gaumont Company.

BACK FROM THE DEAD is an interesting dramatic film just published by the Gaumont Company. A sailor goes to sea and is reported to be drowned, and his wife marries again. Returning as from the grave to find her happy without him, the sailor heroically resolves not to spoil her life, and so goes away for ever.

THEY THOUGHT HE HAD THE CHOLERA is the title of an amusing film which describes how the borough officials of a certain place, in their attempts to stamp out an epidemic, take charge of a tramp, who is really in perfect health, but whom they isolate. However, "Weary Willie" is quite agreeable to being hospitably entertained at the public expense.

AMONG other attractive films may be mentioned a cinematographic version of Mr. Arthur Shirley's drama, Saved from the Sea; and three amusing productions, which bear the names, THE ANIMATED NEWSPAPER, THE APPLE'S RACE, and BROTHERS WOOD.

THE LOVER'S TELEGRAPHIC CODE.—"Love laughs at locksmiths." Were it not so, the great business of love might receive a set-back at times. The truth of the saying is shown in this film production, where two lovers overcome all obstacles, and win all along the line. An accident happening to the carriage in which Madge is out riding, she accepts an offer of assistance from Ralph—a cyclist—who happens to come along. The upshot of this is that he receives an invitation to call at her house, and he does so at an early date. But Madge's father objects, and forbids him to call again. The girl is, however, equal to the occasion, and arranges for signals to be made by means of the clothes line. Wireless telegraphy is beaten out of sight by the code arranged! Father's pants shown mean "Danger! Keep away!" A blouse, "Am alone; coast clear!" &c. The code is kept working at top pressure; but most unexpected and amusing complications are brought about by the unauthorised use of the clothes line. The signals get all mixed up when the servant girl, the parents, and a "Weary Willie" help in the game. A staunch ally—in the shape of the girl's little brother—turns up and enables the lovers to outwit the stern father, and to marry. The father now sees the joke, and signals his forgiveness, the young couple returning to receive his blessing.

SHE.—A young Englishman, Leo by name, receives as a legacy a mysterious metal box, which is not to be opened until his twenty-fifth birthday. The box is opened in the presence of his guardian and his servant, and they find an Egyptian tablet, 2,000 years old. The guardian, a linguist, interprets it, and explains that an Egyptian princess and her husband, travelling in Africa some 2,000 years before, met a mysterious woman, a Queen called "She," who has power over life and death. "She" falls in love with the Prince, and, in a fit of jealousy, kills him, banishing the Princess from the country, having the Prince's body entombed to await his reincarnation. The Princess leaves an account of her adventure on a tablet, bequeathing it to her descendants, that some day one may find "She," wrest the secret from her, and avenge the ancient wrong. Leo decides to seek "She," and accompanied by the others they reach Africa, where they are met by men from "She," who has—in a vision—seen their arrival. In the period during which they await the chief's return Leo is kissed by Ustane, a beautiful maiden, and she becomes his wife. The Englishmen are now set upon by the natives, but the timely arrival of the chief prevents further trouble. He conducts them to "She," who finds Leo is the reincarnation of the Prince. Being overcome by her wondrous beauty, "She" prevails on Leo to bathe in the "Pillar of Life"—a mysterious fire—but he hesitates; so to encourage him, "She" enters the flame, becomes young and radiant, but gradually grows old before his eyes, until her form is entirely consumed.

A NON-INFLAMMABLE KINEMATOGRAPH FILM.

The philosopher's stone has not been more eagerly sought after than the scientific search which has been made for a non-inflammable film. English, French, and German scientists have been devoting their powers of research to its discovery. Claims have been made that a non-inflammable film has been found. The last claimants are the "Lumiere N.A. Co.," and to prove their claim are giving a demonstration at the Holborn Restaurant on Tuesday, Dec. 8, at 11.30 a.m. If it is proved that the film can be satisfactorily used for moving pictures a fortune awaits the firm, and an impetus to the kinematograph industry will be given such as it has not had in its whole history. There is no doubt that the restrictions placed on the present film in use, by reason of its liability to catch fire, has necessitated rules and regulations which, however necessary, have in a certain measure restricted the industry. If Messrs. Lumiere's film is what is claimed for it, there will be no need of fireproof cabinets and specially-built compartments in theatres and halls; in fact, no more restrictions will be placed upon the kinematograph than are placed upon the simple magic-lantern. Of the chemical components of this film we have nothing to do. No doubt they are safely lodged at the Patent Office. We are only concerned in giving publicity to its practicability for commercial purposes of the non-inflammable film when it arrives. Nous verrons.

CINEMATOGRAPH FIRE EXTINGUISHER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA

SIR,—As a result of the demonstration of the Barrasford cinematograph extinguisher at the Hippodrome, I am authorised by Mr. Oswald Stoll and Mr. Frank Allen to announce that they have given me the use of their Hippodrome ring for a competitive test of all cinematograph fire-extinguishing devices which are at present in existence.

In lending their theatre for this vitally interesting demonstration the proprietors are performing a great public service, because the cinematograph has now become a national institution in all civilised countries. And if by this competition we are enabled to discover a sure method of eliminating the fire danger from cinematograph entertainments, then, indeed, the whole world will have cause for congratulation.

The condition of the test is that the fire shall occur while the machine is running exactly as at a performance, and that the fire shall be immediately extinguished automatically.

Every man who has a fire-extinguishing device is cordially invited to bring his apparatus, and have it set up in position for demonstration in the Hippodrome ring by 11 o'clock sharp, on Thursday, December 10. And let the best win.—Yours truly,

WALTER REYNOLDS (L.C.C.).

Carmarthen.

THE Phœnix Theatre, under the proprietorship of Mr. Harry Cowell, opened at the Carmarthen Corporation Fair Ground on Saturday evening, The Gipsy Queen being presented to a crowded house. On Monday evening, The Gipsy Queen occupied the boards; Tuesday, The Blind Girl of Paris; Wednesday, The Factory Girl; Thursday, Remanded; Friday, Maria Martin; while The Murder at the Old Toll Gate was billed for Saturday night. The company consists of Mr. Harry Cowell, Mr. Harry Maitland, Mr. Colin Foster, Mr. Herbert Duneville, Mr. Fred Ruse, Mr. Oscar Llewellyn, Miss Mary Malvern, Miss Lily Llewellyn, Miss Lucy Donovan, Miss Florrie Daneville, and Miss Quennie Anderson. The respective plays were well presented and staged in this portable theatre. Mr. Cowell stated on Monday evening that if the townspeople rallied round him well, he would be pleased to give a performance for any deserving charity in the town.

Serious Illness of Mrs. Harry Kemp.

WE regret to hear that Mrs. Kemp, wife of Mr. Harry Kemp, of "Dreamland Cinematograph" fame, is lying seriously ill at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Green, roundabout proprietors, 9, East View, Preston.

THE Fun City and Exhibition at the Drill Hall, Lower Bristol-street, Bath, is to be opened from Christmas Eve to Jan. 16, with a host of attractions, including mysteries and illusions from Earl's Court, beauty competitions, lightning sketch artists, thought-readers, gymnasts, swimmers, and others. There is also to be a hall of laughter.

Stories of Showman Life.

MR. HORNE'S book of stories—tragic and humorous—dealing with show life, will consist of original short stories. To show the extent of ground covered by the author, and the wide range of his subject matter, it is enough to briefly indicate that they are vivid word-pictures of life in the circus, the menagerie, the marionette theatre, the ghost illusion show, the mumming booth, the waxwork exhibition, the peep-show, the cinematograph theatre, conjuring shows, freak shows, gondola switchback machines, throwing games, and variety stalls.

LOVERS' TELEGRAPHIC CODE.

Love laughs at obdurate fathers as well as locksmiths. Pa's pants, mother's blouse, and other garments hung out on the clothes line make up an effective code between a pair of lovers, until the servant girl mixed up the signals, and then things happened that make up a funny film.

No. 6393. Code, "Vendifumo." Length, 950ft.

"SHE."

A tale of ancient Africa, with the same title as, and suggestive of, Rider Haggard's "She." The story is weirdly and most impressively worked out in this film, the closing scene showing "She" bathing in the "Pillar of Fire."

No. 6394. Code, "Vendilhao." Length, 1070ft.

ABRIDGEMENTS OF SPECIFICATIONS.

15,101.—Games. Williams, P. W., of London.

Relates to a board for playing a table game representing football, in which two or more players are furnished with counters representing men; these are moved according to the number scored by dice, a tee-to-tum, or like means. Certain numbers are marked "foul" and "off-side," and penalties are attached to these numbers. Other numbers are marked "goal," "penalty," and similar incidents of play, and points are awarded to counters resting on these numbers. The game lasts until each side has reached the number 41, and the side then having most points is declared winner. An additional counter may be used when a "free kick" is awarded.

14,865.—Targets. Wanner, P. H., of Davos, Switzerland.

Two targets (1) are moved simultaneously in opposite directions to and from the firing point by an endless cord (3) which passes round guide-pulleys (5, 6, 7), under a tensioning-pulley (8), carrying a weight (15), and round a driving pulley (4), operated by a crank-handle and toothed gearing (17, 18). The targets are suspended from wire frames (2), which are secured to the endless cord and guided by wires (21), stretched between the target and the firing-point. Metal louvre plates (20) deflect the bullets downwards against a vertical stop-plate (19).

15,223. Games. Marshall, J. F., of Croydon, Surrey.

A game is played on a board which has marked upon it a plan of a city, &c., and pieces are moved from one place on the map to others, the moves being determined by dice. In the form shown a map of London is marked with a number of stations, and these are joined by distinctively-marked or coloured routes b, c, g, h, representing "tube" and underground railway routes and omnibus and walking routes respectively. The players move their pieces from a station (a) to a station at the other end of the map by throwing three dice, one of which (m) is marked to indicate the route to be taken at each move, the other dice indicating the extent of the move. Instead of dice, a tee-to-tum may be used, or cards or counters may be drawn from a box. The game may be played on a lawn.

An octagonal board, suitable for four players, is divided by heavy lines (2) into four sections. The home territory (3) of each player is bounded by double lines (4) drawn from the corners to the centre of the figure. The spaces (5) outside the home territories (3) may consist of two or three rows of "squares." The "men," of which there are twelve, are placed as shown, and are moved away from the heavy lines (2), and are "crowned" when they pass the line bounding the adjacent players' territory.

15,316.—Scenic exhibitions. Rutlidge, C., of London.

In scenic exhibitions of the kinematograph type, two chambers are connected by a passage, so that spectators can pass from one chamber to the other to receive illusions, or witness scenes of a different kind. A floor (g) supporting the spectators rests on springs (i) on a lower floor (h), and can be rocked by a lever (p) or by other means. One chamber can be raised and lowered to imitate a lift by a wind-ing-drum (w) fitted with a band-brake (x), for producing vibrations, and a counter-weight (o), which is more than sufficient to balance the empty chamber. Buffers are provided in the basement (n), and hanging blocks may strike against the lift framework. The outer casing of the chamber is partly of match-boarding and partly of cloth, on which the pictures are thrown. A motor-omnibus, &c., for spectators may rest on the upper floor of one chamber, or be suspended from the framework.

To Stage Machinists and Electricians. — The Manager will be pleased to receive particulars of any new stage appliances or ideas for same for illustration in this column.

Can You Invent?—Do you wish to know of prizes offered to inventors valued at £10,000, £5,300, £5,000, £4,000, £1,000, £400, £300, £200, £100, and £50? SHAKESPEARE IN FRANCE.

"In France," says Mr. Sidney Lee in "A Life of William Shakespeare," "Shakespeare won recognition after a longer struggle than in Germany. Cyrano de Bergerac (1619-1655), in his tragedy of Agrippine, seemed to echo passages in Cymbeline, Hamlet, and The Merchant of Venice, but the resemblances prove to be accidental. It was Nicolas Clément, Louis XIV.'s librarian, who, first of Frenchmen, put on record an appreciation of Shakespeare. When, about 1680, he entered in the catalogue of the royal library the title of the Second Folio of 1632, he added a note in which he allowed Shakespeare imagination, natural thoughts, and ingenious expression, but deplored his obscenity. Half a century elapsed before public attention in France was again directed to Shakespeare. The Abbé Prévost, in his periodical 'Le Pour et Contre' (1733 et seq.), acknowledged his power. The Abbé Leblanc, in his 'Lettres d'un François' (1745), while crediting him with many grotesque extravagances, recognised ungrudgingly the sublimity of his style. But it is to Voltaire that his countrymen owe, as he himself boasted, their first effective introduction to Shakespeare. Voltaire studied Shakespeare thoroughly on his visit to England between 1726 and 1729, and his influence is visible in his own dramas. In his 'Lettres Philosophiques' (1731), afterwards reissued as 'Lettres su les Anglais,' 734 (Nos. xviii. and xix.), and in his 'Lettre sur la Tragédie' (1731), he expressed admiration for Shakespeare's genius, but attacked his want of taste and art. He described him as 'le Corneille de Londres, grand fou d'ailleurs, mais il a des morceaux admirables.' Writing to the Abbé des Fontaines in November, 1735, Voltaire admitted many merits in Jlius Cæsar, on which he published 'Observations' in 1764. Johnson replied to Voltaire's general criticism in the preface to his edition (1765), and Mrs. Elizabeth Montague in 1769 in a separate volume, which was translated into French in 1777. Diderot made, in his 'Encyclopédie,' the first stand in France against the Voltairean position, and increased opportunities of studying Shakespeare's works increased the poet's vogue. Twelve plays were translated in De la Place's 'Théâtre Anglais' (1745-8). Jean-François Ducis (1733-1816) adapted without much insight six plays for the French stage, beginning in 1769 with Hamlet, his version of which was acted with applause. In 1776 Pierre Le Tourneur began a bad prose translation (completed in 1722) of all Shakespeare's plays, and declared him to be 'the god of the theatre.' Voltaire protested against this estimate in a new remonstrance consisting of two letters, of which the first was read before the French Academy on Aug. 25, 1776. Here Shakespeare was described as a barbarian, whose works—'a huge dunghill'—concealed some pearls.

"Although Voltaire's censure was rejected by the majority of later French critics, it expressed a sentiment born of the genius of the nation, and made an impression that was only gradually effaced. Marmontel, La Harpe, Marie-Joseph Chénier, and Chateaubriand in his 'Essai sur Shakespeare,' 1801, inclined to Voltaire's view; but Mme. de Staël wrote effectively on the other side in her 'De la Littérature,' 1804 (i. caps. 13, 14, ii. 5). 'At this day,' wrote Wordsworth in 1815, 'the French critics have abated nothing of their aversion to "this darling of our nation." "The English with their bouffon de Shakespeare" is as familiar an expression among them as in the time of Voltaire. Baron Grimm is the only French writer who seems to have perceived his infinite superiority to the first names of the French theatre; an advantage which the Parisian critic owed to his German blood and German education.' The revision of Le Tourneur's translation by François Guizot and A. Pichot in 1821 gave Shakespeare a fresh advantage. Paul Duport, in 'Essais Littéraires sur Shakespeare' (Paris, 1828, 2 vols.), was the last French critic of repute to repeat Voltaire's censure unreservedly. Guizot, in his discourse 'Sur la Viet et les Œuvres de Shakespeare' (reprinted separately from the translation of 1821), as well as in his 'Shakespeare et son Temps' (1852); Villemain in a general essay, and Barante in a study of Hamlet, acknowledge the mightiness of Shakespeare's genius with comparatively few qualifications. Other complete translations followed—by Francisque Michel (1839), by Benjamin Laroche (1851), and by Emil Montégut (1867), but the best is that in prose by François Victor Hugo (1859-66), whose father, Victor Hugo the poet, published a rhapsodical eulogy in 1864. Alfred Mézières's 'Shakespeare, ses Œuvres et ses Critiques' (Paris, 1860), is a saner appreciation.

"Meanwhile Hamlet and Macbeth, Othello, and a few other Shakespearean plays, became stock pieces on the French stage. A powerful impetus to theatrical representation of Shakespeare in France was given by the performance in Paris of the chief plays by a strong company of English actors in the autumn of 1827. Hamlet and Othello were acted successively by Charles Kemble and Macready; Edmund Kean appeared as Richard III,. Othello, and Shylock; Miss Smithson, who became the wife of Hector Berlioz, the musician, filled the rôles of Ophelia, Juliet, Desdemona, Cordelia, and Portia. French critics were divided as to the merits of the performers, but most of them were enthusiastic in their commendations of the plays. Alfred de Vigny prepared a version of Othello for the Théâtre Français in 1829 with eminent success. An adaptation of Hamlet by Alexandre Dumas was first performed in 1847, and a rendering by the Chevalier de Châtelain performed in 1847, and a rendering by the Chevalier de Châtelain (1864) was often repeated. George Sand translated As You Like It (Paris, 1856) for representation by the Comédie Française on April 12, 1855. Lady Macbeth has been represented in recent years by Mme. Sarah Bernhardt, and Hamlet by M. Mounet Sully of the Théâtre Français. Four French musicians—Berlioz in his symphony of 'Romeo and Juliet,' Gounod in his opera of Romeo and Juliet, Ambroise Thomas in his opera of Hamlet, and Saint-Saëns in his opera of Henry VIII.—have sought with public approval to interpret musically portions of Shakespeare's work."

A Copy of "The Era" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps. The Era is posted on Saturday in time to reach London subscribers by the first Town Delivery, and Country Subscribers should receive their Papers by the first London Post. Address, the Publisher, 5, Tavistock-street, W.C.

A LONDON LANDMARK.

Wherever our tongue is spoken, the Middlesex is known, and pleasant must be the memories of happy nights spent there by all sorts and conditions of men—and women. As a public place of entertainment the Middlesex Music Hall dates back to the time of Charles II., about 1660, and was then known as the "Mogul's Head," afterwards for many years styled the "Great Mogul." It claims to be the oldest house of entertainment in the world. For nearly two centuries and a half, on the site of the present music-hall there has been held an uninterrupted series of nightly entertainments, giving every stage in the modern music-hall, from the spontaneous "free and easies" of the long ago. It can, at the very beginning of its career, be styled a "ladies music-hall," for to the singing entertainments and revels at the famous tavern flocked many actresses and others who were then the "toasts of the town."

Here, as an orange girl, before she became famous, came "Nell Gwynne, Sweet Nell of Old Drury," and later, when chief Court favourite, she occupied a magnificent mansion almost opposite, and, sometimes in the company of Charles II., again graced the entertainment that had known her humble origin. These early concerts were very unlike the modern music-hall entertainment. Then there was no London County Council to supervise the programme and the exits and entrances, but it is not recorded that the patrons enjoyed their songs less on that account. So for two centuries the "Great Mogul" nightly provided music and dancing for all comers, and there was hardly a person of any distinction who failed at one time or another to join in a chorus under its ringing rafters. Seventy years ago these concerts were still being held, as at all other like places at that time, in a large room above the tavern. Unlike the notorious "Coal Hole" and "Cider Cellars," these rooms were then frequented by a respectable class of tradesmen and mechanics, who would, when smoking long churchwarden pipes, listen to ballads, glees, and comic songs. What a contrast between the character of the entertainments given then and now? And what a contrast between the audiences which then and now assemble. Then, the "Mogul's Head" was situated in a fair and salubrious district, nestling in umbrageous scenery. There is little need to here describe the situation the famous resort now occupies. No pen-picture can adequately paint the contrast between then and now.

Men distinguished in various walks of life have visited the Middlesex in the past, as they do now. It is interesting to mention that gallant Fred Burnaby, who lost his life at El-Teb, spent his last night in England at the hall. Mr. Graydon no doubt vividly recalls the occasion, Colonel Burnaby being accompanied by Colonel Wellesley and Mr. John Hollingshead.

The hall was built in the early fifties by the late Mr. Winder. At that time there was no stage, merely a raised platform with mirrors at the back, and a small band occupied the platform. Scenery, footlights, and other matters of adornment were not introduced at music-halls for many years after, the Middlesex being the earliest to make these innovations, about thirty years ago. A souvenir of play-bills has been issued, the names of many artists who have been great favourites with the public since 1850 appearing on them.

Nearly every artist who has attained to any degree of eminence in the profession since that date to the present time has bowed to Middlesex audiences, and numbers have made their début before them. More reputations in the music-hall world have been made here than anywhere else, and for this the pit and gallery boys of the ever-famous "Lane" take credit. Like their forefathers, they are a critical, if somewhat boisterous throng, and they know what is good. One of the later and best-remembered favourites to those living at the present time was George Leybourne, who created a furore about the year 1865. He sang character songs at the Middlesex, in one of which he introduced a mechanical donkey. Leybourne was afterwards known as the "Lion Comique," and continued his career at the hall for some years, audiences never tiring of his drolleries. George Leybourne's first and last appearances were at the Middlesex. Later, followed other stars of their days, many alas! gone; but many with us now. Lion-hearted Herbert Campbell (England's own comedian, as the play-bills announced); Jenny Hill, the rage of her day, brought light and joy to many an one, as did the late Wm. Riley (afterwards proprietor of the Cambridge Music Hall), G. H. Macdermott, the Two Macs, Charles Godfrey, and James Fawn, all these between 1870 and 1880. Bessie Bellwood commenced her career here also, and her last and vividly recalled appearance was at the self-same hall. And poor Dan Leno, how we miss him! His first London appearance was at the Middlesex in October, 1885. Charles Hawtrey took Dan straight from the "Mo" to take part in the production of "Iolanthe" at the old Strand.

Sketches were first introduced at the Middlesex between 1872 and 1874 by Alf. George and Nellie Griffiths, Keegan and Elvin, Fothergill and Summerson, and De Voy, Leclerq and Marriott. John Lawson made his bow at the Middlesex, and at the same time a great hit with Humanity; Mark Melford also made an early appearance, as did Joe Elvin in company with his father.

In July 1876 Arthur Roberts commenced his successful career at the house, appearing for eleven weeks, after which he was engaged by the management of the Oxford, where he filled a very lengthy engagement. Charles Coborn, the Brothers Poluski, Millie Lindon, Harriet Vernon, Chirgwin (after parting company with his brother), Vesta Tilley, Alice Lloyd, Baby Freear (now known as Louie Freear), Harry Tate, Harry Rickards, Marie Loftus, the Sisters Jonghmanns, Ada Reeve, Little Tich, Harry Randall, Walter Munroe, Tom Wootwell, Will Evans, Bros. Luck, Wilkie Bard, Alex. Dagmar, Selbini Troupe, R. G. Knowles, Fred Storey, Neil Kenyon, T. E. Dunville, Phil Ray, Sam Mayo, Datas, Tom Leamore, Arthur Prince, and Arthur Lennard, all appeared here at the earlier part of their public success in London. And it must never be overlooked that the incomparable Marie Lloyd did also. That this dainty comedienne has never forgotten this fact may be realised when it is stated she sent a letter couched in warm terms of regard to Mr. J. L. Graydon, regretting sincerely she could not be present at the recent anniversary "at the dear old 'Mo,'" as Marie coyly put it, owing to an out-of-town engagement. Mr. George Mozart also forwarded a similar letter, wishing the proprietor every success, and regretting inability to be present. But Kate Carney was there, and she amply atoned for any disappointment.

In the earlier period in the history of the music halls, a chairman was a leading feature, and one of the most famous of this cheery band was Harry Fox. Seated in his chair of office, with an upraised hammer, it was his duty to announce each "turn," and his privilege to enjoy refreshment at the expense of those who sought the honour of his company. Now there does not remain an actual chairman at a London hall.

For three weeks only during the whole of Mr. Graydon's proprietorship has the house been closed—once for two weeks and the other one; compulsorily, owing to structural alterations being made.

Mr. J. L. Graydon has been proprietor of the Middlesex for upwards of thirty-two years, and prior to that was manager four years. Before becoming associated with the hall, Mr. Graydon had gained considerable experience in a secretarial capacity at another very well-known house. With a keen eye to possibilities in the East End of London, Mr. Graydon purchased the old Foresters' Hall, Cambridge-road, eventually disposing of it to Mr. William Lusby, after building up a fine business. He then became managing-director and chairman of the Brighton Alhambra, occupying those positions for twelve or thirteen years, and only retired about two years since. At the present time Mr. Graydon is chairman of the Empire, Limited (Middlesbrough). He is also a director of the Palace Theatre of Varieties, Shaftesbury-avenue. Although an extremely busy and active gentleman, he has never sought public honours; on the contrary, he has refused them. He was, however, one of the first to be elected to the Holborn Borough Council, on which he sat for many years, resigning to the extreme regret of the electorate. Mr. Graydon was a member of the Holborn Board of Guardians also for a considerable period. An old Freemason, his lodge, the Belgrave, was formerly held at Anderton's Hotel. He was twice president and always treasurer of the now defunct Music-hall Benevolent Fund, and has been for many years hon. sec. of the Entertainments Protection Association. Mr. J. L. Graydon has a host of friends in the profession. Artists appreciate many an act of kindness he has performed, therefore it is a pleasure to place on record some interesting particulars of his career and reminiscences concerning this famous London landmark.

LADY MORGAN AND THE STAGE.

"In an article which appeared in 'The Book of the Boudoir' (published in 1829), Lady Morgan, the Irish authoress," says George Paston in a biography, "describes a party at Lady Cork's, where she was lionised by her hostess, the other guests having been invited to meet the Wild Irish Girl. The celebrities present were brought up and introduced to Miss Owenson with a running comment from Lady Cork, which, though it must be taken with a grain of salt, is worth transcribing:—'Lord Erskine, this is the Wild Irish Girl you were so anxious to meet. I assure you she talks quite as well as she writes. Now, my dear, do tell Lord Erskine some of those Irish stories you told us at Lord Charleville's. Mrs. Abington says you would make a famous actress, she does indeed. This is the Duchess of St. Albans—she has your "Wild Irish Girl" by heart. Where is Sheridan? Oh, here he is; what, you know each other already? Tant mieux. Mr. Lewis, do come forward; this is Monk Lewis, of whom you have heard so much—but you must not read his works, they are very naughty. . . . You know Mr. Gell; he calls you the Irish Corinne. Your friend, Mr. Moore, will be here by and by. Do see, somebody, if Mrs. Siddons and Mr. Kemble are come yet. Now, pray tell us the scene at the Irish baronet's in the Rebellion that you told to the ladies of Llangollen; and then give us your blue-stocking dinner at Sir Richard Phillips's; and describe the Irish priests.'

"At supper Lady Morgan was placed between Lord Erskine and Lord Carysfort, and was just beginning to feel at her ease when Mr. Kemble was announced. Mr. Kemble, it soon became apparent, had been dining, and had paid too much attention to the claret. Sitting down opposite Miss Owenson, he fixed her with an intense and glassy stare. Unfortunately, her hair, which she wore in the fashionable curly 'crop,' aroused his curiosity. Stretching unsteadily across the table, he suddenly, to quote her own words, 'struck his claws into my locks, and, addressing me in his deepest tones, asked, "Little girl, where did you buy your wig?"' Lord Erskine hastily came to the rescue, but Kemble, rendered peevish by his intereference, took a volume of 'The Wild Irish Girl' out of his pocket, and after reading aloud one of the most high-flown passages, asked, 'Little girl, why did you write such nonsense, and where did you get all those hard words?' Sydney delighted the company by blurting out the truth: 'Sir, I wrote as well as I could, and I got the hard words out of Johnson's Dictionary.' That Kemble spoke the truth in his cups may be proved by the following sentence, which is a fair sample of the general style of the book: 'With a character tinctured with the brightest colouring of romantic eccentricity [a father is describing his son, the hero], but marked by indelible traces of innate rectitude, and ennobled by the purest principles of native generosity, the proudest sense of inviolable honour, I beheld him rush eagerly on life, enamoured of its seeming good, incredulous of its latent evils, till, fatally entangled in the spells of the latter, he fell an early victim to their successful allurements.'

"'The Wild Irish Girl' was followed by 'Patriotic Sketches' and a volume of poems, for which Sir Richard Phillips offered £100 before he read them. A little later, in 1807, an operetta called The First Attempt; or, the Whim of the Moment, the libretto by Miss Owenson and the music by T. Cooke, was performed at the Dublin Theatre. The Duke of Bedford, then Lord-Lieutenant, attended in state, the Duchess wore a Glorvina bodkin, and the entertainment was also patronised by the officers of the garrison and all the liberal members of the Irish Bar The little piece, in which Mr. Owenson acted an Irish character, was played for several nights, and brought its author the handsome sum of £400. This, however, seems to have been Lady Morgan's first and last attempt at dramatic composition."

Mrs. Hartley's lovely face, and lithe, tall, delicate figure, rapidly won for her the leading place at Covent Garden in such parts of tender tragedy as Jane Shore, and the puling heroines of Murphy's Alzuma and Mason's Elfrida. She was no actress, but her beauty for a time stood her in stead of genius. She had that golden auburn hair which the early Italian painters loved, and those blonde colours which have always, I think, exercised most power of witchery on men. She sat to Sir Joshua very soon after her first success. When he paid her a compliment on her beauty, she turned it laughingly off: "Nay, my face may be well enough for shape, but sure 'tis as freckled as a toad's belly."

Kubelik, who is reappearing in London, after a ten months' tour in Southern and Eastern latitudes, where he has given a record number of 200 concerts, was originally the son of a gardener, and the first pupil of the now famous Sevcik. Though only twenty-six years of age, he has already netted a fortune running well into six figures. During his late tour New York signalised her welcome by cramming the Hippodrome to hear the great violinist play. The Hippodrome seats six thousand persons, and it was estimated that as many more were turned away for want of room. The takings represented 5,800 dollars. In Chicago, St. Louis, Melbourne, and other cities he was fêted and received by mayors and other dignitaries. In Coolgardie, the ten-year old mining town, 4,800 persons were drawn to two performances, representing not only the full capacity of the theatre, but considerably more than half the entire population. In Honolulu the natives turned out in full force, and not satisfied with filling the concert hall afterwards presented the master with their amulets and native ornaments, some of them heirlooms. Prague, where Kubelik was born, seems a place where musical geniuses come from. Edward Goll, the distinguished Continental pianist, who has just taken residence in England for appearances during the coming season, is a native of the same place. The Bohemians are instinct with music. Even the peasants possess the gift in varying, and often abnormal, degrees, and only require the training to astonish the rest of the world.

GARRICK'S RICHARD III.

Mr. Horace Howard Furness in his appendix to his splendid edition of Richard III., just published by the J. B. Lippincott Company gives some interesting old criticisms of Garrick's performance of the leading part:—

F. GENTLEMAN (i, 11): The public have set up Mr. Garrick as a standard of perfection in this laborious, difficult part; and if we consider the essentials, his claim to such distinction will immediately appear indisputable; a very deformed person never rises above, and seldom up to the middle stature; it is generally attended with an acuteness of features and sprightliness of eyes; in these three natural points our Roscius stands unexceptionable; variations of voice, and climax of expression, in both which he stands without an equal; graceful attitudes, nervous action, with well-regulated spirit, to animate within natural bounds every passage, even from the coldest up to the most inflamed. Mr. Garrick also preserves a happy medium, and dwindles neither into the buffoon or brute; one or both of which this character is made by most other performers: 'tis true, there are many passages which have a ludicrous turn, yet we may rest assured that he who occasions least laughter is most right; in respect of marking particular places with peculiar emphasis, some exceptions may be taken, or doubts raised against every person I have ever seen in the part; however, tracing minute lapses of this kind, which, after all may be mere matter of opinion, would occasion too great a digression; I shall therefore only mention three which strike me most; the first is—I am myself alone—which words I have heard expressed in a tone of confident exultation, as if he was singularly above the rest of mankind; whereas adverting to his own unhappy composition, it should be uttered with heartfelt discontent; and indeed the three preceding lines, which exclude him from all social intercourse, should be expressive of concern.—The second passage is, where Buckingham solicits Richard for his promise, and Richard meditates in these lines, "I do remember me, that Henry the Sixth Did prophesy, that Richmond should be king, When Richmond was a little peevish boy. 'Tis odd—a king—perhaps—" The last line is often spoke without a tone of continuation to the word, perhaps, which is most evidently intended: the third place is in these lines, "Hence, babbling dreams, ye threaten here in vain; Conscience, avaunt—Richard's himself again." It is usual to speak this couplet in one continued climax of passion; whereas the two words marked in Italics should be uttered in a lower tone, expressive of mental agony—Conscience being the constant disturber of his peace, and a great bar to his resolution; the latter part of the line rises to a kind of triumphant exultation, which not only varies, but gives force to the expression.

A. MURPHY ("Life of Garrick," p. 16): The moment Garrick entered the scene, the character he assumed was visible in his countenance; the power of his imagination was such that he transformed himself into the very man; the passions rose in rapid succession, and, before he uttered a word, were legible in every feature of that various face. His look, his voice, his attitude, changed with every sentiment.... The rage and rapidity with which he spoke: "The North!—what do they in the North, When they should serve their Sovereign in the West?" made a most astonishing impression on the audience. His soliloquy in the tent-scene discovered the inward man. Everything he described was almost reality.... When he started from his dream, he was a spectacle of horror. He called out in a manly tone: "Give me another horse!" He paused, and, with a countenance of dismay, advanced, crying out in a tone of distress: "Bind up my wounds"; and then, falling on his knees, said in the most piteous accent: "Have mercy Heaven." In all this the audience saw an exact imitation of nature. His friend Hogarth has left a most excellent picture of Garrick in this scene. He was then on the eve of a battle, and, in spite of all the terrors of conscience, his courage mounted to a blaze. When in Bosworth field he roared out, "A horse! a horse! my kingdom for a horse!" All was rage, fury, and almost reality.... It is no wonder that an actor thus accomplished made, on the very first night, a deep impression on the audience.... The Great Mr. Pope was drawn from his retreat at Twickenham, and, we are assured, Lord Orrery was so struck with the performance that he said: "I am afraid the young man will be spoiled, for he will have no competitor."

DR. DORAN (i. 462): On the 19th October, while Drury was giving As You Like It, and Covent Garden was acting the same piece, the little theatre in Aylife-street, Goodman's Fields, announced the Life and Death of King Richard III., "the part of King Richard by a gentleman, who never appeared on any stage."

At last! the hour and the man had come. Throughout this season no new piece was produced at either of the patent theatres—so influenced were they by the consequences of this first appearance of a nameless actor at Goodman's Fields. Of course, the new actor was David Garrick. He had selected the part of Richard III., for reasons which now appear singular. "He had often declared," says Davies, "he would never choose a character that was not suitable to his person; for, said he, if I should come forth in a hero, or in any part which is generally acted by a tall fellow, I shall not be offered a larger salary than 40s. a week. In this," adds the biographer, "he glanced at the follies of those managers who used to measure an actor's merit by his size."

On that 19th of October, 1741, there was no very great nor excitedly expectant audience at Goodman's Fields. The bill of the day first promises a concert of vocal and instrumental music, to begin exactly at six o'clock: admission by tickets "at three, 2s. and 1s." Between the two parts of the concert, it is further announced, that the historical play of the Life and Death of Richard III., with the ballad-opera of The Virgin Unmasked, would be performed gratis by Persons for their Diversion." The part of King Richard, "by a gentleman who never appeared on any stage," is an announcement not true to the letter; but the select audience were not troubled therewith. From the moment the new actor appeared they were enthralled. They saw a Richard and not an actor of that personage. Of the audience, he seemed unconscious, so thoroughly did he identify himself with the character. He surrendered himself to all its requirements, was ready for every phase of passion, every change of humour, and was as wonderful in quiet sarcasm as he was terrific in the hurricane of the battle-scenes. Above all, his audience were delighted with his "nature." Since Betterton's death, actors had fallen into a rhythmical, mechanical, sing-song cadence. The style still lingers among conservative French tragedians. Garrick spoke not as an orator, but as King Richard himself might have spoken, in like circumstances. The chuckling exultation of his "So much for Buckingham!" was long a tradition on the stage.

WANTED, Wanted, Known, Sir,—
I inserted an advertisement, asking for Music Hall Artists in the last week's issue of "The Era." May I say that I am absolutely astounded at the number of replies I received to my small advertisement, no less than 270 Artists favouring me with applications. May I by this means thank the many artists who sent in their terms, as it is impossible for me to reply to each individual. I thank all for their very kind promptitude in responding to my advertisement.
I remain, yours faithfully,
ALFRED BALL.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER.

BY
ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).

Mr. A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes," which is at present required.—St. James's Gazette.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS.

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office. Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns. Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow :—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. B. GETHING, Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON, Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT MITCHELL, Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON, Empire Palace, Leeds.

LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT BULMER, The Empire, Liverpool.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. J. CHRISTIE, Empire Theatre, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

Artists are requested to note that the Alexandra Theatre, Stoke Newington, comes within the area absolutely barred by us. Artists and Agents are requested to note that the Standard Theatre, Shoreditch, and the Terriss Theatre, Rotherhithe, also come within the area absolutely barred by us.

INSTRUCTIONS TO ARTISTS.

Artists must have at least Fourteen Band Parts for English Orchestrations, and Seventeen Band Parts for Foreign Orchestrations. Matter of Bill, Blocks, and Specimens of Pictorials FOR ALL THE ABOVE THEATRES must be sent to Co-operative Offices, at above address, THREE WEEKS before Opening, failing which Artists will run the risk of having their Engagements cancelled.

IMPORTANT.—Artists must forward Copies of Songs to the STAGE DEPARTMENT, ABOVE ADDRESS, TWO WEEKS previous to opening, with Assignments for same, which will be returned. Artists are requested to note carefully that the clause in their contracts relating to rehearsals will in future be strictly enforced. Artists' Scenery, Properties, &c., MUST be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Licensing Authorities.

ARTISTS WILL CLEARLY UNDERSTAND THAT THEIR BUSINESS MUST BE FREE FROM ALL VULGARITY.

No order or contract for goods or services must be accepted for any of the foregoing theatres except upon receipt of an Official Form, issued from the Co-operative Offices, London, and signed by either Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Frank Allen, or the Chief Accountant, otherwise the Company concerned will not be responsible for same, and will refuse payment. In special cases, where goods are required at once, suppliers must look to the individual placing the order, who will be personally liable, unless an official confirmatory order, signed as above, is received within forty-eight hours. Invoices must be sent to the Theatre, but monthly statements should be sent to the Co-operative Offices. The individual Company on whose behalf orders are signed is solely responsible for payment. The Management will not hold themselves responsible in the event of loss of or damage to any MSS., Songs, &c., submitted for consideration.

THIS WEEK'S NOVELTIES.

CHRISTMAS EVE DREAM. Splendid Xmas Production.

Code Word, "ETOILE."

These three children are very excited when they go to bed on Christmas-Eve, for they are expecting Santa Claus to fill their stockings with all sorts of toys and sweets. A fairy appears to them in their dreams, and she is carrying toys by the armful. She changes them into real, big motor-cars, balloons, and air-ships, and the three go away on a long and delightful journey on earth, in the air, and even under water. Their mother, entering their room next morning, wakes them up, and it is towards a heap of delightful and magnificent things that they trip bare-footed as soon as they have rubbed sleep out of their eyes.

Second Edition Now Ready. 610ft. The Subject, £10 3s. 4d. Colouring and Toning, £6 15s. 0d.

THE GALLANT FRENCH GUARDSMAN.

Code Word, "FOLIOLE."

A young French guardsman is taking a walk with a gipsy girl, when two men with a suspicious appearance follow them and cause the soldier to draw his sword in defence of the girl. One of the ruffians is killed, and his accomplice goes straight to the patrol and accuses the guardsman of having murdered his friend. The boy is condemned by the Court Martial to be shot. The gipsy is filled with sombre foreboding as she sees the gruesome procession, and she forces her way to the Judge's office. There she explains the story in detail, and at last a warrant of amnesty is granted in the guardsman's favour. The film ends as happily as one may wish.

577ft. The Subject, £9 12s. 4d. Toning, £1 5s. 0d.

RICE GROWING.

Code Word, "EXECUTION."

330ft. The Subject, £5 10s. 0d. Toning £1 0s. 0d.

A DIFFICULT FATHER-IN-LAW.

Code Word, "FIXE."

Mr. Sampson, a very practical Yankee, forces a gentleman to marry his daughter simply because he has found him making love to her. Besides signing a contract for 50,000 dollars in favour of the bride, the future husband has to promise that he will submit the conduct of his actions to the experience of Mr. Sampson. The latter is so exacting, however, that the son-in-law goes to the house of a lady friend for a few minutes' rest, closely followed by the old man. Having donned a gown belonging to his friend, he goes out, and in the street he looks so fascinating a lady that as such he wins the heart of the old bear. Availing himself of the opportunity, he takes the contract from his father-in-law, and, discarding his woman's attire, shows himself once more as the husband of that gentleman's daughter.

412ft. The Subject, £3 17s. 4d.

PASTIMES IN THE FIR PROVINCES.

Code Word, "FLORAISON."

362ft. The Subject, £6 0s. 8d.

THE ROMANY'S DAUGHTER.

Code Word, "FASCINER."

A young fop having fallen in love with a gipsy girl, they decide upon an elopement for the next night, on account of her old father's well-known dislike to the class of people the young man belongs to. On hearing of it, the Romany pays a suspicious character for killing the man. He goes to the appointed place, and waits. . . . A well-dressed boy arrives, he stabs him, wraps up the body in a blanket, and carries the bundle to the beach where her father is waiting. Oh, the horror of it! The old man, on uncovering the face, sees that it is his daughter who lies dead at his feet, for the murderer has been deceived by her man's attire.

725ft. The Subject, £12 1s. 8d. Toning, £1 10s. 0d.

A LOVER IN THE STRAW.

Code Word, "FEUILLE."

A charming idyll is suddenly interrupted by the arrival of a farmer in his cart. Quickly, the little peasant girl buries her sweetheart in the straw and binds him up carefully. The farmer carries the bundle to his cart, but the jolts and jerks soon land the poor boy in the middle of the road. His next adventure is that he is thrown under the wheels of a coming motor-car. He can only be freed, however, after a child has set fire to the straw, and he has thrown himself into the water to extinguish the flames.

478ft. The Subject, £7 19s. 4d.

EDUCATING BLIND CHILDREN.

Code Word, "FORMAT."

Titles of pictures :—At school. Thanks to embossed maps and books, blind children can be taught as well as those who see.—Arithmetic and writing.—Two years are necessary for the blind girl to learn knitting.—Playtime.—An object lesson.—Piano taught by a blind teacher. While one hand follows the embossed notes, the other plays; but the pupil will be able to play with both hands from memory only.—Blind girls at work.

478ft. The Subject, £7 19s. 4d.

NEW CENTURY THIEVES.

Code Word, "FONTAINE."

Three rascals being hard-up, they ask one another what to do to renew their finances. After a serious conversation, the trio go to a nerve specialist's. Rood, one of the rascals, is seized with nervous movements, which will make him cut capers, lift his feet, &c., thus showing signs of the most acute nerve complaint. Rood is now in the consulting-room, and the doctor has his hands full with trying to keep him quiet with the aid of his servant; in the meantime the others are stripping the waiting-room of its valuables.

280ft. The Subject, £4 13s. 4d.

ELIXIR OF DREAMS.

Code Word, "FANTOCHE."

Pierrot is painting away at his easel, and as he has not eaten for a long time, he gradually goes to dreamland, where a fairy appears to him, saying : "I am the Fairy Illusion; take this phial, it contains the Elixir of Dreams." Pierrot dreams, and his idle fancy carries him into an Oriental palace, among dancers and the fumes of opium. He himself is the Rajah of India, and pretty Indian girls fan him and offer him all sorts of delicacies in golden vessels. Now Pierrot is sent away by the Caliph, and he is on the point of being killed by his enemies when he is awakened from his nightmare by a gentleman who comes to buy his picture.

857ft. The Subject, £14 5s. 8d. Colouring and Toning, £8 10s. 0d.

BEHIND THE MASK.

Code Word, "FIGURE."

After a quarrel, the husband and wife go to their rooms in a bad temper, but the announcement in the paper of a masked ball makes them change their mood, and they both prepare for it, unknown to the other. In the large crowd of that public ball, the husband and wife are well-pleased with each other's appearance and ready wit, and they have a good time together, until the mask falling, they recognise each other with amazement. After this it is impossible not to make it up, and the film ends with the reconciliation brought about by very comical circumstances.

VALSE REFRAIN—
Starshine, Starshine,
Come back once more into the sky,
Tell me, tell me,
All that you told me that night gone by.
I am not lonely-hearted,
For when the clouds have parted,
After the shadow beyond the rain
Starshine will come again!

EXTRAORDINARY RESULT

FROM AN ADVERTISEMENT.

Dear Sir,

I inserted an advertisement last week in "The Era" advertising Messrs. Barney and Berry's celebrated Phantom Skates. You may guess my satisfaction at the successful result of my speculating in your advertisement columns when I tell you that I have sold no less than 2,700 pairs of these Skates, the sale of which I directly trace to the advertisement in the last issue of "The Era."

Yours faithfully,
Managing Director,
Messrs. BARNEY and BERRY.

IRVING AS AN AMATEUR.

Mr. Austin Brereton, in his "Life of Henry Irving," gives an interesting account of his connection with an amateur club.

"When the future actor was in his seventeenth year," says Mr. Brereton, "he gave some indications of his dramatic powers. In 1853, he joined the City Elocution Class, a sort of mutual improvement society, the members of which criticised one another's efforts, presided over by Henry Thomas, a man of considerable ability as a teacher. These classes were first held in Gould-square, Fenchurch-street, and subsequently in Sussex Hall. One evening a youth of some fifteen years of age presented himself. His appearance was such as would make ladies exclaim 'What a nice boy!' He was rather tall for his age, dressed in a black cloth suit, with a round jacket, over the top of which was turned a deep white linen collar. His face was very handsome, with a mass of wavy, black hair, and eyes bright and flashing with intelligence. He was called upon for his first recitation, and he fairly electrified the class with a display of elocutionary skill and dramatic intensity. John Henry Brodribb—as he was still known—became a great favourite in the class, and his efforts as an amateur were recognised in print. The Theatrical Journal has long ceased to exist, but its pages contained the earliest public references to the embryo actor. A certain Thomas William Cooper, writing in the issue of Wednesday, Jan. 4, 1854, gives some interesting details of an entertainment in the middle of the previous month at the Sussex Hall. The programme began with a scene from The Rivals. 'Mr. Brodribb as Captain Absolute and Mr. Dyall as Sir Anthony played their parts with a very intelligent tact and with great credit to their teacher, Mr. Thomas.' Later on, 'The Last Days of Herculaneum was given in a style worthy the talented powers of so young a Roscius as Mr. Brodribb.' On April 11, 1854, the farce Catching an Heiress concluded the entertainment at Sussex Hall, and 'both Mr. Cooper and Mr. Brodribb were also well up in their characters, and are deserving of particular mention.' In the following autumn, Mr. Brodribb won favourable mention for his acting in the farce My Wife's Dentist.

"The Mr. Dyall who is here mentioned, for many years the curator of the Liverpool Art Gallery, was an intimate and life-long friend of the man and the actor. His recollections of the City Elocution Class are very interesting, for he was a member when young Brodribb joined it. Mr. Dyall recalls the original class-room, which was under a railway arch in Gould-square, but the only piece which he saw there was a farce, The Mummy, in which the youthful comedian, J. L. Toole, appeared. His remembrance of Mr. Thomas is that of a 'bright, genial, sunny, mercurial, and eminently lovable man. In his dramatic proclivities, he was a follower of Charles Mathews, and undertook, with much go and spirit, the same kind of parts. His wife was a buxom little woman, brimming over with fun; not ethereal enough for the young heroines, but invaluable in such parts as Little Toddlekins, for whose acceptance I, as Sir Barnaby Babblcome, brought in the little mannikin. When the Elocution Class held its meetings in Sussex Hall, we found it a very cosy and comfortable room; well seated, and with a very handsome white balustrade running across to within twenty feet of the length. The club fitted up the stage portion with two three-fold screens, having a practical door in the centre of each; these were handsomely papered, a darker paper being used for the doors. An opening at the back, with drapery, left another means for exits and entrances; with a few chairs and a table or two, a vase of flowers and some ornaments, we had a very effective drawing-room for the small pieces we played. The weekly meeting of the club were devoted to recitations by the members, with Henry Thomas as chairman. The only teaching was by mutual criticism; the members helping each other to pick up dropped 'h's,' and put them in their proper places; pointing out wrong accents, bad pronunciation, inappropriate gesture, awkward positions of the hands and feet, &c. These criticisms did great good to the members of the class, especially in the matter of extempore speaking. The pieces played were mostly of a light character, many of them are now almost forgotten, but they were highly appreciated at the time. They consisted of Boots at the Swan, Delicate Ground, The Man with the Carpet Bag, Love in Humble Life, Who Speaks First, Little Toddlekins, A Silent Woman, and others of a like class suitable for presentation as drawing-room performances. The new member of the City Elocution Class soon became a great favourite at these meetings, every opportunity being taken to cast him for such parts as his youthful appearance would admit of. He was successful in everything he undertook, and when opportunity served he displayed unmistakable gifts One of the rules of the class was, that each member should know the words of his part, and anyone failing in this respect met with the utmost ridicule. Our young member was always letter-perfect, so that his mind was free to give due effect to the author's meaning. But it was in recitation that, at this time, he appeared to the greatest advantage, his youth being against his assumption of manly parts. One of his most successful efforts at this period was the part of Wilford, in selected scenes from The Iron Chest, the Sir Edward Mortimer being myself. On this occasion his lines were given with such force, earnestness, and pathos, as to elicit the most enthusiastic applause.'

"A performance given by the students of the City Elocution Class at the Soho Theatre—now the Royalty—was always impressed upon our hero. The old comedy, The Honeymoon, was represented, and Mr. Thomas's pupils appeared in 'all the glory of tights, silk cloaks, and hats and feathers.' Many years afterwards, in July, 1884, the Irving Amateur Dramatic Club entertained their president, after whom their club had been named, at supper in the Freemasons' Tavern, where he spoke of this, his first performance in a regular theatre: 'Amateur acting is a very different thing to what it was when I was a young man—and I am not like that horrible old playgoer who sits upon everything and calls it bad. I believe that you act under many advantages that were not enjoyed by amateurs in the past—certainly, as far as my experience goes. I was once a member of what was called an elocution class, and we suffered under one disadvantage—we had not the pleasure of enjoying the society of amiable and accomplished ladies. We chose pieces in which the ladies had not very prominent parts, and, wherever the parts were, they were cut down. Sometimes the chambermaid was transformed into some hobbledehoy young man, and the entertainments, I daresay, were not very interesting. But I remember that I once did take part in an amateur performance, the only occasion in my life when my ambition was satisfied, where there was a real stage, and real scenery, real footlights, real dresses, real everything. We had the Soho Theatre, and they had a rather peculiar method there. The amateurs who wanted to furnish parts, paid different prices. The prices seemed to vary according to the vice or the virtue of the characters—two guineas for Iago, three guineas for Romeo. I had three guineas' worth, and it was rather a memorable occasion for me—and to those, I should think, who saw me! Rehearsals were out of the question altogether, and the supporters were principally a lot of superannuated actors. Of course, the cast was conducted by any confiding amateur; they were glad to get the money, and, if not, they were happy to have emergency men.'"

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDEEN.—PALACE THEATRE.—Lessees, The United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—Mr. J. C. Piddock and company appear with the utmost success in a delightful musical fantasy, The Capture of Venus; Maxford and O'Neill are first-rate comedians; Mr. Harry Nelson makes a decided success as a topical vocalist; Allsopp and Beckwith are excellent duettists; the Sisters Clare contribute an exceptionally pleasant song-scena act; Mr. Richardson Taylor is a clever whistling ventriloquist; Mr. Harry Pleon is popular as ever; and the Kurios are warmly applauded for their amusing experiments in mystification and their striking effects in lightning painting.

ALHAMBRA MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. John Sinclair; General-Manager, Mr. George B. Lee.—The principal artists this week are Currie and Foote, a pair of clever and resourceful comedians; Mr. Fred Rex, a talented burlesque comedian and dancer; Miss Rosie Dawn, a pleasing and graceful vocalist and dancer; and Mr. J Chalmers, a first-class tenor.

EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Managers, Messrs. R. Calder and J. Montague.—The Six Manhattan Minstrels, who excel both as singers and dancers, make a great hit this week. Prominent among them are Miss Marie Rose and Mr. Archie Murray. A highly diverting farce The Twin Babies is also cleverly acted by the Empire Entertainers. The other members of the company are all popular.

ABERTILLERY.—METROPOLE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. J. Seaborn.—The Old Home is produced at this theatre this week by Roland Yorke's distinguished company. Mr. Harding Thomas gives a fine rendering of Daddy Dean to the high appreciation of the house; Miss Gertrude Bonser plays effectively the part of Hazel Dean; the Rev. Eric Armstrong finds a capital exponent in Mr. Henry Lonsdale; and Mr. Roland Yorke gives a fine impersonation of Lord Avondale.

THE PAVILION.—Lessees, Messrs. E. and H. Tilney; Manager, Mr. E. Pryce.—The Scarlet Clue is being excellently performed at this popular house by Miss Grace Warner, supported by a talented company. Sal Scarlet is excellently sustained by Miss Warner; Mr. Geo. Gordon as Michael Stanton shows dramatic skill. The Little Widow was given on Thursday.

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—The Amateur Operatic Society occupies the boards here this week, presenting Dorothy. The proceeds will be handed over to the local charities.

ALDERSHOT.—ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Jack Gladwin.—Mr. Norman V. Norman and company are here after a long absence, in a repertory of plays, and the hearty appreciation with which the company is received proves not only the excellence of the performances, but the popularity of the company in question. On Monday Under the Red Robe was presented to a large audience. Mr. Norman V. Norman gave a masterful conception of Gil de Berault, his fine acting standing out with great prominence; as Renée de Cocheforêt Miss Beatrice Wilson was something more than a good actress—she was absolutely brilliant; Mr. Alfred Grey played the sombre-visaged Cardinal with an uncanniness which commanded respect; as the effeminate Captain Mr. Sam Wilkinson was particularly good; and Mr. Norman Leslie (who is also visiting stage-manager) gave a capital enactment of the Lieutenant; and Mr. Fred Lock also did well as Cocheforêt. As the dumb Clon Mr. J. A. Snaith was good. On Tuesday The Adventure of Lady Ursula was presented.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill, jun.—The visit of Mr. Allan Wilkie and his Shakespearean company here is an event of some importance, as it is seldom we get the works of the immortal bard presented on our stage in so finished a style. The company opened in Othello, and as the Moor of Venice Mr. Wilkie cleverly indicated the passions of love and jealousy by which Othello is swayed. A really admirable interpretation was given of the artful tempter, Iago, by Mr. Alexander Marsh; and Miss Haidee Gunn supplied a faithful picture of the sweet, trusting, and virtuous Desdemona. Capital interpretations were also given of Emilia by Miss Mildred Surrey; Brabantio by that sterling Shakespearean actor, Mr. Jno Paley; Cassio by Mr. Frank Royde; Roderigo by Mr. Ian Fleming; and of minor rôles by Messrs. Houston Meharry, Sinclair Neill, Ernest Digges, and J. Sullivan. On Tuesday Romeo and Juliet was performed, with Mr. Alexander Marsh as Romeo and Miss Haidee Gunn as Juliet, Mr. Wilkie assuming the rôle of Friar Laurence. Hamlet, The Merchant of Venice, The Sleigh Bells, David Garrick and Macbeth are also in the bill.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—The feature of the week here is the engagement of the Brothers Luck, in their melodramatic absurdity, The Hermit, which proves very funny. Lena Selwyn is a charming comedienne and dancer; Pueblo and Cropp are versatile Creole performers, who appear as "the swell and the belle"; Primavesi, in a juggling act, is very clever; and the Wedburns are good cross-talkers and singers. Miss Babs Lloyd is a juvenile artist who has developed in skill and talent; Arthur Albert is a good light comedian; and James and Jenny Jee give an inimitable series of feats on a revolving wire. The Bioscope is also part of a very good "show"; and Dolly Ross is a clever comedienne and expert dancer.

PICTUREDROME. — Lessees, Messrs. Weisker Brothers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Monks.—Some fine films are again shown this week. Mr. Marcus Boyle's singing and patter are full of humour; and Miss Ada Whitten is a successful singer and male impersonator.

ATTERCLIFFE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manageress, Miss Ethel J. Hope.—This week's selection of interesting and amusing pictures includes Retribution, The Spring Lock, The Land of Gold Mines, Robin Hood, The Trombone Player, The Stone Quarry, and The Life of a Sicilian Hermit. Mr. Charles Verner is meeting with much success in his popular chorus songs.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Bert Dent; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harry Sanders.—The programme here this week is contributed to by the Hyde and Cody Trio, comedy acrobats; the Three Comedy Chanters, in humorous vocal selections; Gyto, tramp juggler; Prince Sciaboo, Hindoo bass vocalist; the Sisters Draycott, vocalists; Argo, mimic; Mr. Walter Wallis, comedian; and Mr. Clayton's interesting series of pictures. The Brothers Hannaway, comedians and dancers, were billed, but, owing to the sudden illness of one of the partners, were not able to appear. For the last three nights of the week Mr. Bert Dent arranged a novel singing competition for prizes.

AYR.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—The Leopolds, an ever-welcome combination of fun-makers, are responsible for the programme this week. They have an all-round clever company with them in The Houseboat and Those Terrible Boys. St. Ruth and Conyers give several duets from the operas; Mr. W. Moffatt and company have a sketch of an incident of Balaclava; the Boston Twins are amusing in their knockabout business and harmony; and Chiko, the contortionist, Harry Desmond, the comedian, Marjorie Mardment, comedienne, and the Stadium Boys, with their athletic pot-pourri, all go to make up a most attractive entertainment.

BACUP.—NEW COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood.—The "Grand Starr Variety Company" forms the attraction here this week. Rozel—Le Roi de L'Air—heads the list, and proves a clever speciality gymnast; the Smalleys give a refined comedy act on the triple bars; the Weimers, musical entertainers, are very clever and win hearty applause with illustrated military songs; Mr. A. W. Scott greatly pleases the audience with his clever dancing and coon songs; Kitty Kearns is a vocalist of merit; Marrion and Marion, with funny song and patter, provide first-class entertainment; and some amusing and instructive pictures are shown on the new Bioscope.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—TIVOLI.—Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edgar G. Laban.—Pipifax and Paulo, in their comedy act, entitled Humpsti Bumpsti, top the bill here this week, and their exceedingly clever tumbling antics keep the audience in roars of laughter. Gillian gives a very clever ventriloquial entertainment; Marie Collins is a comedienne with plenty of "go"; Lena Wyllie is a pleasing vocalist; the Ellimans give a capital musical turn; and Vernon's Bioscope shows some very interesting pictures. Jennie Johns is on the bill, but owing to a severe cold, was unable to fulfil her engagement.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Owners and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ralph D Fenton.—An excellent selection of the cinematographer's art is being presented here to capital houses.

BARRY DOCK. — THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brogden.—A large audience witnessed A Girl's Cross Roads, presented by Mr. Walter Melville here on Monday. Mr. Charles Franmore appears as John Meadows with conspicuous success; as Jack Livingstone Mr. J. Fortescue earned the highest praise for a capital rendering; Mr. Edward Chester, in the "heavy" part of Cuthbert Lumley, was good; Mr. Edward Valentine impersonated Dr. Weston admirably; Miss Hilda Beverley gave a fine conception of the difficult part of Barbara Wade; Miss Nita Langford submits a capital study of Nellie Meadows; and Miss D. Hilldebrande depicted the rôle of Constance Cornell with credit. The comedy parts were well sustained by Miss Daisy Meynard and Mr. Fred Hodson. The play was elaborately staged.

BATH.—PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—A good programme here this week includes Bonnie Goodwin's Apollo Piccaninnies, assisted by Miss Lily Vine, an always enjoyable turn; McCann's Irish terriers and leaping dogs cause infinite delight; Helen Martin's vocalism is always agreeable; the Leonas present a novel musical turn; Gravetta and Parr show skill as clay modellers and impersonators of well-known characters; and Cissie Esdaile, comedienne; Maston, a smart mimic; and the Bestons, in a comedy cyclist act, A Tramp's Holiday, likewise give pleasure. Raymond's Bio-tableaux remain a fixed attraction.

BATLEY.—THEATRE.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Whitty; Manager, Mr. Alfred A. Taylor.—Mr. Gilbert Payne and company in The Honeymoon are this week paying a welcome return visit. Mr. Payne is extremely funny as Nathaniel Noodle; Colonel Brown is successfully portrayed by Mr. H. F. Housden; Mr. Leslie Erle scores as Jack Armstrong; and Mr. Edward Ray is a capable exponent of the dude type. Miss Hettie Lind is a taking Madge Armstrong; Miss Myra Douglas does well as Stella; and Miss Lizzie Palmer is a successful Emeretta. The Godfrey Girls are a troupe of clever dancers.

BEDFORD.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—The Education of Elizabeth, presented by Mr. Charles H. Bowmaker, is the attraction here this week. As Harry Fairfax, Mr. Wilson Gunning is exceedingly natural; and Mr. Ernest E. Norris is a humorous Reggie Hankey; Mr. Fred Castleman is a charming and debonair Mr. Whitby; Miss Winifred Ingram is a captivating Elizabeth; Miss Louisa Peach is good as Blanche Macyntyre; and Miss T. Russell Spiers is a sympathetic Lucy Middleton. After this week the theatre closes until Boxing night, when the pantomime, Cinderella, will be produced.

BELFAST. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Miss Emma Litchfield's company opened here on Monday with A London Actress. Mr. Stuart Cleveland appeared to much advantage as Sergeant-Major Clive Crawford, and Miss Litchfield furnished an exceedingly powerful impersonation of Hilda Mannering; Mr. John Cecil was a capable Lieut. Kingstone, R.N., and Mr. F. W. Wicksteed did full justice to the rôle of Captain Mannering, R.N.R. A humorous impersonation of Pat Maloney was furnished by Mr. Johnny McElroy, and Mr. John Watson must be commended for his natural assumption of Moses Mendoza. A charming interpretation of Phyllis Crawford was presented by Miss Mildred Clay, and Miss Harriette Loydall impersonated the old Irishwoman Biddy Maloney in faultless style. Other rôles were ably sustained by Miss Maud Saxby, Mrs. L. Clarke, Miss Cissie Clarke, and Messrs. E. Matlock, G. Day, F. Litchfield, and J. Smart.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. A. Salmond.—Sydney Mason and Theresa Moore's company top the bill, and present a dramatic episode, entitled The Usurer, with success. The acrobatic feats of the Borghetti Troupe are remarkable, and Miss Addie Dorina returns with her marvellous quick-change production, entitled Dr. Spot's Patients, in which she skilfully impersonates six distinct characters. The Quality Quartette have gained a capital reception for their fine vocalism, and the table expert, Vincent, deserves much praise for his unique performance. Also appearing are Mr. Charles Cardow, vocal comedian; Phillips and Merritt, comedians; and the Palace pictures.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Will Sley and Fred Willmott; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—Mr. John Tiller's pantomime, Red Riding Hood, commenced on Monday the last week of its stay here. The production has afforded much satisfaction to crowded houses and the various principals, Miss Decima Brooke, Miss Maisie Jerrard, Miss Emma Franks, Miss Louie Davis, and Messrs. Fred Russell, Howard Ward, Will Lytton, and Walter Watson, work unceasingly to gain the success obtained. A word of praise is due to the Poppy Quartette of dancers and the Excelsior Troupe of children.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—The chief attraction here is provided by Bellew and Strek's powerful company, including Master Edward Garratt, who produce with much success their racing sketch, entitled An Outside Chance. The jumping feats of the Hertley Wonders are simply marvellous, and the Three Rochesters, society entertainers, appear to much advantage. The sweet singing of Miss Maggie Walsh has delighted all, and the cultured vocalism of Webb and Branston has been deservedly encored. Also included in the programme are Mr. Jack Binns, descriptive vocalist; Mr. Leo Fields, the popular comedian; the Six Emerald Gems, who sing and dance excellently; and the Bioscope.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL.—General-Manager, Mr. Robert Wilson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—Some beautiful films have been exhibited here this week, including Black-eyed Susan, Disappointed Heirs, Case of Spirits, A Quiet Inn, Shipwreckers, and Bird of Freedom. Also appearing are McVickers and Consar, character comedians and expert dancers, and Mr. Bill McComb, a humorist who made a big hit.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Will White.—This old-established theatre continues to draw crowded houses nightly. This week the following films have been exhibited:—The Little Mother, The Deserter, Force of Habit, Sold Prospectors, Prehistoric Man, and others. Also appearing are Sandle and Somers, comedians, and Miss Alice Ferndale, a delightful singer of illustrated songs.

CLIFTONVILLE HALL.—General-Manager, Col. Fred T. Cummins.—Roller-skating is the rage here, the rink being crowded nightly. A masked and costume carnival took place on Tuesday, when valuable prizes were presented. The novel entertainment was most successful.

BILSTON.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. John M. Dawson; Business-Manager, Mr. S. Hadskiss Dawson.—Convict 99 was presented to a good house on Monday. The part of Geraldine Lucas is excellently portrayed by Miss Dorothy Milne; Mr. Frank Beresford makes a manly Lawrence Gray; and Mr. Benson North is equally well placed as Ralph Vickers.

BIRKENHEAD. — NEW THEATRE ROYAL. — Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant; Secretary, Miss Isabel Morris.—Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company, in The Female Swindler, presents an entertainment dear to the hearts of the popular parts of the house; Miss Violet Ellicott as Lu Valroy, the title-rôle, gives a fine and consistent rendering of a somewhat difficult and exacting part; Mr. Jerrold Heather wins much popularity by a vigorous and effective performance of the criminal investigator, John Coulson; and Mr. Stanley Radcliffe depicts the villainies of Geoffrey Warden in no uncertain colours. Harold Travers is well played by Mr. Guy P. Ellis; Miss Beatrice Hone is an interesting May Andrews; and the Jew, Abraham Mikestein, is well embodied by Mr. Fred Rignold. The comedy element is admirably supplied by Mr. John Hitchins and Miss Bella Moody, who work hard and with much success. Mr. A. Kenyon Gray is a commendable James Oliver, and remaining characters are adequately represented. The scenic effects are good.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—At this popular resort Mr. Charles Austin, assisted by his able company, appears in the entertaining sketch Parker, P.C., with unequivocal success. Foreman and Fannan, comedians of the first water, are on a welcome return visit; and Barton and Ashley are going great in their amusing sketch Adam the Second. A splendid entertainment is also supported by Miss Gladys Mavius, a talented comedienne; the Two Arnatos, musical comedians; the Melroses, the clever musical comedy duo; Miss Madeline Rossiter, who, as a comedienne and dancer, has made a decided hit; Mr. Chris. Masters, a character comedian of ability; Miss May Newall, a vocalist of quite exceptional powers; Mr. Charlie Williams, comedian and big-boot dancer; and Brown's Royal Bioscope. Mr. Ernest Denney ably conducts the very capital orchestra.

BIRMINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—Mr. Martin Harvey's return on Monday was very popular, and his choice of play left nothing to be desired. This was The Corsican Brothers, which he revived here first in 1906. Mr. Harvey's performance is still the graceful and fascinating portrayal it was, and could not possibly be excelled in its virility, the "house," as before, rising to him; Mr. William Haviland's Chateau-Renaud shows all the strenuous, unrelenting qualities of the character; Miss Maud Hoffman makes the most of Emilie, playing with true delicacy and sympathy; Miss Mary Rorke is dignified and tender as Mme. dei Franchi, and Messrs. A. E. Raynor, Geo. Cooke, and Fred Wright, sen., are prominent in the cast. A Tragedy of Truth ushers in the above, while on Wednesday Mr. Harvey produced for the first time on any stage a new play, Slander, noticed elsewhere.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—Mrs. Brown Potter's appearance this week in the title-rôle of Lady Frederick is welcomed by large houses full of admiration for her clever comedy powers, which with her charm and fascination render her irresistible. Mr. Philip Cunningham's portrayal of Paradine Foulder is a well-defined and most agreeable piece of acting; Mr. W. B. Parker does admirable work as Sir Gerald O'Mara; Miss Madeline du Val gains admirable effect in the part of Lady Mereston; Mr. Herbert Garthorne emerges from the trying rôle of Lord Mereston most successfully, and others to mention are Miss Edith Deverell, Mr. Cecil Beaven, Mr. C. T. Doe, and Miss Phyllis Manners. The Peacemaker appears first.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. T. Guest.—The Great White Chief is inspiring tremendous enthusiasm here, the author, Mr. Lingford Carson, and company also being called before the curtain after every act. Mr. Carson's conception of the dumb chief, Reindeer is exceedingly successful and popular; Mr. Mansell Fane infuses much vigour and strength of character into his impersonation of the white chief, Lee Stanley; Mr. George Butler shows marked ability in the rôle of Hartley Deane; Mr. J. Dobson Clyde is an impressive figure as Sparrow Hawk; Miss Polly Denville is both charming and adept as Latika, later Nell Ellingham; Miss Dulcie Lawrence displays a fine dramatic sense as Hester Stafford; and Mr. Leonard Maitland is intensely droll as Walker.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—Enthusiastic as well as well-filled houses have attended A Life for a Life, presented here by Mr. Chas. H. Lester and company. Mr. Lester's share of the work as Don Leon Fernandez is excellently done, the public applauding without stint what is really a fine exhibition of acting; Mr. Richard Bosco's portion in the play is the villain, Pedro Li Calci, the impersonation being full of well-studied effects; Miss Dorothy Riddell as Kate Evelyn is a character that holds the audience to the end; Mr. Harry T. Wood as Kit Oswald makes a very favourable impression; Little Irene plays the part of Venetta with remarkable aptitude.

besides singing cleverly, and the rest of the cast are very successful.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander. Great interest has been created here by the drama Man or Beast? by Messrs. Chas. H. Phelps and Ernest Vaughan's company. Mr. Fred Newland gives a clever portrayal as Lord Newton; Mr. J. W. Boyland as the son, the Hon. Jack, is vigorous while avoiding any excess of passion; Mr. Ernest Vaughan as the nephew, Sir Richard Tremere, shows a full appreciation of the rôle; the Misses Irene Carrington and Madge Douglas as the two sisters, Bella and Rosie, both have their fascinations, and please well; and Miss Florence Cavolo, Miss Maria Pemberton, Mr. Fred Gresham, Mr. Charles D. Pitt, and last, but not least, Mr. Charles H. Phelps fill their rôles most ably.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Lake.—Mrs. Frank Bateman and Stuart Lomath's company opened here on Monday in No Wedding Bells for Her, and secured an immediate success. Miss Lizzie Montague (Mrs. Bateman) gave the audience a rapid succession of thrills with her vivid and intensely dramatic portrayal of Lola Delaspierre; Mr. Stuart Lomath made an excellent Frank Hatherleigh; Mr. H. Aynsleigh pictured the city wastrel, Abney Stone, in a most perfect manner; and Mr. Percy Shaw, Mr. G. Harvey, Mr. Geo. Herbert, Mr. Harry C. Momber, Miss Nelly Wilson, Miss Ethel Lawrence, and others ably supported. On Wednesday and Thursday Sapho was performed, Mr. Lomath playing Jean Gaussin to Miss Montague's Fanny.

PALACE THEATRE, BORDESLEY.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Goodwin Woodward.—Intense enthusiasm prevails here this week over Mr. Lester Collingwood's production, When London Sleeps, the fame of Mr. Collingwood and his piece also being great here. Miss Mabel Scudamore gives a portrayal of Queenie Carruthers that undoubtedly appeals to all; Miss Lilla Wilde is clever in her treatment of the rôle of Hilda Carode, insomuch that she gains the utmost sympathy in the end; Mr. James Hare's able acting of Captain Rodney Haynes brings that character properly into contempt; and Mr. Edward E. Ashby makes a virile and highly popular rôle of David Engleheart; Mr. Fred Bernardo, Mr. E. C. Edwards, Mr. F. E. Thomas, Mr. Douglas Campbell, Mr. Harry Emmerson, Mr. Frank Howard, Miss Bella Power, and Miss Mona Hall are all essential to the success.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—Archie Goodall, the Aston Villa footballer, is appearing here in an acrobatic act, in which he walks round the inside of a hoop 50ft. in circumference, standing at one point head downwards; the Lancashire Singers (eighteen in number) win loud applause; Lilian Dundas and company present their dramatic episode, Nance Arden; Ruth Lytton is a popular Scotch comedienne; and C. Stewart and company, Bros. Bright, Arthur Astill, Naughton and Gold, and Lydia Yeamans, whose songs were well applauded, complete the programme.

HIPPODROME.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Lyons.—Princess Trixie is an educated horse whose tricks are highly entertaining; Fred Edwards and company appear in an excellent sketch, A Nice Quiet Morning; the Sisters Ford are applauded for their songs; and Lennard and Vereker sing their pictorial songs in good style. Other popular turns are those of the Aribos, in their feats of balancing; the Serenaders in a scena A Night in Venice; and the Athos Troupe, who are expert acrobats.

GAIETY THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—Mme. Clasen's Living Art Bronzes are the attraction here. Ugo Nap, assisted by Hilda Corellie, and Sinclair and Whitford, in their amusing sketch, Getting Even, are appreciated. The Three Laurels are expert acrobats. The programme includes the names of Nellie Martell, Dolly Moore, Will Dalton, and the New York Nippers.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — EDEN THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. Huntley.—The boards are occupied this week by Mr. John H. Tomkinson's Royal Gipsy company, and there was a good house on Monday night. Miss Elsie Rubina gives a capital turn on the wire; the Four Louberts, in their knockabout scena, are admirable; La Vie is charming in her electrical art panel poses; Miss Cisse Madcap excels as a dancer; the Sisters Leshmere sing and dance in fine style; and a wonderful little vocalist and dancer is Wee Winnie, who is cordially received. The remaining turns are good, and the Bioscope is noticeable for its clever picture entitled The Hooligans of the Camp.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—His Majesty's Guests is being played here again this week by Mr. Fred Karno's company, with Mr. Geo. Hestor as Sergeant Lightning, and supported by Messrs. E. Freshwater, C. Griffiths, C. Usher, Sid Kearns, and Misses Aggie Morris, Kitty Brunton, and Edith Anger. With plenty of rollicking fun and bright music a very pleasing entertainment is provided.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Sergenson; Responsible Tenant and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Hunter.—Besides a beauty competition, which is being held here this week, and proving a big attraction, capital turns are provided by the Andos Family of Japanese acrobats; Jack Hayton, a quaint comedian; Jan Vanbert, a clever conjurer; the Prinellas, in a pleasing sketch; Kennedy's Kiddies in song and dance; Marie Clifton, a capable comedienne; Aerial and Astarte, trapeze artists; and Johnnie and Willie, acrobatic piccaninnies.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—La Milo tops a big bill here this week. As this is her first appearance in Blackpool, full houses are the rule. She is accompanied by Cruickshanks, the expert caricaturist. The efforts of Neville Delmar, a rising light comedian; the Brooklyn Comedy Four, in a vocal sketch; the Three Hodginis, trapeze artists and balancers; Chas. F. Best, a talented mountebank; Olive Myrtle, comedienne and dancer; Frank Bernard and company, in a ludicrous act; and the Three Krakes, in a knockabout turn, are applauded.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mrs. Fioni.—Interspersed with the pictures this week are Robertshaw and Leach, comedians, and Miss Robinson, a talented vocalist. The amateur competitions which take place here weekly have literally captured the town.

BLYTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—The marvellous Chinese conjurer, Chung Ling Soo, has mystified and highly delighted large audiences nightly. A strong variety company have also appeared with success, including Parker and Parr; the Calcots, in a wayside episode; Bertha Norwood, in dainty dances; Dale and Vale, in vocal tit-bits; Massona, in eccentric juggling; Harry Sims, comedian; and Dora Martini, gymnast.

GAIETY.—Lessees, Messrs. Claggers.—John Grun Marx, with his marvellous feats of strength, has proved a strong attraction. The Kenmores, in a gymnastic display, are entertaining; J. J. Mannie proves himself a comedian that can please; Charles Cassell, vocalist, and the Sauteron Wonders are prominent; and the Bioscope brings an excellent programme to a finish.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Tom Doyle.—The pictures have been augmented by the performance of Miss Bella Ray, a charming vocalist; and a go-as-you-please competition, which has proved attractive.

BOLTON. — THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Moncur.—Good houses are this week welcoming a return visit of Alone in London. The cast includes Miss Theresa Osborne, who plays with feeling the part of Nan, the flower-girl; Mr. Percy Rhodes is callous as Richard Redcliffe; Mr. W. S. Hartford is a bluff John Biddlecombe; Mr. Harry McClelland a dignified Mr. Burnaby; Mr. Blundell Fenton is careless and merry as Walter Burnaby; Mr. Percy Bell as Jenkinson and Mr. Frank Sutherland as Spriggins are a pair of amusing stage scoundrels; and Miss Mary Smith pathetically plays the part of Tom Chickweed.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—A good programme here comprises Tom and Marie Motramo, musical comedy artists, who appear in a refined drawing-room sketch, Do You Reverse? F. V. St. Clair, up-to-date singing comedian and author; Beaty and Blanche, duettists and dancers; Fred Keeton, comedian; Ruby Dahl, in her latest novelty, "The Merry Mannikins"; Thos. E. Finglass, artistic coon impersonator; Bert Williams, ventriloquist; Don and Mabel, in their Scottish vocal scena, "Sandy's Return"; Mephisto, the Mysterious, and the Imperial Bioscope.

BOOTLE. — MUNCASTER THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Wilmott; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Young.—Dick Whittington is being presented here by the stock company. Mr. Albert Sember makes a good Fitzwarren, and Mr. Stanley S. Gordon a capital Captain. The title-rôle is sweetly played by Miss Nina Vaughton, and Miss Effie Macintosh is a vivacious Alice, her singing of "Down in Poverty Street" being well received. Special mention is well deserved by Mr. Alfred D. Adams as Idol Jock and Mr. Tom H. Solly as Dame Swankhurst, the latter scoring a huge success with his song "Girls, study your cookery book." Specialities in the Palace scene are given by Baby Macfarlane and Essie McCarthy. The remainder of the company work well together, and the pantomime is a delightful production. Special scenery is painted by Mr. Bert Linton and music arranged by Mr. J. Wright.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors, Messrs. David Allen and Sons; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Hubert Dunbar.—Messrs. Lyn Harding and Sidney Cooper's company had a most enthusiastic welcome here on Monday in that brilliant play The Flag Lieutenant. As Richard Lascelles Mr. Langhorne Burton gave an extremely clever impersonation; Mr. H. Montagu Love was quite convincing as Major Thesiger; and the Vice-Admiral of Mr. George Mallett was really good. Miss Florence Jackson imparted grace and distinction to the character of Mrs. Cameron; as Lady Hermione Miss Marjorie Chard was entirely successful; and as Viola Hood Miss Viva Birket contributed a capital study. Others deserving praise are Mr. E. S. Petley, Mr. Stephen Gatling, Mr. W. J. Yeldham, Mr Hugh Wakefield, Mr. Lionel Watts, and Mr. John Wheatman.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—The Bradford Amateur Operatic Society is this week giving performances of Utopia, Limited, and the proceeds are to be entirely devoted to the local charities. With his customary generosity, Mr. Hart has granted the free use of the theatre, which was well filled on Monday night, and a very creditable performance was witnessed.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Councillor F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—The Bondman, which is being presented here this week by Mr. Wentworth Croke's company, again provides excellent fare for Mr. Laidler's patrons. The play is finely staged, and the representation is of all-round excellence. Mr. R. Scrope Quentin submits a performance of Jason, which is vigorous and effective; and Mr. Lionel Atwill is excellent as Michael Sunlocks. Adam Fairbrother is well played by Mr. Oswald Lingard; in the dual rôle of Father Ferrati and Grandfather Mr. W. H. Rotheram wins well-merited approbation; Miss Madge Lanerton's Mrs. Fairbrother is a capital performance; tenderness and pathos mark Miss Georgina Wynter's acting as Greeba; and all the other parts are in very capable hands. Much applause greets the performance throughout.

THE EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—Mr. Fisher White's company, in an intensely dramatic and exceedingly well-acted sketch, A Royal Heart, is a leading feature of the fine programme presented here this week, Mr. Scott-Cravén in a striking performance of Vassili, the Grand Duke, being very finely supported; the old-time favourite comedian, J. W. Rowley, on a return visit, is well received; Alf. Maynall, comedian, submits an acceptable turn; Fred Wilkinson is a smart illusionist, who accomplishes some clever feats, assisted by Miss Betty Wallar; the Four Jumels submit a clever musical entertainment; in a comedy duologue turn Kent and Keith are particularly diverting; James Eadie and Cissy Ramsden combine clever acrobatic work with humour in their sketch, Charlie's Visit; some good dancing and effective poses by the Eight of Hearts find favour; Wood, Wells, and Wilkins submit excellent harmony in their humorous turn, The Piano Tuner; and some amusing pictures are shown by the Bioscope.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Harrison.—Florrie Gallimore, the popular comedienne, who is on a return visit, is again well received; Archie Pitt, comedian, sings some funny songs; the Primrose Four (a male voice quartette) harmonise well; Johnny Dwyer renders some humorous songs in excellent style; very remarkable sagacity is displayed by Devereux's performing dogs; Kirk and Saraski, "aquatic experts," give a novel and clever swimming entertainment; in La Poupée style Viviana and company give a very pleasing dancing turn, "The Toy Shop"; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux form an enjoyable feature of the programme.

BRIDLINGTON.—SPA THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Tunbridge.—The British Biograph Co. opened the second week of their visit here with a fine series of new animated pictures, which included Father's First Baby, The Suffrage Question, The Pumpkin Race, and The Little Jules Verne. The artists appearing this week are Miss Edna Barrett, a clever comedienne and dancer, and Mr. Norman Osborne, whose ventriloquial sketches are first-class.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Delmar.—The Electric Animated Pictures continue to give delight to the patrons of this popular resort, and Mr. Delmar is constantly adding to his show by some of the latest films, both of scenic, humorous, and trick pictures.

BRIGHOUSE. — ALBERT THEATRE. — Proprietors, Beanland and Emerson; Manager, Chas. H. Beanland.—Another strong company contains a good amount of comedy. The Silly Servant is a sketch presented by Tom Kelso and his company of capable comedians; Jack Marks tells a number of Yiddish stories in Hebrew fashion; Mlle. Bartenelli is a clever lady contortionist; Sisters Terry, two pleasing vocalists, submit some clever impersonations; Wallace Whitney as "Tubby the footballer" causes much amusement; the Woolhafs provide plenty of merriment; the Boultons are well appreciated; Beattie Foster, in low comedy, and D. W. Watson, with cornet and post-horn solos, please all. The animated pictures by the Loyal Dominion Co. are exceptionally good.

BRIGHTON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Gates; General-Manager, Mr. Ben Court.—Mr. Walter Melville's company is here this week with The Girl Who Wrecked His Home, and attracts crowded audiences. Mr. Fred W. Goddard achieves great success as Jack Marshall; and Miss Louise Hampton imparts power and sympathy to her impersonation of the misguided wife, Bertha Marshall. Mr. Paul Barry Lewers is highly effective as the villainous Leonard Kenyon; Miss Georgie De Lara acquits herself admirably as the adventuress, Val Raymond; Miss Lulu Bowes makes a charming Winifred Marshall; Mr. Geo. P. Lester is well placed as Josh Crockett; and the comic element is sustained in entertaining style by Mr. Francis Hope as Tommy Biffin and Miss Nellie Burdette as Lottie Primrose. The drama is very finely staged.

ALHAMBRA. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Alfred Smith.—A capital programme is submitted here this week. Griffin and Ardell are clever acrobatic eccentrics; the Seymons appear in an original equilibristic juggling act; Jack Heath is a pleasing comedian; Leonard Tell is effective in a burlesque female turn; the Sisters Edwards, duettists and drum experts, are well received; the Brennans are excellent dancers; the Fedora Quartette distinguish themselves as acrobatic dancers; Daisy Silcott is a good burlesque actress; Albert St. Clare is a double-voiced vocalist; Ronald George presents The Night Watchman, an effective musical act; and the animated pictures are interesting and amusing.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. B. J. Brown.—There is a good company here this week. Jack Hart's Futurity Winner, an exciting and realistic sketch, is enthusiastically received; the leading parts are taken by Mr. Kingsley Benedict, Mr. John Switz, Mr. John Clulow, and Miss Rayniski. The Denwartz troupe of Continental acrobats perform some sensational feats; Heeley and Meeley are highly successful in their original scena, Two Lucky Tramps; Keen and Waller are novel eccentrics, and very amusing; Minnie Love is "a sweet singer of sweet songs"; Ada Parker is a clever comedienne and dancer; the Sisters Brooke are pleasing vocalists and dancers; Dusty Rhodes, "comedy merchant," is extremely diverting; and the Zaid Trio (Spanish Moors) contribute a capital turn.

WEST PIER.—Secretary, Mr. A. W. Scholey.—Mr. Leigh Lovel and company are here this week with a répertoire of Ibsen's plays. Rosmersholm was performed on Monday to a large audience. Mr. Leigh Lovel submitted a masterly impersonation of Rosmer; Miss Octavia Kenmore was an admirable Rebecca West; Mr. Howard Coveney as Rector Kroll, Mr. Arthur Chesney as Brondel, and Mr. Stanley-Yorke as Mortensgard, gave excellent impersonations; and Miss Katherine Maynard achieved distinct success as Mme. Holseth. The programmes for the week also included John Gabriel Borkman, The Master Builder, A Doll's House, and Hedda Gabler.

COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. M. Barrasford; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. F. Bauer.—An admirable series of animated pictures is exhibited here this week. The Locket, Nick Carter, and The Hand convey stirring stories; and much amusement is afforded by The Mysterious Thief, Serving the Writ, Burglary by Motor, and Banana Skins.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—Mr. Arthur Bourchier and his entire company from the Garrick Theatre are here for the week. On Monday evening there was a very large attendance in all parts of the house, the play selected to commence the engagement being The Walls of Jericho. The popular play was staged and dressed to perfection, and the acting all round was exceptionally good. Mr. Bourchier played Jack Frobisher in his accustomed convincing style; Miss Violet Vanbrugh's Lady Alethea was charmingly perfect in all respects; Miss Pamela Gaythorne acted prettily and with much spirit as Lady Lucy Derenham; Miss Henrietta Watson was sincere and sympathetic as Lady Westerby; Mr. Leon Quartermaine made an excellent part of Hankey Bannister; Mr. Arthur Whitby presented a good study of the Marquis of Steventon; Mr. Douglas Imbert made the most of Lord Drayton; Mr. Charles Bryant was sufficiently persuasive and ardent as Harry Dallas; and the remaining parts were all very carefully and effectively taken. The Bishop's Move, Sixes and Sevens, The Arm of the Law, and Doctor Johnson are also billed.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr H. C. Alty.—Messrs. Little and D'Arcy's company is here with The Executioner's Daughter, the drama being well staged. Miss Enid Edoni acts in sympathetic style as Annette; Miss Nellie Howitt displays considerable power as Felice; Mr. John B. Murray makes a fine part of Monsieur Roche; Mr. S. Leigh Courteney does well in the heavy part of Felix Marius; Mr. Walter Clarke is effective as Paul Rovel; Mr. Frank Ayrton is successful as Tom Holmes; Miss Prudence Ayrton acts prettily as Christine; and all the remaining parts are in very competent hands. The sensational guillotine scene is effective.

PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Casey's Court, now brought up to date, is the leading attraction. Will Murray, assisted by about thirty juveniles, keeps the fun up fast and furious. Frank Long, assisted by Omoyo San, scores in his ju-jitsu act, and prizes are offered to competitors; Margit and Lenner amuse as Continental eccentrics; Lisbon and Barker obtain applause as extempore comedians; Kelly and Agnes entertain with an American comedy act; the Warsaw Brothers please with mimicry and melody; Arthur Boyne, comedian, is successful; and Dora Harrison is a pleasing vocalist. The performance concludes with Polly's Holiday depicted by the Bioscope.

EMPIRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Leonard Mortimer and company are successful with their interesting sketch, in three realistic scenes, entitled Cash; Ferguson and Mack, comedians, amuse with their comic speciality, The Dimple Sisters; the Doreen Girls are pleasing vocalists and dancers; the Delawares do some capital dancing on a billiard-table; Jack Hamilton comedian, obtains applause; Ethel Newman pleases with her monologue, Her Wedding Day; the Brothers Werds are clever American eccentrics; and Nellie Denver is an exceptionally smart juvenile dancer. Interesting animated pictures conclude the entertainment.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Messrs Sutton and Raynor on Monday presented Sidney Grundy's play A Bunch of Violets to a good house, who appeared to enjoy the excellent acting. Mr. Cecil Wynne played Sir Philip Marchant very skilfully and with care; Harker was well portrayed by Mr. Leonard Laurence; Lord Mount Sorrel was presented with due dignity by Mr. Milton C. Curtis; Mr. Geo. Wallace gave a good study of the Yorkshireman, Mark Murgatroyd; Mr. Joseph B. Montague got plenty of fun out of Jacob Schwartz; Miss Frances Waring as Lady Marchant did some very good work; a charming Violet was that of Miss Dorothy West-Symes; Miss Henrietta Schrier showed sterling ability in the way she rendered the part of the mischievous Mrs. Murgatroyd; Mr. Charles R. Bickell (Hon. Harold), Mr. David Smith (Button), Mr. Thos. Crossley, and Mr. Reg. Winter also well filled their parts. The curtain had to be raised several times.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company is here, and began the week's programme with Faust. Mr. Charles Manners was in his old place as Mephistopheles, and his acting and singing were particularly successful; Miss Kate Anderson gave a sweet conception of Marguerite, and sang with exquisite tenderness; Mr. Lewys James as Valentine won the admiration of the audience, and Mr. Seth Hughes was good as Faust; Miss Agatha Worth proved an excellent Siebel, and Miss J. McCarthy made an attractive Martha. The choral work was given on a grand scale, and great credit is due to the orchestra under the bâton of Signor Sapio. Tuesday's matinée was devoted to Verdi's popular Il Trovatore, and the audience was large and appreciative. Tuesday evening Meyerbeer's Star of the North was given for the first time here, and the general excellence of the production brought forth high praise. Other operas for the week are Wagner's Meistersingers and Tannhäuser, Aïda and The Puritan's Daughter.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The principal attraction here is Van Biene, the actor-musician, in the playlet The Master Musician, and his delightful 'cello solos are greeted with great applause. Amos Howard, the dancing comedian, earns an encore for his sand dances; Kisbey, the call-boy, meets with recognition for coon songs; Geo. C. Doughty and company appear in an excellent and mirth-provoking comedy sketch, Captain Cupid; Adey Spencer, "the girl from the hat shop," is praiseworthy in songs; the burlesque tricks of Jellini, juggler, cause much laughter; the Hughes Brothers play football on cycles capitally, and the picture by the Empire Theatrescope is excellent.

PALACE THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—Jock Whiteford, Scotch comedian, pays his first visit here, and thoroughly delights his audience with his songs and drolleries; Bedini's Gordon Highlanders are a smartly drilled set of men who perform a complicated series of manœuvres with precision; Robins and Collier are very entertaining as The Lady and the Porter; Leslie's Comedy Cadets are highly diverting; Mr. E. is a pit-pat patterer with piquant points on pictures on the screen; and the Evalos are particularly smart in jugglery. The Two Kays appear in a vocal scena, The Cuckoo, and Raymond's Bio-tableaux amuse with The Electric Hotel.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. de Hague Body.—Her Road to Ruin, by Fredk. Melville's company, is the attraction this week. The arduous rôle of Jess is undertaken with complete success by Miss Beatrice Edwards; in her triple characters Miss Nellie Bonser displays considerable histrionic ability; a bright and pleasing actress is Miss Alice Bowes as May Willoughby; Mr. Hy. Wolston as Frank Temple is exceptionally good; a dignified cleric is Mr. Dane Clarke as the Bishop; the cynical polished villainy of Philip Hardy is ably portrayed by Mr. Alex. Bradley; and comic interludes by Mr. Harry Talbot (Billy) and Miss Marie Wright (Jennie) are greatly enjoyed. Mr. V. R. C. Moors (Tom Wells) and Mr. F. Powell (Chas. Cholomdley) creditably sustain their respective parts. The play is admirably staged.

BURY (Lancs.).—THEATRE ROYAL AND PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Acting-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—The Gay Gordons made their first appearance here on Monday. Peggy Quainton is played by Miss Maie Ash in a charming manner, and her efforts are ably seconded by Miss Nellie Lonnen as Victoria Siddons; Miss Ida Laurie successfully copes with the part of Charlotte Siddons; Glady Deane as Mary McLeod and Nora D'Esterre as Lady Millicent Graeme are both well suited; Mr. Frank Lincoln fully realises the requirements of the part of Angus Graeme; Mr. Tom Graves is capital as Nervy Nat; and a clever study of Edmund Siddons is submitted by Mr. Edward Nainby. The Jack McPrisky of R. H. Wallis is most amusing, his eccentric dancing being decidedly clever; Edward Beecher is a capable Andrew Quainton; and Norman Forrest shines as Corporal John Smith.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Acting-Manager, Mr. H. H Potter.—A good all-round bill is presented this week. A return visit is paid by Victor and Louis, who submit a smart burlesque; the Lyric Mummers are prominent as operatic duologue artists; further comedy is supplied by Cestria, an acrobatic waiter; a novel turn is that of the Florias, musical specialists, who also give a clever exhibition on the slack wire. Wonderful designs are quickly fashioned from paper by Mint and Mart. Other good turns are provided by Bradley, cycling Jew; Dan Fraser, comedian; Ray Ford, comedienne and dancer; Mozetto and Page, comedy jugglers; and the Ottograph films.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. J. S. Garner.—Beattie and Babs are first favourites in a good programme; Mack Ollive, with assistance from Miss Daisy Baldry, submits his whistling scena, "The Candy Store," in which he is very successful; a dramatic sketch by Will Letters and company, entitled The Protector, is followed with keen interest; Corporal Roberts, assisted by Curt and Alexander, is prominent; a pretty scena, entitled A Fruit Planter's Dream, for which Eilese and Henry de Lyle are responsible, is popular; and others adding to the evening's enjoyment are Horace Sade, dancer; Little Tichbourne, comedian; Mostol, in a musical act; A. H. Drinkwater, light comedian; and the Bioscope.

CAMBRIDGE. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—The term is drawing to an end. On Monday night Mr. Fred. Mouillot's company gave The Beloved Vagabond, the same being capitally staged. Mr. Arthur Royston was very fine as the Bohemian Gaston de Nerac; while Miss Nita Faydon gave admirable support as Blanquette de Veau, being charmingly natural; Mr. Ramsay Macbeth gave a first-class representation of Asticot; Mr. Warburton Gamble was a polished Comte de Verneuil; Miss Kitty Kenyon (Louisette), Miss Kathleen Harrington (Joanna Rushworth), Miss Edith Hunter (Lady Rushworth), Mr. Alfred Drayton (Lord Rushworth), and Mr. Arthur Linay (M. Dubois) render valuable assistance in an interesting performance. On Thursday and Friday, in celebration of Milton's Tercentenary, Mr. Ian Maclaren and a special company played Samson Agonistes.

CARDIFF.—NEW THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—A visit of one of Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is always acceptable here, and this week large audiences have welcomed Lady Frederick. Miss Mabel Love appears in the title-rôle, and submits a delineation which is appreciated at its full worth. The lovely dresses of this popular actress have been the cause of much comment. A delightful portrayal is given by Mr. Robert Minster, his witty and striking representation of Paradine Poulder being quite up to the standard of this gentleman's reputation; Mr. Patrick Quill as Sir Gerald O'Mara is quite the right man in the right place; as Lord Mereston, Mr. E. F. Meads is exceptionally good, filling the part with more than average ability; Admirable Carlisle is safely entrusted to the capabilities of Captain Gerald Gambier; while Mr. Edward Bonfield makes the most of his opportunities in the unpleasant rôle of Captain Montgomery; Miss Lynn Fontanne deserves praise for her pleasing rendition of Rose; and Miss Elsie Irving as Lady Mereston should be specially mentioned. The play is preceded by a capital curtain-raiser, entitled The Peacemaker, in which exceptionally good acting is displayed.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—Fred Karno's Football Match is the most laughable burlesque performance imaginable; and the eccentricities of Harry Weldon, as Stiffy, the goalkeeper, keep the house in high glee; those popular Welsh humorists, Ted and May Hopkins, are funnier than ever; the finest equestrian act ever seen here is that presented by Karl Reinsch, assisted by Miss Lucie, the dancing of the horses to music being simply marvellous; a distinctly high-class acrobatic performance is given by the Vetter Bros., each feat displaying extraordinary strength and precision; in the xylophone line, Baker and Balfe are undoubted experts; and Walter Munroe, Irish character comedian and dancer, is excellent. Sybil St. Elmo obtains considerable applause for her sweetly-rendered song; and Mazie Hibbs is a dancer of no mean skill. As usual, the American Bioscope concludes.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Under the Management of Mr. Rollo Balmain.—For the first time in Cardiff Mr. Montague Beaudyn and company present the interesting drama, The Power of a Wicked Woman. The piece is capitally acted throughout and exceptionally well staged. Mr. Beaudyn is easily distinguished for his impersonation of Philip Carey, the dignity and power of delivery making his performance most successful; Miss Irene Munro is to be congratulated upon her rendering of the all-important rôle of Helen Terraire, and too much praise cannot be accorded her; as Horace Winter, Mr. Gordon E. Kingsley is most effective; and Guy Oliphant is capably undertaken by Mr. Arthur Cresswell. The amusing Lord Arthur Dumley finds a creditable exponent in Mr. James Burt; Miss Gertrude Gilman is particularly charming as Denise Carey; and Nellie Montague is faithfully represented by Miss Cecilia Crawford. Wholesome comedy is cleverly put forward by Mr. Arthur Tomlin (Bransby), and Miss Phyllis Rae (Marie). The theatre has been well attended, and the production has been enjoyed by many.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Burton.—Treachery is the title of the entertaining sketch at the Palace this week, capitally put forward by Bernard Mervyn and Co. Second on the programme is the popular comedian, Nat Clifford, described as the "nimble one"; Chas. Banks is another fun-maker, who is, however, assisted by a clever dog; the Temples prove excellent and gifted vocalists; and the Sisters Brenton are pleasing singers and dancers. Others who contribute to the performance are Norah Desmond, in illustrated songs; and Eileen Douglas, musical comedy girl; with Raymond's Bio-tableaux to complete.

CARLISLE.—H.M. THEATRE.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—The Nihilist, a Russian drama, is full of dramatic situations. Mr. Joseph Millane, in the part of Ivan Nowasky, eclipses all his previous performances here by his clever handling of a difficult character. Also deserving of special mention is the Prince Alexander of Mr. Leo R. Neilson; Piertree Petoff is capitally played by Mr. O. Silverstone; and Mr. Cowell Clark does excellent work as Karl Orloff. Mr. Henry Wright,

About six weeks ago I was suffering with

PIMPLES

ALL OVER MY FACE.

I was also suffering with SCURF IN THE HAIR. Being rather alarmed, I asked a friend's advice, and he recommended me to take "Clarke's Blood Mixture." I purchased a 2/9 bottle, and within a week I found marked improvement. The pimples and the scurf is entirely gone. I cannot tell you how thankful I am at having taken "Clarke's Blood Mixture," and I shall recommend it to everybody, as I think it only right that such a remedy should be known.—(Signed) JOHN HENRY JONES, known as "Little Johnny," Llandudno's Popular Comedian, Thorndale, Llandudno, Feb. 24, 1908.

VANISHED LIKE MAGIC,

MR. JOHN HENRY JONES, (from a photo.).

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Morgan.—R. V. Morgan and company, in an electric transformation musical act, are very enjoyable; the Northern Troupe of dancers are again delighting with a bright and spirited performance; the titbit of the programme, however, is submitted by Cosgrave and Burns, a smart and clever couple who are thoroughly enjoyed; Harris and Worth are funny and entertaining; Morimura, conjurer, meets with a good reception; Fred Eric sings a couple of songs in quaint style; and Marie Ambrose also appears. The Pepiscope completes.

CASTLEFORD.—ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Cr. Hy. Masterman, J.P.—A strong attraction is being presented here in Why Men Love Women, as given by Miss Ellen Snow and company. A large audience again thoroughly enjoyed the performance. The part of Violet Livingstone is cleverly treated by Miss Ellen Snow, and her powerful and dramatic performance produces a deep impression on the audience; Gerald Fielding is played in excellent style by Mr. Oliver Rogers; Mr. Lionel Gadsden gives a realistic interpretation of the villainous doings of Captain Staniloff; Mr. Ernest Griffen submits a cleverly defined portrait of the Maharajah; and Lieut. Fitzherbert is portrayed with marked success by Mr. N. Carter Slaughter. The comic element is ably sustained by Mr. Howard Roberts and Miss Beresford-Glynn as Mr. and Mrs. Figgins and Misses Nita Owen and Freda Vaughan, all of whom succeed in getting as much laughter as possible out of their respective parts; Mr. W. Norman does capital work as the Rev. Arthur Gray, and Muriel receives effective treatment at the hands of Miss Florence Nelson; Mr. Fred West is good as Hassan.

QUEEN'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Proprietors, Messrs. Chas. Beanland and W. H. Emerson; General-Manager, Mr. Will. H. Emerson.—Topping the bill here are Stanley and Vandyke in their absurdity The Broken Promise, which causes roars of laughter from beginning to end; Walter Curtis, with his quaint and irresponsible humour, is another source of delight; a pretty and engaging song and dance artist is Miss Gladys Godwynne; Sim Maree is again cordially welcomed for a smart and clever turn as the indiarubber Mohammedan; Mr. Will Godwin is a vocalist whose songs are invariably to the tastes of the audience; Sira, a one-legged speciality artist, is excellent in every way; the Stebro Brothers work hard to please as vaulters and tumblers; the Sisters Russell (Ida and Lillie) are eminently successful as comedy duettists; Harold Heath fixes the attention of all with his songs and dances. The programme is brought to a satisfactory termination with excellent films projected by the Loyal Dominion Co.

CHATHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is here in Peter's Mother. Miss Violet Ley is in every way admirable as Lady Mary; Mr. Vivian Gilbert is excellent as Peter; Mr. Eille Norwood's John Crewys is a finished performance; Miss Hilda Sims shines as Sarah; and Mr. Townsend Whitling is a natural Sir Timothy; while much amusement is created by the Misses Mary Griffiths and Josephine Rae as Lady Belstone and Miss G. Crewys respectively.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—At the top of the bill here is Chas. R. Whittle, who has some capital songs; Thomas and Taylor display dexterity in their quick-change scena, Fun on the Midland; Phil Bransby delivers some well-written coster ditties in an amusing style; the Four Edmonds give a series of interesting reproductions of statues. The rest of the company are Bowern and Bardell, comedians and dancers; Hester Reeve, very pleasing in chorus songs; the Rose Trio of acrobats; and Queenie West, who has a flattering reception; while Lacey's Erascope has another new set of films.

CHELTENHAM.—OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—Miss May Palfrey and powerful company introduced Mrs. Dot on Monday to a delighted and crowded house. Miss Palfrey's study of the title-part is full of individuality, her style piquant and eminently natural. Mr. Hugh C. Buckler as Gerald Halstane is a capital example of mere man in an awkward and embarassing situation; Mr. F. Kinsey Peile's study of the plain-spoken bpt obliging James Blenkinsop is an admirable piece of quiet comedy; Mr. Basil Hallam plays the part of Freddie Perkins to perfection; Nellie Sellenger has a bright and girlish representative in Miss Evelyn Beaumont; Miss Aida Jenoure presents a realistic sketch as Lady Sellenger; Mrs. G. Kemmis gives a pleasingly subdued little study of Mrs. Dot's companion-relative, Miss Eliza Macgregor; and Charles is played with distinction by Mr. McIntyre Wicksteed.

CHESTER. — ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—Gerard, the herculean juggler, heads the bill this week; Walter Buxton is a good baritone; and the Maro Duo greatly amuse the audience with their eccentric triple-bar antics. The Rangers are expert cyclists; Nellie Moore is a clever character impersonator; and Ruby Bijou excels as a barefoot dancer. Sergeant Brennan, the world' champion diabolist, spins the reel with amazing deftness. Some good pictures by the Premier Imperial Biograph complete the programme.

CHORLEY (Lancs.).—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; 'Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Santé.—Mr. Edmund Tearle, supported by Miss Kate Clinton, and company, are here, and opened on Monday evening with Hamlet. Mr. Tearle gave a fine exposition of the title-rôle, and Miss Vera George submitted an admirable rendering of Ophelia. Mr. Fawcett Lomax was conspicuous as First Gravedigger, and the remainder of the cast was in capable hands. Other plays billed are Richelieu and The Merchant of Venice, in which the veteran Mr. Jonathan Dewhurst was announced to make his farewell stage performances, playing Richelieu and Shylock respectively.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Graham Macdona.—The proprietor's own company, in Are You a Mason? opened a week's engagement here on Monday. Mr. H. Langdon Bruce made a genuinely funny George Fisher; Mr. E. H. Paterson and Mr. Stanley Groome each took their respective parts of Amos Bloodgood and Frank Perry in clever fashion; Mr. Erskholme Clive made the most of Hamilton Travers, and the part of John Halton was eminently suitable to Mr. G. P. Polson. Miss Adelaide Grace imparted commendable austerity to the rôle of Mrs. Bloodgood, whose three pretty daughters were charmingly portrayed by the Misses Rita Narcelli, Rita Johnson, and Dulcie Verney; Miss Mary Kilpack adapted herself splendidly to the part of Lottie, and Miss Viola Garland was good as Mrs. Halton. The farce is preceded by Old Maid's Corner.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Colchester Hippodrome Co.; Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—The Seven Xentrix, in a vocal and dancing scena, are a success; M. and Mlle. Gaillard present the lion D'Artagnan and his companion, Chocolat, and the entertainment is a novel one; Dagmar and Clown are most welcome, the lady proving herself an accomplished artist on the horizontal bar and slack perpendicular rope; Arthur Hickham gives evidence of talent as a tenor; Hal Berte, comedian-contortionist, is highly diverting; Daisy Hicks goes well as a comedienne; and Ingram and Irving again present their comedy act, The New Office Boy. The management to-day (Saturday) inaugurate a series of Cinematinées at reduced prices.

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—Mr. W. Graham Arthurs' company is on a visit with The Mockery of Marriage. Mr. Graham Arthurs as Jack Stanley plays with skill; Mr. Ralph Armfield is a powerful Seth Pearse; Mr. Geo. Tempest a capital Sir Montague Jephson; and as Toby Wright Mr. Frank Masters is funny. Miss Mabel Liston, in the part of Alva Kenyon, proves herself a capable actress, and Miss Evelyn Hamilton is successful as Rose Verham.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. R. J. Bell.—Miss Loie Esmonde's company produced here on Monday night The Sorrows of Satan. Miss Loie Esmonde's Diana Chesney was a clever and well-sustained performance; Mr. Edward Neville, who appeared as Prince Lucio Rimanez, is an effective actor, and filled the part capitally. Other parts were capably represented by Mr. F. Douglas Howard, Mr. J. Le Fleming, Miss Hilary Burleigh, Mr. Claude Casey, and Miss Rosie Neville. The play was well mounted, and got a good reception. Nana is also in the répertoire.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Thomas F. O'Brien.—The Royal Tokio troupe of Japanese artists present thrilling feats on a triangular ladder, and are a clever lot of equilibrists; Miss Lina Leslie is a vivacious comedienne, and her songs are enjoyable; Mr. Arthur Holland, character vocalist, wins distinction; Mr. Randolph King in the turn, entitled "The One-Man Programme," proves an extremely clever comedian; the Sisters Dorrell are appreciated in their pretty songs and dances; the Three Donals' gymnastic performance is a revelation of the results of physical culture; Chrissie Cross sings and dances daintily; and the Two Macs prove themselves clever patterers and dancers. The Palacescope also contributes.

COVENTRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Bennett.—An excellent attraction is provided this week by Mr. Julius Booth, who presents Monte Cristo. Mr. Booth as Edmund Dantes earns the praise of everyone; Mr. Conrad Heywood gives an excellent impersonation of Nortier; Mr. C. W. Crowe is seen to advantage as Villefort; Mr. John Howden shows force of character as Fernand; Miss Celia Dare makes a charming Mercedes; Miss Alice West being successful as La Carconte.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. S. T. Newsome; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. G. Wright.—A good all-round programme put before the patrons this week includes the Seven Perezoffs in their juggling pantomime. Another excellent turn is given by the Narow Brothers, who give a wonderful performance on bicycles; a quartet of men who give no names gave a good comical turn for ten minutes. Other artists who appear during the evening are Rosie Lloyd, a very pleasing singer; Max Ritter and Grace Foster, eccentric dancers and comedians; Brayne and Lloyd, in an absurdity entitled The Tree of Truth; Pop Dearly, comedian coon; and Harry Goodburn.

THE EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Dance; Manager, Mr. K. Draco.—The chief item here is Joe Peterman's Singing Servants in some smart humorous songs; Brinn is again welcomed with his marvellous juggling act; Fyne and Hurley are a smart pair of comedians and patterers; Amy Russell gives some well-rendered songs; Starr and Leslie have a good Indian club show; H. E. High gives a clever exhibition on roller skates; and the Bioscope concludes.

CREWE.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. G. Dudley Bennett; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. Howard.—Walter Melville's company in The Soldier's Wedding is playing here this week. The piece is elaborately staged, horses, pigeons, ducks, fowls, and dogs being introduced. Mr. Wingold Lawrence makes a vigorous and manly Jack Brown; Mr. B. Whitcomb an excellent Colonel Graham; Mr. Gerald Jordan a powerful Charles Courtney; Mr. J. Chippendale is a favourite as Tommy Spratt; Mr. Fred Yarnold as Nathaniel Lee is a typical old farmer; Mr. Frederick Biron is well suited to the rôle of David Munroe; and Little Albert is a successful Teddy Munroe. Miss Dorothy Richardson wins golden opinions for her performance of Nancy Lee; Miss Marie McAulay is an earnest Julie; Miss Mabel Lowe a capital Peggy Munroe; and Miss Mattie Everett a bright and pleasing Lizzie Walker.

CROYDON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Manager, Mr. Roland Daniel; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest Archer.—Mr. Frank Curzon's excellent company in My Mimosa Maid is giving satisfaction at the Grand. Miss Marie Studholme is a host in herself as Paulette; Miss Eva Sandford makes a charming Popitte; Miss May Garstang is neat as Mme. de Pilaine; Miss Ruby Gray sings sweetly in the rôle of Marcelle Pilaine; and Misses Kitty Yarand, Hazel Adair, Avis Adair, Phil Gumpel, Nancy Keeley, Sybil West, Daisie Yole, and Florence Sinclaire are approved in minor rôles. Mr. Charles McNaughton works assiduously and receives a cordial reception as Victor Guilbert; Mr. Charles E. Paton submits a quaint impersonation of Max Guilbert; Master Archie McCaig does wonders with the rôle of Bock; Mr. Percy Carr sings to perfection as M. Emile Gerrard; Mr. Arthur Jackson is remarkably good as Grone; Mr. John H. Goldsworthy has a fine appearance as Captain Louis du Laurier; Mr. L. Winter is creditable as Lieut. Jean Courmander; Mr. Fred Gilbert is suitable as Henri; and Mr. Eliot Skinner is amusing as Boss.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Bell; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hal Cummings.—Mr. Andrew Melville's company is here with Driven from Home. Mr. Felix Pitt as Anthony Raybrook puts plenty of expression into the part; Walter Hatherleigh is well played by Mr. P. George Beresford; Mr. C. Burdon presents an able character sketch of Geoffrey Waring, Mr. Harry Cornwell as Jabez Thomas gives an admirable performance; Miss Jessie Yatman is winsome and attractive as Laura Raybrook, and as Walter Hatherleigh gives an excellent representation of a lad; Miss Lizzie Ingles is good as Barbara Ashdown; a hit is made by Mr. Fred C. Imbert in the part of John Anderson and Miss Emily Custance as Margaret Bailey, the comedy parts. Mr. Percy Dawson as Willie, an outcast, is clever; and mention must be made of Mr. Henry Helling as Adam Marley and Mr. E. Finley as Dick Saunders.

NEW HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Hersee.—Miss Helen Roberts in her Salome dances tops the bill. The applause which greeted her efforts was well merited. An excellent turn is provided by Rose Elliott, her songs being well received; Wee Mona Vivian, juvenile vocalist, is heartily received; praise is also due to Martene and Son, song illustrators; Tee and Tee, musical eccentrics; Walter Stanley, comedian; Helen Charles, entertainer at the piano; and the Pepiscope pictures.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley.—Mr. Harry Foxwell's company is this week producing A Broken Heart. Miss Sheila Walsh as Mary Barnard proves herself an admirable actress; John Barnard is ably impersonated by Mr. Harry Foxwell; Mr. Edward Rawlinson as Gash Gills makes a capital villain; the character of Stephen Railton is in the capable hands of Mr. Geo. Newall; and Miss Marguerite Thorne and Miss Daisy Rocheford are successful as Mrs. Barnard and Little Mary respectively. The comedy element is well sustained by Mr. Will Lindsay as Tibbets and Miss Dora Hargreaves as Sally Tavner. The remaining characters are all in excellent hands, and the play is efficiently mounted.

PALACE.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes.—Kurkamp, the original singing conductor, is the principal attraction here this week, and his songs, which are admirably rendered, gain him unstinted applause. A clever quick-change act is given by Marie Jones, who appears in a sketch entitled The Way to Win a Bet, in which she impersonates six of the characters, having a capable assistant in Ernest Munroe. The Toreadors create hearty laughter in their mimic bull-fight; Fred Casburn is a clever comedian and patterer; Angelina is a praiseworthy lady juggler; Francis Hanlon is a pleasing comedienne and dancer; Cara Magda is a creditable lady gymnast; and the Bioscope adds a series of up-to-date and amusing films.

DEVONPORT.—THEATRE METROPOLE.—Manager, Mr. G. S. King.—Devonport on Monday received its long-anticipated visit from the Moody-Manners Operatic company, and a splendid house assembled to witness Madame Butterfly. Miss Enriqueta Crichton undertook the title-rôle, and her singing quite captivated the audience; Mr. Charles Carter as the lieutenant made the most of the many advantages the part furnishes to a fine tenor; Miss Emma Dennis's contralto voice was heard to advantage in the vocal numbers falling to the part of Sasuki; and Mr. Marshall Vincent was excellent as the Consul. On Tuesday Faust was presented. The remaining pieces presented have been Maritana, Carmen, The Bohemian Girl, and Lohengrin.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—Richard Corbin's performing dogs are starred for the week; Lena Shirley and Claude Anderson furnish some attractive excerpts from grand opera; Dave Austin and Robert Harcourt present an amusing duologue entitled His Wedding Morning; and the Fordyces give a capable exhibition of trick dancing; Albert Wyndham and company work hard in their sketch, entitled Cæsar's Trust; Clark's Nippers are accomplished jugglers; and Tom Leo proves a popular comedian. The remaining turns are supplied by Little Frankie, the Highland Laddie, and the Arthur Gallimore Trio.

DOVER.—ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor Mr. S. W. Winter; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. W. Holford.—A good programme is opened by the Rica Trio, agile and graceful lady acrobats; Constance Mori is a well-dressed and dainty comedienne; the Godfreys give a very amusing musical turn; and the smartness of the Rizarelis' work on the revolving trapeze evokes rounds of applause. An entertaining little sketch entitled Binks' Blunder is capitally acted by Harry Russell and company; the patter of Crogie, the character countryman, is humorous in the extreme, and his "Oldest inhabitant" song is also exceedingly well done; Ben Hur arouses much interest by his marvellous powers of weight-lifting; and very amusing are the efforts of the competitors in the sack-lifting competition he has organised. Polly's Excursion and a film illustrating the life of Ben Hur are shown on the Hippodrome Bioscope.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Lessees, The Vaudeville Syndicate; Manager, Mr. Fred Holt.—That favourite comedian Fred Southern is with us again, this week producing a dramatic episode entitled The Poacher's Wife. He is excellently supported by Miss May Emery and company. A boxing exhibition is always popular in this town, and Lance-Corporal Baker, light-weight champion of 1908, has been accorded a hearty reception at each house; while Sergt. Maynard, N.F., also comes in for a good share of applause. She Would Sing, an amusing duologue, is crisply enacted by Mark and May Milton; Earl and Godfrey win considerable success as comedians, harmonising vocalists, and dancers; Mamie Morris is a sweet-voiced singer, and Tina Frank a fascinating comedienne. The Bioscope pictures conclude.

DUBLIN.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mrs. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Hyland.—A large and enthusiastic audience was present on Monday night to witness the first production here of Mr. W. Kingsley Tarpey's play, Windmills, as presented by Miss Horniman's excellent company. Mr. Henry Austin as Sir Henry Pennefeather gave a capital rendering; Miss Ada King was most sympathetic and interesting as Lady Pennefeather; Mr. Lewis Casson as the Hon. Phillip Wykeham displayed his customary artistic ability; as Evelyn Rivers Miss Hilda Bruce Potter was admirable; the part of Spencer Goldthwaite Pennefeather was cleverly enacted by Mr. Basil Dean; Miss Penelope Wheeler was all that could be desired as Cora Moberley; Mr. Charles Bibby acquitted himself well as Inspector Bolt; and equally satisfactory work is added by Mr. Edward Landor as Sergeant Fell. Miss Darragh as Lady Mabel Wriothesley, and Mr. Jules Shaw as Mr. Moberley. The play was preceded by the amusing comedy The Dear Departed, in which the Misses Thorndike and Holbrook and Mr. Mudie successfully appeared. Widowers' Houses and The Devil was Ill are also announced.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—Two big houses welcomed the re-opening of the Hippodrome season here on Monday, when Mr. and Mrs. Bob Fitzsimmons made their début in Ireland in a sketch entitled A Man's a Man for a' That, and met with a flattering reception. A prominent feature of the programme is the Ten Dark Knights, American coloured comedians, vocalists, and dancers, whose turn is loudly applauded; James Callahan and Jenny St. George, presenting their musical character classic, score a distinct success; a hit has also been made by Fritz von Liston for his clever imitations of birds and beasts; Albert Bellman and Lottie Moore, American comedy artists, provide an acceptable turn; Irma Orbassany's cockatoos give a clever and interesting performance; Ronald Bagnal, society entertainer, is very well received; and the cinematograph completes an excellent bill of fare.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. W. S. Pearce; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Hereford Jones.—There is an entire change of programme here this week. The new films, which are both amusing and entertaining, are as follows:—The Bargee's Daughter, The Round Table, We Are So Fond of Onions, Saved by Telegraphic Code, The Commander's Revenge, The Arrested Tricar, My Sweetheart's Birthday, A Fortunate Accident, A Perfect Nuisance, and The Blackleg, &c. The variety turns contributing are:—Harlin and Hanlon, society entertainers, the Sisters Duggan, traditional Irish step dancers, and Bob Pearson, humorist and guide.

EMPIRE. — General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—The centre of attraction here this week are the Elliott Savonas in their delightful musical act, The Palace of Orpheus, which is cheered to the echo; Lambert and Robinson present an amusing sketch entitled Scots Folks Wooing, which creates roars of laughter; and Miss Nellie Bly, a dainty comedienne, is popular in all parts of the house. Huxter Brothers submit a wonderfully smart jumping act, and Campkin gains many a laugh as a tramp cyclist. Carl Howard gives an amusing and clever conjuring turn, and Miss Winnie Travers sings her songs in taking style. Harry Lawson proves himself a capital comedian, and the Empire pictures are, as usual, interesting.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—Mlle. Naveeda, in a marvellous illusion act, holds premier position here this week, and is accorded a good reception; Pichel and Scale give a side-splitting comedy acrobatic act, and Mlle. Renee is both clever and entertaining as an instrumentalist; the Trentanovi Sisters, in a charming transformation gymnastic act, are warmly applauded, and Dan Rolans renders several songs which gain him approval; Kendrick and Laura, society entertainers, meet with success, as does also Mlle. Ameda, hand and foot equilibrist; the Sisters Brookland are pleasing comediennes and dancers, and Tom Joy, comedian, creates much hilarity with his funny songs; and the Bioscope depicting The Ragpicker Caricaturist concludes.

DUDLEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—Mr. Harry Benet's company in Sergeant Brue is amusing Dudley playgoers this week. Mr. Denis Lyndon in the title-rôle gives an excellent rendering that is brimful of humour; Michael Brue is ably represented by Mr. Lister Morrah, a good-voiced tenor who is appreciated; Mr. Benet, in the arduous character of Crookie Scrubbs, gives an original and energetic rendering; Miss Daisy Dale as Aurora Brue is pretty and pleasing; and Miss Ray Anderson is sufficiently dignified and graceful as Lady Bickenhall.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. H. Waters.—An interesting and clever turn is that of the four Mexican lariat manipulators and lasso wonders, who are both charming and skilful. The Six Lancashire Lasses are well applauded for their songs and dances; the Two Rubies, duettists and dancers, are bonny and brisk; Enzer and Clarice in their unique speciality are accomplished; Fremel and Fremel, original eccentrics, are responsible for a comedy and acrobatic performance of premier quality; and Hemsley and Ambrose create a deal of fun in their motor-car. Bert and Say, the Curate and the Slavey, are good, as also is George Edney, character vocalist.

DUNDEE.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—Mr. W. W. Kelly's company in The New East Lynne is playing to good houses here. As Lady Isabel Miss Marion Lind gave a powerful conception; another telling performance was that of Mr. Frederick Harker as Archibald Carlyle; the villainous Francis Levison was admirably rendered by Mr. W. H. Garbois; the comicalities of Mr. Richard Nugent as Murty O'Flynn were hugely enjoyed; Mr. Byron Pedley was an amusing Mr. Dill; Miss Josephine Gwinne a delightful Barbara; Miss Guinevere Shilton cleverly doubled the parts of Afy and Joice Hallijohn; Miss Sophy Shenton played with incisiveness as Cornelia Carlyle; and the child part was very creditably interpreted by Miss Doris Denville.

PALACE THEATRE. — Lessees, the United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. S. McIntosh.—At the top of the bill are Charles Frazer and company in their sparkling comedy illusion, The Enchanted Iona, in which they introduce some very enjoyable comedy business. The Geretti Sisters give a daring performance on the double trapeze; the Bros. St. Clair are intensely amusing as comedy knockabout cyclists, their football match on bicycles creating much enthusiasm; Ryan and Hall are diverting comedy acrobats; Alex. B. Thorne is a clever Scotch comedian; the Three Sisters Lee, singers, dancers, and acrobats, present a remarkably good turn; the Three Orleans are neat dancers; and Johnny Holland and company score a big success in their laughable sketch, My Friend Boots. The Palascope, with Scenes on the Riviera and several other attractive films, completes.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee, Mrs. Lillie Williams; Licensee and Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts; Business-Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—Mrs. Lillie Williams' gorgeous pantomime Robinson Crusoe is beating all records at this popular house. Miss Amy Randolph (Crusoe) and Miss May Carter (Polly) have made tremendous hits. Miss Dora Lindsay (Fairy Pearl) is also a warm favourite. The comedians, Mr. Fred Davies (Will Atkins), Mr. J. Telly Dillsen (Mrs. Crusoe), Mr. Brete Harte (Emperor), and Justin and Martell, the knockabouts, have introduced new business, and the whole production now goes with a fine swing from start to finish. Several new dances have also been introduced by those charming and sprightly damsels the Dixie Girls, who have set the town talking with their excellent singing and dancing. Among the new variety items are the Peps, who prove gymnasts of a particularly clever order. On Wednesday evening the performance was under the distinguished patronage and presence of Lord Provost Urquhart, Mrs. Urquhart, and the magistrates of the city, the entire receipts of the two houses (without any deduction whatever) being very kindly handed over by Mrs. Lillie Williams to the fund in aid of the unemployed of the city.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. Lillie Williams; Business-Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—The Prince Edward Pictures are drawing huge crowds to this cosy house. A very fine dramatic film is Sherlock Holmes, The Artist and the Model rouses much applause, while amongst the comic pictures are Tommy and his Pranks, Knock Me on the Head, &c. The varieties include Elsie Earle, who is an established favourite with Dundonians; Lily Dunne, a fine chorus singer; and Tukio, a Japanese mimic of ability.

NEWMAN'S PICTURE PALACE.—Mr. Fred Newman has another very attractive programme here this week. Amongst the films shown are The Poacher's Crime, Nick Carter, For Daddy's Sake, By a Woman's Wit, A Wife's Honour, Smiling Faces, and The Architect's Apprentice. A long and exciting film entitled A Fisherman's Hate proved quite a feature of the entertainment. A very enjoyable variety turn is contributed by Arthur Bright, a smart player on the Milanese pipe.

EASTBOURNE. — PIER PAVILION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. Herbert Greville and his company are appearing here in Merely Mary Ann. Mr. Paul Loyett, earnest and picturesque, is entirely successful as Lancelot, the composer; Mr. Stanley Logan is a particularly pleasing, refined, and natural Peter; Mr. Herbert Greville works hard and exceNently as Samuel Smedge; and Mr. Richard Sullivan does capital duty as Lord Tottenham. To Miss Violet Greville must be accorded unstinted praise for her able work as the lodging-house keeper, Mrs. Leadbatter; Miss Florence Radcliffe is very clever as Rosie; Miss Lester Stephen is a graceful, aristocratic Lady Chalmer; Miss Enid Hall and Miss Vere Lisle are very capable as the Sisters Tripett; and satisfactory duty is done by Miss Jessica Solomon as Mary Ann.

DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Murray King and Clark.—A very able company is appearing here this week in Amasis. Mr. W. H. Denny as Pharaoh keeps the house in excellent humour with his clever work generally; Mr. Edward McKeown sings and acts with taste and refinement as Cherio; Mr. J. Hawkes is a distinctive High Priest; Mr. Frank Attree, cleverly made up, is invaluable as Ptolemy; Mr. Walter H. Brodie is an energetic and amusing Sebak; and Mr. Frank Wood sings admirably as Psamtik. A fine performance is given by Miss Mabel Burnage, who as Princess Amasis sings admirably; Miss Mabel Lovett is a bright and interesting Natis; and a particularly efficient chorus includes much vocal ability and many handsome ladies. Mr. Ernest Hurman is the musical conductor.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; District-Manager, Mr. George Egbert; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Holloway.—Heading the bill here this week is Mr. Luis Hardt, who in a tasteful and elaborate scene introduces in a novel manner a first-class "strong-man" turn; Hampton and Bauman have an original and nicely-staged act, which is well received; Miss Eva Lumley and Miss Freda Ettrick's company do capital work in a sketch, Jimmy All-of-a-twist; the Gascoignes are smart jugglers and balancers; Miss Estrella is a pretty and dainty international dancer; Mr. Carl Colyer is a funny comedian and good dancer; the Sisters Du Cane are tuneful vocalists and neat dancers; Beale and Broadway sing and dance well; and new films are shown. A picture matinée is given every Saturday.

ECCLES.—CROWN THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs W. H. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. Albert Rogers.—Billy Williams is the centre of attraction; Lockhart's elephants are clever; the Wakeman Quintette submit a good performance; Frank Sley and his Nipper dance cleverly; Jack Waller gives a good account of himself; Cecilia Gold proves a dainty burlesque artist; the Three Alskarnos are unique; Jack Truman, tenor, appears with success; and the L.V.O. Trio, Elvis, Ross, and Elvis, in Those Troublesome Slaveys, cause roars of laughter; Pat O'Connor, comedian and dancer, pleases; and the Mysterious Parcel is depicted on the Bioscope.

EDINBURGH.—ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—The D'Oyly Carte principal répertoire opera company began a fortnight's engagement here on Monday, with an excellent performance of The Mikado, which, after the lapse of a quarter of a century, still retains undiminished its old power to charm and amuse. Mr. Fred Billington was in his familiar part of Pooh-Bah, which he played and sang in his own inimitable style; Mr. Charles R. Wallen did every justice by his dry humour and clear enunciation to the character of Koko; and Nanki-Poo was in the capable hands of Mr. Stafford Moss, whose fine tenor voice and natural acting invested the rôle with much distinction. Mr. Leicester Tunk's impersonation of the Mikado was striking, picturesque, and musically satisfying; Miss Clara Dow was decidedly successful as Yum-Yum, her beautiful singing and graceful acting being much admired; while Miss Beatrice Meredith as Pitti-Sing and Miss Mabel Graham as Peep-Bo completed the charming trio of three little maids, whose tuneful singing brought down the house. Miss Ethel Morrison as Katisha was strong, dramatically and vocally; and the parts of Pish-Tush and Go-To were played in an admirable manner by Mr. Sydney Granville and Mr. Fred Drawater respectively. The chorus put in some really admirable work, and the orchestra backed them up sympathetically and well. Encores were numerous, several of the airs having to be repeated in response to enthusiastic applause. The Gondoliers, Patience, H.M.S. Pinafore, and After All have been given during the week.

KING'S THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Amand Mascard.—Miss Margaret Cooper, the charming vocalist and pianist, is paying a return visit here this week, and is arousing the customary enthusiasm by her dainty, finished rendering of clever songs; Miss Jean Macduff, a Scottish comedienne, makes a successful appearance, and gives pleasure by her bright, amusing style; Miss Peggy Lyndon is loudly recalled for an admirable musical act; and Mr. Michael Kemble receives a similar mark of favour for his cultured singing of several difficult solos. The Nassaus, in their exposition of "mental telepathy," display marvellous powers. The lady, seated blindfolded on the stage, describes not only articles shown to Mr. Nassau by members of the audience, but gives names of friends of whom various persons are thinking, and the country in which they reside. A drawing-room comedietta, A Capital Joke, is pleasantly acted by Mr. Nicol Pentland and Miss Annie Lloyd; Ross and Grayson provide a distinctly exhilarating sketch, in which surprising piano-playing is given by the gentleman; Mr. G. W. Hunter, the veteran comedian and story-teller, is in capital form; and the Bioscope shows one or two films of dramatic interest.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Aynsley Cook.—Selections from Cavalleria Rusticana are well sung by La Scala Opera Company, which includes Mrs. Arthur Rousby, Mr. Edward Arthur, Mr. Leslie Austin, and Miss Alice Réné; and in quite another vein F. W. Purcell's company are immensely successful with the comedietta That Brute Simmons, the cast comprising Mr. Julian Cross, Mr. George Delaforce, and Miss Oliph Webb. The Gaudsmidt acrobats, with their wonderful black poodles, create a furore; the Dumond Trio of vocalists and instrumentalists give a pleasing musical mélange, entitled Parisian Street Singers; and the Mayvilles repeat their popular performance as Lilliputian novelty artists. The well-known American entertainer, Charles T. Aldrich, is singularly happy in his lightning changes and intensely funny burlesques of magicians and jugglers; Charles Vincent is a comedian that the audience would willingly recall ad infinitum; Marie Chisold pleases with illustrated chorus songs; Victor

POST EARLY,

Travers is an exceedingly lithe and nimble humorist; and the American Bioscope Pictures include the newest films.

COOKE'S ROYAL CIRCUS.—Proprietor, Mr. John Henry Cooke; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. C. Burns.—In addition to many excellent equestrian turns contributed by Messrs. Leicester, Alfred Cooke, Stephenson, Douglas Cooke, and Guttenberg, the droll interludes of Talberto, Comical Walker, Shadow, and Pugh supply admirable fooling; Fee Lung and Chung La make a mirthful appearance as Chinese eccentrics; and an amusing sketch, entitled The Mesmerist, is well played by Miss Telma and Mr. H. Groves. Miss Ernestine Rosa Cooke is seen in an interesting series of poses, illustrating classical statuary; the Laurie Brothers give a clever acrobatic display; Globella's performance on the animated snowball shows great dexterity; Ethardo, Pugh, and Olrac present the American trampoline; nearly the whole strength of the company is compressed into Rustic Revels in the Hay Cart; and the Orient Life Motion Pictures wind up good programme.

EXETER. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Messrs. Edward Lloyd and Frank Adair's company in Man to Man is drawing large and appreciative houses. All the parts are in capable hands, and especially commendable is the acting of Mr. Adair as the villain Richard Ellerton. Mr. Lloyd as George Gordon makes an excellent hero; Miss Louie Adair easily gains the sympathies of the audience by her charming manner as the heroine Ethel Maythorne; Mr. Wilfred Beckwith is decidedly good as the Mad Parson. The other parts are well sustained by Messrs. H. Bruce Williams, Clifford Bown, and the Misses Phyllis Oakeley and Evelyn Warde.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Fred Karno and A. H. Edwards; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frederick Sandy.—The principal feature of this week's bill is the performance of Master Max Darewski, the boy composer and conductor, who is enthusiastically applauded; the singing of Wills and Mackenzie in a musical sketch is decidedly good; Nellie Ridgway gives a novelty act on the tight wire which is well received. The Hippodrome pictures complete an excellent programme, which also includes the O'Gorman Brothers, Fred Poplar, and Kitty Wager.

FALKIRK.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE, —Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace W. Ebbutt.—This week sees a return to variety business at the Falkirk playhouse. The star is Miss Dinah Morris, who presents her sketch, A Village in Dahomey, assisted by a large company; Alix Lukos gives some fine impersonations of celebrities; Burke, Andrus, and Frisco furnish an enjoyable turn; and other artists include George Reeves (comedian), Burnett and Stirling (American comedians), Fred Collins (Scotch comedian), and Eva Webb (kaleidoscopic dancer).

FARNWORTH.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. T. Morton Powell.—This week we are having a visit from Messrs. A. Northway and W. V. Garrod's company in The Prodigal Parson. Mr. Logan Darra as the Rev. Tom Godley proves himself a capable actor; Mr. C. Ashwell as Enoch Jaggins acts the part in just the right spirit; Ben Jaggins finds a worthy exponent in Mr. W. Vincent; Mr. Owen Redmond as Phil Drive gives a capital performance; Miss Hammersley as Fern Godleigh acts with distinction and grace; and Miss Alice Buckland as Mrs. Phil Drive is all that could be desired.

FOLKESTONE. — PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—The Girl I Love is presented here for the week by Hardie and Von Leer's company. The leading part of Phillip Dunree is rendered in a masterly manner by Mr. E. Howard Templeton; and Miss Katherine Clarke as Nancy Nollid (a London Bohemian) is all that could be desired, her graceful acting being greatly appreciated. The part of Little Jack is cleverly rendered by that charming little actress Miss Bertha Hanbury. Excellent comedy is provided by Mr. Charles V. Sandford as Frank Sudley (a medico), and Mr. Harry C. Morton as Timothy Parkins (a gentleman's gentleman), ably assisted by Miss Laura Dyson as Daisy Virgina Carlotta; Mr. Herbert Leonard calls for special notice as Jake Long, the cowboy sheriff, and Miss Ida Millais comes in for her share of praise as Dorothy Marlow (an heiress); Mr. Clinton Baddeley makes a fine villain as a U.S. cavalry officer; and the part of Myama (a Chiquito Indian girl) is well portrayed by Miss Isobel de Cressé, a young actress of great promise.

GAINSBOROUGH.—EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Gainsborough Empire Syndicate.—The principal item of this week's bill is a condensed dra a, entitled A Son's Devotion, by Mr. Edward Ranier's company. Mr. Ranier gives a good rendering of Eric Farnham, and he is well supported by Messrs. Aldworth, Gregory, Pitt, and Misses J. Tooney, Hayward and Wells. Jean Seul, an Indian mystifier, gives a good item; the Leno Bros. also appear; and some good pictures complete the bill.

GATESHEAD. — KING'S THEATRE. — Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager and Licensee, Mr. Harold Arnold.—Mr. Harry Roxbury is producing the pantomime of Mother Goose here. Mr. Roxbury in the part of Mother Goose is conspicuously successful; Miss Maud Prenton is a dashing Colin, her vocalism being acceptable; Miss Lily Palmer is a charming Jill; a very humorous delineation of Jack emanates from Mr. J. W. Gallagher; Mr. Fred Hutchings ably represents Muggles; and specialities are introduced by Towyn Thomas's Royal Welsh Entertainers, Sydney T. Russell's Four Sydney Girls, and the Miltons, a pair of clever skaters. The book and lyrics are by Miss Vashti Wynne and the music by Messrs. Francis W. Knowles and H. Neil Vernon.

GLASGOW.—KING'S, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Macfarlane.—Mr. M. Russell Rosse is presenting Mr. David James and company in a revival of Caste. Mr. James gives a vivid portrayal of old Eccles; and Miss Ida Chapman as Esther, his lovable daughter, is simply charming. The lively Polly Eccles has a spirited representative in Miss Helena Parsons; and her admirer, Sam Gerridge, is ably handled by Mr. George Mudie, jun. The dignified Captain Hawtrey is finely played by Mr. Tom Taylor-Vinson; and George D'Alroy is excellently interpreted by Mr. James Gelderd. The aristocratic Marquise de St. Maur is grandly portrayed by Miss Gertrude Le Sage.

ROYALTY, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Carpenter.—Mr. Lawrence Brough and his company are paying a welcome return visit with The Lady of Ostend. The Baron de Longueville of Mr. Lawrence Brough is a clever interpretation, and receives well-merited applause. Dick Whortles is ably handled by Mr. Aubrey Cheshire; Mr. Percy Marshall gives a sound performance as Joseph Carbury; James has an able exponent in Mr. Harry Collier; Mr. Tom Mowbray gives a realistic impersonation of Toby Knockitt; Miss Betty Park prettily portrays Dorothy Whortles; and the Matilda Carbury of Miss Bessie Harrison and the Millie Grace of Miss Alice Leigh are carried out in a finished manner. Miss Edith Adeson does good work as Jane; and Mr. W. Mayne Lynton appears quite at home as Thompson. The comedy is preceded by the Irish play, At the Rising of the Moon.

METROPOLE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—Mr. Morton Powell's company present The Woman Who Gambles, a play of a very stirring character. Mr. Clifford Rean as the Count is in a great measure responsible for the spirit which characterises the whole production; Miss Laura Walker as the Countess shows much histrionic ability, her acting in the subdued pathetic parts being tasteful and cultured; Mr. Norman A. Overton as the scheming Baron Cratzlaw gains a large share of the honours, his acting being strong and impressive; Mr. Reginald Fox as Karl gives a pleasing performance, being particularly effective in his heroic passages; Mr. Ernest H. Clarke as Stambuloff (chief of police) is admirably fitted for the part; the comedy business is well looked after by Mr. Victor T. Raymond as the Hon. Bertie Bray, and Miss Brenda May as Zanetta (maid to the Countess), Miss E. Conway as Cora Gouldhart, and Miss Lily Malvern as Stella Malakoff, make good appearances, a remark which may be applied to the whole cast. The production was greatly appreciated by crowded houses.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—Miss Ada Frank's company, in A Fight for Life, provide an excellent evening's enjoyment here. As Count Adrian Mr. Courtney Robinson makes an impressive figure, and two clever impersonations are the Adell of Miss Rose Woodhall and the Marie of Miss Lena Lewis. Mr. Wm. Matthews acts well as the brutal Carlos Cardell; and a strong contrast is afforded in the Jean Cardell of Mr. Clifton Earle, a clever and pathetic impersonation. Mr. Dan Ryan is a lively and humorous Dan Murphy; and his sweetheart Suzanne is acted with lively grace by Miss Ada Frank. Mr. Templar Ellis gives a clever sketch of the miser Ferraud; Miss Florence M. Daly is duly vindictive as the gipsy La Cardell. The play is well staged.

EMPIRE.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Manners.—Jack Pleasants is starring here, and in "Arabella" and other ditties he gets many hearty laughs. The Five Mowatts give a smart display of club juggling; F. W. Purcell's company submit a realistic Sicilian "shocker" in What Women Do for Men; Goggin and Davis are a couple of versatile comedy acrobats, and their turn takes well; Master Edward Frisby contributes several well-rendered songs; Leo Stormont gives a baritone song and a "fair trado" recitation. The Three Sisters Jerome take well in a novel comedy turn; and Gwyer and Valli appear in an eccentric American act. Margaret Rae is a 'celloist and vocalist of much merit; the juggling turn of Joe Almasio and his comic assistant is very good; and the Bioscope concludes.

ZOO-HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Councillor E. H. Bostock; Assistant-Manager, Mr. E. H. A. Bostock.—Machnow, the Russian giant, a veritable Goliath in stature, pays a return visit to the city. On the production of My Lady Betty Frank Elliston and company are to be complimented. It is a clever comedy episode, capitally performed. The Musical Schafers are responsible for an excellent instrumental entertainment, which is novel and highly amusing; Devon and Earle can be classed amongst the smartest double dancing turns on the boards; the Four Panamas are also on a return visit, and provide a good turn, their tumbling being the feature of their work; in a clever equilibristic and acrobatic performance the Paul Hesse Trio are seen to advantage; Jack Hylton is an amusing comedian; Bill Walters appears in a musical medley, interspersed with ventriloquism; and Cameron Matthews and company produce a comedy sketch, The Honeymoon Baby. The Bioscope films include the Wright Aeroplane and other subjects of general interest.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Evan Good.—The appearance of Mme. Albani on the stage of the Pavilion has been looked forward to with great interest. The distinguished vocalist has been accorded a hearty reception. Mme. Albani sang Mozart's "Non Temer," and several Scotch and other ballads. The company is very strong otherwise. Miss Florrie Forde, with her new waltz-song, "Only a dream," and the popular "Oh! Antonio!" is a great favourite; Julian Mack again proves himself a clever patterer; Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Lucas give their artistic selection from "Martin Chuzzlewit"; Coram is a ventriloquist of much more than average ability, and gets a great reception; the Smart Set contribute a smart and well-diversified entertainment; the Soho Trio, in song and dance, take well; and the Tennessee Guards appear in a military songscena. Herr Zakovsky, violin virtuoso, contributes several finely-played solos, and accompanies Mme. Albani in some of her operatic selections, the piano accompaniments being rendered by Mr. Victor Marmont.

PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Rich. Waldon; General-Manager, Mr. Harry M'Kelvie.—The principal attraction here this week is found in Jack and Evelyn, in their popular comedy act, Come Into My Office. There was a large attendance on the opening night, and the applause with which their efforts was greeted was fully justified. Mooney and Holbein are seen in an original comedy sketch, which also proved very entertaining. The other items are well sustained by Lilian Lowe, a charming soprano vocalist; Arthur Slater, a high-class whistling artist; Roy Beavis, expert conjurer; Gladys and Alber, comedy duettists and acrobats; Tim O'Connor, comedian and dancer; Rene, lady conjurer; Joe Conway, eccentric comedian; and the Bioscope, with a series of interesting pictures.

GAIETY, LTD. — General-Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—Mr. Fred Maitland heads the bill here with a political oration, frequently interrupted by a suffragette colleague from a box. The Sisters Belmont pay a return visit, and are popular; Cissie Norton makes a neat appearance in her male impersonations; Flo Leo-Ville is responsible for a sleight-of-hand turn, which is amusing; and Guy Ryder takes exceedingly well in his whistling operatic selections. The Bioscope shows well-selected films.

PANOPTICON.—Proprietor, Mr. A. E. Pickard.—The Farrows are comedy artists of a high order; and Brown and Benson clever gymnasts. Bob Lyons renders a good comedy song; Ina Black is a soprano vocalist of no mean ability; the Bioscope, with a capital series of pictures, causes no end of merriment; and the many other attractions in the Panopticon are well patronised.

GLOSSOP. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Doctor Walford Bodie is the leading attraction here this week. His bloodless surgery, assisted by clever manipulation of electricity, is wonderful indeed, and his hypnotic display creates endless amusement. The other items include Bella Skene, actress and vocalist; Will Gatling, comedian; little Dolly Robson, described as "one of Dr. Bodie's cures"; Francisco, equilibrist and juggler; Nellie Lindsay, ballad vocalist; and the Three Delaries, in The Demon Grotto.

GLOUCESTER. — PALACE.—Owners, Messrs. Poole's Theatres, Ltd.; Director, Mr. C. W. Poole. —Tom Costello tops the list, and goes well in new and old favourites; the Ettenas, on the rolling-globe, are clever; and Mr. Harry Conlin is the cause of hearty laughter with song and patter. Baroux and Bion are skilful comedy acrobats; Albert Letine is a good female impersonator; a smart pair of gymnasts are found in Morander and Darius; Miss Rosie Coleman sings and dances effectively; Alice May and company in farce, Tranquillity, are amusing; and the Palacescope concludes.

KING'S HALL.—Good business continues at this animated picture show run by Messrs. Poole.

GOOLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr Fred Greaves.—A capital programme is again presented here by the Franco-British Filmograph Company. The pictures are new and varied. Les Riscos, eccentric trick cyclists, keep the house in roars of laughter; and La Belle Mayo, comedienne and dancer, meets with equal success.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Mr. Horace Stanley's company in Guilty Gold is occupying the boards here this week. Mr. T. Arthur Plummer is very good as Harold Elmore; Mr. Horace Stanley keeps the house in roars of laughter as Septimus Sweet; Mr. Fred Wilberforce is good as Ralph Bartlett; Miss Cora Linda gives a sympathetic rendering of the dual rôle, the twin sisters Middleton; Miss Josephine Lee depicts the adventuress Rhoda Hampton realistically; and Mr. J. W. Henson gives a clever portrayal of John Middleton.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. George Gilbert. —Datas, the Memory Man, is very popular; the Norman and Leonard Trio appear in a clever musical turn; J. H. Milburn's songs are much applauded; Miss Ohmy is an expert equestrienne; Taylor and Bridge, the mill lads, have excellent voices; Master Claude is clever on the rolling globe; De Lilo and Metz are entertaining as comedy jugglers; Doodles is funnier than ever, and this week is displaying ability as a bare-back rider; the Lovelaces' illustrated songs are well received; and excellent pictures are shown on the Bioscope.

THE GEM.—Lessees, the Yarmouth Amusement Centre, Ltd.; Resident-Director, C. B. Cockran.—An excellent dramatic, comic, and picturesque set of pictures is being shown here. The illustrated song "You're my girl in the springtime" is nightly received with great applause.

GREENOCK. — ALEXANDRA THEATRE, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—Mr. John Clyde and company are still here, and this week are presenting the romantic domestic drama Lost in London to good houses. Mr. John Clyde is seen to advantage as Joe Armroyd; Miss Ella Sennett skilfully sustains the part of Nelly; and a lengthy cast also includes Mr. D. Blair, Mr. Edward Valentine, Mr. T. Good, Mr. Macintosh Clyde, Mr. G. Fortune, Mr. Flintmore, Miss Lena Levenston, and Miss Belle Cecil. The Irish Doctor precedes as a curtain-raiser.

EMPIRE.—Lessees, the Greenock Empire Syndicate; Responsible-Manager, Mr. Edward McCormick; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. J. Colquhoun.—An excellent company is headed by Mike S. Whallen, whose animated patter and clever extempore business are productive of much merriment; Morny Cash is also to the front with his usual success; some clever knockabout business is introduced by Foy Bros. and company in their absurdity, The Tea House; or, Pat in China; and we are further entertained by Frances McNulty, character change artist; Leah Arden, refined vocal comedienne; Herne and Palmer, a pair of clever acrobats; and Mme. D. Aubyn, a pleasing vocalist.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry L. Skivington.—The bill for the current week includes Miss Georgette Thierry's company in an admirably-acted sketch, The Daughter of the Revolution, which is well received; Howard and St. Clair have a good speciality, Tricks of the Trade; Henri Cazman is an entertainer whose efforts are applauded; and James Stanley, the singing pit lad; Florence Laymen, a clever coon delineator; Gracie Grahame, a charming comedienne; A. J. Gamble, Scotch comedian; and the Hersleb Bros., Danish comedy artists, are also in the bill.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—The Girl Who Lost Her Character is being played here by Mr. Douglas Bruce's company. Miss Violet Ennis Lawson fills the difficult part of Molly with complete success; Miss Sybil Hare is equally good as Rose Seymour; and Miss Lydia Mannington acts with excellent effect as Miriam Franklyn; Mr. Harold Macartney wins favour for his vigorous representation of Jack England; Mr. Edmund McLean shows distinct ability as the Rev. Robert Everton; Mr. George Mitchell does well as James Sutton; and Mr. Richard Ferris suitably portrays the scheming Captain Caversham. The strong comedy element is realised with advantage by Mr. George H. Asquin as Dick Punch and Miss Mamie Thorpe as Isabella Jones.

THE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. Rhodes Parry.—Nellie Wallace is a favourite comedienne here, and her eccentricities in song, patter, and style are productive of much laughter; Damarell and Rutland appear in a highly amusing sketch, House Full, which has many novel situations; Great Scott gives a clever display on the unsupported ladder; Harry Taft is a comedian with especially diverting business; Nada Moret gives an entertaining combination of singing and elocution; Phern and Phern present a pleasing musical speciality; and Harry Leybourne is a smart impersonator.

HALIFAX. — PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Reg. H. Foster.—The Four Kellys are nightly rousing the audiences to enthusiasm with their daring, graceful, and clever acrobatic act; Roma and Romani are making a welcome reappearance and scoring with their superb classical musical performance; Cullen, Carthy, and Little Cluley are very funny in song, patter, and eccentric comedy; the Waltons are clever acrobats; Mlle. Sidy Nirvana gives some artistic poses, assisted by a highly trained horse; Jamie Piper is a clever young musician; Walter Clyde is a ballad vocalist of merit. Cherry Lass, a smart comedienne and dancer, and the pictures complete.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—Pictures are still the attraction here, some very clever films being shown; Lester May creates a diversion as a comedian; David Donaldson and Frances Ferina gave a very well-written and entertaining sketch, The Veteran's Birthday; Bert Rayburn, comedian, is universally popular.

HAMILTON, N.B.—HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. René Clayton.—George Lashwood is proving a big draw here, and is deservedly popular; a clever comedy acrobatic turn is done by the Permans; Maxey and Pete are smart and entertaining trick cyclists; Bert Weston is a droll story-teller; Picton Roxburgh and Fanny Wright are highly diverting in their sketch, My Little One; Edith Fink is a charming singer of chorus songs; Kloof and Ramsey entertain in a musical and comedy turn; Dorothy Dundas sings prettily; and the Bioscope concludes an excellent programme.

HANLEY.—ROYAL.—Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—Messrs. Polini and Melford's Silver King company is here. Mr. Fred Davies is excellent as Wilfred Denver; Miss Edith Goodall is a very powerful Nellie Denver; Mr. E. J. George excels in the rôle of Jaikes; Mr. E. Stanton-Sharp makes a striking villain; Mr. George Belmore as Corket is decidedly diverting; Mr. A. Wright portrays Elijah Coombe with great success; Miss Flossie Hale Daviss and Master Eric Dene are clever in children's parts; Mr. E. Stidwell plays Baxter capitally; Mr. A. H. Rooke is a good Geoffrey Ware; and Mr. Fred May is well suited.

GRAND.—Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Arthur Rand.—Mr. George Gray and company are here with The Fighting Parson. Also appearing here are Haig and Novel, in a refined comedy act; Annie Kenwick, comedienne and dancer; Lily Langtry, a sprightly songstress; Beau and Belle, in a song scena, Past and Present; the Grand pictures; and Austin Rudd, one of the Potteries' favourite comedians.

KING'S.—Lessees, Messrs. Moore and Kennedy; Manager, Mr. H. Kennedy.—The film picture of Nick Carter, the Detective, wins loud applause here; the Electric Hotel is a striking picture, and others exhibited are: The Sedan Chair, The Tramps' Garden Party, Italy's Marvellous Cavalry, Coward's Death, The Mohawk's Revenge, &c. Casselley, on the slack wire, and Hermann, a clever tumbler, supply the vaudeville portion of the programme.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Eric Fielding Smith.—A reversion has again been made to variety two houses a night, and large houses are the rule. Harry Tate's company in Fishing is the headliner, and a very capable and amusing company it is. Ambrose Thorne, the popular comedian, is at the foot of the bill, and proves greatly to the liking of the audience; Mr. Alfred Wellesley and company appear in a funny sketch, Uncle's Courtship; the Cheers introduce some clever cats; and Harry Kirk does some good facial business. R. A. Speedwell is a skilful, quick portrait painter; Elton and Elma are two good knockabouts; and Miss Ethel Dancy is a contralto ballad vocalist above the average.

ST. JAMES'S HALL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sydney H. Carter; General-Manager, Mr. Francis D. Sunderland; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fred A. Parker.—The Players are retained here for a second week. Several interesting films are shown, notably A Tale of the Revolution, a dramatic item greatly to the liking of the audience. An interesting film is Scotland; and there are several humorous ones. Wilbur Wright's aeroplane flights are again presented. Walter S. Pratt accompanies the pictures with suitable selections.

HASTINGS. — GAIETY THEATRE. — Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—An excellent company, under the general management of Mr. Ernest Benham, gave on Monday the first performance out of London of The Reformer. The comedy was preceded by the production of a new one-act farce by Messrs. Sydney Blow and George Bellamy entitled On the Other Foot, of which a detailed account is given elsewhere. The Reformer was played throughout the week. Mr. Rupert Lister filled the rôle of Sir Rupert Yeld most artistically; Miss Marie Polini, gowned with excellent taste, as Mrs. Rockingham played the rôle with admirable refinement; Mr. Cyril Harcourt as the erratic Earl of Crowborough was irresistibly droll; the dyspeptic General Carew was amusingly played by Mr. Cecil Brooking, a good foil to his spleen being provided by Mr. Bernard Stevens as Thomas; Miss Slyvia Morris played charmingly as Sybil Carew; Mr. Owen Nares as Eric Lowndes was an ardent wooer; and Mr. Ernest Benham a polished and easy Captain Ross. Mr. Arthur Queen as a servant completed the cast. Mr. Charles King stage-managed.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Vivian-Fisher; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman.—Lew Loman, a good vocal comedian, opens the programme. Amusing figures are introduced by Robert Tattersall, the ventriloquist; the subjects of the Hippodrome pictures are quite up to date; York and Lester engage in a laughable sketch, The Other Mrs. Brown. Possessing an admirable voice, Mr. Walter Barrett gives a bright and tuneful rendering of several songs; Miss Edie King is a charmingly artistic dancer and comedienne; a good character comedian is seen in Dudley Hayes; and the No. 1 company of Harry Tate's appear in an amusing and clever sketch entitled Motoring.

PIER PAVILION.—General-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—The principal feature of this week's programme is the excellent variety of dramatic and animated pictures as depicted very graphically on the Bioscope. Mr. Philip Levard is remarkably clever as an illusionist, and a local vocalist, Mme. Amy Atkins, renders some pleasing songs to limelight views.

HEREFORD.—GARRICK THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Barnsley.—Home, Sweet Home is presented here this week by Messrs. Green and Hinton's company, and evoked enthusiasm from a large audience on Monday. As Stephen Armitage Mr. Arthur Hinton is excellent; Mr. Charles Clifford as the Duke of Ancaster displays conspicuous ability; a performance of much prominence is that of David Armitage, cleverly played by Mr. Fred Kaye; and Mr. Frank Brunell is specially good as Dick Redmayne. Miss Lydia Audre as Joan has an admirable stage presence, and her acting appeals to all; the Dora of Miss Hilda Vokes is clever; the comedy element is supplied in first-class fashion by Mr. V. D. Millard and Miss L. Wright as Percy and Sybil Fay. Miss Kitty Collinson and Mr. D. Beattie complete the cast.

HORWICH.—PRINCES' THEATRE.—Lessees, The Horwich Theatre Co.; Manager, Mr. R. H. White.—Mrs. Fred J. Kirke's musical comedy company provides the attraction this week, and on Monday In Old Madrid received a very gratifying welcome. The scenery and effects are very fine. Mr. Sam Lockridge scored heavily in the dual rôle of Frank Lyndhurst and Count Correglio, his baritone vocalisation being highly applauded; Mr. Rex Graham gave an excellent rendering of Mendoza Stittagano; Mr. Geo. H. Holloway painted Ferando Cassilli in lurid colours; Mr. T. W. Hybert revels in the part of Horatio J. Rogers (Frank's valet), his eccentric dances and songs creating roars of laughter; Mr. Chas. H. Burns played Marmaduke R. Fitzsimmons in excellent style; Miss Edith Claris gave a sympathetic rendering of Madeline Earlsmore, Frank's cousin; Miss Lily Seymour as Martha Jane Alice Grey Montmorency, late principal danseuse, presents a very eccentric appearance—New Woman, militant Suffragette, and strong woman all in one; Miss Beatrice Torrance as Lola Stettagano, a Spanish girl, has a very fine part, and her songs and dancing were repeatedly encored; Miss Louie Graham gave an artistic rendering of Violet Lyndhurst. The Naval Detective and Our Sailor Lad are also billed.

HUDDERSFIELD.—HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—The programme has for chief attraction the sketch entitled The Stowaway, in which the principal parts are taken by Messrs. John K. Walton, Arthur Stratton, Horace Corbyn, Arthur Temple, and Miss Elizabeth Whelan The other tunrs are Miss Minnie Mace, comedienne; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shelley in duologues; Harry Morgan, comedian and dancer; Curtis Leo, conjurer; Joe Humphries, vocalist; Miss Diana Hope and company in the dramatic sketch entitled Her Good Name; and some humorous pictures on the Bioscope.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Mortons, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company in For Her Sake have met with a good reception at the Alexandra this week. As the Princess Miss Agnes Verity gave a very clever study; the Vera of Miss Dorothy Lart was a pleasing impersonation; Mr. Arthur Elwyn is a clever exponent of the part of Bardoni; Mr. Harry Benson is a very capable comedian, and with Miss Kitty Sinclair keeps the fun going fast and furious.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Dunford; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest Naylor.—Appearing here are Sandy McNab and company, J. H. Hawtrey, Lily Langley, Tom Lloyd, Mlle. De Rose, Hilda Claremont, Manson and West, and the Alaskas.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Slingsby.—Shirley and Ransome in their sketch 'Arf a Quid hold the premier position with much success; Shenton and Chick give a talented performance. Other good turns include Dalston and Euston, Codge, Zenora, J. E. Johns, and Alice Oakley.

THE CIRCUS.—Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Emerson. —The Globe Animated Picture Company are drawing good houses.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—The company of Miss Florence Glossop-Harris, including Mr. Frank Cellier, are this week providing a treat for local playgoers with productions of Romeo and Juliet, Merchant of Venice, The Taming of the Shrew, As You Like It, Hamlet, and The Royal Oak. The first-named was chosen for opening night. Mr. Arthur Goodsell's reading of Romeo is of the first order, the applause extended to him being well earned; Miss Glossop-Harris appears as Juliet, and her clever impersonation is highly appreciated; Mr.

Percival Madgewick as Benvolio is deserving of special mention, and Mr. Frank Cellier as Mercutio is excellent; Messrs. Francis Roberts (Tybalt) and Murray Kinnell (Paris) leave nothing to be desired; Miss Janet Warden is successful as Juliet's nurse; Mr. E. Stuart Vinden and Miss Gertrude Tate as Capulet and Lady Capulet are well chosen; the rôle of Friar Laurence is ably sustained by Mr. J. Cassels Cobb.

IPSWICH.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Miss Radie Furman, the "jolly Dutch girl," at once established herself as a favourite, her quaint mannerisms and whimsical dancing causing roars of laughter. Phil Rees' Stable Lads have a novel scena, depicting the interior of a racing stable, in which good dancing and singing are given; Fred Barnes has some catchy songs, with good choruses; the Smythson Comedy Company have a most amusing sketch, entitled Love Germs; Almon Correzo does some remarkable feats of strength; Reg Bolton, as "the editor's imp," gives a droll performance; Miss Maudie Ford sings and dances pleasantly; and the Bioscope concludes.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Locke.—Mr. Charles Draycott's company is here with a dramatic répertoire including The Colleen Bawn, The Octoroon, Ticket of Leave, and The Stolen Birthright. In The Octoroon Mr. Charles Draycott was seen to advantage as Salem Scudder; Mr. W. J. Short was a capital George Peyton; and Mr. Geo. Arthur played with force the part of Jacob McClosky; Mrs. Charles Draycott being seen to advantage as Zoe; and Dora Sunnyside being in the capable hands of Miss Issa Steel. Mr. Charles H. Herberte made a satisfactory Mr. Sunnyside.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL.—Lessee and Manager, Dr. Seaton.—This place of amusement gives quite a change of pictures this week. Variety turns include the following artists:—Arthur Leon, ballad vocalist; Carl Norman, vocalist and dancer; and Warren Doyle, clog dancer; and Doyle and Fenwick, entertainers.

JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Edward Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—Vaudeville performances have once more replaced the drama here and are being liberally patronised. Elfie Vincent, who is a great favourite here, is being accorded a big reception; the Ringling Trio give an amusing comedy act; George Porter is a funny patter comedian; and excellent play scenes are given by Mr. H. Leslie Bell and Miss Lilly Pearl.

KIRKCALDY.—PAVILION.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. G. W. Walker.—Another capital picture-show is being presented this week. Variety turns are contributed by the Three Sisters Sprightly, smart comedy artists, who make a big hit in their "Golfing" skit; Miss Rita Halket is a clever comedienne and dancer; Mr. Wallace Muirhead is a good tenor vocalist, with illustrated songs; and Mr. John E. West, Scotch comedian, also appears.

LANCASTER.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. J. Porter and W. J. Fergusson.—Variety this week has given way to the Lancaster Amateur Dramatic and Operatic Society, which is presenting The Rose of Persia to capital audiences.

LEEDS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Benson and company occupy this theatre with a Shakespearean répertoire, and have been accorded hearty support. A different play has been presented each evening and at the matinée—seven performances in all—and in this hard work the company appears to revel. We notice that sterling actor Mr. George Weir again prominent in each presentation.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—Mr. V. L. Granville appears here in a new protean play. Zeta Grey and company please with a musical comedy act; Ouida McDermott is successful as an actress and vocalist; a clever juggling turn by Ernesto is well received; Fraser and French are doing their speciality in the wooden shoes; Kent and Earle submit their vocal comedy with good success; and there are other good turns by Lozelle, with novel speciality, and Harry Taylor, comedian.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.—District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—Gotch, the American wrestler, is chief executant in a playlet which is put on as a leading turn here. Brown and Le Clercq are real humorists, and their turn is much enjoyed; Herbert Shelley again presents his wonderfully clever protean item Dan the Outlaw to general satisfaction; Les Voces render duets in imimitable style; the Maples submit an entertaining item; Tennyson and Wallis are favourite humorists; whilst Tony Spring, George Platt, and Blanche Vincent have each a numerous following.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Thos. Barrasford.—Haley's Juveniles provide a strong turn here in a Carnival scena, and their work is much admired. Paulton and Doley, a mirth-provoking pair on bicycles, are scoring heavily; a big reception is nightly extended to Thorpe and Coe for a clever entertainment; Milner and Storey are another comedy pair who meet with success; and of the rest Geo. S. Melvin, the Three Comerfords, the Ausonias, Violet King, and Walter Emerson are doing specially well.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—Lowenwirth and Cohan are again in evidence here; Wyndham and Waters, with comedy act, are popular; the Tossing Austens are to the fore with their novelty; Herbert Rule is specially successful among the comedians; and Farr and Farrland have a humorous encounter which is well liked.

LEICESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont. Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Lacey.—A return visit of Mr. Evelyn A'Dell's company in His Sister's Honour is the attraction here this week. Mr. Evelyn A'Dell as the hero, Frank Stanley, is conspicuously successful with an admirable impersonation; Mr. Walter Wilson is sufficiently effective as the villainous Sir Richard Redvers; Miss Flora Leslie makes an excellent impression as Dora Stanley; and Miss Ethel Ashleigh is also good as Ivy Merton. Mr. Edwin Clarke is capital as Dr. Godfrey; Mr. J. R. Tyrrell is popular and humorous as Timothy Timid; Miss Maudie Vincent as Maria deserves much praise, her rendering of the song "Antonio" being most acceptable; and Mr. S. Verner adds to the success of the play as Police-constable Worthie. The drama is staged in a manner worthy of commendation. This theatre will now close until Boxing Day.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. S. Bucclueh.—At the head of this week's excellent "show" are the famous Craggs, who are scoring a big success in the sketch Billy, which evokes great merriment, and allows of full scope for the introduction of many remarkably smart acrobatic feats by the various members of this popular troupe. At the other end is Fred Winn's excellent company in the well-staged and thrilling dramatic episode The Light in the Window, which rivets the attention of the audience, the various parts being admirably enacted by Fred Winn, Kate Carney, Agnes Paulton, and C. H. Maxwell. The Lukashimas are intrepid Japanese performers, whose equilibristic and other feats are cleanly and smartly gone through; the perfection of canine training is exhibited by Reichen's dogs, the performance being of a most interesting and popular character; Syd May, besides being a first-class mimic, displays his versatility in his burlesque wrestling act, which creates roars of laughter; Gus Garrick is exceedingly amusing and clever in his music hall tit-bits; Kathleen Cogan is a dainty comedienne and dancer; Harry Drew, Welsh basso, sings well; and Marie Empress, who is possessed of a good stage presence and pretty dresses, is an entertaining comedienne. The Bioscope depicts events in the life of Louis XVII.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joe Lawrence.—The leading attraction this week is the first visit of Messrs. B. Collin and West and company in the one-act playlette The House of Terror, in which the principal part of Meg Harding is well played by Miss Beaumont Collins. The sketch is meeting with a gratifying reception. The Brothers Ashley, in their mirth-provoking and cleverly-performed comedy boxing sketch Next, please, show their skill in the art of self-defence; the Vanderbilts are delightfully entertaining in their clever comedy song-scena; the Five Musical Palmers are on a welcome return visit, their various selections on brass instruments and hand-bell ringing evoking much applause; Miss Daisy Palmer is also a capital dancer, and conducts the orchestra in regular Sousa fashion; Mabel Le Roy is a good cemedienne; and Amy Savile gives a couple of tuneful songs. Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope is again a special feature with When Other Lips, A Week in Russia, and Daddy as of Old.

EMPIRE.—Lessees, the New Bioscope Trading Company; District Manager, Mr. Gerald Hunt; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. R. Craig.—A really fine show of moving pictures is given here this week, evoking unstinted admiration, the leading films being The Squaman's Daughter, or the Squire's Rights, The Sorcerer's Daughter, A Family of Cats, An Automatic Domestic, Cinematograph Evidence, The Traitor, and Jones and the Lamp-post. They are interspersed with turns by Phil Lister, a clever and entertaining musical speciality artist; George Reihter, a most amusing humorist; and Will Goodall, a capital local descriptive vocalist.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. Geo. Stanyon—To-night (Saturday) Mr. Will Catlin's Royal Pierrots bring a most successful month's season here to a close. Their huge répertoire of songs, sketches, quartets, dances, &c., has provided a contrast change of programme nightly, and their efforts have been rewarded with well-deserved and hearty appreciation. This week the troupe have introduced a most amusing sketch, entitled The Suffragettes.

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. W. Heath.—Mr. Harry Tilbury and company are paying a return visit with His Dishonoured Wife. Mr. Victor Rae acts with power and feeling as Frank Lindon; Mr. Horatio Sinclair is seen to advantage as Lord Devant, being ably seconded by Mr. Edwin Brown as Tom Redman; as Neil Locksley Mr. Fred Owen plays in a capable manner; Miss Belle Tilbury makes an effective Florence Lindon; Miss Arline T. George does well as Alice Harvey; Mr. Harry Tilbury is responsible for merriment as Micky Doolan; and adequate assistance is forthcoming from Miss Etta Spalding as Araminta Duspan.

LEITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Licensee and Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—In Napoleon's Divorce, though many liberties are taken with history in regard to details, the essentials of a romantic drama are sufficiently preserved to provide opportunities for powerful acting, and through the sterner scenes of the play Mr. F. H. Neville's somewhat original but consistent rendering of the title-rôle is vigorously supported by Mr. J. Soden as Joseph Bonaparte and Mr. Terence Nerry as Colonel D'Arville, with Mr. W. Verne and Miss A. Beddard in the short but telling parts of the Duke and Duchess St. Everard. The ill-starred Josephine is portrayed by Miss Kate Randolph with outstanding ability; Miss V. Clinton figures successfully as Mary Louise; and the little King of Rome has a pleasing exponent in little Ethel May. Some comedy interludes—worked for all they are worth by Mr. J. Holt, Mr. F. H. Fortescue, and Miss Marion Mayne, in the respective characters of Sergeant Baton, Pierre le Blanc, and Jeanette—find much favour with the "gods" and "groundlings."

LINCOLN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Payne Seddon and Ernest Pope.—Animated pictures supply the fare this week, a brilliant series of films being exhibited.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Arthur Miller.—Alice Hughes and company in The Star of the Bazaar gives the top-line turn, and it is smartly done; Babusio Brothers have a wonderful balancing act; Bowman and Morton, Charles Jerome, Flo Inman, Rose and Wold, and Margaret Radcliffe also win complete approval, and Raymond's Biotableaux complete the show.

LIVERPOOL.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—In continuation of a precedent established last year an amateur performance was given here during the first three evenings of the week in aid of local charities. The movement was under the patronage of the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress, Lord and Lady Derby, and the Countess of Sefton, the committee having the arrangements in hand comprising a number of leading local gentlemen. The work presented was H. V. Esmond's Billy's Little Love Affair, which was done full justice to by the lady and gentlemen performers, who included Mrs. Sydney Sharpe (Billy), Miss Mary Agnew (Mrs. Jim Greaves), Mrs. A. H. Mace (Lady Duncan), Mrs. Arthur Lawrence, and Messrs. Charles Kenyon (Jack Frere), Harry J. Saul (Sir Harry), W. R. Neilson (Jim Greaves), and David Ainsworth. Thanks are due to Mr. Arthur Lawrence, the esteemed manager of the theatre, for so carefully and efficiently rehearsing the company.

SHAKESPEARE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wentworth Croke; Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—Mr. Edward Terry and company have been here this week. On Monday evening The Telephone and Fiander's Widow were the attraction, the latter being seen here for the first time. Mr. Terry's conception of Isaac Sharpe, the old farmer, was richly enjoyed; Mrs. Fiander, played by Miss Edith Coleman, was marked by naturalness and tact; Sam Belbin, a capitally-conceived character, was sustained by Mr. Kenneth Brampton; worthy support came from Mr. Edmund Hollock, who presented Richard Marshall; Miss Sophie Lingwood delighted everybody with her Mrs. Belbin; and Mr. William Dexter did excellently as Abel Hunt. The remainder of the week was occupied with Liberty Hall, The Magistrate, and Sweet Lavender.

ROTUNDA THEATRE — Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—Messrs. Van Biene and Traynor presented the drama Man and Wife here this week. Mr. Traynor proved an able Paul Revere, playing in a manner that demanded attention; Miss Kate Hallam made a powerful Marcelle; the villainous Captain Esparre was presented by Mr. Edward M. Hamilton with praiseworthy result; Sergeant Jacques found in Mr. Ambrose Horton a capable exponent; the lighter parts of Rosette, Bimbo, and Bambo were capitally held by Miss Millie Doris, and Messrs. E. Hall-Eldon and George Vinning; and good work was also done by Messrs. George Rammell (Colonel Latour), George Overs (Jean), and Miss Violet Temple (Ruth Revere).

STAR THEATRE. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—Here this week the stirring military drama, A Soldier's Honour, presented by Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company, has proved a big attraction. A strong character was that of Cora Lee, given with great intensity by Miss Ruth Zillwood, who at times held her audience; Miss Edie Macklin delighted with her original creation of Jemima Eliza; Miss Mabel Mannering showed much ability as Doreen Illingworth; a manly and exceedingly popular Captain Deane came from Mr. Millar Anderson; Mr. T. Arthur Ellis worthily filled the rôle of Captain Temple; Mr. Andrew Money presented a powerful picture of the rascally Henry Thornton; and others deserving of notice were Messrs. C. H. Gallier (General Rochester), A. Anderson (Holly), and Harry Lyndon (Percy Brattle); Miss Edie Trapnell (Queenie Deane), and Miss Sylvia Vickers (Mrs. Deane). Thursday matinées have now become a special feature at the popular Star.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole.—Bransby Williams, foremost here this week, has had a cordial reception for his character sketches; Cruikshank caused endless laughter with his patter; Eli Hudson showed great skill as a piccolo player; Mabel Bright pleased immensely with her "Aladinette; or, a Peep at a Pantomime," in the course of which she made six changes; Henry Coutts presented Outflanked, in which he impersonated eight characters; Carl Lynn gave some clever animal imitations; the Kroney Brothers kept their audience in a merry mood with London's Lazy Coalmen; and contributions also came from John Macauley, vocalist; Dick Tubb, comedian; and Jessie Buckle, vocalist and comedienne.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Granville.—Here this week The Woman from Russia, given by a company controlled by Adria Hill and Robert Ayrton, has been the attraction.

LYRIC. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—Top of the programme here this week we have had the funny Swiss Express, presented by the smart combination of comedians under the control of C. and F. Renard; Regan and Ryan caused endless laughter with their songs and patter; Howard and Collinson had a great reception for the lively act A Piece of Dresden China; Joan Deering gave an acceptable turn as vocalist and violinist; Arthur Bearle rendered several songs in good style; an interesting electrical mechanical novelty gave a naval bombardment; and Sinclair Holden and Mary Collier went through an amusing trifle, Telephoning.

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan. —Houdini, the handcuff king, has proved a source of great attraction here this week. Some remarkable work as hoop rollers and jugglers was shown by the Frank L. Gregory troupe; the Two Cabiacs gave a smart turn as acrobatic dancers; Horace Pollock and company pleased immensely with the comedy episode, Hester's Mystery; Dorothy L. Clarke brought her latest successes, including "Tiny seed of love," "The bubble and the sunbeam," and "Come on over the garden wall"; Arthur Prince's Mascots had a neat original act; and contributions likewise came from Flo Warner, vocalist; Lanos and Montes, with a smart comedy acrobatic sketch; G. La Freya, with "artistic visions," and Tony Black, smart Scotch comedian.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—The Monarch of the World has been given here during the week, the principal members of the stock company taking part, including Messrs. David G. Noble (Raymond Devereux), Sydney Grant (Noel Preston), Robb Wilton (Jack), Miss Florence Palmer (Kate), and Miss Lilian Radbourne (Mildred). Mr. Anthony Brown's Bioscope showed the latest films.

WESTMINSTER.—Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—Frank Coyle, comedian, has headed the bill here this week; Ugo, with his illusions, pleased greatly; Alf Denny sang several pieces in acceptable fashion; the Percys were a smart couple of comedians; and the Bells, juvenile artists, did well.

OLYMPIA.—District-Manager, Mr. Albert Bulmer; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wighton.—The accomplished Henri de Vries, with two assistants, topped the bill here this week, and delighted everybody with his wonderfully quick changes in Trapped by Telephone; Morris Cronin and his troupe went through a smart juggling performance; Caicedo gave a surprising turn on the wire; Rousby's company presented a series of delightful pictures of Greater London; Eddie Hayes and Mona Wynne sang and danced most tastefully; the 'Varsity Girls submitted a neat trifle, A Musical Evening; great laughter followed the efforts of Dacey and Lewis; and also in the list were Charles Stevens, character comedian; La Belle Nello, queen of equipoise; and Silvester's mechanical working head.

PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. Henry Hearn.—In big type here this week was Miss Ada Colley, who had a most flattering reception for her songs, "It was a dream" and "Love me and the world is mine"; the accomplished Dayton Family went through a neat and clever performance as acrobats; Maurin's Fountains were a source of delight; W. G. Webber, possessed of an excellent bass voice, sang several numbers in good style; W. G. Wesley, a very able character comedian, was loudly applauded for his funny songs, and had to respond to encores; McCann, acrobatic skate dancer, proved a popular turn; and Lillie Souter, comedienne; Mike and Lena, with the duologue Dutch Lovers; the Three Sisters Tree, who had a neat act, Hunting; Herr Karoly Czynski, musician and vocalist; and M. A. Thilssen also appeared.

LONDONDERRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Payne Seddon; Manager, Mr. Alec Jeffries.—The variety programme is being successfully continued this week, large and appreciative houses again being the rule. Mark Anthony, the popular variety entertainer has been specially engaged, and the Monster Star Company give capital performances. The Dalyscope is also a most entertaining factor.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne Seddon and George Robertson; Resident Business-Manager, Mr. W. Payne Seddon.—A great intellectual treat has been afforded the patrons this week by the repeat visit of the F. R. Benson Shakespearean company (North) in a round of plays, including Romeo and Juliet, the first to be presented. Mr. Henry Herbert as Romeo fully sustained his high reputation; Mr. Bernard Limpus as Mercutio, and Mr. Patrick Lewis as Benvolio, played their respective parts with dignity and power; Tybalt was safe in the hands of Mr. Everard Vanderlip; Mr. Harvey Braban made an acceptable Friar Laurance; Montague and Capulet were finely acted by Mr. Plinge and Mr. James Berry; Mr. Sam Cohen as Paris played with ability; Miss Gladys Vanderzee's Juliet was highly successful; Miss Howard as Lady Montague, Miss Violet Farebrother as Lady Capulet, and Miss Palgrave as the Page to Paris were exceptionally good; and Miss May de Launey played the Nurse to perfection.

LOWESTOFT.—MARINA. — Managing-Director, Mr. E. A. Smith.—Charles Baldwin's company is here in The Bank Clerks, and other items are rendered by Kitty Beresford, Chas. Lilburn, Teresa da Silva, Hayes and Watson, and the Sisters Herbert, duettists and dancers.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. George Gilbert; Manager, Mr. Frank Freeland.—Another attractive bill is delighting record crowds. Mr. Harry Roxbury in a really fine musical sketch, The Prince of Monte Carlo, is highly diverting, and is supported by a remarkably well-balanced and highly capable company. Other interesting items are smartly rendered by Addison with his performing dogs; Sam Shipley, who does well in his policeman ditty; Little Bishop, an old favourite in big boot dances and clever patter; and Max Gordon. The British Biograph Company are showing some exceptionally good pictures, including the story of Beatrice Cenci.

MACCLESFIELD. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—Here this week is Mr. Percy Norman's company in A Woman Worth Winning. Mr. A. B. Mackay gives a powerful interpretation of General Borinski; Mr. Wilfred E. Clark is an effective Ivan Bardoff; Mr. Louis Newman a good Bertie Scribbles; Mr. G. E. Clive a capital Fergus Lovinsky; and Mr. Fred Danvers a funny Peter Popples. Miss Chrissie Dunbar displays ability as Roma Pauloff, and Miss Ida Mackay is a vivacious Katrina Kloss.

MAESTEG.—TOWN HALL THEATRE.—Lessees, Poole's Theatres Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. G. F. Knowles.—Mr. T. Morton Powell's company in When it was Dark opened a week's engagement on Monday to a large audience. Mr. Haldane Dalton commands the attention of the audience by his weird acting in the part of Constantine Schawbe; the Rev. Basil Gortre has a very effective impersonator in Mr. Wilfred Lyndon; Miss Ethel Griffies gives a powerful rendering of the part of Gertrude Hunt. The remaining characters are sustained by capable artists.

MAIDENHEAD.—THE PAVILION.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gude.—The pictures this week include Simpson's Artful Ruse, a screamingly laughable one entitled The Trombone Player, and a truly magnificent film depicting the principal incidents in the life of Mary Stuart. Descriptive songs are well given by Charles Woodward and Jack Cannon.

MAIDSTONE. — PALACE. — Manager, Mr. S. Baskerville.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's company is here this week in The Christian, and good houses are the rule. The company works hard, and the play is sumptuously mounted. Mr. P. Gedge Twyman supplies a clever study of the exacting part of John Storm; Mr. G. Montague Lane as Lord Robert Ure and Mr. Edward Ouston as Horatio Drake are well fitted; a clever character sketch of Archdeacon Wealthy is given by Mr. W. Mallalieu; Miss Margery Fane as Glory Quayle receives quite an ovation for her impersonation of a difficult character, and in the last act the audience are quite carried away by the dramatic power of the acting.

CORN EXCHANGE.—Manager, Mr. J. Beslee.—A return visit is being paid here by Mr. Joshua Dyson's Diorama Company. As usual, large audiences are being attracted, and the entertainment goes with a swing from start to finish. The talented company, twenty strong, give a well-varied programme of music, and the pictures are of the usual high standard of excellence.

MANCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The United Theatres, Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmondstone Shirra.—The second week of the Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company at this theatre opened with an enjoyable performance of Esmeralda, before a huge audience, in aid of the Manchester Hebrew Bread, Meat, and Coal Society. It was followed on Tuesday by Lohengrin, in which the principal rôles were effectively rendered by Mr. Hanns Robert as Lohengrin, Miss Beatrice Mirander as Elsa, and Mme. Marie Alexander as Ortrud. Some capital singing of popular numbers was heard on Wednesday, when Maritana was given, with Mme. Ina Hill, Mr. Walter Wheatley, and Mr. Dillon Shallard in the most conspicuous parts, in addition to a notably good performance of Don Giovanni on Friday, and repetitions of Carmen and Faust on other occasions. The visit will close with a production of the ever-popular Bohemian Girl.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—A return visit of the Vedrenne-Barker combination in G. B. Shaw's Man and Superman and Arms and the Man was the attraction here on Monday. In the regrettable illness of Mr. Granville Barker, the part of John Tanner in the first-named play was undertaken by Mr. Frederick Lloyd, who proved a very efficient substitute. Miss Frances Dillon played Ann Whitefield with extraordinary cleverness, and Miss Auriol Lee showed considerable virility as Violet Robinson; and the Roebuck Ramsden of Mr. Michael Sherbrooke was always entertaining. Other essential rôles were filled with corresponding excellence by Mr. David Powell (Octavius), Mr. Richard Haigh (Henry Straker), Mr. Hubert Harben (Hector Malone), Mr. James Hearn (Mr. Malone), Miss Helen Rous (Mrs. Whitefield), and Miss Frances Wetherall (Miss Ramsden). The performance was greatly enjoyed by a good house. Arms and the Man was equally well received on Wednesday.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—The Ugliest Woman on Earth, played last week at the Royal Osborne Theatre, is here this week.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietress, Miss A. E. F. Horniman; Manager, Mr. B. Iden Payne; Acting-Manager Mr. Edwin T. Heys.—The programme here this week offers a trio of plays by H. F. Maltby. The first two of these, Hounslow Heath, a one-act highwayman episode, and The Youngest of Three, were given on Monday night, the third, Sir George of Almack's, being relegated to the latter half of the week. Mr. Maltby appears in each of them, and displays a skill as an actor which is not inferior to his ability as a dramatist. Both qualifications were appreciated at a fairly high level by Monday's audience, which extended its favours also to Miss Mara Maltby, Mr. Arthur Claremont, Mr. Brember Wills, and Mr. Frank Hudspeth in parts well suited to their respective abilities.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Mason.—Miss Mary Neil and Mr. George Kirk's company is here this week in their new drama, From Shop Girl to Duchess, which unfolds an interesting story. Miss Florrie Groves in the part of Sylvia Grey gives an excellent performance, which is especially effective in the third act; Mr. Douglas Cecil is entirely successful as Arnold Vyvian; and Mr. T. Lionel Ellis makes a dignified Sir Morris Maitland. Other good parts are cleverly rendered by Mr. Frank S. Strickland, Miss Beatrice Hudson, and, in humorous rôles, Messrs. Henri Gerald and Douglas Tremayne and Misses Georgie Hawkins and Marie Clavering.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Sons; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Dry.—An attractive programme here is headed by the Four Powels, in their original act, After the Matinée. Frances Haskell, illustrated song vocalist, is also popular; and the Sisters Netherland are very good in their Tale of the Stockings and barefoot dance. Other entertaining items are the Denaro Bros., juvenile acrobats; Clifford Stewart comedian; Dan Merrett, drum soloist; Barfoot and Carson, comedians; J. C. Scatter, Tyneside comedian; George Lawrence, light comedian; Lewis's Mannikins in an elaborate song-scena; and George Acre, character vocalist.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—The places of honour here this week are occupied by George Bastow, who is great in his yokel character songs; George Gilbey, whose comicalities are highly diverting; and Lottie Lennox, who sings popular ballads effectively. Florence Smithers and company provide a capital sketch, Our Mary Jane; Conway and Leland, the merry monopedes, are smart and funny; and other good turns are the Eight Lancashire Lads, dancers; the Crown Trio of vocalists; Watson's fox terriers, unique canine troupe; the Prince Milner Trio of hoop manipulators and wire-walkers; and Madge Osmond, the dandy comedienne.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—B. A. Rolfe's Colonial Sextette are seen to great advantage in a delightful musical novelty, entitled An Olde Tyme Hallowe'en; the Carmos go through a remarkable juggling and strength performance; the Coloured Meisters are excellent harmonising vocalists; the Mezzettis are amusing and expert horizontal bar performers; Ben Albert is a capital comedian; Freda Spry and B. S. Monti, comedy duo, are very funny; May Brilliant is a pleasing comedienne and dancer; and Clive and Clark, black and white comedy artists, are entertaining. That sensational Hippodrama, The Volcano, is here for a third and last week. The Bioscope pictures are particularly interesting.

PALACE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. J. Carter.—The big event here this week is the appearance of Harry Fragson, "and a piano"; and this is enough to ensure a wonderful and unique show in music hall comedy. Joe Elvin also is seen in his latest success, The King of the Castle; while other entertaining items are provided by Boy Glen, raconteur; Bert Coote's Yankee Doodle Girls, vocalists and dancers; Ryder Slone, character comedian; the Four Amaranths, acrobatic and whirlwind dancers; the Three Cunards, the dancing trio; and Joe Archer, the "peculiar chappie."

TIVOLI. — Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Sylvia Du Barry, the charming South American soprano, makes a welcome re-appearance here this week, and delights with her excellent singing; the Player Company, in a farcical sketch, Where's Ma' Kilt? fairly brings down the house; Ruby and Laws are old favourites, and sing well, as usual; the Lizette Troupe are clever acrobats and dancers; Molly Augarde, a sweet singer, is much appreciated; East and West have some smart talk; and other good turns are given by the Harmonic Cranks, comedy entertainers; Gladys Wilton, girl contralto; and Metz and Metz, comedians and dancers. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope pictures complete.

KING'S, LONGSIGHT.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. James R. Trippett.—The attraction here is provided by S. A. Campbell's company, in The Old Folks at Home, which is given with success twice nightly, and which met with equal favour at the local Eccles theatre last week.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—An Airship Elopement, as presented here this week by the Aeronauts, is well played, and causes much laughter; Harwood's Juveniles, a smart troupe of youngsters, are particularly good in The Children's Christmas Eve; the Three Coopers gain hearty applause for harmonising singing; the Brothers Durant are clever acrobats, making much of an empty barrel; Greener, the pit lad, sings well, and recites, to pictures, in a capital manner; Emil and Ediss play the banjo in artistic style; Jimmy Shields, the one-legged comedian and dancer, is good; Tom Morris whistles operatic selections with ease; and Fame and Fortuno are smart in a burlesque boxing act. The Bioscope pictures are excellent.

HULME HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas Baker.—The attraction here this week, played twice nightly, is Mr. John Tiller's capital pantomime Jack and Jill, a bright and brisk show, with good jokes, neat dances, and pretty dresses, and not a dull moment from start to finish. Miss Harriett Fawn cuts a fine figure as Prince Fearnought; Miss Nellie Rodney makes a pleasing Princess; Mr. Bruce Green scores a big success as Dame Durden; Cissy Iris and Nellie Grimshaw play nicely as Jack and Jill respectively; and F. Le Cren is very funny as General Biff. All the other parts are effectively played, and the specialities by the following are all excellent:—The Le Cren Trio, the Tiller Quartette of dancers, the Eight Merry Midgets, and the Imperial Ballet Troupe. Mr. S. Oscar Karno is to be complimented on his excellent stage management.

pany on Monday in the musical drama What a Woman Did. The part of Conrad de L. Orme is played with fine effect by Mr. Sanderson Moffatt; Mr. Elton Morgan as Fritz and Mr. Owen Edwin as Peter Pippin are comical; Mr. F. Marriott Watson as the Marquis de Viray and Mr. Reginald Kloof are excellent in their villainous work; Elsie de L. Orme is sympathetically portrayed by Miss Florence E. Florence; Miss Phiyllis Hamilton is a capital La Papillon; and the Nanette of Miss Nord Wylett is remarkably good. Specialities by the Clancy Girls are much admired.

MARGATE. — HIPPODROME. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece.—The Three Langfords give a smart vocal, instrumental, and dancing turn this week; and a very pleasing contributor to the programme is Zena Pana, at the piano, in her musical and mimetic sketch After the Matinée. Bert Welch, ventriloquist, gives an entertaining show; Charles Ashdown, comedian, is a clever eccentric dancer; Ray Phillips, soubrette and dancer, is a successful deputy for Annie Lang; and the concluding item is Charcot and his automatic man.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees, the South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Albert Jackson.—Mr. Edward Compton and company are this week paying a welcome first visit to Merthyr, opening on Monday with Davy Garrick. In the name-rôle Mr. Compton plays with skill and an artistic sense of restraint; Miss Kathleen Leigh acts with much sincerity and sympathy as Violet Gresham; the Alderman finds an admirable exponent in Mr. Henry Crocker; Mr. Henry Worrall capably undertakes the Hon. Tom Tallyhaut; Mr. Philip Gordon successfully delineates Mr. Kumbelow; Mr. W. Johnson is satisfactory as Sowerberry; and Mr. Ivan Leslie is amusing as Simpkins. Capable work is done by Miss Marie Hassell as Mrs. Kumbelow, and Miss Constance Merton as Selina. The Desperate Lover is an excellent curtain-raiser. The Rivals, School for Scandal, She Stoops to Conquer, and A Reformed Rake are also being given during the visit.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—Heading the bill are the Martelloni Family, clever acrobats and tumblers; Cumminger and Colonna are a success; Musical Sylvo has a pleasing musical show; and other popular turns are contributed by G. Rogers, vocalist; Will and Rose, comedy acrobatic conjurers; the Arnolds, in their cabinet mystery; Colvil and Tate, comedians and dancers; and Harry Huting, legmania artist.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company is this week playing The Village Blacksmith. Mr. Sam Livesey's fine physique and exceptional dramatic ability specially fit him for the title-rôle; Captain Leo, an adventurer, and his catspaw, Lucas Marler are cleverly enacted by Mr. Albert Sinclair and Mr. Edwin Maydew; Miss Maggie Edwards plays with intelligence and emotional power the rôle of Kate Strong; Miss Cassie Le Grande (Ruth Parkins) and Miss Edith Giddens (Martha Mopps) sustain their parts well; Miss Lily Leicester imparts youthful charm to the rôle of Harry Strong; Mr. T. E. Marshall (Jeremiah Parkins) and Mrs. T. C. Livesey (Sal Parkins) present clever character studies; as does Mr. Fred Haming as Billy Twigg.

NEW PICTURE HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. Will Hunter; Manager, Mr. E. H. Jones.—An excellent series of animated pictures this week include A Nobleman's Pleasure, In Memory of His Mother, Too Old to Work, Coney Island, Phantom Artist, and She Wanted to be an Actress.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. E. Jowsey; Manager and Licensee, Mr. W. Ker Chatto.—The Diver's Luck, a sensational melodrama, is presented here this week by Mr. Andrew Emm's company. Miss Dora Pass sustains the part of Helen Wyngate with dignity, sweetness, and power; Tom Hall could scarcely be more convincingly depicted than by Mr. Wm. J. Miller; Mr. Harry Cullenford as Martin Faber gives a satisfactory performance; and Mr. Fred A. Marston is a capital Barney. Mr. Joe Rowland is a good Snowball; and the Misses Holly and Kate Haslewood are pleasing in the rôles of Winnie Hall and Daffodil Bolter. Mr. Fred Scarth as Maurice Wyngate, Miss Pearl Moyle as Peggy Mahoney, Mr. Clifford Hamilton as Bolter; and Mr. Lyons Johnson as Captain Halton do full justice to their respective rôles.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson.—A welcome reappearance is made this week by Mr. Frank Lindo and company in Home, Sweet Home. Mr. Lindo himself plays the part of Stephen Armitage, a young fisherman, with truth and vigour; and Miss Marion Wakeford gives an excellent portrayal of the rôle of Joan. Mr. Lawrence Doyle as David Armitage acts creditably; and Miss Hilda Jackaway is good as Dora. Sybil Fay is well presented by Miss Maude Leslie-Cudd.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Chas. Rembges.—Haines and Borthwick's company causes much amusement in Half a Dollar; Pych, Tholl, and Taylor are pleasing in a dancing turn; Miss May Clifton and company appear in a musical scena; Tony Iveson is entertaining at the piano; and Ella Loraine is a vocalist of exceptional talent. Ina Lorimer is a clever Scotch comedian; and Frank Hautby is a clever juggler.

HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Manager, Mr. C. E. Nicholls.—Little Tich has a most enthusiastic reception here this week, and he keeps the house convulsed with his quaint sayings and amusing antics; Eldra and his dog "Prince" provide a very pleasing turn; and Ted Karno and company present an amusing sketch. Flake White is a clever lightning painter; and Mabel Moss, Albert Dann and company, and Walter Ellis and company also contribute acceptable turns.

MUSSELBURGH.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Hugh Ritchie; Lessee, Mr. A. W. B. Kingston.—Another of Mr. Kingston's companies comes in from the road this week to take part in the stock season. Their initial performance on Monday was their chief touring piece, The Mysteries of the Thames, by F. Brooke Warren. Mr. James Somerville as Captain Denbigh made a polished villain; Mr. Tom Mortimer did well as Bill Bosco; as the much-persecuted Richard Brandon Mr. James T. Dale was excellent; Mr. Ted Mooney kept the house amused with his drolleries as Peter; Kate Brandon was successfully played by Miss Dolores Hope; and the dual rôles of Flash Nell and Grace Rochdale were cleverly portrayed by Miss Emma Poole. As Doris Miss Kitty Webb was capital.

NELSON. — GRAND.—Much interest is being evinced by the presentation of The Prodigal Son by Mr. George D. Day's company. Mr. Albert Ward finds, in the character of Oscar Stephensson, an opportunity of displaying his high dramatic skill, and his admirable interpretation is warmly received. Magnus has a capital representative in Mr. H. J. Crane; Messrs. Jackson Hayes and Jas. English are both placed to much advantage as Stephen Magnusson and Oscar Neilsen; and as the unhappy Thora and as Elin, Miss Pauline Emeric displays grace and intelligence. The heartless Helga is impersonated with much skill by Miss Pearla Gardner; Miss Florence Lovell sympathetically undertakes Anna Magnusson. Messrs. A. J. Williams and R. C. Brooksmith and Miss Kate Osborne render excellent assistance.

NEW BRIGHTON.—WINTER GARDENS.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. H. E. Jones and A. Douglass.—An engagement of much interest is the turn given by the Four Indian Fakirs, who simply astonish the audience by an entertainment of juggling, illusions, &c., out of the common; Captain Ellis and Son prove themselves clever comedians and instrumentaliste; Mr. Sydney Bannister has a pleasant baritone voice; and Master Walter Aubrey dances excellently. The Sisters Dunville, Mr. Alf. Brooks, and the Redwing Duo complete a good company. The animated pictures and the incidental music give the greatest satisfaction.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—Mr. William Mollison and company are here this week. On Monday they presented The Merchant of Venice. In the rôle of Shylock Mr. Mollison was seen to great advantage, his histrionic talents finding ample scope; Miss Evelyn McNay as Portia shared with Mr. Mollison the honours of the evening, her impersonation being convincing and natural. A manly portrayal of Bassanio was contributed by Mr. Archie W. Chappell, and other leading rôles were capably played by Mr. William Calvert as Antonio, Mr. Clifford Morgan as Lorenzo, Miss Gladys Brandon Gower as Nerissa, and Miss Edith Blair Staples as Jessica.

TYNE THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—The Private Secretary is being presented here by Mr. Eugene C. Stafford's company. Mr. Donald-Price Evens is funny as the Rev. Robert Spalding; Mr. W. Hargreaves appears as Mr. Cattermole, and greatly adds to the mirth, and Mr. Frederic Tyrrell is very effective as Mr. Sidney Gilson. Mr. Stanley Ravenscroft in the character of Douglas Cattermole gives a finished portrayal; Miss Ashford is well represented by Mrs. Alfred Davis, and the parts of Eva Webster and Edith Marsland are well treated by the Misses Helen Child and Nan Macrae respectively. The Wild Man from Borneo is the "curtain-raiser," and proves acceptable.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. T. W. Rowe.—Second to None is here this week, well acted by Mr. T. Edward Ward's company. In the rôle of Nell Greystone Miss Ward acquits herself with ability, and Mr. L. Williams gives a manly and convincing rendering of Harry Wilding. Mr. Theo. Balfour does exceedingly well as Sir Reginald Greystone, and Mr. Frederick F. Loyd adequately fills the villainous rôle of Captain Philip Mannering. Mr. J. G. Maine gives a praiseworthy study as Sergeant Jack Horseman, and as Mary Greystone Miss Maud Merrick is all that can be desired, valuable assistance being rendered by the remainder of the company.

GRAND THEATRE.—Sole Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder.—Mr. C. Watson Mills' company are here in A Warning to Women. The company is headed by Miss Blanche St. Albans, who give a powerful and dramatic portrayal of Moira Kennion, the squire's daughter, other leading rôles being in capable hands.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—Mr. Courtice Pounds is appearing here with Miss Louie Pounds and company in a sketch, Charles—His Friend, in which Mr. Pounds is seen and heard to advantage, his song "I'll sing thee songs of Araby" proving especially acceptable. Another turn of more than usual merit is the sketch Kleptomaniacs, by Fred Edwards and Bertha Norham, whilst the Martineks contribute an amusing entertainment. The Strolling Players furnish any amount of merriment in a melodious pot-pourri, and Millie Payne, Morris Harvey, Tom E. Conover, Florence and Lilian, and the Bros. Dean all contribute pleasing and interesting turns, the Bioscope completing.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—The ever-popular Sammy Shields heads a varied and interesting programme this week, and other artists contributing are Fred Russell, ventriloquist, Ted Curtis and his piccaninnies, Andrews and Thompson, Clothilde and De Musto, the Barrois, George Rapley, and Fred Sinclair's company in Poor Arthur.

ROLLER SKATING RINK, EXHIBITION BUILDINGS.—Manager, Mr. Fred B. Crowe.—The popularity of rinking seems more on the increase than ever, and at every session crowds of skaters find the keenest delight in gliding round the rink. Special speed competitions are announced for next week.

NORTHWICH.—CENTRAL THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden.—M. Gustave's Colombia Minstrels are occupying the theatre this week. The Sisters Levaine are good dancers; Miss Lizzie Levaine sings a coon song with good effect; Miss Edie Levaine is interesting in her serio-comic selection; Charlie Towers is brimming over with comicalities; and Mr. Victor Silvernie's whistling solo is smart. The programme is brought to a close with a sketch entitled A Millionaire for a Day.

THE PAVILION.—Proprietress, Mrs. Fletcher; Manager, Mr. Towyn Thomas.—Jack Ford, Scotch comedian, still retains his popularity, and the same may be also said of Uty Rowlands, who is giving some clever impersonations; Miss Lilly Brummer sings nicely; Purvis and Partnor present a capital turn; Mr. Nicklin Williams, basso, possesses a fine voice; Max Sterling, illusionist, gives a wonderfully smart show; Phil Royston's comedy company present an amusing sketch entitled The Egyptian Mummy, and Ruffell's Bioscope pictures form an attractive feature.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company is here this week in The Midnight Wedding. Miss Yvonne Orchardson and Mr. A. E. Winnington Barnes respectively as Astrea and Paul Valmar are much appreciated.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—A capital programme is presented, headed by Harriett Vernon, who is a host in herself; the Three Lloyds are a good turn; the Pasquali Bros. are clever equilibrists and tumblers. The other artists include Wilman, Australian instrumentalist; the Westbrooks; Leslie Race, comedian; Natalia and Diana, aerial gymnasts; Lieut. Travis, ventriloquist, with the Hippo. Bioscope, complete an excellent programme.

NOTTINGHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—Raffles drew a large audience on Monday. As the eminent cracksman Mr. Leonard Boyne brings a wealth of artistic temperament to bear on the part; Mr. Arthur Willoughby acts impressively as the Earl of Amersteth; Mr. Cecil Brymer is capital in the rôle of Viscount Crowley; Miss Blanka Stewart endows Lady Melrose with the requisite dignity; Miss Hilda Moore makes a graceful Gwendoline Conran; and Lady Ethel is brightly played by Miss Beatrice Fitzgerald. Miss Lilian Hallows deserves hearty congratulation on her assumption of Mrs. Vidal; and Miss Dorothy Gordon makes the most of the part of Marie. As the smart detective Mr. E. W. Thomas thoroughly grasps his opportunities; and Mr. Harold West is altogether convincing as Harry Manders.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Harry Upton.—A visit by Mr. T. W. Turner and his opera company is always welcome here, and the veteran tenor was in excellent form on Monday last, when he appeared as Lionel in Flotow's opera Martha. Miss Sarah Williams possesses a cultured voice, which rang out clear and sweet in the music of Lady Harriet; and the powerful contralto of Miss Jessie Dennis was heard to good effect as Nancy. Miss George Ridding did well as Lord Tristan, as also did Mr. Tom Griffiths as Lionel. The répertoire includes Faust, Il Trovatore, Lucia di Lammermoor, Lily of Killarney, and Maritana.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—Turpin's Ride to York makes an attractive equestrian spectacle, and its presentation this week by Fred Ginnett's company is proving a big success. The versatile conjurer Hermann Melot is delighting his many admirers with a smart and mystifying entertainment; Olgar and Elgar quite captivate their audiences in charming and melodious musical items; the vocalism of Bessie Slaughter is accorded an unmistakable tribute of praise; an acrobatic turns by the Falcons is both skilful and mirth-provoking; and the singing comedians, Verno and Voyce add to their popularity in a new sketch, entitled The Fly-Far Man. Nance Elder, comedienne, Walter King, comedian, and E. J. Sheldon display commendable enterprise in their contributions; and excellent films are shown on the Bioscope

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. V. Carnell.—The ventriloquism of Arthur Prince is artistic; comedy in its broadest form is supplied by Harry Grattian and company, with Man, the Brute; another humorous sketch, An Anglo-American Alliance, is creditably given by Wilton Heriot and company; and Carrie Laurie's Juveniles secure the fullest appreciation for their admirable contributions. Wright and Lawson supply some dexterous tumbling feats; Picitt and Lizette are heard in a musical extravaganza; Lyster and Cooke add to the enjoyment by a musical number; Bert Brandford and Dan Filmer, comedians, and pictures on the Barrascope are also well received.

NORTH SHIELDS. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Miss Maud Hildyard and company, with The Great Awakening, are here this week. As Lola Selby Miss Hildyard presents an excellent study of the character, and Miss Elsie Capel is seen to much advantage as Molly Merton; Mr. Cecil Gray, in the dual rôles of Sir Henry Merton and Jack Merton, is worthy of praise; Mr. Herbert Robinson plays carefully and well as Guy Rogan; Mr. Wallis Clark makes a capable Captain Harry Lambert; Mr. Archer Brown does well as James Selby; and Mr. David Curtis is satisfactory as Richard Wilson; Mr. Tracy Barrow as Billy Brass and Miss Cissie Podmore as Selina Worts, keep the audience in a happy mood.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joseph Coyle.—The Woman Pays is being presented by Mr. Frank M. Thorne's company. Mr. Phil Harper gives a fine impersonation of the hero, Sid Armstrong; Mr. John Davidson as the villainous schemer Roger Marchant, plays his part well; humorous diversion of an excellent kind is ably provided by Mr. Frank Thorne as Mickey Maloney; Mr. Dunlop Stewart as Luke Morland, Mr. Charles Arthur as Doctor Trevor, and Mr. Beresford Innes as Cyrus Tredgold acquit themselves well; Miss Maud Russell secures much appreciation by her capable acting as Madge; Miss Kate Blair plays the pathetic rôle of Nell Morland with marked success; Miss Anene Walton makes a vivacious Polly, and Miss Florence Thorne is good as Tabitha.

OLDBURY.—PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Jas. Tyrer.—Business is extra good here this week. Chester and Lee, with their marionette show, create quite a furore; Frank Vant, comedian, is smart, both in patter and song; Lily Simcox sings illustrated songs well; Perci Vale is a capital turn; Miss Gertrude Martini has a fine appearance, and gets encored nightly; and the pictures are interesting.

OLDHAM.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—Hardie and Von Leer's company in The Sailor's Wedding opened here for five nights. Mr. C. W. Standing gives a fine rendering of the sailor hero, Lieut. Gordon Drake; Mr. Cecil Klein as Sir Victor Lascelles is excellent; Miss Dulcie Greatwich is a dainty Mary; and Miss Laura Hansen a capital Countess; Miss Winifred Pearson acts in a clever manner as the adventuress; and Mr. Hodgson Taylor is good as her ally in crime. Mr. H. Finch Smiles is smart as Giacomo; and Mr. Cole Aspinall is a capital Count Bellini. Miss M. Sadie as Polly, and Messrs. W. Pemberton and Huntley Gifford as Jack Hawkins and Bill Burns respectively are responsible for the comedy.

COLOSSEUM THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr. Wm. Eastwood.—Matthew H. Glenville and Fred Osmond's company in A Soldier of France occupies the boards here. Mr. Percy Ballard acts forcibly as Corporal Jean; Judas Delara is ably portrayed by Mr. Percy Guyon; Miss Carlotta Anson as Pauline Lorraine is highly successful; Mr. Edward Hobart as Lieut. Louis is excellent; as is Mr. Arthur Downs as Sergeant Flange; Miss Gertie Renaud is good as Little Louis; Miss Maggie Hobart is satisfactory as Rita; and Miss Jennie Clare as Margot and Mr. Freddie Edwards as Pollyput Jolliboy cause much amusement.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Kilrow.—Mark Sheridan with his capital songs and funny patter proves a great favourite; Athas and Collins introduce smart comedy and clever dancing; the Paul Krainer Troupe give an excellent balancing act (deputising for Miss Winifred Hare, who is indisposed); Barbara Babington sings good songs; Hinton and Wooton are smart in a football match on cycles; and the Brothers Miller are comedy wrestlers; Harvey's American Boys and Girls sing and dance well; and Clifford Grey is also on the bill. The Dottoscope concludes with an entertaining film.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Nuttall.—Cleland, the mad juggler, tops the bill in smart juggling; Les Montaldos perform cleverly with parrots, cockatoos, and macaws; Ted Cowan has some quaint songs; Leoni Dixon is a good comedienne and dancer; Pietro does some smart work as a contortionist; and the Brothers Carney are excellent in their vocal scena; J. S. James, comedian and banjoist, and the Dottoscope conclude.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter De Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. F Thorne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Edmund Sharrock.—The Great Lafayette is the principal attraction here in his unique creation, "From Dust to Dust"; Hall and Earle are clever in an acrobatic comedy act; Williams and Warden are smart cross-talk comedians and dancers; Stelling and his well-trained dog "Kiswaski" take very well; Marie Glen sings well; and Carson Hicks and the Palace pictures conclude.

OXFORD. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. C. C. Dorrill; Assistant-Manager, Mr. G. T. Lucas.—The latter half of last week The Beloved Vagabond, admirably acted, was received with keen appreciation here by good houses. Dear Old Charlie is being smartly performed by an excellent company, under the direction of Mr. Charles H. Williams, and is causing the greatest amusement. Mr. George Lestocq rattles through the part of Charles Ingleton with any amount of "go," and scores a big success. His friends, Peploe and Dumphie, find excellent exponents in Messrs. C. Douglas Cox and R. S. Trelawney; Mr. Duncan Young is well suited as Colonel Fishbourne, and Mr. Stanley Arthur gives a clever study as Purkitt. Miss Enid G. Folde is a handsome and fascinating Agnes, and the part of her mother is capitally played by Miss Leonora Braham. A capital little curtain-raiser, The Cause, is well acted by Mrs. Leonora Braham and Mr. Cyril Vernon.

EAST OXFORD THEATRE.—Lessees, East Oxford Theatre, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Stuart.—Messrs. Herbert Skardon and H. Sherwood Martin's company is this week presenting The Way of the World. Mr. Skardon is a robust and highly successful Cecil Hardy, and Mr. Clarence Temple gives a powerful rendering of Matthew Malyon; Mr. Victor Gordon sustains Capt. Fred Slade capably; Mr. Augustus Hammond is natural as Horatio Bluff; Mr. Patt Quinn is effective as Sir John Hardy; and Mr. D'Arcy Kelway is amusing as Joe Sparrow. Miss Marie Fontami is sympathetic as Kate Montague; Miss Marie Marsh does well as Eric Malyon; and Miss Violet Vivienne is a general favourite as Pollie Bell. Miss Sidney Crowe gives a powerful and realistic portrayal of Lady Adela Hardy.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—The Paisley Musical and Operatic Society are this week submitting an amateur production of The Mikado, by kind permission of Mrs. D'Oyly Carte. The performances are on the whole excellent, and Mr. Charles Rose, late of the D'Oyly Carte company, who acts as stage-manager, and who also instructed and coached the amateurs, is to be complimented on his successful and indefatigable efforts.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. S. Stead.—Tarro Miyake, the champion ju-jitsu wrestler, who heads the bill here this week, is on a return visit, and is again demonstrating successfully his ability in this style of wrestling; Jack Lane, comedian, is vastly amusing in his original and clever business; the Arthur Lloyd Trio submit an excellent and very humorous sketch, entitled Little Charlie; or, the Twin Sisters; the Juanitos Troupe (five in number) give a very fine and daring display of acrobatic work; Marlo's reception as an expert and novelty juggler is flattering; the performance of the sketch Uncle Obadiah, by Charles Dixton's company, is amusing; Lilian Travellie, soubrette and light ballad vocalist, scores with her songs; Sam Dalton, eccentric vocal comedian, is well received; and the Bioscope is, as usual, of absorbing interest.

PENTRE.—TIVOLI PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Poole's Theatres, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth.—An entertaining bill includes the Five X-Rays, the mad athletes; Miss Ada Faure, comedy and burlesque artist; the Three Orros, in their silver chain act; Baby Vi Davis, juvenile actress and vocalist; May Audrey, versatile comedienne; Ted Moxon Trio, Continental eccentrics; Carl and Carr, comedians and dancers; and the Tivoliscope.

WORKMEN'S HALL.—Manager, Mr. Edgar Harpur.—The up-to-date animated pictures of Will Stone attract large audiences; Charlie Goodman's sketch company, in clever performances of Trust and the Ghost of Cefu Castle is cordially received.

DRILL HALL.—Tom Owen, the Welsh comedian, is here this week with his Pierrot Star Variety company, and is warmly welcomed by his numerous admirers. The talented company include Miss Esalene Thorne, comedienne; Miss Catherine May, soprano; Miss Lilian Therese, mandolinist; Miss Mollie Gwynne, contralto; Mr. Reginald Bale and Mr. Cecil Bradley, tenors; Mr. Alfred Bale, basso; Mr. Harry Vernon, bass and descriptive vocalist; Mr. Bert Crosbie, champion rag-time dancer; and Miss Ethel Vere, the dainty soubrette.

PERTH. — THE PERTH THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Mr. Stephen Richardson's Amateur Opera Company is occupying the theatre this week, with the comic opera Erminie, which is being well received.

PETERBOROUGH.—NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Fred Karno and A. H. Edwards; Manager, Mr. Frank Gallagher.—The capital programme presented here this week includes Fasola, Indian Fakir and Eastern wonder-worker; Tom Carney, character comedian and dancer; Brothers Idento, speciality artists; Lilian French, vocal comedienne and dancer; Smith and Johnson, in their drawing-room entertainment; Tom Fancourt and Jennie Rubie, in their comedy act, The Huntsman and the Waiter; and Charles Harvey, in the farcical absurdity, The Broken Statue.

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—The management have this week placed the theatre at the disposal of the Plymouth Amateur Operatic Society, who have given an excellent rendering of Falka, the proceeds being in aid of the local Veterans' Fund. The better parts of the house have nightly been filled with large and appreciative audiences.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. J. Field.—This week's entertainment is interesting and of all-round ability; Doody and Wright, Australian comiques, are particularly good; Maude Mortimer supplies a trio of tuneful songs, the refrains of which are taken up with much spirit; Emerson and Baldwin intermingle skill and comedy in a well-executed juggling turn; and the Robertys furnish some sensational and exacting balancing business; Lily Esplin supplies a vocal number which receives a due measure of appreciation; the Vays depict a touching little episode of juvenile slum-life; Harry Vardon strikes an original chord in the ventriloquial business; and Mark Merry, comedian, concludes the entertainment.

PONTEFRACT. — ALEXANDRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Tom Diacoff.—Topping the bill here this week is Caban's French Circus, a collection of clever diminutive animals, ponies, dog, &c. The programme also includes Miss Bouverie Playdell, comedienne and dancer; Martinett and Wallace, capital coloured entertainers; the Sages, burlesque artists; Clarke and Glenny, in a screaming absurdity; Geo. Rae, a comedian in kilts; and the Bros. Lang, a pair of bustling knockabouts. In addition, there are very excellent pictures by the Alexscope.

PONTYPRIDD.—ROYAL CLARENCE THEATRE.—Owners and Proprietors, Messrs. Trenchard and Jones; Manager, Mr. Charles Trenchard.—Occupying the boards this week is Mr. Frank J. Pitt's company in £1,000 Reward. Vincent Rainsworth is admirably portrayed by Mr. Frank J. Pitt; Gilbert Lisle is in the able hands of Mr. J. Wilton; Mr. Edward de Vere scores as Fred Ingleford; Fred Ingleford, jun., is ably assumed by Mr. Wilson Roberts; Mr. Joe English shows to advantage as Dick Springthorpe; Inspector Gilbert is capably presented by Mr. Frank Dallas; Mr. Arthur Merton is good as Fighting Jeppe; Miss Kathryne Eckart makes a graceful Mme. Sansom; Kitty Springthorpe is prettily played by Miss Minnie Goepel; and Mrs. McCarthy is successfully embodied by Miss Alice Clarke.

PORTH. — THE PALACE. — Proprietors, Poole's Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. C. W. Poole; Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth.—Topping the bill here are the Eight College Girls, in a smart vocal and dancing act; Jack Barker, light comedian, scores a success; Wild, Willie, and West, the Three Bounding Navvies, comedy acrobats, make a hit; The Little Colonel by Montefiore and company, on a return visit, meets with approval; Flo Schuberth possesses a good voice; Pip Powell and Katie Vesey, in a highly-refined duologue, entitled A Perfect Woman, are accorded a warm reception; Dora Barrington has an excellent voice, and is ably assisted by Miss Leslie Grey in the vocal scena Sentiment and Jest; Stewart and Evans are capital comedians; and the Palascope has some good pictures.

PORTSMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell. — The Portsmouth Amateur Orpheus Operatic Society are in evidence here this week, playing with considerable success the comic opera, Merrie England, for the benefit of the local charities.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company is attracting large and appreciative audiences here with the dramatic success, Leah Kleschna. Mr. Hamilton Deane fills the part of Paul Sylvaine with fine effect; Miss Bessie Rignold, in the title-rôle, acts admirably; as Kleschna, Mr. William Clayton is very powerful and intense; Mr. Gilbert Heron well sustains the rôle of Schram; as Raoul Berton Mr. Algernon J. Hicks is capable; and Mr. Charles Barrett does well as General Berton. Madam Berton is taken in excellent and sympathetic style by Miss Ethel Russell; and Miss Emmie Wallace is charming and praiseworthy as Clare Berton. The other characters are in good hands.

KING'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Marner; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Walter Reynolds' Irish company head the bill here for the week, and give an exceedingly well-produced sketch, entitled Sweet Innisfail, which gains unbounded admiration; Sam Williams is a quaint vocal comedian; Radford Duo as mimics excel and greatly please; Allis and Cassatti are diverting in the few minutes' fun; Three Carleus, a very smart trio of trapeze artists, gain a cordial greeting; Ferdie's Ma-in-Law, an extremely funny sketch, causes much merriment; Jack Neil, comedian, does well; Rastus and Banks, coloured entertainers, are both witty and droll; and are received warmly; Moller and Theodor, comedy acrobats, work well; Musical Johnstons, American xylophone artists, are an acquisition to the programme. Animated pictures finish.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Captain Warren Wright; Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—Miss Irma Lorraine gives a series of graceful animated tableaux, winning admiration by her clever posing and dancing; Sid Brandon, character comedian, does well; Gibbon and Bell, in their acrobatic dancing speciality, gain great applause; Spangles and Sawdust, in comedy aerial act, are very smart; Barney Vox's ventriloquial act, Fun Outside Cassidy's Cabin, causes planty of laughter; Mlle. Eldee gives a bright and popular turn in The Girl in the Golden Frame; Jas. Willard and company, in The Ace of Hearts, score tremendously for their well-presented scena; and Payne's Bio, with some excellent new films, concludes.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris; Acting-Manager, Col. Roberts, V.D.—Miss Marie Lloyd, the incomparable Queen of Comedy, is the star turn for the week, and although the popular artist is suffering from a severe cold, her admirers were not satisfied until she had rendered three of her fascinating numbers; Mr. Bert Woodward, the cycling coon, is a wonder in his speciality; Les Rallis, with their surprisingly clever acrobatic comedy, The Artist and His Monkey, gain a warm welcome; Lilian O'Brian is a capable vocalist; Wyotti, the witty juggler, is much liked; Bros. Laurence are particularly smart in their dancing performances; W. D. McKenzie's company, in musical scena, Moments with the Masters, are to be highly commended; Miss Ella Lane, a charming comedienne, and some fine pictures from the Hippo. Bio, depicting Italian cavalry, finish a capital programme.

PRESTON.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, the Executors of the late W. Johnson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's company, in the play In Holy! Russia, is the attraction here this week. Mr. J. Rice Cassidy as Mickey Nolan is full of Irish wit, and is thoroughly at home in his part; Mrs. J. Rice Cassidy as Renée Rubinoff gives a dramatic and powerful presentation of the character; Mr. Henry Compton is capital as Colonel Richard Forrest; Mr. Frank Copeland is a dignified Sir Harry Berresford; Mr. Rolf. Leslie as Count Gregori Petroiski is clever; Mr. George H. Doyle is also good as Laurice Steragoff; Mr. Carl Beechy displays the necessary cunning as the Chief of Police which the part demands; Miss Amy McNeil is excellent as the unprincipled Cataka Lavotski; Mr. St. George Frere acts well as Captain Michael Natolski. The rest of the cast is in the hands of Mr. Robert Cockcroft as the Czar, Messrs. James Kay, Geo. Lawton, Edwin Verner, Alfred Lewis, and the Misses Alice Holland, Agnes Durham, and Alice Inman, all of whom are most capable, whilst the mounting of the play leaves nothing to be desired.

Prince's Theatre.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—The Power of the Cross, by Mr. Lingford Carson's company, holds the boards here this week. Mr. George A. de Gray gives a clever impersonation of Baron Woulfe Cursola; Mr. Robert Hall as Gerald Fairfax succeeds in a manner beyond doubt in a very difficult rôle; Mr. Tyrone Power as Timothy O'Dowd is remarkably droll; Miss Stella Carmichael as the adventuress Rita Lascelles has an unenviable character to portray, but is most successful; Miss Phyllis Vaughan wins much applause for the womanly manner in which she enacts the part of Blanche Kingsley; David Kingsley (her father) is in the capable hands of Mr. Gilson Brooke; Miss Bita Turner as Dolly Gray adds much to the success of the piece as far as the comedy element is concerned. Miss Annie Hylton is indeed good as Margaret Seaton.

Royal Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank E. Burdett.—Mr. Charles Parker's Six Æolians, in their refined vocal and dancing act, give a most excellent turn, and one which the audience fully appreciates; Gorman's Juveniles in the pretty vocal scena, The Waif also score; the Deuchars, duettists and dancers, give a pleasing turn; Percy Farrimond, the Lancashire Singing Collier, possesses a remarkably clear tenor voice, and is loudly applauded; Frank Solbey is a quaint comedian and an excellent child mimic; Will Walton, a native of these parts, is a clever comedian, and should be satisfied with the reception he received; Chris Van Bern gives an exceedingly original turn, in which he introduces some clever sleight-of-hand tricks; Mark Henton, the mirthful one, is decidedly original, and raises many a hearty laugh; the Three Romios give an exhibition on the triple bars, at the same time introducing some original comedy. On the Bioscope A Tale of the Revolution concludes another capital programme.

RAMSGATE.—Royal Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; Resident-Manager, Mr. Dan Forrest; Lessee, Mr. Ernest Mansell.—Mr. E. Mansell continues his lesseeship of the Royal Palace Theatre with marked success, and the large audiences which nightly gather there show by their hearty applause and their continued patronage that they keenly appreciate the attractive entertainments provided. On Sunday a thoroughly excellent sacred concert was given, a prominent feature of the programme being selections by the fine band of the 4th Battalion of the Buffs, under the conductorship of Mr. C. J. Brooks. In addition there were vocal items and admirable displays of animated pictures. During the week there have been popular displays of the Graphic life-motion pictures. Entertaining varieties have been introduced by Ruby Lynne, the Little Magnet, and Hal Dane, described as "Prime Minister of Fun." For next week a complete change of programme is announced.

READING.—Royal County Theatre—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Benton.—Mr. Morton Powell's company is appearing this week in The Greed of Gold. Mr. James Jarrett works very hard in the character of the dumb man, Tom Wellstead; Mr. Henry C. Ward acts effectively as the rascally Harry Hood; Miss Elma C. Turner is excellent as Dora, Hood's wife; Mr. Alf. Stretton as Arthur Erroll, Mr. Victor C. Rolfe as Mr. Brightstone, Q.C., and Miss Beatrice M. Hughes as Cecil all act in good style. Comic relief is afforded by Mr. Sydney Bryant as Cully Snig, Mr. Frank Midhurst as Conn Creamer, and Miss May Watts as Patty Manfield, who create much amusement. The novel sensational effects include a beam engine worked by steam, and the scene in which the hero is strapped to the revolving mill-wheel is watched with intense excitement.

The Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Howard Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. E. Draco.—Rameses, the Egyptian wonder-worker, appears among weird Oriental surroundings, and performs a number of very clever mystical feats, including the mysterious appearance and disappearance of a lady, the effect being increased by the aid of coloured fires and limelight appliances. Cardow's Merry Yachtsmen supply a capital musical turn; the Eight Stella Girls give an attractive terpsichorean performance; a farcical comedietta, The Butler's Baby, by Brown and Kelly, causes great hilarity; Arthur Kenny gives a sensational cycling act; Miss Florrie Thurston is an accomplished dancer; Ida Clare gives some clever impersonations; Harry Elliott is a good comedian; and some excellent pictures are shown on the Palace Bioscope.

ROCHDALE.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, the Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Burton.—Mr. F. R. Benson's Shakespearean company is here with a répertoire of plays. On Monday The Merchant of Venice was presented. Mr. Henry Herbert gave a fine impersonation of Shylock; Mr. James Berry was seen to great advantage as Antonio; Mr. Bernard Limpus was effective as Bassanio; and Mr. E. Vanderlip skilfully portrayed the part of Lorenzo. Miss Violet Farebrother was an acceptable Nerissa; Miss Jean Graeme was successful as Jessica; and Miss Gladys Vanderzee acted with superior power the part of Portia. Romeo and Juliet, The Merry Wives of Windsor, Henry V., The Taming of the Shrew, Hamlet, and Twelfth Night are billed for production during the week.

Empire.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—A capital bill of fare is presented to the patrons here this week. Jan Rudenyi and company, in a musical romance, The Power of Music, are highly interesting and clever; Ike and Will Scott score heavily in their latest hit The Blind Fiddler. Phil Goldie, comedian and vocalist; Fannie Humber, instrumentalist, vocalist, and dancer; Marlow and Manton, in Other People's Babies; Nib Hinman, comedian; Rosie Archer, musical mimic; and the Empire Bioscope pictures complete the programme.

New Hippodrome. — Proprietors, The Jackson Family; Business-Manager, Mr. John Jackson; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Jackson, senior.—The Singing Servants, in an operatic burlesque, fairly bring down the house; Satani and company are mystifying the audiences in a series of illusions; Burley and Burley are most amusing comedians. Other turns are submitted by Geo. Hyman, comedian; Azelle Wilson, gymnast; the Society Quartette of singers and dancers; Nellie Rose, comedienne; Billy Farrell; and the Hippodrome pictures.

SALFORD.—Prince of Wales's.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's No. I company are fulfilling a week's engagement here with Two Little Drummer Boys. Mr. Edward Bikker makes a dignified General Kingsley, V.C.; Captain Frank Carsdale is successfully portrayed by Mr. Harry Scott; Mr. Oswald Douglas makes an excellent Captain George Darrell; the boys, Eric Carsdale and Jack Smith, are well represented by the Misses Maggie English and Maudie Douglas respectively. The comedy is well supplied by Mr. Will Percy (Quincy O'Quirke), Mr. Dick Seddon (Timothy Trimmer), and Miss Patricia Connaughton (Molly Meadows). Miss Mary Ainslie is a most charming Alma Kingsley, and Miss Violet Ingram does well as Margaret Rivers; Mr. Wilson Holmes is also comical as the deserter Jim Barker.

Regent Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—The Cruise of H.M.S. Victory, in three scenes, by Miss Flo Stanley, causes much amusement as presented by that lady, assisted by Mr. Arthur Watson, Mr. W. Rufus, Mr. Jack Roberts, and Miss Nellie Grant in the principal parts. David Poole's ventriloquial act is most enjoyable; Lily Lonsdale's soprano songs are much applauded; Ada Gatley cleverly walks the slack wire; good business is also done by Daisy Dormer, dainty comedienne; Charles Bowen, comedian; Norah Stockelle, comedienne and clever dancer; Rell and Butt in Fun in the Garden; Ernie Myers, patter comedian; and Robbie Roy, Scotch comedian.

Royal Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; General-Manager, Mr. H. Winstanley; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Statter.—Reano and his band are much appreciated; La Belle Duchess gives a very smart exhibition with her boxing stallions, ponies, and dogs; A Day on the Beach is a good sketch by Lester and Moure; Evelyn and Norrie (Herbert and Ethel) have an acceptable sketchy bit, Set a Thief—. Other good turns include Jim Cunliffe, comedian; Forrest and King, comedy acrobatic dancers; the Le Lars, vocalists and acrobatic buck dancers; and some good pictures.

Opera House and Assembly Rooms, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr E. Percival.—Mr. Lester King has become lessee and manager of the Central Hall, Oldham, and severed his connection with the above house, of which Mr. E. Percival has taken his place as above. This week's pictures are well patronised (twice nightly), and include a drama, A Gentleman's Son, Fright in a Village, Brigadier's Stripes, Tommy's Visit to His Aunt, Quarryman, The Statue, Midnight Sun, Artful Dodger's Meal, and Prize Camel. Mr. Percival sings the illustrated song, "A little boy called Taps."

SEACOMBE.—Irving Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kiernan.—Messrs. Mathew H. Glenville and Fred Osmond's company is drawing well here this week with The Still Alarm. Jack Manley is played by Mr. Mathew H. Glenville in his usual robust and convincing style; Mr. Gerald Kennedy gains his full meed of opprobium in the rôle of John Bird; the low comedy section is cleverly attended to by Mr. Fred Osmond as Doc Wilber and Mr. Henry Smith as Hal Sleeper, the lighter comedy portion being in the able hands of Mr. Tom Beazley as Willie Manley and Miss Hettie Zillwood, who gives a charming and vivacious personation of Carrie Wilber; Miss Beatrice Shirley is a satisfactory Elinor, and Miss Mabel Veriton a natural and convincing Mrs. Manley. The Lyric Comedy Four gain undeniable encores for their vocal quartettes.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—New Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. A. C. Harrison; Manager, Mr. H. D. Lyle.—A Heart's Desire is being presented here by Messrs. Elliman's company. As Lord St. Ives Mr. R. F. Stacey presents a dignified study of the part; Mr. Julien Mitchell finds great favour as Eric May; the Hon. Bertie Beresford is pleasingly impersonated by Mr. H. Lawrence; the villainy of Luke Forrest is well depicted by Mr. Edward Leroy; David McCulloch finds a capable exponent in Mr. Charles King; as Coombes Mr. Norman Clifton does well; Miss Lily Prescott assumes the rôle of Olya with entire satisfaction; Miss Blanch Leroy impersonates Elsie Beresford with much charm; and Gwendoline Ross is admirably depicted by Miss Hilda May. The Shadows of a Great City was announced for the concluding three nights.

SHEFFIELD.—Lyceum Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch was played to a good house on Monday. Mrs. Madge Carr Cook's impersonation of Mrs. Wiggs was much admired, and other characters were represented by Miss Rita Carlyle Miss Mabel Durrant, Miss Violet Vivian, and Messrs. Frederick Forrest, W. M. Cameron, Gerald Henson, Edward Coventry, H. Faulkner, S. Carlyle, Harry C. Wright, and Arthur Vezin. The play was beautifully mounted.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. Henfrey-Aldred.—Mr. A. Clifton Alderson and a strong company are appearing to excellent audiences in the well-constructed and interesting drama The Coal King.

Alexandra Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr William D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—Mr. Harry Battersby's company opened to a good house on Monday in The King of Crime. Mr. F. B. Woulfe made a great success in the rôle of Ronjarre, and all the other parts were excellently played. On Friday the historical drama by Max Goldberg Jane Shore was performed with Mr. W. B. Woulfe as the Duke of Gloucester and Miss Mildred Eversleigh in the rôle of Jane Shore.

Empire Palace Theatre.—The Moss Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—The clever, original, and versatile comedienne Miss Daisy Jerome is starring here, and the other artists engaged this week are Happy Tom Parker, a clever, funny, and laugh-provoking eccentric comedian; Carney and Armstrong, two smart and diverting burlesquers; the Boisset Troupe in their ever-welcome pantomimic comic ballet d'action The Bricklayers; Santon, vocalist; Miss Mabel Bardine and company in a modernised version of the Peg Woffington story, entitled Nell of the Halls; Leo Tell, the musical mimic; Mr. Tom Moore, character comedian; the original Cumberland Troupe, in a daring and graceful cycling act, &c. The performance concludes with The Burglar's Daughter, a Bioscopic story.

The Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. P. D. Elbourne.—Hackenschmidt, the renowned wrestler, is the top-liner this week, others engaged being the Three Rubys, graceful and intrepid young ladies on the bars and flying trapeze; the Sisters Maudsley, pretty and clever duettists; Miss Enid Erroll, the graceful danseuse, in the amusing terpsichorean extravaganza The Magic Vase; Lee and Kingston, in a smart comedy act; Mike Nono, vocalist and dancer; Ray and Calden, comedy entertainers; Honors and Prince, in a first-rate acrobatic performance; Les Hectors, novelty artists; and Mr. Arthur Royce, mimic. The Pathé Frères' Scenes in New York is one of the best moving pictures seen in Sheffield, and brings down the house.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. A. S. Turpin.—Those old Sheffield favourites Mr. Harry Wright, comic vocalist, and Miss Nelly Gannon, Westbar's popular serio-comic vocalist, with up-to-date Bioscope films, are drawing large and delighted audiences to the well-conducted and cosy picture theatre so ably managed by Mr. A. S. Turpin.

SHREWSBURY.—Theatre Royal and Hippodrome.—Lessee and Director, Mr. W. Yates Gregory; General-Manager, Mr. Thos. Baugh.—Miss Harriet Greet's company is here this week with The Sign of the Cross, admirably staged and enacted. Mr. Wallace G. Court makes a dignified Marcus Superbus; Mr. Edward Clowes acts carefully and well as Nero; Mr. G. Osmond Tearle merits praise as Tigellinus; Mr. Rupert Carlton is successful as Licinius; Mr. Donald McAdam makes a capital Glabrio; and Mr. J. P. Jordan a soldierly Viturius. Miss Lily Ward as Poppæa is stately; Miss Nora Cragie makes a fascinating Berenis; Miss Dorothy Lambert as Dacia enacts her part with conspicuous ability; Miss Vera Crichton is a sweet and commendable Mercia; Miss Effie Dane plays the trying part of Stephanus in a most praiseworthy manner; Mr. C. Edwards performs creditably as Favius.

SOUTHAMPTON.—Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr Arthur Weston.—Mr. Walter Melville's drama The Beggar Girl's Wedding is here. The excellent company includes Miss Eva Dare (Tina Torkington), Miss Vashti Wynne (Bessie Webster), who is a Southampton lady, and Mr. Otto Minster (Jack Cunningham), all of whom acquit themselves admirably.

Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wm. Trussell.—The Gothams, an excellent quartette of vocalists and entertainers, top the bill, and score a huge success. A novel feature of the programme is the song "John Bull's sailor boy," which is tastefully sung by Miss Elma Morris, who looks particularly handsome attired as Britannia; Dan Whitley is a smart and clever comedian, and keeps the house in roars of laughter Others who entertain are the Sovereigns, one-legged equilibrists; Will Douglas's Five Jolly Bakers; Woodhouse and Wells, comedians and dancers; Gus Harris, Hebrew character delineator; and Stidder and Dunbar.

Hippodrome.—Joint Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and W. de Frece; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Yardley.—T. E. Dunville is the star here, and his favourite songs, including "The postman," keep the house in laughter. Hayes and Merritt, bounding trampolinists, do a clever turn; the Four Minars dance beautifully; Mr. C. sings and talks; Maud Courtney scores in song, recital, and story; Rex Fox, ventriloquises on the wire; Jenny Reeves, comedienne, Stevens and Rennoir, comedians and dancers, also appear.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—Empire Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Geo. Conquest and Richard H. Nerney; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—Jack Straw, presented by Messrs. Lionel Glenister and J. W. Wood-Ingram's talented company, drew good patronage on Monday. The title-rôle is represented by Mr. Lionel Glenister, whose ability gains instant recognition; Miss Florence St. John is a skilful and droll representative of Mrs. Parker-Jennings; Mr. J. W. Wood-Ingram is well suited as H. E. Count Adrian Von Bremer, as also is Mr. J. Edgar Stevenson as Marquis of Serlo; Mr. Frederick Moyes ably portrays Ambrose Holland; Mr. A. T. Gullifer pleases as Mr. Parker-Jennings; and Mr. Christmas Grose works well as Vincent Parker-Jennings. Miss May Poole impersonates Ethel Parker-Jennings creditably, and the Misses Edie Graham as Lady Wanley and Estelle Despa as Mrs. Withers are capable. In A Long Journey, the curtain-raiser, Mr. Ernest Graham figures with success.

SOUTHPORT.—Opera House, Winter Gardens.—Proprietors, The Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens, Ltd.; Secretary and General-Manager, Mr. R. Singleton.—Mr. Charles Constant's No. 1 company in Florodora forms the attraction here. The rôle of Dolores was very ably and piquantly depicted by Miss Daisy Lake; Lady Holyrood had a smart exponent in Miss Lillie Blythe; Mr. Gus Danby was highly humorous and versatile in the part of Anthony Tweedlepunch; Miss Louie Danby is a commendable exponent of Angela Gilfain; Mr. Jack Parker efficiently represented Cyrus Gilfain; Mr. Martin D. Pitt sustained the character of Frank Abercoed very creditably; whilst Captain Arthur Donegal and Leandro were acceptably impersonated by Mr. J. R. Cuninngham and Mr. Emlyn Davis respectively.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. John and Fred Coulson.—We are having a visit from Mr. Wm. Maclaren and Miss Lily C. Bandmann's company in Claudian. Mr. Wm. Maclaren is impressive in the title-rôle; the Almida of Miss Lily C. Bandmann is charmingly and sympathetically interpreted; Mr. George Roberts is a good Holy Clement; Mr. Douglas Earle is well cast as Agazil; and Thariogalus is ably depicted by Mr. B. Elliott. The humour is well sustained by Mr. C. T. Challoner as Belos and Miss Ruth Trafford as Edessa and Mr. W. Hubbard as Alcares. The minor parts are also in good hands. Dancing, chorus, and staging are excellent.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Proprietors, The South Shields Empire Palace, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—The chief item here is Miss Marquis and her stud of highly-trained cobs. They do a series of tricks which does credit to Miss Marquis and her assistants. Thompson Carruthers and company contribute a sensational card-manipulating novelty, The Master Card, which is well played by Dunningarto, the card-manipulator, Fred H. Constable, Miss Ethel Arto, Miss Bertha Clifton, and Miss Ivy Chandos. Ross and Lewis, the Yankee Doodle duo, provide a funny sketch entitled Fits and Misfits; Ida Kathrina is very clever as the Dolly girl. Little Pam Rose is a good boy comedian. Other good items are supplied by the Sisters Grovini, clever acrobats and tumblers; James Lowrey, vocalist; Alf Chester, comedian; and the Bioscope.

Tivoli, Lavgate Circus.—Proprietor, Councillor J. K. Hall.—Li Chang Hi, assisted by Princess Tai-Mao, completely mystify their audience with their Oriental conjuring; the Three Sisters Duquesne are charming vocalists and dancers; W. E. Hilton submits a good ventriloquial entertainment; Harry Heaton, character comedian, has a good reception; and the Tivoliscope completes the bill.

SPENNYMOOR.—Cambridge Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; General-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance; Resident-Manager, Mr. David Collins.—The attraction this week is Messrs. Northway and Garrod's company in the new drama A Country Girl in London. Mr. W. V. Garrod gives a fine performance as Frank Gordon; Mr. Leonard Booker is good as the villain Godfrey Clinton; and as the Squire of Langdale Mr. John S. Sheridan is all that could be desired. As Marjorie Hamilton, a country girl, Miss Bertha Kingston sustains the part with excellent judgment; and Miss Josephine Colona is very good as Gwendoline Gordon. The humorous parts are safe in the hands of Messrs. John Belton as Heinrich Oppenheim, Seymour Perry as Wilberforce Puddyphat, and Miss Leslie Adair as Adelaide Puddyphat. The scenery is worthy of special mention.

STALYBRIDGE.—Grand Hippodrome.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Fioni; Resident-Manager, Mr. W A. Jackson.—Miss Agnes Molteno and company appear to much advantage in a musical scena, A Dolly and Her Coach; the Renos are remarkably clever in their exhibitions of strength; and others who contribute to the entertainment are Prof. Hulbert, ventriloquist, Mons. De Lil, conjurer, Miss Nellie Walton, the singing mill girl, and Vera and Royal, comedians. A beauty competition is also being conducted, for which £20 is offered in money prizes.

ST. HELENS.—Theatre and Opera House.—Proprietors, St. Helens Theatre, Ltd. — Mr. E. H. Knight's company in The Lighthouse Robbery, is here this week. Mr. Geffory Broughton plays well as Tom Manley; and Miss Hilda Baynton is a sweet and pleasing Rose Prescott. The villainy of James Hammond is capably depicted by Mr. Percy Beresford; and Mr. H. J. Walton gives a good character sketch as David Morris. Miss Lillian Bales (Ruth Manley) and Mr. Arthur Beaufort (Sam Kidder) are successful in the humorous element.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Sley, and Willmot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Leo Weisker.—The Bijou Juveniles are a troupe of pretty little children who present a highly-pleasing series of songs and dances; John G. Brandon and company appear with great success in the dramatic sketch The Girl and the Tough; H. W. Langslow gives a clever exhibition of shooting; Henri Bekker's conjuring tricks are very entertaining; and the Nettas are amusing. Dora Kingsley's rich voice is heard with pleasure, and she is deservedly encored; Patty Yole and C. D. Reekie also give capital turns.

STOCKPORT.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. William Revill.—Local charities will benefit considerably by the aid of the excellent performances of Les Cloches de Corneville, given here this week by the Stockport Amateur Operatic Society.

Empire. — Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black.—This popular establishment has experienced another disappointment following that of last week. Tom Foy and company, in The Yorkshire Lad in London, who were announced as the star attraction, were unable to appear. May Lillian Levey, however, in new songs, very satisfactorily filled the breach. Among others appearing are Barrett and Knowles, who provoke an abundance of laughter by their distinctly amusing patter; Hallam and Stanton, in an entertaining musical comedy sketch, A Broken Journey; J. W. Hall, comedian, who is funnier than ever; Will McIvor, a sweet singer of ever-green ballads; the Resna Trio, in a marvellously clever acrobatic performance on the tight wire; Millie Howell, a pleasing character vocalist; and Bert and Dora, successful comedy artists.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—Castle Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Cecil Imeson.—The late Wilson Barrett's powerful play The Manxman is here this week. Mr. Alfred Cross as Pete proved himself admirably adapted to the part, and received many calls; Miss Winnie Watersford as Kate Cregeen gave an excellent portrayal, the intensity of her acting being well marked. Mr. Harold B. Lewis carefully played the part of Philip Christian; Miss Blanche Lee was clever as Nancy; Cæsar Cregeen was in the able hands of Mr. Fred Mace; Miss Adelaide Ross-Ford was very successful as Miss Christian; Mr. W. H. Deahirst as Dr. Mylchreest was very good, as was also Tom, the postman, played by Mr. Arthur Jackson. Mr. Bob Anderson as Monty Missit, Mr. F. Lynton as Prof. Mawley, Mr. W. Horgen as Tom, the constable, Mr. H. E. Morton as Jobique Jelly, and Miss Annie Jackson as Bella Kelly did their little exceedingly well. The mounting was good.

Hippodrome.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Stainton.—Berzac presents Capt. Woodward's sea lions and seals here this week; it is a very fine animal show, and received a hearty welcome. The Westwoods are a clever cycling turn; the Darntons, harmonising duettists, take well; Sandy and Carl are good comedians and dancers; the Five Musical Tritons, instrumentalists, receive loud applause; Harry Leaton, comedian, has a good style and sings well, Norman and Belle have good patter and are skilful dancers; the Bioscope concludes with up-to-date films.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. John Batty; Manager, Mr. Walter Batty.—Mr. M. Montgomery's stock company present here this week the historical drama Lady Godiva. In the title-rôle Miss Lilian Beaumont gives a capital representation, and is well supported by the rest of the company. Payne's Bio-photoscope is still popular.

STOKE-ON-TRENT.—Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; General-Manager, Mr. H. F. Miller; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Moroney.—Mr. George Marriott and company, including Miss Edith Finlay, are presenting Oliver Twist in a most capable way; Orpheus is conversant with most instruments; Little Dando provokes much amusement; and also billed are Diamond and Hart, the Two Errolls, Ailsa Douglas, the Gentrys, George Phillips, and the Bioscope.

SUNDERLAND.—King's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. S. F. Davidson; General-Manager, Mr. Alexander Telford; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Sydney Reach.—The ever-popular play A Royal Divorce has a host of admirers here, and this week Mr. W. W. Kelly's company is again drawing crowded houses. Mr. Keith Fraser is foremost in the cast as Napoleon, which part he interprets with his accustomed vigour; he is well supported by Miss Margaret Watson as Josephine; Miss Winnie Tempest's conception of Marie Louise is excellent; and Stéphanie has a vigorous impersonator in Miss Maud Lacy. Mr. Percy H. Vernon is a meritorious Talleyrand and Mr. Stanley Harrison a talented Marquis de Beaumont. Mr. Walter T. Clifford as General Angereau and Mr. Harold S. Standing as Murat are good in their respective parts.

Royal Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Geo. Dunn.—Mr. Walter Melville's dramas are always appreciated in Sunderland, but his company in The Girl Who Took the Wrong Turning is being specially well received. The title-rôle is admirably filled by Miss Jessie Bellmore; Willie Mason is exceedingly well played by Mr. Ronald Adair; the villainy is cleverly portrayed by Miss Nannie Mead (Vesta le Clere) and Mr. Raymond Wood (James Harcourt); Jack Fenton is excellently played by Mr. Frank R. Robertson; and Lucy is presented in good style by Miss Loo Davis. Mr. Sidney Sarl makes a capital Bill Slater; Mr. Frank Dennis as Jack's father is seen to advantage; and the comedy is delightfully contributed by Miss Marie Kildare (Poppy Slater) and Mr. Fred Ingram (Johnny Walker).

Empire Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Hy. Esden.—W. J. Churchill on Monday had a particularly warm reception; the supple Delevines are most humorous and clever in their "scarecrow" production; the powerful dramatic incident, No. 99, is well presented by Fred Kitchen and Frank Lister; Harry Bedford is very funny in his skit on the "Salome" craze; and Harris Coonie introduces some smart step-dancing. The Four Vagabonds, vagrant vocalists, Bernard Crooke, juvenile pianist, and the Sisters Morgan, duettists and dancers, were all exceptionally good in their own lines.

Palace Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Lennox Barry; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Hy. Curry.—Heading a good programme this week is Miss Violet Hope, who, by means of classical dancing, gives a capital interpretation of Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," "Salome," and "Cleopatra." The popular Scotch comedian, Jack Lorimer has good songs and comic and original dances; Arthur Woodville also scores as a singer and dancer; Alice Blandford is a charming ballad singer; the Ashburns, illusionists, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Finden, sketch artists, Stella Stahl, comedienne, and Will Mitcham are also in the bill.

SWANSEA.—The Grand.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Oswald Brooks; Acting-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. Walter Dean.—Sir John Hare opened here on Monday in The Gay Lord Quex, playing the name-part splendidly. Miss Mona K. Oram was admirable as Sophia Fullgarney; the Countess was played by Miss Louise Moodie, whose delineation was very effective.

The Star.—Manager, Mr. William Coutts; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. J. Powell.—The Empty Cradle is well presented here by Messrs. Battersby and Forbes' company. Ida Boswell is carefully portrayed by Miss Nancy Battersby and Kenneth Bloodworth is well developed by Mr. Claude H. Seaton. Carnaby Bloodworth is forcibly played by Mr. St. Clair Forbes, and he receives great assistance from Miss Florence Trevoir as Mary Barton.

Empires, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. P. C. Rowe; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. H. Lennon.—An original and really clever acrobatic turn is done here by the Stein-Eretto troupe; Victor Newman's elocution is excellent; Pat Rafferty, Irish comedian, achieves unqualified success; the Gems, in song, mirth, and play, provide good entertainment; and Alf. Holt, American mimic, is a talented entertainer. Trippello, with his beautiful chimes, provides a pleasing turn; Maudie Francis, comedienne and dancer, and the Chronomegaphone are acceptable.

SWINDON.—Empire Theatre.—Proprietors, The Wiltshire Entertainments Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Manners.—Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company in The Prince and the Beggar Maid is being accorded a great reception here. Mr. Alfred Brandon is effective as Prince Hildred; Mr. Melville Bickford presents a careful study of Prince Michael; Prince Olaf is in the admirable hands of the author, Mr. Walter Howard; Captain Hector is finely represented by Mr. Robert Noble; Mr. Reginald Payne as Lieut. Karl, ably assisted by Miss Jessica Black as Viola, provide much fun; Miss Gertrude Branscombe is successful as Camiola; and Miss Ethel Bracewell is warmly applauded for her rendition of Monica.

TORQUAY.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—The Monckton-Hoffe comedy company is this week presenting Irene Wycherley. Of the title-rôle a forcible delineation is given by Miss Maud Henderson. Miss Grace Illingworth as Carrie Hardinge and Miss Evelyn Cecil as Hilda Preston respectively both give charming impersonations. Miss Muriel Carmel is delightfully unsophisticated as Linda Hetheridge; Miss Beatrice Mervyn makes an austere and bigoted Lady Wycherley; and Miss Marjorie Davenport a fascinating Lily Summers. Miss Phyllis Stuckey is a piquant and winsome Muriel Wycherley; Mr. Clifton Boyne does well as Harry Chesterton; as Sir Peter Wycherley Mr. Ralph Hutton contributes a clever piece of acting; Mr. Charles Garry depicts the brutal Philip in a masterly manner; and Mr. Claude Haviland makes a typical Charles Summers. The play is preceded each evening by Petticoat Perfidy.

TREHERBERT.—Opera House.—Proprietors, Poole's, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Stephens.—Mr. Morton Powell's powerful company is here this week in The Mystery of Edwin Drood. The piece is elaborately mounted, and the various characters are admirably represented by talented artists. John Jasper, the choirmaster, has an excellent double in Mr. Bartlett Garth, whose powerful portrayal evokes applause; the impersonation of Rosa Bud by Mrs. Morton Powell is a graceful bit of acting; Mr. J. Hy. Twyford as Neville Landless is a fine histrionic effort; Mr. G. Ridgway Thorne gives an effective rendering of Edwin Drood; an appreciable vein of humour is introduced by Mr. D. Philips; and Miss Dot Russell as Durdles and Mary Jane respectively. All the other parts are in capable hands.

TYLDESLEY.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. W. Brierley.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and Mr. J. E. Cardwell's smart juvenile company opened here on Monday evening to a full house in The House that Jack Built. Miss Flo Taylor as Jack quickly became a favourite, her singing and dancing being much appreciated; Miss Evelyn Major made a winsome and captivating Jill; as Wee McGregor Miss Gladys Wyse scored a triumph; Miss Olive Purcell in the part of the Fairy Queen sings sweetly; Miss Hetty Jones gives satisfaction as Colin; and Miss Jennie Marsden is a graceful Gretchen. Mr. H. Hillerby (Aunt Purdy), Mr. Paddy Sloan (Squire Bounce), and Messrs. Doyle and Gibson (Scragg and Scraggles) are comedians with a rich vein of humour. The Forget-Me-Not Quartet contribute some clever dancing.

WAKEFIELD.—Opera House.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Mr Louis Calvert's company, under the direction of Mr. T. Norman Walter, is here this week in Sunday. Miss Jessie Winter gives a finished and natural exposition in the title-rôle; Mr. Pennington Gush handles the part of Colonel Brinthorpe with tact and considerable effect; Mr. George Marriott, jun., is good as Arthur Brinthorpe; Mr. T. Norman Walter does full justice as Tom Oxley; the boys are admirably represented by Mr. James Skea; Mr. A. Cotton Holmes, Mr. James Hussey, and Mr. Alec Alves. Miss Lily Barclay is effective as the nun, and Miss Helen G. Edwins is successful as Mrs. Naresby.

Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—Wyndham and Kitty give a wonderful performance on the wire; Cliff Ryland, comedian, is an amusing patterer; the Danbys, comedians, provide an interesting turn; the Redfearns (Rubie and Elsie) are clever in a musical act; and Ethel Donna, comedienne, and Major Arnold, conjurer, also entertain.

WARRINGTON. — Royal Court.—Proprietor, Mr. Joseph Beecham; General-Manager, Mr. A. M. Loader; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. Smiley.—Mr. T. Edward Ward's company are here this week in a delightful play, entitled The Love of the Princess, and excellent business has been done. It is staged in splendid style, whilst the dresses have never been excelled at this house. The company all round is a capable one. Mr. Wilson Coleman as Prince Conrad Ramona makes a manly hero, and his acting throughout is very natural; Mr. Ernest E. Imeson scores well as the remorseless Count Danillo; and a really clever character sketch of the dissipated King Josef is that presented by Mr. E. H. Dobell. Mr. Beckitt Bould is well placed as Lieut. Orlano, and a capable King's Messenger is Mr.

proves herself an excellent artist as the Woman in Black, and as Octavia Miss Agnes Collier evokes warm applause.

WEST BROMWICH.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. R. Nightingale.—Mr. Clarence C. Corri's company, under the direction of Haldane Crichton, is presenting that delightful and popular play, The Dandy Fifth. Mr. Percy Baverstock is an admirable Colonel, and is well supported by Messrs. Arthur S. Radcliffe, Chas. Sims, Coningsby Brierley, C. Bellard, William Henry, and Misses Sadie Thompson, Maud Nichols, Una Porter, and the other members of the company, all of whom fill their parts well.

New Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. Archie Ainsleigh.—There is a change of programme at this place of amusement, drama and variety giving place to a cinematograph show, which is to continue for three weeks. The pictures, which are from Mr. Victor Rowe's selection, are very fine, depicting some striking scenes in American Indian life, the Italian Naval Manœuvres, &c. They are interspersed by musical and vocal items given by Mr. James Lacey, comedian and dancer, and the Glovers, in their screaming absurdity Can You Do This?

WEST STANLEY.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, The Stanley Theatre Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Mark H. Lindon; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Kelly.—Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Mackay are paying a successful visit with the musical play Rollicking Rory, in which the above clever comedian undertakes the title-rôle, which wins hearty applause. Mrs. Mackay and the other members are prominent in their respective parts.

Victoria Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. T. C. Rawes; Stage-Manager, Mr. G. W. Montrose.—Lotto, Lilo, and Otto are the principal turn here this week, in their marvellous cycling. Other turns are Roger Dewson, comedian; Cerito, comedienne; Allan McAskell, the talking conjurer; Fidden and Hayward, the comedy pair; Tom Taylor, the singing collier; and Gala and Morris, in their original comedy act, Down South, introducing a clever dancing turn.

WIGAN. — Royal Court Theatre.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Company.—Her Love Against the World is billed here this week. Miss Gracie Heywood proves herself a talented actress, and wins the highest appreciation as the Princess of Idalia; Mr. Fred Emery gives a capital portrayal of the Earl of Strathmere; while as the despotic Prince of Ravensburg Mr. Lewis Gilbert is eminently successful. Mr. W. H. Hallett gives a brilliant interpretation of Prince Othmar and Miss Rosie St. John is a sympathetic Nello.

The Hippodrome.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Company.—A strikingly novel entertainment is given by Zeynard's Midget Lilliputians, who prove themselves expert rope-walkers, dancers, balancers, and acrobats. The McConnell Trio cause much mirth with their comedietta, The Airship, and their vocal renderings are also good; Mlle. Lumiere presents an interesting "fairy grotto," in which some pretty effects are obtained; Bert Harlow causes an ovation with his songs; and Eily Adair dances herself into favour. The Leotard Bros. are clever clowns, with hat-throwing and hand-balancing; and J. H. Wakefield is a dancer above the ordinary. T. C. Edwards, vocalist; F. S. Hulme, comedian; and the pictures conclude.

Empire.—Lessees, The New Bioscope Trading Co.; District-Manager, Mr. Gerald Hunt; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Woon.—The programme of living pictures comprises spools portraying thrilling, pathetic, and humorous scenes, such as Gold Prospectors, The Warrior's Bride, A Victim of His Honesty, Baby Has Disappeared, A Day of Robbery, and A Unique Disguise. A pleasing diversion is supplied by Professor Holt, who is very clever in his ventriloquial speciality, "The Rehearsal."

WOLVERHAMPTON.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles Barnard; Resident Manager, Mr. Gerald Spencer.—Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and James Willard's company is on a first visit here with The Girl with the Angel Face. Mr. H. Naylor Grimson gives a successful rendering of the dual rôles of Sir John Wentworth and Thomas Wentworth; Mr. Austin Mortimer is well placed as Stephen Arkwright; Mr. Fred G. Evison as Jasper Death submits a capital character study; Mr. Dobell Lyle does good work as the Rev. Gordon Cross; and Mr. Allen Charles causes amusement as the Hon. Percy Paget. In the title-part Miss Florrie Green displays ability; Miss Phyllis Dailley is a sympathetic Ena Wentworth; Miss Mildred Carr a successful Mollie Maitland; and Miss Winifred Delevanti a charming Nellie. The drama is admirably staged.

Empire Palace, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Weston.—Miss Marie Kendall repeats her former successes here this week; Park's Eton Boys and Girton Girls are as popular as ever; the Hiatts give a clever musical entertainment; and Harry Nation, Harry Webber, Fred Hastings, and Steve McCarthy complete the bill.

WORCESTER. — Theatre Royal. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Le Wards.—A novelty in the form of a drama twice nightly is meeting with considerable success. Her Nameless Child is the drama, which, in the course of its ten scenes, provides a series of thrills. Mr. J. W. Anthony gives a realistic impersonation of the part of Anthony Ford, and Miss Pattie Hastings as his daughter is afforded ample scope for her versatile talents; Mr. S. C. Cranston finds the part of her brother a congenial task, and the remaining characters are adequately presented by Mr. A. Pringle, Miss Mona Gray, Mr. Larry Clements, Miss Rennie Douglas, and Miss G. Verner.

YORK.—Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—Mr. Charles Harrington's well-known company is doing good business this week in the ever-popular Uncle Tom's Cabin. Mr. J. Carr is extremely sympathetic in the title-rôle, being well received; Mr. E. Regent is manly and forcible as George Harris; and Miss Hathaway does well as Eliza Harris. Little Eva has a sympathetic representative in Miss Kitty Bell, and Miss Annie Watson causes endless fun as Topsy.

Opera House and Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brook.—Thora is a ventriloquist of the first rank, and is achieving much success; St. George Sylvester's feats of mystery are a source of amusement; Blake and Amber give a neat sketch; and the Three Raymonds are instrumentalists of great merit. The amusing sayings of Sam Redfern, as of yore, immediately catch on; and the company also includes Kit Keen, a clever dancer; Dave Samuels, Hebrew comedian; and Florrie Connelly, a sweet songstress.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

SYDNEY, Nov. 3.—A Miner's Trust is a new drama by an Australian, Mr. Jo Smith, on an Australian subject. Meynell and Gunn produced it at the Palace Theatre on the 31st, and it will run out the rest of their season, which ends on the 13th at this theatre. The plot deals with two mates on the diggings. One is killed by a desperado, and, before dying, makes his mate promise to go home and impersonate him with his blind fiancée. So Alan Trengrove becomes Jack Howard to Alice Medway and her father. A relative dies and leaves him a fortune, which he, being considered dead, dare not claim, and his cousin, Arthur Trengrove, becomes the possessor. Both men fall in love with Ida Medway, and at this time Alan saves a man from a wreck, who turns out to be Gaspard Le Rouge, a recidivist, who killed Howard in the prologue. He threatens to expose Alan, who tells his story and is forgiven, and the tangled knots are happily unravelled. The play is well written, and the sensational scenes are all within the bounds of probability, even the dive to rescue the wrecked ones. Meynell and Gunn mounted and cast the drama in capital style. Miss Lillian Meyers made great capital out of Ida Medway, a strong and sympathetic part. Miss Lorna Forbes portrayed very successfully the blind girl, Alice. Miss Maisie Maxwell, a clever young actress, gave an excellent characterisation of Aunt Hypatia, a severe old spinster. Miss Maud Chetwynd had a congenial rôle as the tomboy, Florrie Medway. The hero, Alan Trengrove, was in the capable hands of Mr. Conway Wingfield; his mate, Jack Howard, was well acted by Mr. Wentworth Watson; the cousin, Arthur Trengrove, gave Mr. James Lindsay some of his pet opportunities; and the comic sailor, Bill Bobstay, had Mr. Harry Halley to look after his funmaking. A lot of minor characters disported themselves with credit amid the fine scenery, painted by Mr. E. Vaughan and assistants. All included in the performance did everything possible to secure a success for the new dramatic story.

"The Merry Widow" had an enormous audience at Her Majesty's on the 31st, when Miss Betty Ohls replaced Miss Carrie Moore as Sonia. The Governor and Miss Rawson and Lord Chelmsford (Governor of Queensland) and Lady Chelmsford and their suites were present, and shared the general enthusiasm. Miss Ohls is refined and graceful, and sings the music capitally, while her acting, speaking, and dancing are all good. Mr. Andrew Higginson sang the duets with Miss Ohls better than ever; and Miss Florence Young, Mr. Reginald Roberts, Mr. Gouriet, and Mr. Percy were in joyous form. The Merry Widow is in for a long run, the five weeks now over having seen the house full every night.

"Miss Hook of Holland" played out the last four nights of Meynell and Gunn's season at the Criterion. On the last night the audience recalled all the artists and loudly cheered them, calling for speeches.

Wren and Musgrove's opera company will open at the Criterion next Saturday, the 7th, with Maritana.

The Royal still retains Diana of Dobson's as Mr. J. C. Williamson's bill, but next Saturday The Girl of the Golden West will be staged, with Miss Tittell Brune, Mrs. Brough, and Mr. Kingston in the chief parts.

Mr. H. R. Roberts with Prince Chap is due at the Palace Theatre on the 14th, under Mr. Alan Hamilton's direction.

The Cherniavskis, three star instrumental boys, have created a sensation, and Mr. Edward Branscombe announces two more recitals at the end of this week. Miss Marie Hooton and Mr. Percival Driver are the vocalists, and the concerts are an immense treat.

Mr. Philip Newbury, the tenor, and Mme. Emily Spada, are giving operatic concerts at the Town Hall, assisted by Miss Mabel Estelle Ward. M. Henri Staell, Mr. R. L. Nield, and the English organist, Mr. Sydney Scott.

The Tivoli had an important newcomer on Saturday in the person of Mr. J. W. Rickaby, whose funny impersonations of a burlesque soldier and policeman were hugely enjoyed. Duncan's Collies, the Three Macgregors, Osborne and Brooke, Barnard's Mannikins, and Fanny Powers are still in Mr. Rickards' programme.

West's Pictures, Spencer's Theatroscope, Queen's Hall, Oxford Theatre, Bijou, and Victoria Hall have the latest bioscopical attractions.

News comes from the Antipodes of the death of Lieut. Manfred Rose, long and favourably known as a theatrical manager in Australia and New Zealand, who passed away on the 2nd ult. at Neutral Bay. He was buried in Waverley Cemetery on Nov. 3.

An alarming interruption to a concert performance occurred at Nantwich on Wednesday evening. While the audience were assembling, just before eight o'clock, fire suddenly burst out close to the platform, and there was a stampede from the hall. The place was soon filled with the smoke and vapour set up by the use of chemical extinguishers. The outbreak, which was caused by the overheating of a flue, was soon extinguished, and the concert proceeded.

The English Play Society will begin their season on Sunday evening, Dec. 20, with a matinée the following day, at the Kingsway Theatre, by kind permission of Miss Lena Ashwell. The programme will consist of a new play, in one act, entitled Mumby, by Mr. Geo. H. Blagrove, and a new comedy, in four acts, entitled Management, by Mr. Curtis Brown.

At the Aston Royal Theatre, Birmingham, on Friday, the 4th inst., Mr. Charles Lake, the popular manager, was called on the stage before the audience and presented by Mr. Alderman Carrod, J.P., with a handsome gold hunter watch, subscribed for by the entire staff of the theatre and a few friends, on his retiring from the management. The Alderman, in making the presentation, stated that Mr. Lake had resigned his appointment of his own accord in order to produce Aladdin at the Theatre Royal, Brighton, for Mr. Ernest Carpenter, of the Lyceum Theatre, London, and afterwards to go on tour with No. 1 Pete company as stage-manager. What was Brighton's gain was indeed Aston's loss. Mr. Charles Lake had, during the last nine months, made the Aston Theatre one of the most attractive and comfortable in the provinces, and he was leaving to the regret of the whole town and of the proprietors, of which Mr. Charles Barnard was at the head. Mr. Lake suitably replied in a few well-chosen words, and said that although he much regretted having to resign his appointment, yet he did so not only to better his financial position, but also to take one step higher on the ladder of fame which they of his profession were all so anxious to ascend. Mr. E. Hewitson, of the Smethwick Theatre Royal, handed to Mr. Lake on behalf of the staff behind the footlights a fine diamond pin as a token of respect from those members of the staff who are rarely seen by the audience, and he himself expressed his personal thanks to Mr. Lake for the great assistance which he had always rendered him in his difficult duties. There were loud cheers for Mrs. Charles Lake, the popular manager's wife, who was also called upon the stage and presented with a massive gold bracelet, handed to her by Mr. Alderman Carron on behalf of the theatre staff and a few regular visitors to the theatre.

"OWEN HALL," LTD.

In the court of Chancery on Tuesday Mr. Albert Wilfrid Cotton, husband of Miss Ada Reeve, sought to have his name removed from the register of shareholders in Owen Hall, Limited. The late Mr. James Davis, better known as "Owen Hall," the author of many successful plays, formed himself into a company called "Owen Hall" (Ltd.), which was to have the sole right to produce his plays. He died shortly afterwards, and the company is now in liquidation. Mr. Cotton had applied for and was allotted 40 £10 shares in the company, which were now only partly paid up, and his case was that a condition precedent to his taking the shares had not been fulfilled.

The arrangement between Mr. Cotton and Mr. Owen Hall was, he said, that in consideration of his taking the shares he was to be appointed a director of the company, that the sequence and all matters connected with the production of the plays would be submitted to him, that he should receive the offer of the provincial and colonial rights, and that Miss Ada Reeve should always be engaged to play the title-rôle at a salary of £25 for each performance. These conditions had not been carried out. It was pointed out on behalf of the company that Mr. Cotton had attended a meeting in his capacity as shareholder, and had requested, and had been supplied with, information of the business transacted at another.

An affidavit by Miss Ada Reeve testified that she remembered several occasions in the early part of last year when there were interviews between her husband and Mr. Owen Hall. Being one of the parties concerned, she took a great interest in the discussions, and was able to confirm her husband's account of the arrangement arrived at. It was incorrect to say that the application for shares was made on the terms of the prospectus.

In dismissing the application with costs, Mr. Justice Neville pointed out that Mr. Hall being dead he was unable to give his version of the matter, but while thinking that there had been some discussion on the matter, his lordship was unable, on the evidence, to come to the conclusion that the application for shares was subject to the condition precedent referred to. Neither was he satisfied that Mr. Hall had power as managing director to impose such conditions on the company.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

While pantomime holds sway at three of the Glasgow theatres, viz., the Royal, Grand, and Princess's, musical comedy will form the Christmas attraction at most of the others. Thus at the King's the holiday attraction is to be Messrs. George Edwardes and Charles Frohman's company in The Waltz Dream, for the first time out of London. This engagement will run for four weeks, followed by three weeks of Havana, after which the new American production The Dollar Princess will be staged.

At the Royalty, Glasgow, the Christmas attraction will be Miss Ada Reeve's company in Butterflies. This musical comedy proved a great success when played here by the original company before going to London, and ought to make a good holiday draw. Mr. Louis Bradfield will play his original character of Puck, Miss Georgie Corlass will appear in Miss Ada Reeve's part, and Mr. Blake Adams, Mr. Richard Green, Mr. E. H. Wynne, and Miss Stella St. Audrie are the principal members of the cast. Miss Phyllis Monkman will be the principal dancer, and give the "Butterfly" dance with which she has been so successful in the London production.

At the Lyceum, Glasgow, Mr. Rich. Waldon has secured for his holiday season Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company in The Dairymaids, under the direction of Mr. Robert Macdonald. The cast of this includes Miss Isa Bowman, Miss Edie Martin, Miss Doris Dickens, Mr. Richard Telford, and Mr. Frank Barclay, while Mr. Dan Agar will fairly revel in the eccentricities of Joe Mivens.

At the Metropole, Glasgow, during the holidays, Mr. Arthur Jefferson will make a special feature of Mr. Fredk. Melville's new drama, Married to the Wrong Man.

The annual benefit of Mr. H. W. Rowland, the general-manager of the Pleasure Gardens Theatre, Folkestone, is fixed for Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday evening next (when the charming play Delicate Ground and The Deacon will be presented by professional actors and local amateurs.

The secretary of the Actors' Association asks us to print a warning to the effect that a man is going about the country stating that he is an official of the Actors' Association, and by that means defrauding landladies. No such person is travelling officially from the Association.

The idea of the English tribute to Ristori, which was carried to such a gratifying issue last week, was suggested by Signor Ugo Catani, and the work of organising the performance was done by Mr. H. S. J. Booth. The success of the movement, it should be added, was largely due to the influence and the kindness of Mr. Beerbohm Tree, who gave the theatre, his own services, and those of his staff.

The first annual dinner in connection with the entire staff of Poole's Opera House, Treherbert, took place on the 3rd inst. Dinner was partaken of at the Railway Hotel, and was followed by a smoking concert. Mr. Arthur Kento (stage-manager) and Mr. Frank Horcell, his assistant, are to be complimented upon the excellent arrangements made towards making the function a success.

The London Society of East Anglians opened the season with a Bohemian concert on Monday in the Throne Room, Holborn Restaurant. Mr. Alderman Glenny, J.P., presided. An attractive programme was contributed to by Misses Ethel Williams, Mary Williams, Minnie Paget (concertina), Messrs. Hector Lightfoot, Ernest Stevens, P. Gorton Young (handbells), Stuart Dednam, Walter Montagu, and Percy Stanhope (ventriloquist). The room was crowded, late comers being unable to find even standing room.

A one-act play eulogistic of the virtues of Free Trade under the title of Tried and True was produced at the Westminster Palace Hotel on Tuesday. The piece is written by Mr. H. C. Lacey, and the characters were interpreted by Mr. Noel Curtis Bennett, Miss Ivy Pretious, and Mr. G. M. Harris. The playlet was staged under the auspices of the Woman's Free Trade Union, who propose sending the production into the provinces as an aid to the propaganda against fiscal reform.

The bill at the Opera House, Tunbridge Wells, includes Edward Cranston and Mrs. Bennet's company, in an amusing sketch, Poor Master; Walter Wade, in his excellent monologue Patsy Burke; Maud Wellor and Marie Wilton, comediennes, who both have very cordial receptions; Zarmo, the mad juggler; and the trio of educated elephants introduced by Mr. Chas. Millar, U.S.A.; while Bulgarian scenes are portrayed on the Bioscope.

The attraction at the Hippodrome, Todmorden, this week is Messrs. Dottridge, Longden and Willard's company in The Midnight Mail. Mr. George Howard ably displays the character of Harry Steyne; as Billy Brewer Mr. Grant Lythan gives a forceful interpretation; Mr. C. H. Longden ably delineates Leonard Boyle; and Mr. C. P. Wentworth depicts the sly Hassan. Miss Trissie Humphries gives a touching characterisation of Mary Steyne; Miss Lennis Weston is an excellent Lady Phyllis Eustace; and Miss Daisy Clifford is successful in the part of Nancy Brewer.

PANTOMIME GOSSIP.

A CHANGE has been made in the cast of Little Red Riding Hood, the pantomime at the Lyceum. Miss Frances Cameron, who was to have played the principal girl, is unable to leave New York owing to the illness of her mother, and Messrs. Smith and Carpenter have engaged Miss Alice Russon to take her place.

"LITTLE RED RIDING HOOD," Messrs. Smith and Carpenter's second pantomime at the Lyceum, will be invented and produced by Ernest Carpenter. The book is by Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Carpenter, and music composed and arranged by Mr. H. Sullivan-Brooke. The full cast will be thus constituted: The Spirit of Evil, Mr. S. Major Jones; the Wehr Wolf, the Scarecrow, the Snake, Punch (the Emissary of Evil), M. Espinosa; Our Good Fairy, Miss Eva Kelland; Prince Rupert, Miss Dorothy Craske; Little Red Riding Hood, Miss Marjory Carpenter; Margery Daw, Miss Alice Russon; Jack Horner, Miss Kitty Upton; Baron Levinski, Mr. Julian Rose; Dame Trot, Mr. J. D. Hunter; Jimmy Green, Mr. James Forman; Johnny Stout, Mr. Peter Fannan; Simple Simon, Mr. Charles Penrose; Silly Sammy, Mr. Charles Ludlow; Edouardo de Frisky, Mr. Harry Gardner. The ballets and dances and evolutions arranged by Espinosa, and the Clown will be Mr. Harry Gardner.

A SERIES of wonderful scenes will comprise in Part I.: The Witches' Cave, the Village of Heydownderry, the Village Pump, the Dame School, Buttercup Dell, and the Wood in Summer, with a grand mechanical change to the Wood in Winter. Part II. will embrace: Red Riding Hood's Nursery, Toyland, a Glade in the Woods, Dame Trot's Cottage, Outside Granny's Cottage, and the Palace in the Happy Isles.

THE Marlborough Theatre pantomime will be The House that Jack Built, written by J. Hickory Wood, with music by Dudley Powell. The entire production will be under the personal supervision of Mr. Fred Karno. The cast includes Mr. Fred Emney, Farr and Farland, Sam Poluski, jun., Little Zola, Dick Tubb, Miss Maidie Scott, Miss Madoline Rees, Miss Nellie Howard, Miss Kitty Douglas, Miss Winifred Ward, Little Maudie Francis, Miss Gladys Soman, Little Rosie Lee, Miss Jessie Buckle, Armstrong's Electrical Floral Ballet, and Lottie Stone's troupe of dancers. The scenes will comprise The Village of Whare, The Squire's Hall, Outside the Prince's Castle, Mother Hubbard's Kitchen, A Floral Welcome, In the Corn Field, At the Squire's, The Haunted Chamber, The House that Jack Built, Wishing Gate in Lovers' Lane, The Aeroplane, and The Silver Palace. The pantomime will be produced on Boxing morning.

PANTOMIME will be found at the Camden Theatre, where Blue Beard will be produced on Boxing morning by C. St. John Denton and Peter Davey. The cast will include Mr. Ben Albert as Blue Beard, Mr. Ernest Rees as Sister Ann, Messrs. Ferguson and Mack as Captain and Mate, Miss Addie Lennard as Selim, Miss Lottie Sergeant as Wilhelmina, and Miss Jose Collins as Fatima. Mr. Buckstone Claire and Mr. Mark Strong, respectively, will be the producer and musical director, and Mr. F. J. Richardson will be the general-manager for Messrs. Denton and Davey.

REHEARSALS of Little Red Riding Hood at Kennington Theatre are now proceeding, and on Monday the principals will take up their parts under the direction of Mr. Harry Brandrath, the acting manager. The production bids fair to repeat the success of previous years at Mr. Robert Arthur's South London house, and it is not surprising to learn that Boxing Day is already booked up, whilst the bookings for the early weeks of the run are also very heavy. Mr. Arthur has arranged to introduce an educated pig in the Daily Mail Ideal Home scene, which will be the central feature of the pantomime, and there are other startling novelties.

THE pantomime at the Brixton Theatre, to be produced on Boxing Day by Mr. Frederick Melville, is named Dick Whittington, and promises to be a big success. The "annual" is to be produced by the enterprising manager, in conjunction with Mr. Newman Maurice.

MR. WILLIAM BAILEY, the lessee of the West London Theatre, will produce his annual Christmas pantomime as usual on Boxing Day. The subject is Cinderella, which is always such a popular story with the children. The cast up to the time of writing is not quite completed, but the youngsters are promised a specially gorgeous transformation scene, quite up to the traditions of this old historical playhouse, and a rattling old-fashioned harlequinade.

MR. ROLAND DANIEL will present his first pantomime at the Grand, Croydon, on Boxing Day, the selection being the ever-popular Dick Whittington. The cast includes Miss Clara Marsden as Dick; Miss Ethel Lawson, Alice; Miss Gladys Warren, Tommy Turner; Miss Rhoda Ray, the Princess; Miss Lillie Laughton, Fairy Queen; Mr. Edgar Driver, the Cat; Mr. Luke Forster, Alderman Fitzwarren; Mr. Percy Cahill, Idle Jack; Mr. Maitland Marler, the Cook; Mr. Fred Solo, Laffrail; and Mr. J. R. Val, Ben Robstay. The book is by Mr. William Wade.

MR. WENTWORTH CROKE will present his first pantomime at the Lyric Opera House, Hammersmith, on Boxing Day. The subject will be Little Red Riding Hood, and the book will be written by Mr. Victor Stevens.

THE pantomime this year at the King's Theatre, Sunderland, will be C. St. John Denton's production of Sinbad the Sailor, which will see the light on Boxing morning. The cast will include Miss Jessie Wilton (Sinbad), Miss Christine Roy (principal girl), and Miss Madeline Rossiter (Princess), Mr. Will Johnson (Dame), Messrs. Walton and Lester (Chamberlain and Emperor), and Mr. Frank Lynne (Bindad).

THE pantomime at the Pier Pavilion, Eastbourne, will be Mr. Cyril Gilbert's production of Red Riding Hood, by Newman Maurice, with music composed and arranged by Frank Bradsel, W. T. Gliddon, Guillaune Leone, and Harold March. The cast will be as follows:—Robin Hood, Miss E. Harlow; Red Riding Hood, Miss E. Schofield; Granny, Mr. George Porter; Jack and Jill, Miss E. Victoria and Miss Lena Selwyn; Fairy Bluebell, Miss Ala Wilson; the Wicked Wolf, Mr. Alfred Hicks; Lawyer Fox, Reed Pinaud, jun.; Baron Badlot, M. E. J. Allnut; Pen and Ink, Messrs. Walker and Hicks; Margery Daw, Miss Milly Pinaud; Miss Muffit, Miss Ruby Royal; Dolly Dimple, Miss Nora Megone. The production is fixed for Christmas Eve.

THE New Grand Theatre and Opera House, Oldham, is to be opened on Christmas Eve with pantomime, the subject of which is Aladdin, and Mr. Dottridge is sparing no expense in making the production one of the best seen in the town. Miss Ray Wallace, the well-known mimic, will be principal boy, and Miss Mildred Bryan, principal girl. Miss Louie Collier, Miss Isa Gibson, Miss Nelly Duval, and Miss Jenny Hallsworth are also engaged. Amongst the comedians are included Mr. Joe Robins, Dame; Mr. Bert Harrow, Abanazar; Mr. Leonard Russel, Emperor; and Cedar and Elgar. Specialities will be supplied by Mme. Rivers' children, the principal dancers being Mme. Rivers' Quartette.

AT the Prince's Theatre, Bristol, Aladdin will be the Christmas attraction. The book is by Messrs. R. Courtneidge and A. M. Thompson, lyrics by Messrs. Charles Taylor and Dudley Smith. The principal boy will be Miss Ouida Macdermott, and the principal girl Miss Deborah Volar. Miss Topsy Sinden will be the Daughter of the Moon, Mr. Bransby Williams the Magician, and other characters are allotted as follows: Our Mary Ann from London, Miss Daisy Lloyd Wood; Ah Sing, Miss Florence Foster; Widow Twankey, Mr. W. H. Powell; Pekoe, Mr. Arthur Sinclair; Emperor of China, Mr. Alfred Clarke; Slave of the Lamp, Miss Flora Gordon; Genie of the Ring, Mr. Joselyn Hope. The scenes will include the Tombs, Egypt, a Street in Chang Hi Li Hang, Exterior and Interior of Palace, the Cave, Shop of Widow Twankey, Gardens of Aladdin's Palace, Emperor's Palace, Court of Justice, and a Chrysanthemum Fête.

THE Bristol Theatre Royal pantomime will be Little Red Riding Hood. An excellent cast has been engaged, many of the artists being new to Bristol. The dresses and scenery will be well up to the high standard patrons of the Theatre Royal are accustomed to. The principals are thus cast: Boy Blue, Miss Ethel Hall; Marjery Daw, Miss Marie Free; Jack Horner, Miss Violet Gillis; Miss Muffit, Miss Gertie Hall; Red Riding Hood, Miss Daisie Dennis; Baron, Mr. Frank Hemming; Johnny Stout and Jimmy Green, Messrs. Crosby and Walker; Dame Trot, Mr. K. Scott Barrie; the Wolf, Mr. Frank Victor. The company will also include the Sylvans, speciality dancers.

MISS LOUIE TINSLEY has been engaged by Mr. J. Bannister Howard to play the Baroness in Cinderella pantomime, Theatre Royal, Plymouth.

THE Prince's Theatre, Bradford, will rely upon Red Riding Hood for this year's pantomime, which is Mr. Francis Laidler's seventh. Miss Florrie Forde will be the principal boy, Prince Royale of Alluria; Miss Grace Elvio will be the Hon. Bertie Blueblud; and Miss Lily Beagle will enact Margery Daw. The title-rôle will be played by Miss Susie Belmore. The humours of the production will be sustained by Mr. Allan Carruthers as the Baron, Mr. Harry Elvio as Johnny Stout, Mr. Jas. Ross Elvio as Jimmy Green, and Mr. Bert Byrne as Mother Hubbard. Mr. J. A. Wilson will have the responsibilities of Kingwolf, Mr. C. H. B. Churton will discharge those of the Poodle, Miss May Harris will be the Fairy Truelove, and the principals will include Mr. Walter Buxton, Mr. Frank Robinson, Miss Marie West, Miss Victoria Cross, and the Parisienne Belles.

Mr. J. Bannister Howard is doing all that mortal can do to command success in his forthcoming pantomime by deserving it, and no expense or trouble is being spared in the production of Robinson Crusoe. Mr. Fred Bowyer's book is sure to be good, and Mr. Leonard Gautier has selected the best of the many popular songs which present themselves, including, of course, "Oh! oh! Antonio!"

Miss Lillie Lassah will be Crusoe, and Miss Venie Clements Polly, both of these ladies having sustained principal parts in the Crystal Palace pantomime last season, and becoming established favourites. Mr. Harry Zeitz is to be Man Friday, and Bert Edwards Will Atkins; whilst Mr. Scott Russell will enact the Cannibal King. Other merry-makers will be found in the Sisters Allen, the Passmore Brothers, the Melody Four, and Leon Dubois.

Under the Sea and the Palace of the Cannibal King will be the big set scenes by Mr. Hemsley, and now that rehearsals are progressing apace there is every prospect of a most auspicious opening on Christmas Eve.

ROYAL COLLEGE PATRON'S FUND CONCERT.

The eleventh concert of the Patron's Fund, founded by Mr. S. Ernest Palmer, was given at Bechstein Hall on Monday afternoon, before a large audience. It contained some good features. The first and most important was a clever Trio for piano, violin, and violoncello, in E flat, written by Mr. Edward Isaacs, and capitally played by the composer, Mr. N. Blinder, and Mr. J. Leo Smith, all of the Royal Manchester College of Music. Mr. Isaacs, who is a pianist of more than usual ability, has on a former occasion at the Promenade Concerts displayed talent as composer, and his Trio performed on Monday proved a melodious and really able composition. The Second Movement, an expressive and in many respects charming "Andante," was followed by a particularly bright and attractive Finale, with some quite original passages for the piano, admirably played by the composer, who at the conclusion of his Trio had a most hearty reception from the audience. In Mr. Frank Tapp's four pianoforte solos, played by the composer, the Intermezzo in A flat major had some merit, but the Caprice in G minor and the Caprice in G major (Ariel) were somewhat ineffective and tame. Mr. Percival Garratt's pianoforte solo, Scherzo-Toccata, in B flat minor, Op. 14, well played by the composer, also failed in making a favourable impression. The second Chamber work in the concert was Mr. George Dyson's Concertstück for String Quartet, in A major, No. 2, a well-written and pleasing composition, unfortunately not too well played by Mr. Arthur Beckwith, Mr. Sutherland Mackay, Mr. James Lockyer, and Mr. Charles Warwick-Evans. Of the vocal music given at this concert but little praise can be awarded; perhaps the best was a song entitled "I look into the eyes I love," by Mr. Felix H. White, sung by Mr. George Baker. Two more songs, "Wishes of youth" and "New life, new love," sung by Miss Rose Ducane, and written by the same composer, were poor in quality; while "It was out by Donnycarney" (Mr. G. Molyneux Palmer) and "The Roadside Fire," written by Mr. Ernest Farrar, cannot be favourably mentioned. The most successful vocalist on Monday afternoon was Miss Florence Macnaughton, heard in "Les Cloches" and "Mandoline" (Claude Debussy). "Mennet de Martini," arr. Weckerlin, and "Escouto d'Jeannetto," by Dalayrac. Mr. F. A. Sewell acted as the accompanist.

PROVINCIAL PANTOMIMES.

"CINDERELLA" AT THE ROYAL, GLASGOW.

On Thursday, Dec. 3, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham's twenty-first pantomime at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, was produced before a crowded and enthusiastic house. This year Mr. Fred W. Wyndham has entrusted the production to Mr. Robert Arthur, and this gentleman gives the version of Cinderella played at the Royal Court, Liverpool, a year ago, the cast including several of the artists who played in the previous production. The book, which is smart and brightly written, is by Mr. Frank Dix, and the music is composed by Messrs. Jullien H. Wilson and J. O. Shepherd. The story of Cinderella in this version starts at a slightly earlier period than usual, as the Baron is a wealthy widower with a daughter named Ella, handsomely dressed and well cared for; and it is only when the Baron gets into financial difficulties, and is forced to propose to the strong-minded Mrs. Kilkenny, that Ella is relegated to the position of a kitchen-maid (all the other servants having been dismissed), has her name altered to Cinderella, and is made to assume the menial duties and humble dress of a servant, by the new Baroness and her haughty daughters. To some extent this arrangement of the plot serves to complicate the story, as the Prince first sees Ella as a rich young lady gathering flowers in her father's garden (not sticks in a wood), then meets her as a kitchen-maid under the name of Cinderella, and later on at the ball as the Princess Incognita. The company which Mr. Robert Arthur has engaged for the pantomime is a particularly strong one, headed as it is by Mr. George Robey as Billy Buttons, the page (the part played by Mr. Harry Lauder at Liverpool last year, and relinquished by him this time owing to his American tour). Then there is that smart young comedian Mr. Harry Dent as the Baron, Mr. Willie Garvey as the Baroness, Miss Violet Lorraine as the Prince, Miss Iris Hoey as Cinderella, and Miss Meg Hamylton as Dandini. The opening scene is entitled the Baron's Gardens, and after an opening chorus by the Fairies and the Demon Aconite, Ella enters and sings a pretty song, "Daisy Chain," during which the Prince appears, followed shortly after by Dandini. The two latter agree to change positions for a time, and the Baron is informed that the Prince and his retinue intend to breakfast at Castle Beauregarde. This leads up to a very funny scene, for the Baron forthwith proceeds to fish in the stream behind the castle for the necessary salmon or trout to feed the company. After one or two unsuccessful throws he seems to get a bite, and lands—Billy Buttons (Mr. George Robey), who, on hearing of the Baron's ill-luck with the rod, promises to show his own skill as a fisherman, and then lands some enormous catches, with which the Baron and Billy have a lot of funny business. The Baron is struck with Billy's skill as an angler, and engages him as page, investing him with a bell, which he is to ring when he hears anyone tell a lie. This, again, is productive of some lively scenes, as the Baron soon commences to enlarge on his own abilities at fishing, and is much annoyed at the frequency with which the warning bell interrupts him. Mrs. Kilkenny arrives soon after this, accompanied by her two daughters, Miss Pankie and Miss Hardie Kilkenny, carrying suffragette banners, and shrieking "Votes for Women" at every appropriate or inappropriate moment. In the next scene, the Baron's financial losses induce him to propose to Mrs. Kilkenny, who is said to be worth £20,000, only to find after the ceremony that she has given it all to help the "sacred cause" of the suffragettes. From this point on the story follows familiar lines, the arrogance of the Baron's daughters, their departure for the ball, the appearance of Cinderella's Fairy Godmother, and her providing of the ball-dress, and the carriage, footman, ponies, &c., transformed from pumpkins, lizards, rats, and mice; then Cinderella's success at the ball, her hurried departure at twelve o'clock, and the Prince's efforts to find her, leading up to the necessary happy ending. Of the artists engaged, it is a pleasure to record that all proved happily suited, and one and all made a great hit. First honours naturally fall to Mr. George Robey as the Page, and his quaint mannerisms and facility at all manner of funny business keep the audience on the broad grin all the evening. It is five years since Mr. Robey was last here in pantomime (1903-4), on which occasion he played a female part. His songs go well, the incisive manner in which he sang "It's a lie" being specially clever, while his embodiment of Shakespeare was extremely comic, both in make-up and patter. In "I shall sleep well to-night" he has another smart song, while the humour of the chorus song "A to Z" was caught as quickly as the air by the large audience. As the Baron, Mr. Harry Dent fully shares the premier honours. He was accorded a tremendous reception on his first appearance, and as the night wore on he steadily increased in popularity. Mr. Dent's previous successes in pantomime were made at the Royal Princess's, and since then his appearance in the halls and in comedy parts in The Dairymaids, &c., have endeared him to Glasgow audiences. As the Baron Beauregarde he is the essence of liveliness and humour, never flagging for an instant, and in song and dance he had quite a number of recalls to his credit. His best items were "Girls, girls, girls" and "I'm the best pal I ever had" (a pretty tune allied to a rather selfish sentiment), while in the humorous duet with Mr. George Robey, in which these comedians burlesque familiar types of music hall business, such as Irish comedians, Salome dancers, and wire-walkers, both artists displayed their humour and versatility. Miss Violet Lorraine (who was presented with several bouquets) makes an excellent principal boy, having a fine appearance and a good voice. Her dialogue is given with crisp and telling effect, and in her songs she made several striking successes, notably with "A tiny seed of love," which was beautifully sung, finely orchestrated, and, as a result, made the first striking hit of the evening. She also did well with "A White Man," the local verses being much enjoyed. As Cinderella Miss Iris Hoey resumes the part she played in Liverpool last year, and a sweet Cinderella she is. Always a favourite here, she was given a very hearty reception, and her performance fully justified the applause of the audience and the many floral tributes she was the recipient of during the evening. Her acting throughout is charming, and her songs, from the opening number, "Daisy Chain," were all very successful. The most striking novelty was the song "The bubble and the sunbeam"—a pretty tune—during which a constant succession of bubbles rose through a trap on the stage, evidently produced by the clever new machine described recently in our Patents column. Miss Meg Hamylton, who was also in the Liverpool cast, again plays Dandini, and a very lively exponent of the character she soon proves to be. She never misses a point of the humorous possibilities of the valet masquerading as a Prince, and the result is a very clever performance throughout. She sang "Have you got another girl at home like Mary" with appreciative humour and expression, and was rewarded by a hearty recall and the assistance of the audience with the chorus. Miss Hamylton, who is best remembered here for her acting in The Prince of Pilsen, also scored with her songs, "I want you to see my girl" and "Bombadier," and received some handsome floral gifts. Mr. Willie Garvey makes a very good dame as Mrs. Kilkenny, and having played the part before, he has all the business at his finger ends. He proves a valuable addition to the comedians in the working up of funny interludes, and he has lots of smart scenes with the Brothers Obo, who play his strong-minded daughters. Mr. Willie Garvey's songs include the popular and catchy ditties, "Oh, oh, Antonio" and "I'm afraid to come home in the dark." In one of the scenes Messrs. George Robey and Harry Dent work up some very funny business as village firemen, and they are ably supported by Mr. Garvey as an old Irishwoman. A novelty in the cast is the male ballet-dancer, Mr. Paul Sundberg, who as the Chevalier Saltarello introduces some very clever and ingenious dances, ably assisted by Miss Angela Renee and the corps de ballet. Miss Edith Kirkwood sings well as the Fairy Flora, and the opposing part of the Demon Aconite is well filled by Mr. Vernon Booth. The Royal Court Quartette of vocalists also assist materially in the vocal numbers. A small part well played is the old gardener Adam, as acted by Mr. Harry Glynn; and Mr. Cecil Frere is amusing as the stolid footman Wilhelm. The scenery of the pantomime is all by Messrs. G. E. W. McKie and Stafford Hall, and includes some very fine sets, notably the opening scene—the Baron's Gardens (McKie), a beautiful scene with the gardens in front, the castle entrance on the left, and a fine vista of landscape and river in the background. The Ball Room (by Stafford Hall) also conveys a fine idea of massiveness and grandeur, the set in front combining with the back-cloth in such a way as to make a most impressive scene. The Exterior of the Prince's Palace and the Exterior of the Baron's House (both by Mr. McKie) are also good examples of the scene-painter's art, and a magnificent concluding scene is contributed by Mr. Stafford Hall, and is entitled the Wedding Cake. A large and tuneful chorus gives vivacity to the various scenes, and the augmented orchestra is under the bâton of Mr. J. H. Yorke. A noteworthy feature, and one to delight the many children who will see the production, is the team of four tiny Shetland ponies attached to Cinderella's carriage, surely the smallest and liveliest ponies seen here for many a day. The Martino Troupe of dancers, trained by Miss Madge Martin, take well in their numerous dances. The costumes, which are very picturesque, have been designed by Messrs. A. Comelli and Alfredo Edel; the wigs are By Clarkson; the mechanical effects by Messrs. M. Sinnott and Chas. Penman; properties and armour by Messrs. George Corney and Duncan Wright, and electrical effects by Messrs. David Marshall, H. Powell, and J. D. Milligan. The entire production has been given under the personal supervision of Mr. Robert Arthur, who is assisted in the stage management by Mr. Chas. A. James, while Mr. Harcourt M. Beryl looks after Mr. Arthur's interests in front. Mr. Percy O. Humphrys, resident manager at the Royal, was much in evidence looking after the comfort of his patrons. At the conclusion of the pantomime, in response to the applause of the audience, Mr. Arthur made a short speech of thanks, but the audience were not content until Mr. George Robey and Mr. Harry Dent had also said a few words. The success of Messrs. Howard and Wyndham's twenty-first annual was undoubted, and it should be certain of a long run.

"ROBINSON CRUSOE" AT ABERDEEN.

Mr. Robert Arthur's eighteenth annual pantomime—a version of Robinson Crusoe by the clever librettist Mr. Hickory Wood—was successfully produced by Mr. Milton Bode at His Majesty's Theatre, Aberdeen, on Monday. From start to finish the piece ran smoothly. Robinson may not rank as a tour de force, but the various scenes and incidents are most ingeniously contrived, while the humour, without being startlingly original, is assuredly good of its kind. The members of the cast, in varying degrees, are all capable artists; and those of them who have to sing show that they possess a voice as well as a method. This was fully recognised by the audience, and the choruses are already familiar to the boy in the street.

Mr. Hickory Wood's "book" is of unusual merit. In fact, it might be claimed that some of the rhymes touch the standard of poetry, while his various quips and jocularities may safely be described as "funny without being vulgar." The pantomime includes ten scenes. Some of them, without aiming particularly at spectacular effect, are decidedly pretty. The story is divided into two parts. Section one carries the spectator from Davy Jones's locker to the port of Hull, and ultimately to the wreck of H.M.S. Rocker. Long before that time, however, the principals have thoroughly warmed to their work. Robinson himself makes a hit with his rendering of the "Antonio" ditty; and Mrs. Crusoe and Will Atkins are also much in evidence. The Six Lancashire Lasses make a most favourable impression with their singing and dancing; Polly Hopkins likewise dances herself into the graces of the house; and Samuel Salt and Peter Pepper are irresistibly amusing in their characters of "funny men."

In the second half the action is transferred to the "Jungle," which serves as Crusoe's island, and the succeeding scenes include a palm grove, Robinson's hut, and the Grand Palace, where the final business of the "drama" is enacted.

The principals, the chorus, the staff, and everybody concerned work very hard to ensure the success of the production. Miss Jennie Lynwood, a handsome and dashing actress, impersonates Robinson. She has a fine voice, and dances very gracefully. Miss Lucy Coventry is perfectly charming in the part of Polly Hopkins. Her imitations of coon songs and dances are wonderfully realistic. Mr. Harry Ugan is quite successful as the dame; and Mr. Percy Johnson amusingly introduces the Yorkshire dialect, or what sounds like it, into his capital presentation of Billy Crusoe. Mr. Donal MacDougal, a well-known Scotch comedian, is an admirable Will Atkins. His song is enthusiastically encored, and the audience never fails to catch the point of his jokes. Miss Rosie Bartlett makes a smart and graceful naval lieutenant; and Misses Rose Cabani and Luna Lyndon also show talent and skill in their parts. The hit of the evening, however, appears to have been made by Messrs. Keith and Merson as the funny men, Salt and Pepper. Both are exceedingly clever, but Mr. Keith might almost be described as a comic genius. It should also be noted that Larola (Man Friday) contributes some very smart acrobatic work.

The chorus has been admirably trained, the credit for which is due to Mr. Pierpoint, the stage-manager, and Mr. Pearce, the musical-director. Mr. E. R. Beaumont, who has produced the pantomime for Mr. Milton Bode, deserves to be congratulated on its success. It is almost unnecessary to add that Mr. H. Adair Nelson, Mr. Arthur's able and courteous acting-manager, spares no pains to ensure that everything goes smoothly in front.

PRESENTATION.—After the second performance at the King's Theatre, Gateshead, on Wednesday, a large number of ladies and gentlemen assembled on the stage to make presentations to Mr. Harold Arnold, manager of the theatre, and Mrs. Arnold. Miss Maud Prenton, leading lady in Mother Goose pantomime, unveiled a portait in oils of Mr. Arnold, and Mrs. Arnold was made the recipient of a beautiful brass standard lamp, with onyx table and silk shade. Mr. Arnold was then handed two baskets of flowers, and Mrs. Arnold a silver-mounted cakeboard. In acknowledging the gifts Mr. Arnold said that since becoming manager of the King's he had striven to do his best both for the theatre and for the public.

"SLANDER."

A Drama, in Three Acts, by C. F. Nirdlinger, adapted from the Spanish Play El Gran Galeoto, by José Echegaray, produced at the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, on Wednesday, Dec. 9.

Don Ernesto ..... MR. MARTIN HARVEY
Don Julian ..... MR. WILLIAM HAVILAND
Don Severo ..... MR. GEORGE COOKE
Captain Beaulieu ..... MR. BEN WEBSTER
Pepito ..... MR. PERCY FOSTER
Genero ..... MR. L. CRASKE
Donna Teodora ..... MISS N. DE SILVA
Donna Mercedes ..... MISS MARY RORKE

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Recently produced in America, at New York, under the title of The World and His Wife, this play met with a cordial reception as produced here by Mr. Martin Harvey on Wednesday. The curtain during the evening must have been raised certainly no fewer than thirty times in response to applause, and at the end of the performance Mr. Harvey was presented with a laurel wreath, Miss de Silva receiving a bouquet. Mr. Harvey made a speech, in which he thanked the audience on behalf of the author, company, Miss de Silva, and himself.

The first act of Slander takes place at Don Julian's house in Madrid. An old family friendship exists between Don Julian, his wife Teodora, and one Don Ernesto, who is perfectly true and loyal to both. Julian's quixotic regard for his friend Ernesto becomes in a way his own undoing. Julian's brother- and sister-in-law, Severo and Mercedes, tell him that scandal couples the name of his wife with that of Ernesto. Teodora is apprised of the rumours by her sister-in-law Mercedes. Severo taunts Ernesto with knowing all about the scandal, and with having taken no means to stay it. "You should have forced the lie down his throat," says Severo. "I should have done so, but the slanderer was your own son, Pepito," replies Ernesto. This Pepito is a well-intentioned young fellow who has only spoken to Ernesto out of kindness. Julian, to show his implicit trust in Ernesto, bids him take Donna Teodora down to dinner.

The scene of the second act is Ernesto's lodging at a small hotel. He is making preparations to leave Madrid for ever. A certain Don Alvarez repeats the slander, and Ernesto gives him the lie and strikes him. Teodora visits Ernesto, and reproaches him with what she terms his "impertinence" in defending her honour. She is about to leave when she hears her husband's voice. Julian hears from Pepito of Ernesto's impending duel with Alvarez, and, deeming himself the proper person to fight the traducer, goes forth so to do. He is brought back sorely wounded. Ernesto goes out to see what the noise is about, and Teodora, first essaying fruitlessly to escape by another exit, seeks the shelter of Ernesto's room just as Julian is brought in. Ernesto, deeply moved at his friend's condition, is about to have him placed in this room, but on opening the door is horrified to see Teodora within. Hastily closing it, he rejoins the wounded man, when out rushes Teodora to her husband's side. He is astonished beyond measure at his wife's appearance, and turns furiously on Ernesto.

The third act takes us back to Julian's house, where he lies near death. Severo has established himself in authority, with his wife, in the establishment. Alvarez falls by Ernesto's sword, and he comes and demands audience of Julian and his wife. He is met with scornful refusals. Julian's jealousy is worked upon by Severo till he strikes Ernesto. Julian is then borne to his room, where he dies. Ernesto declaims against Severo and his kind, and, taking Teodora to his arms, cries, "You and your lies have given her to me!"

Mr. Martin Harvey in the first act had all the romantic bearing required, his gentle manner with Julian and Teodora and his dignity under the fire of scandal being admirable. In the third act Mr. Harvey excelled himself in fire, passion, and variety of expression. He wrought the house to excitement and covered himself with honours. Mr. William Haviland gave a fine impersonation of Don Julian. It was truly very excellent, especially in the death scene. In his denunciation, in the same scene, he rose to a great dramatic height. Mr George Cooke gave a clever, comprehensive character-drawing of Severo. Miss N. de Silva as Teodora acted with refreshing artlessness and with real passion and pathos. Mr. Ben Webster's breezy style as Captain Beaulieu was very refreshing. Mr. Percy Foster was good as Pepito, his naïf assumption being very amusing. Mr. L. Craske did well as the garrulous landlord Genaro; and that able actress, Miss Mary Rorke, brought a happy commingling of dignity and gentleness into her conception of Donna Mercedes. The play was well mounted by Mr. George Dodson.

AMUSEMENTS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

DURBAN, Nov. 14.—HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Empire Theatre S.A., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. A. C. Hyman.—The star turn here is Morris Cronin, an exceptionally clever juggler; Rose and Challoner, in their duologue, The Porter and the Singer, caught the public taste, the male partner's impersonations of leading comedians being good.; Amber Austa, a dainty dancer and singer, won all hearts; Harry Wright, comedian, never fails to please; Will Haines, light comedian, does well; Louise Yetland, ballad singer, uses her fine voice in a capable manner; Elwyn Byrne is a chic little soubrette; and Marie Reeve still maintains her popularity.

HERR G. CALLOW (violin virtuoso) gave a recital before a crowded house at the Town Hall, and was ably assisted by Misses Florence Perry, Inez Mackenzie, and Mr. A. A. Birch.

BY kind permission of Mrs. D'Oyly Carte, the Durban Dramatic Society gave a performance of H.M.S. Pinafore at the Theatre Royal. All the leading parts were creditably sustained, and the chorus showed careful training.

THE Woods-Williamson company are still at the Good Hope Theatre, Capetown, in The Silver King. Mr. Alfred Woods as Wilfred Denver brought out all the points of a fine study, and Miss Maud Williamson as Nellie proved herself to be an artist of power.

JOHANNESBURG, Nov. 12.—EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Empire Theatre, Ltd., S.A.; Manager, Mr. Sydney Hyman.—The most prominent turn on the bill is supplied by Edward Clarke and his Winning Widows. Mr. Clarke is a clever comedian, and is well supported by his four lady partners. Charles Mildare, in his sketch, A Day in Birdland, gave realistic imitations of the feathered tribe; a clever little lady is Dot Stephens, who wins all hearts by the dainty manner in which she renders her songs; Miss Gladys Huxley (serio) does well. The programme also includes Sydney Burns, dancer and comedian; Louisa and Namon, La Belle Tortajada, and the Bioscope.

"THE LITTLE MICHUS" is to replace Miss Hook of Holland at His Majesty's Theatre next week. The company at present here is the Wheeler Edwardes' 1908 Gaiety company.

STANDARD THEATRE.—The White Man still continues to fill the coffers of that highly-esteemed actor-manager Mr. Leonard Rayne. The success of the piece shows no signs of abating.

PRINCE ARTHUR and Princess Patricia of Connaught witnessed the performance of What Every Woman Knows at the Duke of York's Theatre on Wednesday evening.

H.M. THE QUEEN, Princess Victoria, and the King and Queen of Norway witnessed the performance of King of Cadonia at the Prince of Wales's Theatre on Wednesday evening.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

The Gay Gordons is again drawing large audiences to this popular place of amusement; and the bright and pretty piece proves as attractive and amusing as ever. The company headed by Miss Zena Dare and Mr. Stanley Brett is a strong and well-chosen one. As Angus Graeme Mr. Stanley Brett sparkles with activity and humour, and Miss Dare in the character of Peggie Quainton sings and acts in the most pleasing and piquant fashion. As Nervy Nat Mr. Edward Lewis wins the approbation of the audience by his cleverness, and as Corporal James Smith Mr. Paul Plunkett acts admirably. As Mary McLeod Miss Connie St. Clair is quite acceptable; and Mr. Ernest Torrence as Andrew Quainton deserves warm praise for a very able impersonation. The scenery and dresses are of the most artistic kind.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Dec. 7, the Comic Opera, entitled
"DOROTHY."

Brightness and constant movement are features which, apart from the particularly clever acting, cause the performance of Dorothy to be a complete success, and great credit is reflected upon Moss' Empires Company, Ltd., for the completeness of the production. The catchy, tuneful music, both in its many numbers and stirring choruses is in every way conducive to the excellent result, whilst dancing of a most graceful description further adds to the success. A capital impersonation of Harry Sherwood is given by Mr. Hayden Coffin, and his fine voice is heard to perfection on more than one occasion during the evening, repeated encores for his rendering of "Queen of my heart" being demanded. A well-sustained delineation of Geoffrey Wilder is the praiseworthy contribution of Mr. John Coates, whose cultivated singing is warmly encored. The stolid humours of Squire Bantam find fitting expression at the hands of Mr. Colin Coop, who also deserves a word of praise for his admirable stage-management. Dorothy is very charmingly portrayed by Miss Ruth Davenport, a captivating actress and a sweet-voiced vocalist, who renders her various songs with admirable effect. The same remarks apply to Miss Hebe Bliss, who makes the most of the part of Lydia Hawthorne. Mr. Arthur Williams' richly humorous treatment of the part of Lurcher is keenly enjoyed, and he keeps the house in a continual roar of merriment. Miss Emily Spiller gives a pleasing study of Mrs. Privett; Lady Betty is well portrayed by Miss Primrose Harding; and Miss Aimee Roberts suitably fills the rôle of Phillis Tuppitt. Mr. Tim Ryley satisfactorily enacts the part of Tom Strutt, and John Tuppitt is well treated by Mr. Fred J. Vigay. The full chorus and augmented chorus do their work admirably, under the conductorship of Mr. Frederick Rosse.

THE CORONET.

On Monday, Dec. 7, the drama entitled
"THE PRINCE AND THE BEGGAR MAID."

Preparatory to closing for a week to prepare for the pantomime of Dick Whittington, the Coronet is tenanted this week by Walter Howard's Lyceum drama, The Prince and the Beggar Maid, with its sentimental vogue. Mr. Herbert Ford enacts the part of the popular and breezy hero Prince Olaf, whose various "deeds of derring-do" and his ardent and determined love-making are very much to the taste of "the gods." He gives a pleasant and manly performance of the part, and is a good foil to the sinister representations of his princely brothers Hildred and Michael of Sylvania. These two parts are well played. Mr. Ivan Cleveland is good as the truculent scoundrel Hildred; and Michael is cleverly portrayed by Mr. Graeme Campbell. Mr. Edmund Lea gives a quietly forceful representation as Colonel Wellenberg. Mr. D. Lewin Mannering is a showy and self-reliant Captain Hector, and Mr. Kendal Chambers makes the most of the comic capabilities of the part of the amorous young lieutenant Karl Stromberg. Miss Annie Saker's pathetic appeals strike home to the hearts of the audience, and as the little Queen Monica who masquerades as a beggar maid she enters thoroughly into the spirit of the part. Miss Dido Drake contributes a very pretty and tasteful performance as Camiola, the beggar-maid who is in love with Captain Hector, and Miss Isla Garnet-Vayne causes much amusement by her naïveté and innocence as Viola, Hector's sister. The parts of officers in the Sylvanian army are satisfactorily rendered by Messrs. Ivan Ewart, W. Christie, Richard Lane, W. Williams, and others. Mr J. E. Gardner cleverly portrays the part of the dumb servitor Nathan, and Mr. Francis Hawley (who is general-manager) is distinctly good as the time-serving Bishop of Illyria. Mr. Stanley Farbridge is acting-manager, and Messrs. Kendal Chambers and Richard Lane stage-manage the show.

FULHAM THEATRE.

On Monday, Dec. 7, the Farcical Comedy by H. A. Du Souchet entitled
"THE MAN FROM MEXICO."

The Man from Mexico comes with a great reputation as a laughter-maker, and his character is certainly well-earned. The central idea—that of the usual errant husband spending thirty days in gaol and passing it off as a trip to Mexico—is an excellent one, and the ridiculous situations that ensue come thick and fast. Messrs. Robert Arthur and George Willoughby, who are producing the piece, are fortunate in securing Mr. Stanley Cooke for the part of Fitzhugh, and this clever little comedian kept the house in roars of laughter. No one could have cut a more pathetic and ridiculous figure in all the tribulations which Fitzhugh has to undergo. Mr. George Willoughby as Roderick Majors, the best friend, who fixes things up for everybody in a scrape, plays with broad humour and unflagging spirits. Mr. Walter Gay is excellent as the kind-hearted and artistic warder, Loveall, and Mr. Fred Lewis scores with an amusing impersonation of a stout German, who gets into gaol with the rest of the characters. Mr. Rupert Stuffield as Richard Dornton and Mr. Hugh Ardale as Edward Farrar play their parts as young men with brightness and spirit. Mr. Ernest Douglas does well in the character part of Detective Cook, and Mr. Walter Champney makes a good study of the waiter Louis. Miss Emily Fitzroy plays well as Clementine Fitzhugh, and Miss Fyfe Alexander is charming in the ingénue part of Sally Grace. Miss Amy Francis scores with her work in the part of Hetty Majors, a business-like young lady of New York, and Miss Doris Digby is a smart representative of the maid.

The Man from Mexico is preceded by a comedietta, My Uncle's Will, by S. Theyre Smith, which has a good working plot, but seemed rather diffuse in places. The parts were taken by Mr. Walter Gay, Mr. Arthur Cornell, and Miss Fyfe Alexander. Mr. Arthur Cornell is stage-manager, and Mr. Thorburn assists in front.

NEW LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Dec. 7, the Drama, by Edward Jewry, entitled
"AN UNWEDDED WIFE."

After an absence of nearly two years the above drama is paying another visit to the Lyric, and is meeting with an even larger measure of success than before. Crowded houses greet its several acts and scenes with tears and roars of laughter in turn, and with most enthusiastic applause throughout. Several alterations have been made in the script, and all have undoubtedly been for the better. The leading part of Marion, "the unwedded wife," is played in a most engaging and pathetic manner by Miss Ethel Van Praagh, who is ably supported by Mr. George Daiper, who, in the character of Frank Hawthorn, plays with much power. As the scamp, murderer, and everything that's bad, Philip Blackstone, Mr. Charles Sterling acts particularly well. Mr. R. Wilton Bedford gives a clever picture of the burglar coster, Kit Lennox; and as Martin Haffett Mr. J. A. Grove is decidedly good. Little Dorris is a sweet little Reggie. Of fun there is a large supply in the piece, and Mr. J. Edward Whitty takes first honours for his extraordinarily funny P.C. O'Runyin. He is seconded by Mr. Will Casey's humorous impersonation of the showman, Napoleon B. Boomer; and Miss Dorothea Pearce is a smart Caraway Crumpet. Altogether, the show is a particularly pleasing one, and its staging leaves nothing to be desired.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, Dec. 7, the Play in Four Acts, by Hall Caine, entitled
"THE CHRISTIAN."

The great social problem which forms the theme of Mr. Hall Caine's famous novel, "The Christian," and which is so ably developed in the new dramatic version as produced last year at the Lyceum, is so well known that it is not necessary to recall it here, but the tremendous success which has attended the play in London and on the road is being repeated again this week at the Shakespeare. To the theme full justice is done, too, by a talented company, under the direction of Mr. Wentworth Croke, and excellent acting emphasises the salient features of the play. The important rôle of the Hon. John Storm is handled by Mr. Roy Redgrave in a convincing and impressive manner, and throughout his grip on the audience never slackens. Mr. Wilfrid Noy gives a natural impersonation of Horatio Drake, and Mr. Herbert Hewetson's delineation of the cynical Lord Robert Ure is incisive and telling. Mr. Fewlass Llewellyn gives a fine character study of Father Lamplugh, and his stirring lines are delivered with admirable emphasis. Mr. John J. Hooker contributes a good performance of Archdeacon Wealthy, and Mr. Royce Milton is a dignified Lord Storm. As Parson Quayle Mr. Bruce Lindley does all that is necessary, and mention must also be made of Mr Fred Goodyer as Bert, Mr. Thomas Barry as Rosenberg, Mr. T. Ellis as Mr. Buckley, and Mr John Blake as Paul. Miss Daisy Scudamore, who plays Glory Quayle, possesses high histrionic ability, and presents a powerful exposition of a difficult part, scoring a decided success. A word of praise is due to Miss Molly Hayden for her fine work as Mrs. Callender, and an excellent piece of emotional acting is shown by Miss Cora Deane as Polly Love. Miss Florence Hunt as Black Meg also renders good assistance, and Miss Kitty Symons is pleasing as Lady Robert Ure. Minor parts are excellently sustained by Miss Harriet Russell, Miss Stella Campbell, Miss Nellie Wyndham, Miss Muriel Marsden. Miss Minnie Willett, and Miss Ada Rose.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

On Monday, Dec. 7, the Play with Music entitled
"THE MERRY WIDOW."

Mr. George Edwardes's No. 1 company filled Mr. J. Bannister Howard's spacious theatre on Monday in every part, and formed a most fitting conclusion to the first part of the season here, for after this week there will be no more companies till the pantomime is over. From the rise of the curtain until the last act the audience thoroughly enjoyed the charm and humour of this record piece, and the artists all seemed to revel in their parts. Mr. Edward D'Arcy made Baron Popoff a most humorous old gentleman, with all the usual wheezes and a few of his own thrown in. The Vicomte de Jolidon was suitably played by Mr. Ripley Evans, with a pleasing tenor voice and a good style; Mr. Fred Fowler's Nisch was made the medium of some good dancing and many drolleries, encores being accorded to the song and dance with Frou Frou, a part played with much chic and archness by Miss Katie May; Mr. William Allison was good as the amorous Marquis de Cascada, and Mr. F. Pedgrift as M. de St. Brioche displayed considerable aptitude and a voice much above the average in his singing in the opening scene. The General Novakovitch of Mr. Clifford Seyler was amusingly senile and reminiscent of the originator of this part. Mr. Robert Needham as the sinister Khadja was all that was required. Mr. Bert Edwards (who will shortly appear here in pantomime) was most diverting in the small part of the Head Waiter at Maxim's. As Prince Danilo Mr. Frank Greene worked hard and well, cleverly mingling the comedy and pathos demanded in this almost unique rôle. The Natalie of Miss Ada Thomas was excellent, for she sang and acted with an intensity and reality which secured for her unstinted applause. Mesdames Daphne Glenne and Violet Hobson were Mme. Novakovitch and Mme. Khapja respectively, and each succeeded in giving distinction to her impersonation. The Prascovia of Miss Lucia Donati was funny without exaggeration. Miss Mysie Devine as Sonia, the Merry Widow, from her first effective entry until the last act had her audience entirely with her, and got every ounce out of each scene and situation. She was fully equal to the exacting musical portion, and graciously responded to the many and well-deserved recalls. Her movements had a sinuous grace, especially noticeable in the waltz, and she wore her charming dresses with ease and elegance. Mr. Ernest Vousden conducted a full orchestra, and the scenery and effects were a replica of the original production.

BROADWAY THEATRE.

On Monday, Dec 7,
"THE TAMING OF THE SHREW."

Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton commenced a six nights' engagement here on Monday in The Taming of the Shrew. The Katharine of Miss Lily Brayton and the Petruchio of Mr. Oscar Asche have been so often praised in our columns that little remains but to record the fact that both these clever artists were at their best on Monday night, and that the large audience followed the amusing comedy with interest, and warmly applauded the artists. Miss Brayton is delightful as the wayward Katharine, and Mr. Asche plays Petruchio with all the energy and decision demanded, his fine physique being well suited to the character. Mr. Tripp Edgar gives a clever rendering of Tranio; Mr. G. Kay Souper is very good indeed as Lucentio; Mr. Fritz Russell is excellent as Vincentio; and Mr. Caleb Porter as Gremio is effective. Mr. Herbert Grimwood makes a success as Baptista; Mr. Henry Kitts plays Grumio cleverly; and Mr. Arthur Tranton is a capital Pedant. Other parts are in the competent hands of Messrs. Arthur Weeks, Reginald Davis, Ian Penny, R. F. Anson, and Gordon Harker. Miss Maude Lorraine is a pretty page; Miss Caroline Bayley does well as the widow; Miss Muriel Ashwynne is an attractive Bianca.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, Dec. 7, the Drama in Four Acts entitled
"HER MARRIAGE VOW."

The above attraction is the fare at the Pavilion for the current week, and proves to be a well-constructed story of the familiar type, with an excellent picture of railroad life, the chief sensation being the passing of two trains at express speed, an incident that causes much excitement. Mr. Forbes Knowles is seen to advantage in the part of Ned Benton; Mr. Charles B. Bedells as Gilbert Carlton is very fine; the part of Daffy Dan is satisfactorily portrayed by Mr. Vincent Wardle; and ability is shown by Mr. John W. Ryder as William Walters and Mr. H. Vernon as Larry Leary, a broth of a boy. Miss Lillian Herries as Kate Walters displays talent, and Miss Winifred Barlon as Maggie Clair causes much amusement. The part of Hester Norton is successfully enacted by Miss Nellie Shirley; Miss Grace Garside as Almira, an old maid, is also very good; and the remaining characters are in the hands of Mr. Wilford Bailey, Mr. Walter Wiley, and Mr. W. Brooks.

ELEPHANT AND CASTLE THEATRE.

On Monday, Dec. 7, the Drama entitled
"STRAIGHT FROM THE SHOULDER."

Mr. R. A. Roberts's company makes a decided hit in that "nerve-exciting drama," Straight from the Shoulder. The scenery is neat and effective. Mr. Henry Herne makes a fine hero of the falsely accused Dr. Bedford; Mr. Leonard Clarke as the villainous Major Lucas is rightly billed as an "absolute rotter," and fully merits the chorus of condemnation he gets; Mr. George H. Child fills the part of the good old Rev. John Armitage; Mr. Fred Beck does well as Jim Green, his rendering of the song "I'm afraid to come home in the dark" being extremely humorous; Mr. George Fisher makes a good impression as Fred Stafford, and plays up well to Miss Beatrice Moore, who is a lively Gladys Brittle, their duet, "A hammock built for two" being encored; Miss Edie Casson scores greatly as the elder Miss Brittle; and Miss Frances Bruce plays well as the gentle Mary Gleeson; Miss Beatrice Burdett gives a good performance as the much-tried Millicent Grant.

THE KENNINGTON.

On Monday, Dec. 7,
"BREWSTER'S MILLIONS."

The pre-pantomime season at Kennington Theatre closes this week with the production of that rattling eccentric comedy, Brewster's Millions, with Mr. Percy Hutchison in the leading rôle, and it has proved as great a draw at Mr. Robert Arthur's South London house as elsewhere on tour. The comedy is well written, and although the theme is one which lends itself to much extravagance of humour—as well as of means—it is not in any way overdone by the admirable company which Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison have gathered round them. A great feature of Brewster's Millions is the staging. Everything is done on a lavish scale. Brewster's offices in the second act are splendidly put on, but, of course, the great triumph of stagecraft is the top deck of the steam yacht Flitter in Act III. Mr. Percy Hutchison made a fine Brewster, the beau ideal of a spendthrift youth—generous, open-hearted, and full of fun, with a vein of romance—his affection for Peggy—running through all his escapades. Mr. Hutchison is a first-class comedian, brimful of fun, and he kept the house in roars on Monday. Miss Cicely Stuckey was a dainty and lovable Peggy Grey, and won all hearts by her charming personality and graceful bearing. Miss Francis Davie was great fun as Janice Armstrong, the apostle of Platonism, and her efforts were ably seconded by Mr. Henry Hampson as Archie Golding, the solicitor on Brewster's staff. Mr. Frank Hill was a typical butler; Mr. Cyril Rawdon did well as Charlie Harrison; and Mr. A. Andrews made a soldierly Colonel Drew. The part of the good-hearted, fiery-tempered Joseph McLeod was ably sustained by Mr. Aubrey Mather; while Miss Lilias Earle made a motherly Mrs. Dan de Mille. Barbara Drew was adequately impersonated by Miss Eva Stuart; Miss Sybil Walsh was a stately Trixie Clayton; Mr. Robert Forsyth deserves mention for his careful sketch of Mr. Grant; Mr. Charles Esdale was usefully placed as Frank Bragden; and Mr. Douglas Greet was an excellent Tommy Smith. Mr. George Salver gave a fine study of the part of Captain Perry, of the Flitter; and Mr. A. P. Kaye caused great fun as the Frenchman, Mons. Bargie. Others who should be noted were Mr. Otto Hazlewood (Horace Pettinghill), Mr. U. S. Haye (Jack Gardiner), and Miss Mary Seton (Miss Boynton).

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Dec. 7, the Drama entitled
"THE FATAL WEDDING."

This powerful drama, which has so long been toured with success throughout the provinces, was presented here on Monday, and scored highly. Mr. Percy Williams is to be congratulated on the excellent body of players he has around him, and with good realistic scenery and dresses The Fatal Wedding seems destined for a still longer run. Mr. Cecil A. Melton is capital as the wealthy Howard Wilson; and in the rôle of Mabel Wilson Miss Ethel Kay is to be complimented upon a perfect piece of acting. Mr. Frank Harrison, as Robert Curtis depicts with skill the "man about town"; Miss Elaine Vanbrugh does exceedingly well as Cora Williams; Miss Lulu Wohlmann delights the audience as Jessie; her singing and dancing deserve warm eulogy; Miss Ethel Sargient as Bridget gives great satisfaction, as also does Mr. Charles Locke as Toto; Mr. Cyril Melton makes the most of his opportunities as Schwartz, and Policeman O'Reilly is well sustained by Mr. Frank Ashley; a capital series of songs were well rendered by Misses Sarah Rich, Hilda Malbert, Edith Dews, Violet Dupré, Marie Wilson, Dorrene Aberdare, Dorothy Pain, and Dot Jeffries; Master Tom Grice proves himself a very clever dancer. The remaining characters are, one and all, well sustained.

BRITANNIA THEATRE.

On Monday, Dec. 7, the Drama, by H. G. Brandon, entitled
"WHAT WOMEN SUFFER."

Crowded houses have witnessed the drama, What Women Suffer, written by Mr. Brandon, the stage-manager here, and performed by Mr. Montgomery's stock company, and which has been voted a success. It gives the leading players ample opportunities of displaying talent. Mr. Harry Tresham plays Wilfred Coventry and John Coventry with commendable ability, his drunken scene being very realistic. The rôle of Squire Norton is sustained in a natural and finished manner by Mr. Conrad E. Clerke. Mr. H. Rylton Leigh plays Herbert Standish in a style that admirably suits the character, and is duly execrated by the gods. Mr. C. Alan Heneson represents John Meredith remarkably well; and Mr. H. Herbert Young is well adapted to the part of Tod Potts. Considerable amusement is caused by Mr. Brandon as Obediah Shakespeare. Mr. Ivan Pat Gore is seen as a kind-hearted policeman and a brutal warder, both of whom he represents well. Miss Etheyle Gordon Murray as Edith Coventry has many opportunities to show her ability, and is applauded by the audience. Miss Lilla Stanhope plays in a quiet, unassuming, and sympathetic manner as Nance Meredith. Miss Florence Barnes scores as Marion Thomas, and greatly assists in the lighter periods of the play. We must heartily commend Miss Evelyn Kinton for her excellent rendering of Cedris; her acting is very praiseworthy. The drama was well mounted and artistically dressed.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Dec. 7, the play entitled
"THE GIRL WHO WENT ASTRAY."

Dalstonians are this week having a fill of the sensational class of production in the drama entitled The Girl Who Went Astray. Mr. John B. Shinton plays the part of Captain Frank Julian in a way which fully displays the straightforward and honourable nature of the man; Rupert Murdock is a character in the play who has a good deal to do, and the part is presented in a manner in every way satisfactory by Mr. Fred Lloyd; Mr. Evan Roland causes a good deal of amusement as Adolphus Boomer, and Mr. Tod Squires aids materially in the same direction in the part of James Yellowsocks, who is an ideal comic servant; Mr. Edwin Williams is also amusing as Gussy Seymour. Others in the cast include Mr. Edgar P. Melrose (who appears as Sergeant John Harvey, V.C.), Mr. R. Ashton, Mr. A. Mainwaring, and Mr. A. Wardroper. As Madge Harvey, otherwise known as Zara L'Estrange, the girl who went astray, Miss Gwynne Warrens fills the title-rôle. She has the advantage of a commanding presence, and makes the audience hear all she has to say. Miss Ada M. Ryder is Violet Harvey, the half-sister to Madge, and the contrast in the dispositions of the two women is rendered most distinct; Miss Sybil Haughton is Eleanor Merton, "a woman with a past"; Miss Mary Dalby is quite a success as Molly Smart, a vivacious character, while Miss Freda Fredericks as Flo Fortescue and Miss Mabel Sinclair as a nurse also satisfactorily fill the parts allotted to them.

THEATRE ROYAL, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Dec. 7, the Drama entitled
"THE CONVICT'S DAUGHTER."

Written by Mr. Gordon Holmes and presented by Mr. Frank Bertram's company, The Convict's Daughter is proving itself a most acceptable drama to the audiences who are nightly attending this house. The cast is well selected, all the members of which put heart into their work, but the one particularly prominent character is undertaken by Mr. Frank Bertram, who in the various disguises of Weary Willie, Michael Grahame, Convict 99, and A Mystery, supplies an agreeable speciality, and instils into the parts ample dramatic effect. Although the character he assumes is of a pathetic nature, the touches of comedy introduced are cleverly portrayed and duly appreciated. Mr. William Burgess successfully plays the rôle of Frederick Neville; Mr. Walter Graham is suited to the part of Harold Trevalyan; the villain Jasper Thorne is capably essayed by Mr. Escott Robson; Mr. Willie Black is mirth provoking as Patrick O'Laragan, and is ably assisted by Miss Grace Emery as Betty Hyne; Mr. H. Loye-Staples makes a realistic Inspector Harper; Miss Lilian Dean as Edith acts with delicacy and feeling, and evokes much applause; Miss Nellie Waddington is quite efficient as Marian Thorne. The drama is adequately staged. The various selections of music played by the orchestra under the bâton of Mr. S. Catcutt are greatly appreciated.

THE WEST LONDON THEATRE.

On Monday, Dec. 7, the Drama, in Four Acts, by C. A. Clarke and H. F. Spiers, entitled
"THE BLACK VAMPIRE."

Miss Winifred Chalmers' company did very well here this week with the sensational drama The Black Vampire. The chief acting honours were carried off by that hard-working and painstaking actor, Mr. Henry L. Osmond, who, as Harry Royce, carried everything before him. Mr. J. C. Carlyle enacted Armand Dubois in a realistic and convincing way; Mr. George Allwark cleverly depicted the dumb man Henri Dubois; Mr. Harry Cooke was an amusing Sammy Dobbs; Mr. Charles Tolcher did well as Fillion; and Mr. C. Taylor was responsible for a most vivid portrayal and excellently made-up representation of Ritza, the High Priest of Khama. Miss Lillian Burns impersonated Natallie Latour with much freedom of expression; Miss Mabel Tremere piquantly sustained Estelle; Miss M. Osmond sang well, and made many friends with her bright and intelligent rendering of Gervaise Dubois; whilst Miss Winifred Chalmers delighted everyone with her clear, easy and convincing rendering of Mona Brayton.

ARTILLERY THEATRE, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Dec. 7, the Musical Comedy, entitled
"THE FLOWER GIRL."

The patrons of the Artillery Theatre are this week enjoying much hearty laughter and showing keen appreciation of the fare placed before them, which testifies to the mirth-provoking qualities of The Flower Girl. The book, music, and lyrics, are written and composed by Mr. William T. Gliddon, and the production is under the guiding hand of Mr. J. J. Stanford. The music is tuneful, and there is sufficient plot to arrest the interest of the audience; and the singing and dancing is undertaken in a spirited fashion. Miss Kitty Hyde, who, by the way, is no stranger to this theatre, essays the rôle of Lily, the flower girl, and gives a charming and dainty interpretation, her songs being well rendered and warmly applauded. Miss Lily Drake offers a clever and amusing delineation of Lizette de Racquet, and shows an aptness and command of comedy, and gains a flattering reception. Miss Flo Chapman as Miss Greenhill, a Suffragette, is the source of much merriment; Miss Townley Laurence makes a suitable Maisie Flirtington; Alphonse de Racquet is amusingly portrayed by Mr. Henry Adnes, who is a comedian of no mean ability, and is the cause of continuous mirth. Joe Wheeler is made the most of in the capable hands of Mr. W. P. Dempsey; Mr. Alfred Donohoe is successful as Johnny Wheeler; Mr. Norman Bowyer is funny as Reginald Rackit; Mr. Robert H. Howard as the Hon. Billy Greenhill shows off his voice to good advantage. The comedy is well mounted, and the augmented orchestra is under the direction of Mr. William Neale.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

The students of the Guildhall School of Music gave a most successful orchestral concert in the large hall of the City of London School on Wednesday evening. A good account was given by the orchestra, under Dr. Cummings, of Mendelssohn's Scotch Symphony, and an excellent performance was secured of the lively Scherzo; while the playing of the wind instruments was very creditable to both students and professors in the band. Miss Muriel Clark, pupil of Mme. Bessie Cox, and contralto prize-winner of 1908, gave a sympathetic rendering of Gounod's song "There is a green hill far away," although the orchestral accompaniment slightly overpowered the vocalist.

In Saint-Saëns' Violoncello Concerto Mr. Norman Attwell, pupil of Mr. Ernest de Munck, greatly distinguished himself, and well deserved hearty applause from the large audience. Mr. Attwell in the Concerto was also admirably supported by the orchestra. Few students dare attempt such difficult music as the vocal exercise "Où va ta jeune Indoue," the famous air from Delibes' opera Lakmé, and Miss Hilda Cornfoot, A.G.S.M., who has a pure and flexible soprano voice, deserved great credit for her clever singing and neatly-executed shakes. Miss Cornfoot, who was much applauded, is a pupil of Signor Zardo. Mr. Eric Zardo presided at the piano, and the concert concluded with Mozart's Overture, "Le Nozze di Figaro."

Charles Young was wont to speak in terms of almost wanton admiration of a bold point he saw Mrs. Siddons once make. In the second scene of the second act of Coriolanus, an ovation in honour of the victor was introduced. No fewer than two hundred and forty persons marched in stately procession across the stage. In this procession Mrs. Siddons had to walk. Had she been content to follow in the beaten track of those who had gone before her, she would have marched across the stage with the solemn, stately, almost funereal step conventional. But at the time—as she often did—she forgot her identity; she was no longer Sarah Siddons, tied down to the directions of the prompter's book: she broke through old traditions; she recollected that she was Volumnia, the proud mother of a proud son and conquering hero. So that, instead of dropping each foot at equi-distance in cadence subservient to the orchestra, deaf to the guidance of her woman's ear, but sensitive to the throbbings of her haughty mother's heart, with flashing eye and proudest smile, and head erect, and hands pressed firmly on her bosom, as if to repress by manual force its triumphant swellings, she towered above all around her, and almost reeled across the stage, her very soul, as it were, dilating and rioting in its exultations, until her action lost all grace, and yet became so true to nature, so picturesque and so descriptive, that pit and gallery sprang to their feet electrified by the transcendent execution of the conception.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Dec. 7, for the first time in London, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Nita Rae, entitled
"FOR LOVE OF A WOMAN."

Ned Merrick ..... Mr. Jerrold Ord
Guy Manor ..... Mr. Frederick Garratt
Allen Paget ..... Mr. Eustace Day
Major Hulmes ..... Mr. Charles Ninian
Albert St. Everamond ..... Mr. Leonard S. Harrison
Sam Holland ..... Mr. Fred Ramsdale
Tom Jones ..... Mr. Ernest Yandel
Warder ..... Mr. Brook Leicester
Nell Paget ..... Miss Nellie de Lacey
Marjory Hulmes ..... Miss Bella Victoria
Jane Manor ..... Miss Eva St. Vincent
Nance Manor ..... Miss May Day

For Love of a Woman, the sensational drama produced for the first time in London at the Stratford Theatre Royal on Monday, is an excellent specimen of the class of play beloved by a popular audience, containing, as it does, an abundance of sensational situations and pathetic passages, with, of course, the always-necessary blending of comedy relief, and its reception by the large audience on the night of our visit was decidedly appreciative. The self-sacrificing hero, who suffers so unjustly "for love of a woman" (Nell Paget) is Ned Merrick, who returns from America, where he has been toiling to make a fortune, only to find that she is to be married that very day to the villainous Guy Manor. Guy had previously wedded Nell's sister abroad, and had deserted her and her baby girl Nance. The mother has died, and the child is entrusted to the care of Ned, who brings her back to England, where she is the "light" of her blind old grandfather, Allen Paget. It is soon made evident that Nell is not happy with her husband, and Ned, who still loves her, promises that if ever she is in need of a true friend she can always rely on him. In the third scene of the first act Guy comes to Paget's house to borrow a substantial sum from his father-in-law, and on being refused the loan tries forcible persuasion, the coward after a violent struggle killing the old man. Ned's coat is in the room, and some blood getting on it it is the scoundrel's intention to fasten the crime on the hero. Nance has, however, been a witness of the murder; but Ned makes her promise to tell no one what she has seen, as he will not have Nell made unhappy by the arrest of her husband. Ned is imprisoned on circumstantial evidence, and Guy Manor, in order that his daughter shall not be persuaded to disclose all she knows, takes Nance to a wretched hovel inhabited by a drunken old hag, Jane Manor (his own mother), whom he pays to ill-treat the child, and even tries to bribe to kill her. The besotted female, however, stays her hand at murder, and when she has departed Guy intends to put an end to his offspring's existence himself, but at the last moment determines to spare her life. When Jane Manor returns the plucky youngster has obtained possession of a pistol, and being mistress of the situation bids the old wretch make herself scarce. Mounting a table, she then climbs to a high window, and escapes down an ivy-clad wall—an exciting episode that evoked much enthusiasm. Eventually Nance visits Ned in prison, and endeavours to get him to release her from her promise of secrecy. She has in her possession a button and a piece of the cloth from the coat worn by her father at the time of the murder, and when she consults her friend the policeman he speedily takes the law into his own hands. In the end Guy, after murdering his own mother, falls a victim to a shot intended for Ned, and villainy being completely vanquished, the way is made clear for the happiness of Ned and Nell, and brace little Nancy.

The company responsible for the production (Mr. and Mrs. Eustace Day's) is an excellent one throughout, all the characters being admirably impersonated. Mr. Jerrold Ord is a manly and convincing exponent of Ned Merrick, his acting in the pathetic episodes of the play being very impressive. Mr. Frederick Garratt makes no mistake in his handling of the rôle of Guy Manor, his portrayal throughout of this thorough-paced scoundrel being always effective, the actor skilfully suggesting the fear of the guilty man when he discovers a piece of his coat is missing; his enactment of the scene with his daughter where he intends to kill her also being excellent. Miss Eva St. Vincent also contributed valuably to the realism of this episode, her depiction throughout of the gin-loving old hag being a clever character study on which the actress is to be cordially complimented. Another very praiseworthy impersonation was that of the loving and loyal Nance Manor by Miss May Day, a gifted youngster who was thoroughly conversant with all the business of her part, and speedily became a great favourite with the audience. Mr. Eustace Day contributed a careful and quite satisfactory impersonation of the aged and blind old grandfather, Allen Paget, the pathos of the part being convincingly portrayed; Miss Nellie de Lacey was a sympathetic and refined representative of Nell Paget; and Miss Bella Victoria as the gay, gushing, and giddy Marjorie Hulmes, realised the character exactly. Mr. Leonard S. Harrison as an impossible dude, Albert St. Everamond, was responsible for some of the heartiest laughter heard during the evening; and Mr. Charles Ninian also created merriment by his admirable study of the fiery old Major Hulmes. The other parts were also satisfactorily enacted. Scenery, dresses, and effects were all praiseworthy, and the incidental music written by Mr. G. De La Camera, the gifted musical director of the Grand Theatre, Brighton, is quite worthy of that experienced composer. The smart stage-management of Mr. Frederick Garratt must also be favourably mentioned.

JOE CAVE AND THE MARYLEBONE.

To the Editor of The Era.

Sir,—Having seen the letter published in your paper from my old friend, Mr. G. A. Loveridge (relating to the Marylebone Theatre), it might be of interest to your readers to know that I took the theatre in 1858, opening with a new drama by J. B. Johnstone, called The Mystery of Wilton Hall. Amongst the company was Mr. Geo. Belmore, Mr. Henry Forrester (their first appearance in London), Mr. Philip Hannan (the brother of the popular author, Mr. Watts Phillips), Miss Emma Barnett, and others. I followed the management of Mr. Clarence Holt, whose friendship I retained until his demise. I kept it open up to 1868, when I parted with my interest (by the permission of Mr. John Loveridge) to a Mr. Lacy, who opened his season with an Indian play, named Ping da Sing. Five years after, in 1873, I resumed the management and retained it for another ten years without a break. Not a bad record! During my management I had the valuable assistance of Samuel Phelps, Chas. Dillon, Henry Neville, Leigh Murray, James Anderson, Benjamin Webster, J. L. Toole, Paul Bedford, Walter Montgomery, J. F. Young, Chas. Warner, Mesdames Marriott, Marie Litton, Nelly Farren, Mrs. Stirling, Miss Woolgar, Miss Ada Cavendish, Mme. Celeste, Bella Pateman, and other celebrities too numerous to mention.—Yours faithfully,

J. A. CAVE.

Mr. Frank Curzon announces a special matinée of King of Cadonia at the Prince of Wales's Theatre on Boxing Day.

Mr. Editor.—Sir, the part of Squire Western in Tom Jones at Kennington last week was not played by Mr. Ambrose Manning, but by yours faithfully, Frank Henry

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

"LE FOYER."

Comedy, in Three Acts, by MM. Octave Mirbeau and T. Natanson, produced at the Comédie-Française on Dec. 7.

Thérèse ..... MME. BARTET
Mlle. Rambert ..... MME. PIERSON
Mme. Pigeon ..... MME. AMEL
Armand Biron ..... M. DE FÉRAUDY
L'Abbé Lacroze ..... M. TRUFFIER
Jean ..... M. JOLIET
Arnaud Tripier ..... M. RAVET
Célistin Leriblé ..... M. CROUS
Ludovic Belair ..... M. GRANDVAL
Charles Dufrère ..... M. PAUL NUMA
Robert d'Auberval ..... M. JACQUES DE FÉRAUDY
Baron Courtin ..... M. FÉLIX HUGUENET

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, Dec. 10.—We have had frequent opportunities to refer to the trouble in connection with Le Foyer, which, having been accepted by M. Claretie and put into rehearsal, was suddenly withdrawn despite the protests of the authors, who compelled the Comédie-Française by law to mount their play. Wild rumours were afloat at the time. Some said that M. Claretie objected to the principal personage, a senator and member of the French Academy, being shown in a despicable light; whilst others asserted that this Baron Courtin, taken from life, is a man well known in the social and political world. The mystery has not quite been cleared up, although it was whispered that the true reason of M. Claretie's objections was that one of the scenes was particularly repulsive, and if this was the case we can but endorse M. Claretie's opinion. And now for the plot. In the opening scene we are at the house of Baron Courtin and Thérèse, his wife. The Baron, a man of about fifty-five, has a hobby. Very much interested in the Paris workgirl, he has founded a charitable institution, "Le Foyer," managed by Mlle. Rambert and the Abbé Lacroze, where girls are housed, fed, and taught a trade. But it transpires that the children are badly cared for; and a death, attributed to negligence, has called forth an official inquiry which brings to light that a child was suffocated in a cupboard where it had been locked up as punishment; whilst another was so badly whipped that it had to be removed to a hospital. Courtin, trembling for his position on account of the scandal, discusses the matter with his wife and tells her plainly that he must find at once £12,000 to refund to the society—money he has taken to cover his losses on the Bourse and for his private use. Courtin knows that Thérèse had a liaison with Armand Biron, a financier, who supplied her liberally with money, a liaison she broke off because she has become attached to a young mundane Socialist, Robert d'Auberval; and he only sees one issue to his troubles, which is that Biron should advance the required sum. And now we come to the unpleasant scene in the piece. Thérèse calls on Biron with the intention of asking for help for old friendship's sake. Biron, however, still in love with the woman, will only accede to her request provided she resumes her former relations with him. Thérèse refuses, but the wily Biron, seeing where the shoe pinches, suggests that if she accepts his proposal they can all go for a long cruise on his yacht, a merry party, consisting of herself, her husband, Biron, and Robert d'Auberval. The mention of Robert decides the matter; and when a few minutes later Courtin enters Biron informs him that he will take over the "Foyer" and turn it into a good paying concern, where the children will be worked hard to make good returns. And the over-joyed Courtin at once accepts this pretty scheme of the "merry little party" on Biron's yacht, saying that during the voyage he will have leisure to write his paper on the "Prix de Vertu." Mme. Bartet as Thérèse, delightfully young and charming, looked perhaps a trifle to mueh the woman whom men will adore with respect, and not the coquette she is supposed to be. M. Huguénet made his début at the Comédie-Française as Courtin, a rôle that suited him to the ground. M. Truffier cleverly impersonated the Jesuitical Abbé; and Mme. Pierson imparted the real colour to the character of the somewhat uncanny Mlle. Rambert.

AT the Odéon M. Guiraud, a young man, has brought out a very old-fashioned play called Le Poussin, wherein he attempts to show that mothers are wrong to treat their sons like little boys. The mother in this case is a Mme. Lattès, a widow, a terrible lady, whose love for her son Georges, a youth of twenty-five, takes an aggressive form and causes her to behave in an insane manner. It is to be hoped that such specimens are rare, on and off the stage. La Bienheureuse, two short acts by M. Jean Boucher, and Pylade, a one-act trifle by M. Louis Legendre, were also included in the night's entertainment, which was a dull affair.

"SANGA," Mr. Isidor de Lara's four-act opera, produced at the Opéra-Comique, has burst upon Paris like a surprise, and people ask themselves what induced the gifted composer to write music to a libretto not worthy of that name, unless it was the fact that one of the two persons responsible for the booklet is M. Paul Choudens, the well-known music publisher, holding a high position in the musical world here. One cannot but sympathise with Mr. de Lara, who, with no material to work upon, had to produce sufficient music to lengthen the work into four acts, which he could only do by sacrificing melody in his interminable soli. From the very start it was a hopeless task, and we wonder Mr. de Lara undertook it. The plot (!) of this four-act opera is as follows: Lena, a farmer's daughter, is engaged to Jean. But he has been captivated by Sanga, a girl who has come to help at harvest-time. On the wedding-day a storm breaks loose which destroys the village, and Sanga and Jean, who have withdrawn to the heights, are also swept away by the rising waters. Et voilà tout! The work, wherein we detect many Wagnerian reminiscences—possibly unavoidable—is capitally orchestrated.

M. CAPUS is, as everybody knows, an optimist. According to him most difficulties in life can, with a little philosophy, be settled satisfactorily; and, unlike M. Bernstein, his heroes need not resort to the revolver to bring their miserable existence—and likewise the play—to a close. True to his theory, M. Capus, in L'Oiseau Blessé, his new three-act comedy brought out at the Renaissance, has dealt mercifully with his personages, and this "drame intime," despite its shortcomings, leaves a pleasant after-taste. The story is not complicated. Raymond Salvière is a distinguished littérateur. Immensely rich, of a first-class family, married to Madeleine, a charming woman, he is the happiest of men. One day, however, trouble comes upon him in the form of a woman, or rather girl, Yvonne Janson. Georges, one of Raymond's nephews, has, under promise of marriage, seduced Yvonne and left her to her fate. The good-natured Raymond and his wife call on the disconsolate girl to offer her their help, especially as she is anxious to gain her living on the stage. The inevitable happens. Raymond falls in love with the girl; she becomes his mistress, and he refuses the post of Ambassador offered him by the Ministry. Madeleine has wind of the affair, and we witness a painful scene between Raymond and his wife, who implores her husband to give up this liaison. Raymond resolves to break off the connection; but he is not proof against Yvonne's tears, and his vanity being also brought into play, he has not the strength to discard Yvonne. Fortunately the girl's heart is in the right place. She hears of Madeleine's despair, and it is she who announces to her lover her intention of leaving Paris the next day on a prolonged tour with a theatrical company. Madeleine heaves a sigh of relief, and is generous enough to extend a forgiving hand to the girl who tries to atone for the trouble she has wrought. Hitherto we had only seen Mlle. Eve Lavallière in farcical rôles. This time she tried her hand in an emotional part, and she was charming in the part of Yvonne, wherein she was able to indulge in some of her funny pranks. M. Guitry gave a good portrayal of the lovesick Raymond; and Mmes. Andrée Mégard and Juliette Darcourt and M. Victor Boucher completed a splendid ensemble.

IRVING AS A HOST.

"I have already alluded to the suppers in the Beefsteak Room as among the notable social reunions of the time," says Mr. Comyns Carr in "Some Eminent Victorians." "But there is one of those Lyceum suppers a little more formal than the rest which I feel disposed to recall, because it gave evidence of quite an unsuspected power on the part of Henry Irving of suddenly replying as a speaker to an unexpected attack.

"The occasion was the 100th performance of the Merchant of Venice, in 1879, and I think it was the first time that the stage of a great London theatre had been employed as the arena of a large and splendid entertainment. Since that time we have enjoyed such feasts under the hospitable auspices of Mr. Tree at His Majesty's—once, as I recall, on the occasion of the 100th night of Julius Cæsar, and again on a corresponding occasion to celebrate the successful run of Ulysses.

"On the evening to which I now refer the task of proposing Irving's health was entrusted to Lord Houghton, who, it was thought, would hardly choose that particular occasion to exhibit the cynical temper he was known to possess. But Lord Houghton, as I afterwards found reason to know, was not disposed to be governed by conventional restrictions, and he devoted nearly the whole of his speech to a considered depreciation of Irving's conception of Shylock, enlarging, in terms, that seemed to us who sat there, almost designedly bitter, upon what he considered the undeserved dignity that the actor had granted to the character.

"It must have been that Irving was taken by surprise, and although his habit was always to speak from preparation, and often indeed to read what he had prepared, he proved himself, on this occasion, a master of good-humoured impromptu, twitting Lord Houghton, in a spirit of genial banter, with being a slave to the old-fashioned idea that Shylock was a comic villain, and promising on some future occasion to try and more amply satisfy his lordship's ideal by representing Shylock as a Houndsditch Jew with three hats upon his head and a bag of lemons in his hands. The actor's success, acknowledged by all who were present, was due, I think, mainly to the fact that, although taken off his guard by this unexpected provocation, there was not a trace of ill-humour in his reply.

"There was one other occasion when Irving was the host at a small supper-party given at the Continental Hotel, when he showed an equal power of retaining his self-possession in circumstances the most trying and the most unexpected.

"The honoured guest of the evening—entertained upon his return from a foreign campaign—was a brilliant and gifted journalist, now no more, and chief among those whom he had specially desired Irving to invite to meet him was a distinguished statesman still living, though by deliberate choice he no longer takes an active part in public affairs. The guest for whom the entertainment was given arrived late, and when he appeared it was evident to those of us who knew him that he had dined, not wisely, but too well. On a sudden, and in response to the most harmless raillery on the part of the statesman to whom I have referred, he rose and retorted with the most bitter and, if I may say so, the most vulgar abuse; and while we all sat appalled by the outrage he was committing, he turned and appealed to Irving to justify his extraordinary outburst. It was then that Irving's tact showed itself. Quietly and slowly he replied, 'All I have to say, my dear friend, is that first upon the list of those whom you specially desired I should invite to meet you this evening stood the name of Lord ——.' And then, as though to prove to us that he, too, could exhibit an equal measure of self-possession, the man so wantonly attacked, without a word of resentment or rebuke, quietly filled his glass and invited us to drink just one toast to say how glad we were to see our old friend returned once more from his travels abroad."

THE LATE HARRY KILBURN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Twenty-seven years ago this approaching Boxing Day I first met the late Harry Kilburn. We were engaged at the York Music Hall, Southampton, and the pièce de résistance at the hall for the Christmas festivity fare was a spectacular sketch, in which the above-named gentleman enacted the leading part—a kind of an up-to-date Frankenstein's monster. The production was a huge hit, and ran over the holidays. Some time previous to this date "Our Harry" had been "discovered" by the late Frank Egerton somewhere up Newcastle way, and brought to town as an Irish comic, his bonne bouche being a capital imitation of W. J. Ashcroft as the "Solid Man," and very successful he was, too.

Regarding his age, as given in your admirable notice of to-day's issue, I should say at that period—1881—he was not under twenty. It can truly be said "Poor Harry" made many, many friends, for "His life was gentle; and the elements

So mixed in him, that Nature might stand up,
And say to all the world, 'This is a man.'"

—Yours faithfully,

GEORGE E. BELMONT.

"ON THE OTHER FOOT."

A Burglar Incident, in One Act, by Sydney Blow and George Bellamy, Produced at the Gaiety Theatre, Hastings, on Monday evening, Dec. 7.

Mr. Binfield ..... MR. OWEN NARES
Mrs. Binfield ..... MISS JEAN CADELL
The Burglar ..... MR. CHARLES KING

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The authors have provided a well-constructed and excellent satire upon the weaknesses of dramatic criticism. The scene is the Binfields' flat at midnight. The domestic is absent on leave, the Binfields not having yet returned from the theatre. The actor, who resides in the flat overhead, is smarting under Binfield's epithet of a "consumptive canary" conveyed in his newspaper article, but has also received a letter from Mrs. Binfield privately condoling with him on her husband's slashing article. He determines to burgle their flat, and be caught in his assumed character. The action begins by his effecting an entrance through the window by means of a rope from his premises. He secures all the valuables possible, and then locks himself in the adjoining room on hearing the approach of the Binfields. They are indulging in recriminations, but ultimately discover their losses—and the burglar. Mr. Binfield is induced by his wife to listen to the burglar's voluble story of a famishing family and a sudden yielding to temptation. Ordering him to return to the locked room he decides his course of action. The "burglar" has put all his plunder and Mrs. Binfield's letter on the table, and when Mrs. Binfield fetches her jewel-box it is found with its contents intact. This discovery decides Binfield. He immediately liberates his prisoner, who is called in and ordered to depart. Seizing an opportunity, the "burglar" abstracts the jewels from the box, and Mrs. Binfield presents him with a half-sovereign to purchase food for his starving family and extracts promises of reform. The husband asserts that they have let go a hardened criminal; the wife as strongly urges her belief in the actor's plausible story. Binfield then discovers the rope hanging outside the window in proof of his theory. She, with consternation, misses her jewels. They at once summon the actor and acquaint him with the facts. He advises their sending for the police, adding that his premises have not been burgled. He then departs, but returns directly in his assumed character, when he is pounced upon by both and floored. Revealing himself in his true character, he returns the jewels and money, and explains to Mr. Binfield that the term "consumptive canary" impelled him to extort the admission that he could act.

Mr. Owen Nares played convincingly as Mr. Binfield. Miss Jean Cadell made an excellent character portrayal of Mrs. Binfield, whom she endowed with much charm of manner and repartee. Mr. Charles King acted cleverly as the burglar; his maudlin and rambling story of distress was a fine effort of elocution, his make-up was well done, and his quick-change at the end very effective. The piece should prove a valuable curtain-raiser.

DEATH OF MRS. J. A. WINSTANLEY.

It is with sincere regret that we record the death of Mrs. J. A. Winstanley, the wife of Lieut.-Colonel J. A. Winstanley, who was proprietor of the Royal Opera House, Leicester, from the year 1888 down to February, 1906, when, owing to the continued indisposition of the gallant colonel, they were compelled to retire from theatrical management in Leicester, where they had won the highest esteem of all classes. The deceased lady, who died at the Cliffe, Little Bispham, Blackpool, on the 5th inst., at the early age of forty-two, was interred at Sheffield on Wednesday last, amid many manifestations of grief from her sorrowing friends and relatives.

Mrs. Annie Nadine Winstanley in her younger days was a member of the theatrical profession, and her knowledge of stage matters was put to the test on many occasions at the Royal Opera House and Theatre Royal (of which place Colonel Winstanley was also lessee). She designed and saw executed the many charming dresses for some of Colonel Winstanley's elaborate and successful pantomime. The deceased lady was of a most lovable disposition, and was held in the greatest affection by the two staffs, being always ready to help and sympathise with them in any trouble; and all who came in contact with her speak with the greatest affection and sorrow at her demise.

A large number of the profession who visited the Opera House were constantly entertained by Colonel and Mrs. Winstanley at The Grange, Desford, near Leicester, and Mrs. Winstanley will long be remembered by them for her charming and affable manner.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR.

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—SIR HENRY IRVING.

Mr. Strong states the whole case very clearly.—Illustrated London News.

Should be found very useful.—Pelican.

The work succeeds in making plain the thorny legal path that every manager and artist must tread, and by a timely consultation of its pages they may avoid much misapprehension and trouble.—Star.

MLLE. OLGA TREMELLI, prima donna contralto, from the Vienna Opera House, has been engaged by the National Sunday League to sing at the Queen's Hall Concert to-morrow (Sunday).

THE engagement is announced of Fräulein Eva Wagner, daughter of Richard Wagner, to Mr. Houston Steward Chamberlain, an English essayist living in Vienna, and the author of several books dealing with Wagner's works.

DEATH OF AN OLD ACTOR.

Mr. Edwin James Shepherd, an actor who will be remembered only by older playgoers, has met with his death by falling down the stairs at his lodging at 40, Lamb's Conduit-street, Holborn. The deceased gentleman was found lying at the bottom of the stairs, and succumbed fifty hours later to his injuries. Forty years since he played at the old Grecian Theatre, in the City-road, and was a popular "villain" in the pieces produced there. With Jefferson and Mrs. Alfred Mellon he had trodden the Princess's boards in Rip Van Winkle, taking the part of Nick Vedder. He did not open with Joseph Jefferson at the Adelphi on Sept. 4, 1865, the date of the first production of Rip Van Winkle in England. Among others with whom his stage career was associated were Irving, Toole, Herman Vezin, Mrs. Kendal, and the Young family. In Australia he was very successful as William in Black-Eyed Susan. Colonial life suited him so well that he bought some land, but the heat necessitated his return to England. A reminiscence of his early years was his appearance with the tragedian William Creswick at the Surrey Theatre, when it was run by Creswick and Frederick Shepherd (his own brother). The old actor stood 6ft. 2in. in height, and made a striking figure. Since retiring from the stage he had taught elocution, and numbered several well-known theatrical people among his pupils. Mr. Shepherd was in his seventy-seventh year, and owing to failing eyesight was about to undergo an operation.

At the Holborn Coroner's Court on Thursday Mr. Walter Schroder conducted an inquiry concerning the death of the deceased, who died on Monday. The deceased was found lying at the bottom of the stairs in his lodgings, and died about fifty hours later from a broken neck. While under treatment for the injury the deceased recited portions of Shakespeare to Dr. Gould, who was in attendance.

Mrs. Elizabeth Shepherd, a lady secretary, said she was the niece of the deceased. He was a teacher of elocution, but years ago he was for a long time an actor playing with Phelps, Irving, and Toole. He was a single man, but had sufficient for all his wants, being a careful-living man. After his fall she was called to him, and remained with him until his death. He had told her that he had giddy feelings which came over him at times.

Dr. William Robert Gould, of 11, Lamb's Conduit-street, said he had known the deceased, who was a fine man, and went out every day. After he fell downstairs, on the 5th inst., witness was called in, and was told by him that in going upstairs he put down his can, opened another lodger's door by mistake, and then turned to go to his own room, but walked towards the stairs and fell down. He was thoroughly conscious up to the end. He died from compression of the spinal cord caused by the rupture of a ligament in the neck, through falling downstairs. He suffered from cataract of the eyes, and wore gold-rimmed glasses. He was a splendid man, who had taken great care of himself all his life. Deceased was a great Shakespearean scholar, and when he used to come to witness's surgery he would say to him and his wife, "Close your eyes." Then he would proceed to recite selections from Shakespeare, and was a good impersonator of Irving. In regard to the injury, Dr. Gould said it was remarkable that the man lived so long from such an injury.

The jury returned a verdict of "Accidental death."

We understand that Mr. Shepherd was a man of means, and had shares in various industrial concerns.

IRVING AND LORD RANDOLPH.

"Apropos of Hamlet," says Mr. Comyns Carr in "Some Eminent Victorians," "Irving used to tell a story that was characteristic of his imperturbable self-possession, and was no less interesting in the light it throws upon the striking individuality of a youth who afterwards rose to a foremost position in public affairs. It was some few years after his performance of the character in London that Irving found himself in Dublin at a time when the Duke of Marlborough, the father of Lord Randolph Churchill, was Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland. Hamlet was the play of the evening, and Lord Randolph, seated alone, occupied the Vice-regal box. When the second act was ended he went behind the scenes to Irving's dressing-room and introduced himself to the actor. With an apology that was evidently sincere he expressed his regret that, owing to a reception at the Castle, he was unable to wait for the conclusion of the performance. He declared himself, however, intensely interested with what he had seen, and begged Irving to tell him in a few words, as his time was limited, how the play ended. Irving, as he told me, was at first so taken aback that he thought his visitor was indulging in a humorous sally at the expense of the immortal dramatist, but a quick glance at the young man's earnest face sufficed to reassure him, and he then told Lord Randolph the outline of that concluding part of the story which his social engagement did not permit him to see represented upon the boards.

"'When do you play it again?' inquired the young man of the actor

"'On Wednesday next,' answered Irving.

"'I shall be there,' replied Lord Randolph, earnestly; and there assuredly he was from the rise of the curtain to its fall, in rapt attention to every succeeding scene of the tragedy.

"At the conclusion he again went round to Irving's room, even more enthusiastic than on the occasion of his previous visit; and, with a naïveté that was, I think, deeply characteristic of that power he afterwards displayed in public affairs—the power of swiftly appropriating the knowledge needful for every successive post he occupied—he made the frank avowal that, since their last meeting, he had read for himself, not only Hamlet, but two or three other plays by the same author.

"'And do you know, Mr. Irving,' he said, 'I find them enormously interesting.'

"Lord Randolph, I think, must have retained to the last his admiration of Irving's talent as an actor, for I met him several times in later years at those little suppers in the Beefsteak Room of the Lyceum Theatre, which formed so memorable a feature of Irving's management. Here, indeed, might be met many of the most notable people of the time, and amongst them an almost constant figure in these pleasant gatherings, Irving's life-long friend, J. L. Toole. The lasting friendship between these two men, so differently gifted and yet so enduringly allied, forms, I think, a touching tribute to certain great qualities of loyalty resident in them both."

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

Minutes of the Council Meeting held at 353, Strand, on Tuesday, Dec. 8. Present: Mr. Frederick Morland (in the chair), Mr. H. W. Mote (Hon. Solicitor), Messrs. F. J. Arlton, C. F. Collings, Chris. Walker, Fred Annerley, Clarence Derwent, and Clive Currie; Misses Rose Matthews, Agnes Imlay, Lucy Sibley, and Mr. Hubert Blount (Secretary). The minutes of the previous meeting were read and passed.

The Chairman read a letter from a member dealing with an article which had appeared in a contemporary with reference to a sixpenny theatre, and the Secretary was instructed to ask the correspondent for further information.

The Hon. Solicitor reported that he had seen a member and advised him.

With reference to the case of a man representing himself to be an official of the Actors' Association and going about the country defrauding landladies, the Secretary was instructed to insert a paragraph in the Year Book to the effect that "No one is authorised to receive money for landladies' advertisements without delivering an official receipt of the A.A., signed by the Secretary."

Miss Sibley read the Finance Committee's report, which the council adopted.

The question of approaching the Lord Chamberlain with reference to Sunday performances was raised and the council decided not to proceed further with the matter for the present.

The Secretary was instructed to call a special meeting of the Council on Monday, Dec. 14, at 11 a.m., to consider the question of standard contract.

George Seager, proposed by David Denard and seconded by Oliver Glynn, and Frances Wolveston, proposed by Phyllis Relph and seconded by Joan Pereira, were nominated for election. Ernest Young, proposed by J. B. Butler and seconded by Sylvia Morris, was elected.

The Secretary informed the Council that Miss Mahone had given some new covers for the chairs in the writing room, and a unanimous vote of thanks was passed to her.

The Council passed a unanimous vote of condolence with the relatives of Mr. Conybeare Gough, a member of the A.A. who died recently.

The Secretary reported three engagements made by the Agency.

ACTORS' UNION.

The usual committee meeting of the Actors' Union took place at 49, Bedford-street, Strand, on Thursday, the 3rd inst., when the following were present:—Messrs. H. Tripp-Edgar (in the chair), Langford Reed, A. Maitland Stapley, W. Ruddle Brown, Fred D. Daviss, Walter L. Rignold, J. W. Braithwaite, and Kenneth Blackmore (Secretary). Letters were received from Messrs. James English, H. Naylor Grimson, Lennox Pawle, Geo. H. Child, Fred F. Loyd, J. Hastings Batson, Clifford Rean, Harry Paulton, jun., Oswald Marshall, Orlando Barnett, Edward Chester, Jerrold Heather, Royce Milton, and Henry Bedford. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Mr. Langford Reed was elected a member of the committee.

A proposition that any profit accruing from the dinner to be held on Sunday next at Hummum's Hotel shall be placed to the credit of the Actors' Union Benevolent Fund was carried.

The committee meetings of the Union will in future take place on Fridays at 2 p.m., and the Finance Committee at 1.30 on the same day, instead of Thursdays as hitherto. The reason of the change is that so many of the suburban theatres have their matinées on Thursday that it is often impossible for members of the Committee to attend the meetings.

Members and their friends who are attending the third social dinner of the Actors' Union tomorrow (Sunday) at Hummum's Hotel, Covent Garden, are asked to be as punctual as possible. There are only a few tickets left, and those wishing to attend are asked to make immediate application.

Mr. H. Tripp Edgar presided at the ordinary weekly meeting of the Actors' Union held at Hummums Hotel on Tuesday afternoon, when discussion upon a recent article in John Bull referring to the engaging of chorus girls at 18s. a week took place. The following resolution was passed unanimously:—

"This meeting instructs the committee, after communicating with Mr. Bannister Howard and the Actors' Association, and calling their attention to the paragraph in John Bull concerning the engaging of chorus girls at 18s. a week, to take what steps they might think fit in order to abolish such an abuse."

[Since this meeting, we have been informed by the secretary of the A.U. that Mr. Bannister Howard denies the truth of the statements that appeared in John Bull.—EDITOR.]

AMUSEMENTS IN BARCELONA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BARCELONA, DEC. 5.—On Monday last the Circo Barcelones ended its régime as a theatre, and was re-opened as an up-to-date music-hall under the direction of M. Ripoll, the well-known Parisian impresario, who is also the proprietor of the Grand Pena and the Alcazar. The Circo is a large building in modern style, but it was not half large enough on Monday night, and hundreds had to be refused admission. There are some twenty artists upon the bill, included amongst which are the Sisters Proveanies, cyclists, who were accorded a great reception, and recalled again and again. The Six Juggling Girls were also very well received for their clever act, which is quite different from anything hitherto seen by the Catalans. A very amusing number was presented by Maxim and D'Ebb, whilst that charming comedienne, direct from the Alhambra, Paris, Mlle. Nitta Tô, was obliged to render six items before the audience were satisfied. Altogether the Circo had a very satisfactory début, for which praise is due in no small measure to an efficient orchestra of twenty-five performers. The Theatre Soriano is being also well patronised, where Drawee, Frisco, and Stambo provide a smart juggling act, other artists on the programme being Tapsy and Tapster, Kilbys and Moros, and Sadas.

THE PALACIO DE ILUSION caters well for its patrons, the most successful artists being the Tacherpanoff Troupe of Russian singers and dancers; Norman Scott, illusionist; and Lerrio Lenka, with her educated dogs.

THE CAVALLOTTIS, in a musical act, bring a successful month's engagement at the Pollorama to a close on Dec. 20, and are due to open at the Opera House, Crewe, for pantomime on the 23rd inst. They will not have much time to spare upon their arrival in England. They have a magnificent set, and perform classical music, intermixed with amusing comedy, upon instruments that are the last word in modern inventions. Also appearing here is Rafael Arcos, without doubt the principal and most versatile comedian in Spain. He has never yet appeared in England. He is engaged at the Pollorama for six continuous months, which is a record for a Spanish music-hall artist.

A COUNTRY gentleman dropping asleep while William Beneley, a hoarse-voiced actor of the old school, was repeating a long speech in his usual croaking voice, suddenly started up, and cried out, "Hullo! reach my blunderbuss this instant; I thought I had shot that croaking devil yesterday."

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Sir Charles Wyndham finishes his season at the New Theatre this evening, when Bellamy the Magnificent will reach the last of its present run. To-morrow (Sunday) evening will find Sir Charles at the festive board of the Actors' Benevolent Fund, where his speech on the Drama will be eagerly awaited. The actor-knight will then take a short holiday, but the call of charity will bring him back to town on Friday, when the matinée of Mrs. Gorringe's Necklace will be given at the Criterion in aid of the London Poor Children's Boot Fund.

Sir Squire Bancroft will continue his generously conceived readings of Charles Dickens's "Christmas Carol" this winter, with a view to completing the sum of £20,000 as his gift, by this means, to various hospitals in town and country. The readings will be final in the provincial cities and towns.

Mr. George Alexander contributed to the Queen's Birthday festivities on the 4th inst., when, in obedience to the King's command, he presented Mr. Alfred Sutro's latest play The Builder of Bridges in the Ball-room at Sandringham. The cast supporting the distinguished actor-manager consisted of Mr. Dawson Milward, Mr. E. Harcourt Williams, Mr. William Farren, Mr. E. Vivian Reynolds, Miss Irene Vanbrugh, Miss Florence Haydon, Miss Barbara Hannay, and Miss Dora Sevening. Mr. Charles T. H. Helmsley fulfilled the duties of manager and Mr. E. Vivian Reynolds those of stage-manager.

The company travelled by ordinary train from St. Pancras, arriving shortly after three o'clock at Wolferton, where they were met by carriages sent at the King's special request. In addition to their Majesties, those present at the representation included King Haakon and Queen Maud, the Prince and Princess of Wales, Princess Victoria, and many other notabilities. At the conclusion of the performance the leading actors and actresses were received and thanked by the King and Queen. Supper was subsequently served, and the company left Sandringham about two o'clock in the morning for London.

The adjourned meeting to consider the proposal to establish a Dramatic Authors' Society was held at the Criterion on Thursday afternoon, and was attended by eminent authors. Mr. A. W. Pinero occupied the chair, and submitted a resolution to the effect that, in view of the difficulty of establishing a separate society, with its attendant office and other expenses, the dramatists should accept the offer of the Authors' Society, and be incorporated as a sub-section of that literary association. Mr. Zangwill and Mr. Aplin opposed the resolution.

Mr. Sydney Grundy created a diversion by relating some amusing anecdotes of the lethargy displayed by playwrights thirty years ago, when they let their old society die for want of energy to keep it alive. Furthermore, Mr. Arthur Shirley declared that not one English dramatist in ten yet knew that an Association of his confrères was seriously contemplated to-day.

Mr. Cecil Raleigh made a strong appeal to those present to accept the proposition before them, and further explanations were given by the chairman, as well as by Mr. Alfred Sutro and Mr. Comyns Carr (both of the provisional committee). Ultimately Mr. Zangwill agreed to withdraw his well-reasoned amendment against amalgamation, and in favour of independent existence, and the original resolution was put and declared to be carried.

Mr. John Brabourne, who had been appearing with success as Montague Moesenstein in The Antelope at the Waldorf Theatre, died, we regret to state, at six a.m. on Thursday of pneumonia. Mr. Brabourne will be remembered as having been some few months since successful in an action with Mr. Fred Karno, Mr. Brabourne having declined to appear twice nightly. He had only been absent from the cast of The Antelope for three nights, and his sudden death was quite unexpected.

Miss Evelyn Millard, who began her career as a manageress so auspiciously at the Garrick, has secured a lease of the Criterion, whither she will transfer Idols on Feb. 1. The charming manageress has engaged strong support for her revival of The Adventure of Lady Ursula, for a series of matinées at the Garrick, commencing on Jan. 5. Miss Millard will resume her original rôle of Lady Ursula, and in the cast will also be found Miss Dora Barton, Mr. Charles Fulton, Mr. Arthur Wontner, and Mr. Herbert Waring. A welcome inclusion in the company will be Miss Dolores Drummond, who, having announced her retirement after a fifty years' service to the stage, will happily return to take up her old part of Mrs. Fenton.

The Green Room Club dinner on Sunday was a purely social gathering, and the speeches were few and brief. Sir Squire Bancroft spoke a few heartfelt words in praise and recommendation of the Club, and Mr. George Alexander, in proposing Sir Squire's health, alluded to a letter which he (Mr. Alexander) had received from him many years ago saying that Mr. Bancroft could not give him an engagement. Amongst those present were Mr. E. S. Willard, Mr. Robert Pateman, Mr. Lionel Rignold, Mr. F. M. Paget, Mr. Beveridge, Mr. Frank Desprez, and other well-known members of the Green Room Club. The entertainment after dinner was supplied by Mr. Stuart Baynes, Mr. Louis Bradfield, Mr. Tom Browne, Mr. Tom Clare, Mr. Herbert Clayton, Mr. Cyril Clansy, Mr. Franklin Clive, Mr. Sidney Faulks, Mr. Percy French, Mr. Reginald Groome, Mr. Walter Hyde, Mr. Reginald Kenneth, Mr. Alfred Lester, Mr. Whitworth Mitton, Mr. Frederic Norton, Mr. Lance Thackeray, and Mr. E. Vallein; and an "alleged play," entitled The Only Way In; or, The Rival Shows, was performed, and created amusement.

Mr. George Edwardes will inaugurate two important ventures in the provinces in Christmas week. The first will be that of A Waltz Dream, which will start an extended tour at the King's, Glasgow, on the 21st inst. The other production is that of The Dollar Princess, which will be staged at the Prince's Manchester, on Christmas Eve. The cast of A Waltz Dream will consist of Miss May de Sousa, Mr. Robert Evett, Mr. Leslie Holland, Mr. Eric Thorne, Mr. J. Hamilton, Mr. Langford Kirby, Mr. Albert Kavanagh, Miss Ethel Cadman, Miss May Martin, Miss Amy Augarde, and Miss Peggy Lorraine.

Mr. James Blakeley, who was married on the 29th ult. in New York City to Miss Grace Riopelle, is the son of the late William Blakeley. He is thirty-five years of age, and has made an enviable reputation in Mr. George Edwardes's famous productions at Daly's.

Miss Eva Moore will play the part of Mrs. Errol ("Dearest") in Miss Mouillot's production, by arrangement with Mr. Will Dennis, of Little Lord Fauntleroy at the Court Theatre on Boxing Day. The title-rôle will be played by Master Lenton Murray, who appeared with Miss Pauline Chase in the Paris production of Pantaloon. The remainder of the cast will comprise Mr. Will Dennis, Mr. George Canninge, Mr. T. N. Walter, Mr. Norman Clifton, Mr. William Lockhart, and Miss Mary Brough.

Mr. Beerbohm Tree will make a most artistic contribution to the Christmas novelties with Pinkie and the Fairies, which he produces at His Majesty's on Saturday next. Miss Ellen Terry will represent Aunt Imogen, and another aunt, called Caroline, will be impersonated by Miss Augusta Haviland. Miss Viola Tree will be the Sleeping Beauty, Miss Marie Lohr will have the part of Cinderella, and to Miss Iris Hawkins falls the rôle of Pinkie. Mr. Fred Volpe will be seen as the uncle, and Master Philip Tonge will be the boy Tom.

The first scene will be the dwelling of the aunts and uncle, a residence on the edge of a wood, and the second will be Fairyland, with a throne under a pond. The fairy inhabitants are only visible to children and sweethearts, and this fact brings about some diverting situations. For the "repetition generale" which will be given on Friday afternoon, invitations are issued by Mr. Tree's younger daughters, Iris and Felicity. Every seat in the house, however, will be paid for, the charge for admission for every person being one penny, whether seated in the gallery or the stalls. Even the critics will have to pay. The money thus obtained will be devoted to charity.

Mr. George Edwardes has added to the fascinations of The Merry Widow, which is now brightened with new numbers, while old favourites have returned to the cast. Mr. Joseph Coyne, just home from triumphs in his native America, was welcomed back to Daly's amid the greatest enthusiasm on Saturday. Mr. W. H. Berry also returns to his old part of Nisch, the Embassy messenger, and has a new song called "What Every Woman Knows." There is a new number, too, for Miss Gabrielle Ray, "I'm such an innocent thing," which carries with it a captivating dance. Miss Lily Elsie's charm in the title-rôle is irresistible as ever.

Mr. Arthur Bourchier delivered his lecture, "William Shakspere, Maker of Men," at the Bristol Museum on Tuesday. The lecture, which was under the auspices of the British Empire Shakespeare Society, drew a large attendance, who were thoroughly interested in the scholarly address. On the motion of Canon Tetley, seconded by Mr. J. M. Chute, a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Mr. Bourchier, who in reply said that Bristol was almost a theatrical island; for they found in Mr. Chute one man with all the traditions of the stage, and, next to Covent Garden and Drury Lane, it had the finest traditions of the British stage. Many delightful men had gone under in other cities through the demon syndicate, but there Mr. Chute was the lessee and manager. When the British Empire Society established its branch in Bristol and got such a president as it had, the stage itself was a very great gainer.

Miss Mabel Love finishes her tour with Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's Lady Frederick company this evening at the New Theatre, Cardiff. The tour has been a succession of triumphs for the company, the acting of Miss Love and her supporters and the elaborate mounting combining to make the production of first-class importance.

The Actresses' Suffrage League holds its first "At Home" in the Grand Hall of the Criterion Restaurant on Thursday afternoon from 4.30 to 6.30 p.m., when all members of the profession and their friends are invited to attend. The speakers will include Miss Evelyn Sharp, Mrs. Lucette Ryley, and Miss Cicely Hamilton. Mrs. Kendal has kindly consented to be President of the League, and Miss Gertrude Elliott, Miss Violet Vanbrugh, and Mrs. Madeline Lucette Ryley to be Vice-Presidents. Among those already enrolled are Miss Irene Vanbrugh, Miss Compton, Miss Eva Moore, Miss Decima Moore, Miss Mouillot, Miss Cicely Hamilton, Miss Tita Brand, and Miss Edith Craig. The hon. secretary, whose address is 19, Overstrand-mansions, Battersea-park, S.W., will be glad to hear from any ladies who wish to become members.

Mr. Charles Hawtrey underwent an operation for appendicitis at Helena House, Manchester-street, W., on Sunday. We are glad to learn that the latest report is that the patient is progressing satisfactorily.

Miss Julia Neilson, we rejoice to learn, has completely recovered from her lengthy indisposition due to overwork, and will make a welcome reappearance with Mr. Fred Terry at the New Theatre on Jan. 7 as Marguerite de Valois in Henry of Navarre, which will then have its London production. Mr. Fred Terry had an enthusiastic ovation at the concluding performance at the Theatre Royal, Portsmouth, on Saturday in The Scarlet Pimpernel. In answer to a demand for a speech Mr. Terry said he thanked the audience on behalf of the members of his company and himself for the royal welcome they had given him that night, and, in fact, every night during their stay. It helped them so much in their work. It was always a real pleasure to appear in their beautiful theatre and renew acquaintance with dear friends. It touched him deeply.

The Camden will be in the active list this Christmas, Mr. Walter Gibbons having decided to put on a pantomime The subject will be Blue Beard, which will be produced on Boxing morning, under th edirection of Mr. C. St. John Denton and Mr. Peter Davey. The very strong cast will include Mr. Ben. Albert, Mr. Ernest Rees, Ferguson and Mack, Mr. Harold Carson, Miss Addie Leonard, Miss Jose Collins, Miss Lottie Sergeant, and many others. A particularly smart piece of work in connection with the production was accomplished by Mr. Denton, who only settled to produce the pantomime on Tuesday, and by Thursday had the daybill complete.

Bold advertisement was obtained by means of an ingenious ruse by the Man to Man company, which is playing at the Theatre Royal, Exeter, this week. A boy was sent to the telegraph office with a message to the effect that a man in convict's clothes had been arrested at a neighbouring village, and asking that a motor-car should be despatched for his conveyance to Exeter gaol. A motor-car was sent to the place indicated, where a "convict" and a "warder" were awaiting it, but on reaching the city it was found the pair were only a couple of amateur actors carefully made up to represent the parts allotted them. The effect of the ruse was accentuated by the fact that the "news" was got hold of by the local newspaper, which celebrated it by the issue of a special "stop press" edition.

Miss Olga Nethersole sailed on Saturday by the Lusitania for the States. She commences her ninth American tour in Washington on Jan 11.

Miss Marie Dressler, the American comedienne, will start her season at the Aldwych early in the New Year. Her first production will be a new musical comedy, called Little Mena, in which she will appear as the grown-up enfant terrible of the family. The piece is written by two American authors, who have already supplied Miss Dressler with most of her successes at Weber and Field's in America. The comedy, which is in two acts, the scene being laid in Switzerland and Paris respectively, will fulfil the functions of a revue, for it is intended that a burlesque of every popular performance in town shall be successively interpolated in the play.

Mr. Oswald Stoll, who conceived the idea of reviving Cellier's comic opera Dorothy with such happy results, has decided that the present tour shall finish where it began, so that next week will see Dorothy back again at the Broadway Theatre. The cast will be the same as on the occasion of its revival, and will include Mr. C. Hayden Coffin as Harry Sherwood, Mr. John Coates as Geoffrey Wilder, Mr. Arthur Williams as Lurcher, and Miss Ruth Davenport as Dorothy. The company has played to capacity houses right round its tour, and Birmingham, Liverpool, Newcastle, Glasgow (two weeks), Edinburgh, Dublin, &c., have all testified their approbation of the management's enterprise in promoting one of the most successful revivals of modern days.

Miss Irene Vanbrugh, looking very charming after her appearance before the King and Queen at Sandringham a day or two before, was a guest at the wedding on Monday of Miss Cicely Horner and the Hon. George Lambton, brother of the Earl of Durham, at St. Mark's, North Audley Street.

Rehearsals are now in progress for the season of Grand Opera in English which begins at Covent Garden on Jan. 16 next. Three cycles of The Ring of the Nibelungs and three performances of The Mastersingers will be given, both without cuts. The répertoire will also include Puccini's Madame Butterfly, Gounod's Faust, and the new prize opera The Angelus. Madame Donalda, the Canadian prima donna, has been engaged to appear as Marguerite in Faust and other rôles of her répertoire during the season, which is to last a month.

Dr. Hans Richter and Mr. Percy Pitt are now superintending the rehearsals, and the chorus of ninety, coached by Mr. Emil Kreuz, include many well-known young singers who have appeared with success on our concert platforms but who will make their first appearance in grand opera during the coming season. The orchestra, which has been augmented to 100 players, will be practically the same as in the grand season. The demand for seats has been so great that practically all the amphitheatre and balcony stalls are already sold for the three series of special performances. In order, however, to meet with the wishes of the public, the gallery will be numbered and reserved for these performances.

Among the list of artists engaged by Mr. Neil Forsyth for the forthcoming Royal Opera Season at Covent Garden no less than four are ex-students of the Guildhall School of Music, namely, Miss Marie Alexander, a pupil of Mr. Neill O'Donovan (who afterwards had a lengthened engagement with one of the touring opera companies), Miss Edith Clegg, who was a pupil of Mr. Hermann Klein, Miss Maria Yelland, who was for a short time a pupil of Mr. Frederick Birch, and Mr. D. Byndon-Ayres, who studied for a considerable time under Mme. Medora Henson. There are, moreover, among the chorus a numerous band hailing from the great City school.

Mr. Hugh Fleming was given a farewell supper party at the Waldorf Hotel on Tuesday last by Baron Harriss, of the Prince of Pilsen company. In his rush to Euston to catch the midnight express to Glasgow, where he starts proceedings as advance director for Mr. Wilfrid Cotton's Butterflies company, Mr. Fleming was involved in a cab collision, which landed him in his native city next morning with a fractured arm and a nasty scalp wound.

Mr. C. St. John Denton has secured for Messrs. Denton, Bode, and McKenzie, Ltd., the Australasian rights of Sergeant Brue and The Belle of Brittany. They are also producing the pantomime Cinderella on a lavish scale at the Theatre Royal, Melbourne, with Mr. Edwin Brett and Mr. W. Cromwell as Baroness and Baron, Miss Ruth Lincoln as Cinderella, and Miss Meredith Meredro, who was at Drury Lane last year, as the Prince. Messrs. Denton, Bode, and McKenzie, Ltd., are working in Australia in conjunction with Messrs. Meynell and Gunn in musical comedy and pantomime.

Early in the year Miss Jessie Winter was the victim of a severe attack of neuritis, and upon her recovery was ordered absolute rest, and forbidden to accept any engagements for at least six months. She has now completely recovered, and is playing the title-rôle in Mr. Louis Calvert's Sunday company.

At the Prince's Theatre, Portsmouth, this evening Messrs. Armitage and Leigh conclude a successful tour of Leah Kleschna, and reopen at the Grand Theatre, Nelson, on the 23rd inst. A strong cast includes Mr. William Clayton, Mr. Arthur Leigh, Mr. Chas. Barrett, and Miss Bessie Rignold. Mr. Powell James will again be the business-manager.

Mr. Arthur E. Holland will to-night relinquish the part of Jack Herne, the cripple, in Mr. Wilson Benge's Eve of Her Wedding company. This is Mr. Holland's third tour in the same rôle, of which he will have completed 394 performances. He is engaged by Mr. Wentworth Croke for the Factor in his Christmas production of The Prodigal Son.

Mme. Helen Townshend's pupils are again well to the fore this Christmas, engagements having been secured for them at the King's, Hammersmith; Broadway, New Cross; Gateshead; Manchester; Dublin; the Borough, Stratford; &c. Her clever little protégée, Hanid Alexander, plays principal girl at the Broadway, New Cross, after which she has engagements extending over a long period at the Syndicate halls.

All the Hutchison Tours—including those of Mrs. Brown Potter, Decima Moore, and Mabel Love, in Lady Frederick, Mrs. Dot, Peter's Mother, and Mrs. Ponderbury's Past—finish this week, after playing to phenomenal business throughout the country. The tours all start again at Christmas, with the addition of the Garrick Theatre success Idols, upon the production of which Mr. Hutchison is now busily engaged. Still another new play will be sent out by this indefatigable firm at the end of January.

A meeting of the committee of the Managers' Club was held on Friday, the 4th inst., when there were present Messrs. M. V. Leveaux (in the chair), E. Graham Falcon, C. Carey, F. Weathersby, G. B. Lambert, J. Bannister Howard, W. Muskerry-Tilson, hon. solicitor, and M. Martin, secretary. It was decided to close the club on Christmas Day and Boxing Day. Mr. John Butson, Mr. Vivian W. B. Vivian, and Mr. Frederick J. Reece were elected members.

The committee of the Touring Managers' Association, Ltd., met at the Managers' Club, Savoy Mansions, Strand, on the 4th inst. Present: Mr. E. Graham Falcon (in the chair), Mr. Leveaux, Mr. Lambert, Mr. Bertram, Mr. Norman, Mr. Weathersby, Mr. Bannister Howard, and Mr. Martin, secretary. The half-yearly general meeting was fixed to take place on Monday, Dec. 21, at 1 p.m. The secretary was instructed to obtain from the Lord Chamberlain information as to what the new clause introduced into theatrical licences refers. A letter with reference to cinematograph performances given under dangerous circumstances was read, and it was decided to ask the Resident Managers to appoint a committee to co-operate with that of the T.M.A. committee in the matter.

Mr. William Mollison concludes a most successful autumn tour at the Theatre Royal, Newcastle-on-Tyne, to-night. The principal theatres in the British isles have been visited, and excellent business and great enthusiasm have prevailed. After a well-earned month's rest, Mr. Mollison will commence his spring tour in January at Aberdeen, where he will appear for a fortnight. The first week he will give his well-known production of Rob Roy, for which he has again engaged the great tenor Mr. Ben Davies for the part of Francis Osbaldistone. Subsequently he will resume his Shakespearean répertoire and tour up to June. Mr. Mollison then contemplates a London season with a new play, of which great things are expected.

Mr. Percy Hutchison finishes at Kennington to-night the most successful tour ever run by the Hutchison management, Brewster's Millions beating the records of thirty-eight plays in every town visited. Many prominent authors, managers, and other leading lights of the theatrical world have journeyed to Kennington to see Mr. Percy Hutchison's wonderful production, in which Mr. Hutchison is responsible for the title-rôle. Amongst those who have visited the charming South London theatre have been Sir Charles and Lady Wyndham, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bishop, Mrs. George Spencer Bower, Miss Ruth Mackay, Mr. Fred Mouillot, Mr. Edward Michael, Judge Parry, Mr. C. B. Vaughan, Mr. Howard Wyndham, Mr. C. T. H. Helmsley, Mr. Henry Neville, Mr. Henry Arthur Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Otho Stuart, Mr. W. Lestocq, Mr and Mrs. Arthur Law, and Messrs. Roy Horniman, Oscar Asche, Frank Curzon, Tom B. Davis, J. L. Mackay, Louis Calvert, William Devereux, and C. W. Somerset.

No little excitement has been caused this week at Kennington Theatre by the new effects imported into the production of Brewster's Millions, which have been personally superintended by the inventor, Mr. Joseph Menchen. It was the first time the novelties had been used in England, and Mr. Hutchison has arranged to carry them all on his coming spring tour, which opens on Boxing Day at Hastings, and is booked right into 1910.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Homewood (Miss Joan Blair), who have recently been touring in New Zealand and Australia, are due home a few days before Christmas. They had a most delightful tour of ten months, which was brought to an abrupt conclusion by the lamented sudden death of Mr. Herbert Flemming. Having already visited South Africa and the United States and Canada many times, Mr. Homewood in a letter to us "wonders what part of the world he will see next."

Mr. Eric Fielding-Smith, the genial and popular acting-manager of the Harrogate Opera House, has been seriously ill lately. We are glad to say that he is now well on the way to recovery, and will very soon be back at work.

Miss Isabel Jay will open to-day at the Waldorf Hotel a show of dolls sent by readers of Woman's Life for Christmas distribution in the slums.

Mr. Frederick Mouillot, of the Theatre Royal, Dublin, the Grand Theatre, Southampton, and other important enterprises, has accepted a seat on the board of directors of Electric Theatres (1908), Ltd.

Miss Ethel van Praagh and Mr. J. Edward Whitty terminate to-night at the Lyric, Hammersmith, the third tour of An Unwedded Wife. This successful play has had a continuous run for two years and a half.

Messrs. E. D. and J. Maundy-Gregory will revive the famous comedy opera Dorothy on Monday, Dec. 21, at the New Theatre, with Mr. C. Hayden Coffin and Mr. Arthur Williams in their original parts of Harry Sherwood and Lurcher. The title-rôle will be played by Miss Constance Drever, and Miss Louie Pounds will be Lydia Hawthorn, and Mr. John Bardsley, Geoffrey Wilder. The cast will be completed by Mr. Lempriere Pringle, Mr. Vigay, Mr. Strathmore, Miss Coralie Blythe, Miss Betty Hardress, and Miss Emily Spiller. The West End production, it should be stated, has no connection with the provincial tour. Arrangements have been made by Mr. Maundy-Gregory, by which the piece can be transferred from the New Theatre to another house, when Mr. Fred Terry takes possession of the New. Mr. Maundy-Gregory tells us that he has other productions in contemplation.

Mr. E. W. Thomas is retained by Mr. Augustus Bingham to continue his performances of Curtis Bedford in Raffles on tour, starting January 4.

Mr. Leonard Robson, who has concluded a long engagement with Mr. Lewis Waller as general-manager and producer, has been engaged by Mr. Richard Flanagan to produce Antony and Cleopatra at the Queen's, Manchester.

Miss Sophie Lingwood brings to a close this evening a tour with Mr. Edward Terry lasting over seventeen weeks. In the comedy parts of Fiander's Widow, Liberty Hall, and Sweet Lavender, Miss Lingwood has ministered to the gaiety of myriads of playgoers in the provinces.

Mr. Mayor-Cooke, who this week terminates a two-years-and-a-half association with Mr. Walter Howard's Lyceum successes, as Prince Ulric in Her Love Against the World and as Capt. Rudolph in The Midnight Wedding, has been engaged by Messrs. George Conquest and F. Bateman for the part of "The Demon" in their forthcoming production of The Crimes of Paris.

Miss Madge Metcalfe (Mrs. Arthur Jefferson), wife of the manager of the Metropole, Glasgow, died on the 1st inst., and was buried at Cathcart Cemetery, Glasgow, on the 4th. Many theatrical friends in the district were present on the sad occasion, and handsome wreaths were sent by numerous sympathisers, including an exquisite floral token from the Metropole staff. The deceased lady took great interest in the staging of the plays at the Metropole, and will be much missed by a wide circle of friends.

Mrs. Berkeley Douglas's clever pupil, Miss Mary Hope, recited at a concert at the Salle Erard, on Dec. 5, given by an ex-pupil, Madame Emelie Spalding, vocalist, with great success, being recalled after each recitation, and complimented at the close of the concert.

Ten little maidens tripped into Marlborough-street Police-court on Wednesday in order to obtain the licences necessary for their appearance in Mr. Beerbohm Tree's Christmas production of Pinkie and the Fairies at His Majesty's. In making application for the licences, Mr. Langton stated that Mr. Tree had set apart a large dressing-room at the theatre as a playroom for the children, and that they would be under the charge of a matron. Arrangements had been made for their education and their meals. Their parents would see them to and from the theatre, and an electrobus had been engaged for their conveyance. Mr. Denman, in granting the licences, said that the children were going to be treated so like princesses and fairies that there seemed to be no objection to granting them.

Miss Ethel van Praagh and Mr. J. Edward Whitty will start a tour with Mr. Charles Darrell's thrilling play The Eyes of the World at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Grimsby, on the 21st inst.

While Miss Dorrie Roberts—who has been starring as Shirley Rossmore, "the mouse" in The Lion and the Mouse—was playing at Wolverhampton last week her performance was witnessed by Mr. Geo. D. Day, who was so pleased with her rendering of the part that he not only congratulated her, but engaged her the same evening to play Thora and Elin in his No. 1 company of The Prodigal Son, starting Boxing Day.

Mr. Charles Grattan, the popular advance manager, who was associated with Mr. George Alexander's provincial companies and personal tours for some considerable time, commences his fourth tour under Mr. Edward Compton's management on Boxing Day at the Theatre Royal, Leamington.

Miss Millie Legarde took up the rôle of Denise, vacated by Miss Lily Iris, in The Belle of Brittany at the Queen's on Monday. Several new numbers have been added, notably a love song for Mr. George Graves, which is one of the quaintest efforts of this versatile comedian, who keeps the audience convulsed with laughter.

"Peter Pan" will inaugurate its fifth consecutive season at the Duke of York's on Wednesday, the 23rd inst., with Miss Pauline Chase again in the title-rôle. Mr. Robb Harwood will be the Jas. Hook, Mr. Darling will be in the care of Mr. Reginald Owen, Miss Sybil Carlisle will be the Mrs. Darling, and the remainder of the principals will be represented by Miss Gertrude Laing, Master Herbert Hollom, Master George Hersee, Mr. Edward Sillward, Miss Jane Wren, Miss Dorothy Minto, Miss Nellie Bowman, Mr. A. W. Baskcomb, Miss Irene Clarke, Miss May Kinder, Miss Ivy Knight, Mr. George Shelton, and Mr. Charles Trevor. Miss Tessie Parke will be Liza, "the author of the play."

Miss May Dallas (Mrs. Henry Hargreaves), who, with her husband has recently returned from a tour abroad, played Nina in His House in Order at the Opera House, Burnley, and the Theatre Royal, Huddersfield, during the absence from the cast of Miss Kitty Cavendish. Miss Dallas was highly successful in the part, and was heartily congratulated by the management.

Mr. Leonard Williams, who has been playing the leading part of Harry Wilding in Mr. T. Edward Ward's Second to None company, has been re engaged for the same rôle during the forthcoming spring tour, which commences on the 21st inst. Mr. Williams will thus reach his third engagement under Mr. Ward's management.

Miss Nellie Norway, silver hand-bell soloist, made a most successful début on the concert platform at the annual concert of the staff of the Royal Courts of Justice at the Portman Rooms on Wednesday. Miss Norway was applauded to the echo and encored by the company, who filled the hall, under the chairmanship of the Hon. Mr. Justice Bargrave Deane.

The first of a series of flying matinées at the Royal County Theatre, Kingston-on-Thames, took place on Tuesday, when the bill of fare was provided by Mr. Cyril Maude and the Playhouse company in Toddles. The cosy little theatre was filled to the doors, and the play was enthusiastically received. Mr. Cyril Maude appeared in the title-rôle, which he invested with its accustomed charm, and he was ably assisted by Miss Helen Ferrers (Lady Dover), Miss Emma Chambers (Mrs. Joblyn), Miss Mabel Trevor (Mrs. Bowler), Miss Rosalie Toller (Constance Joblyn), Mr. Allen Thomas (Mr. Joblyn), and others.

Mr. Harrison Brockbank, whose absence from musical comedy has been altogether too long, is engaged to take up the part of Widgery Blake in Butterflies, which commences a tour at Christmas. Miss Ada Reeve will also resume the lead on the termination of her pantomime engagement at the Liverpool Shakespeare.

Rosie is the pet foxhound of the pack which graces the revival of Dorothy. Her first appearance on the production of the famous opera at the Broadway in September last was evidently not regarded as a success by Rosie, who took it so much to heart that she absconded from the company after treasury on Saturday night, and went for a swim in the Thames instead of going to Glasgow. She was discovered by the Thames police at midnight, after Mr. Bertram Iles, the manager, had sent scouts in every direction. Rosie has, however, got over her stage fright now, and plays her part in the famous hunting scene as if to the manner born.

Mr. Arthur Vezin finishes his autumn engagement under Mr. Gaston Mayer's management, with whom he has been playing his original part of Billy, in Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch, to-day (Saturday).

Mr. Harry W. Lumley has been engaged to manage Miss Marie Studholme's tour, on conclusion of the provincial season of the Vedrenne-Barker performances.

Mr. A. B. Imeson, who has just finished playing "lead" in Mr. Chas. Frohman's Hypocrites company, has been engaged by Mr. Percy Hutchison to play Gerard Merriam in Idols, and to produce the play for him.

Something of a dramatic record must surely be in process of accomplishment this week by Mr. Arthur Holmes-Gore, who is playing five different parts at four West End theatres, making the unusual total of eighteen performances in one week. In addition to eight representations at the Playhouse as the Vice-Admiral in The Flag Lieutenant, Mr. Holmes-Gore appeared at the Court Theatre on Sunday and Monday in Isaac's Wife, while on Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday his day was mapped out as follows:—2.45, George Goodwin in Emily at the Afternoon Theatre; 3.30, King Conchubar in Deidre with Mrs. Patrick Campbell; 5.0, Ægisthus in Electra; 8.0, Sir Berkeley Wynne in The Flag Lieutenant.

Miss Violet Ley will again star under the Hutchison management in the forthcoming Christmas and spring tour of Peter's Mother, which commences on Dec. 21 at the T. R., Portsmouth. This will constitute Miss Ley's fourth tour in the part.

Miss Katherine Harrington, at present playing Joanna Rushworth in The Beloved Vagabond, has been engaged by Mr. Stanley James to play Mrs. Forster in his spring tour of Her Father.

The Actresses' League for Women's Suffrage made a successful début at the weekly reception of the London Society on Tuesday afternoon in the Doré Gallery. Among those present were Mrs. Kendal, Mrs. Forbes-Robertson, Miss Decima Moore, and Miss Winifred Mayo.

An interesting football match was provided at the Grove, Hanwell, on Sunday, when the League fixture, in which the Fulham and Gaiety Theatre, Strand, were opposed, was decided. A goal was scored in the first few minutes by the former team; but it proved their only success, for the Gaiety, playing perfectly throughout, proved victorious by six goals to one. This places the winning team amongst the leaders for the cup, the final of which will be an interesting event.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

The Pagets and the Keans.

"IT may be interesting to our readers," says the Windsor Gazette, "to learn why His Majesty the King has so honoured Mr. and Mrs. Paget, who have taken up their residence at Windsor, at Eversleigh, Frances-road, with his gracious sympathy in Mrs. Paget's recent illness. Mrs. Paget was the adopted niece of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kean, and went round the world with them acting Ophelia in Hamlet, the Dauphin in Louis XI., &c. Windsor and Eton are associated with the lives of these notable people, for Mr. Charles Kean was an Etonian at the same time that Mr. Gladstone and other celebrities were at the College, and years after was the recipient of the honour of a great banquet given by Etonians in London, when he was presented by them with a magnificent service of silver in recognition of his services to Art, and the regeneration and improvement of the stage.

Kean Relics.

"AT the sale of the Kean relics at Christie's and at Sotheby's, which included presents from Lord Byron and other notable people to Edmund Kean, was a set of beautiful water-colour paintings of the elaborate scenery and properties used in the great Kean's Shakespearean revivals at the Princess's Theatre, painted by Grieve, Telbin, and others. These were secured at the Kean sale by Mr. and Mrs. Paget, and presented by them in 1902 as a gift to the nation, to the South Kensington Museum, where they may be seen now as 'The Charles Kean Collection.' The object in making this handsome gift was that they might be a source of instruction and reference to future generations of actor-managers and students. Sir Henry Irving admitted to Mr. Paget, when viewing these beautiful works: 'I have done nothing like this, and every detail is archæologically and heraldically correct. I am endeavouring to continue the great work that Mr. Kean established.'

The Queen and Mrs. Paget.

"MRS. PAGET'S uncle was also the Royal stage-director at Windsor Castle, when it was the custom for the Sovereign to select the play, and the play to be cast to all the leading actors of the day selected by Mr. Charles Kean from the various theatres, a much more difficult and trying procedure than the present system of bringing companies complete from a single theatre. At the death of Mr. Kean, our beloved late Queen Victoria wrote a letter of condolence to Mrs. Kean, which has also been presented and is exhibited at the South Kensington Museum. It ran as follows:—'Osborne, January 24, 1868. Dear Mrs. Kean,—I cannot refrain from expressing to you personally my deep and sincere sympathy in your overwhelming affliction, as I know from sad experience how to appreciate the loss of a beloved Husband who was the object of your existence. Life is a blank after such a loss, and the sunshine of it is for ever gone! I recall most vividly to my mind the many hours of great intellectual enjoyment which your lamented and talented Husband (who did so much for his Profession) and you afforded to my dear Husband and myself in bygone happy days! They will never be forgotten, and I shall dwell with melancholy pleasure on the recollection of them. That you may find comfort in your dear child, and that God may give you strength and resignation to bear this heavy blow is my earnest prayer.—Ever yours sincerely, Victoria R.'"

Dickens and the Drama.

MR. PERCY FITZGERALD sends us the following interesting reminiscence of Charles Dickens:—"There was an old melodrama of which Dickens was fond of talking—The Miller and His Men. He dwelt on it with an affectionate interest. We knew it by heart, every word of it; he had got it up at school, so had we. Mr. John Hollingshead, at the Gaiety, conceived the idea of refuting the notion that all the old plays were good by reproducing them. These exhibitions 'Jack' advertised regularly as 'Palmy-day revivals,' an allusion to the constantly-quoted 'palmy days of the British drama,' supposed to be gone for ever. He wished to convince his playgoers that they were but poor things. With this view he dug up all kinds of venerable comedies and dramas—George Barnwell, Venice Preserved, The Gamester, and the like.

"ONE day while the facetious 'Jack' was indulging in these freaks, I received a joyous letter from Boz something to this effect: 'What do you think? Hollingshead is putting up our good old friend The Miller and His Men! We positively must see it. Fix your own night,' &c. 'Come!' Need I say that I was as pleased as he was? In his enthusiastic fashion he looked on the resurrection as something quite providential. It was to be a regular 'night out.' But first—for he was ever hospitable, and thought everything incomplete without his hospitality—there must be the prefatory dinner. The good old Albion, then facing Drury Lane Theatre, was to be the place. How appropriate he though this tavern for the primitive play! And so we repaired to the Albion in the greatest spirits. Alas! the disillusion worked slowly and surely. The whole was stupid, dull, and heavy to a degree, so at last, about the second act, Boz arose slowly and sadly, and said he could stand it no longer. I really think he was grieved at having his old idol shattered, and perhaps was mortified.

"WHEN he was at the Wellington House Academy I find he got up this very Miller and His Men in a sort of toy theatre. His fellow pupil, Dr. Danson, tells us how it was given in a very gorgeous form. 'Master Beverley constructed the mill for us in such a way that it could tumble to pieces with the assistance of crackers. At one performance the explosion conected with the blowing up of the mill was so loud that the police came knocking at the door.' So, forty years later, when the magic name was mentioned these little scenes came back to him—his old school, the mill, his fellow-actors, his management, the explosion—and now here am I, after fifty years more, recalling the talk with him."

THE AFTERNOON THEATRE.

On Tuesday, Dec. 8, the Dream Poem, by Gerhart Hauptmann, translated by William Archer, entitled

"HANNELE."

Tulpe ..... MISS CLARE GREET
Hedwig (Hete) ..... MISS MURIEL ALEXANDER
Pleschke ..... MR. NORMAN PAGE
Hanke ..... MR. HALLIWELL HOBBES
Gottwald / The Stranger ..... MR. HENRY AINLEY
Hannele ..... MISS MARIE LÖHR
Seidel ..... MR. ROBERT ATKINS

Berger ..... MR. CHARLES QUARTERMAINE
Dr. Wachler ..... MR. J. FISHER WHITE
Sister Martha / Hannele's Mother ..... MISS MARIE LINDEN
Mattern ..... MR. EDWARD SASS
Angels of Light .. MISS ELIZABETH VALENTINE / ..... MISS ISABEL MERSON / ..... MISS SYLVIA BUCKLEY
The Angel of Death .... MR. HUGH B. TABBERER
The Village Tailor ..... MR. COMPTON COUTTS

The Afternoon Theatre opened on Tuesday with complete success. This translation from Hauptmann was fully noticed by us on its production by the Play-Actors' Society at the Scala Theatre, on April 12 last; and there is little to add to our praise of Mr. William Archer's scholarly, poetical, and appreciative version of Hauptmann's drama. We need hardly remind our readers that the heroine is the stepdaughter of a mason named Mattern, whose brutality has driven her to attempt to drown herself. She is rescued by a forester from a mill-pool, and is brought into the Pauper Refuge of a Silesian village by the schoolmaster of the place. Hannele sinks into a feverish sleep, and in her dreams sees her father, who with threats compels her to get up to light the fire. The nun who is nursing her induces the girl to go back to bed, when she has another dream, in the course of which her dead mother appears and gives her a flower, by means of which Hannele is to gain entry into Heaven. The fever deepens, and in the next scene, which is almost wholly devoted to the dream, Death is seated at the head of her bed. A white nun enters and bids her prepare to go, and when Hannele points to her tattered garments, the sister tells her that the Lord will clothe her. A village tailor arrives, arrays her in a silken robe and crystal shoes, and places a wreath on her head. Death stalks grimly across the stage and raises his sword. He brings it down, and Hannele dies. The neighbours come in, and marvel at the bridal array of the corpse. Mattern enters, and orders them out of the house. The Schoolmaster, who has now assumed the semblance of the Saviour, endeavours in vain to soften Mattern's heart. The brutal mason is about to strike the corpse, when a light appears on the breast of the body, and he rushes off in terror. The Stranger appears in a robe of gold, and bids Hannele ascend with Him to Heaven. When the dream is over we again see the girl on her bed with the doctor and the nurse, the former pronouncing, after examination, that life is extinct.

It is difficult to imagine a more touching and beautiful embodiment of Hannele than was given by Miss Marie Löhr at His Majesty's on Tuesday afternoon. The grace and tenderness which inspired this exquisite performance were irresistible; and few who witnessed it were free from those convulsive movements of the throat which are caused by repressed emotion. The whole rendering was in such perfect harmony that no special scene could be selected for peculiar praise. The sustained sympathy was almost painful in its keenness. Mr. Henry Ainley played the Schoolmaster with simple, unaffected earnestness and manliness, and grappled, not unsuccessfully, with the long descriptive poem which he had to deliver in the character of our Saviour, his fine personality lending itself well to the centre figure of the picture. The remainder of the personages were subordinate, but all were carefully and irreproachably embodied. Miss Clare Greet, Miss Muriel Alexander, Mr. Norman Page, and Mr. Halliwell Hobbes gave very graphic and telling character-sketches of the four wastrels who frequent the refuge; and Mr. Robert Atkins was unaffectedly blunt and genuine as the rough forester, Seidel. Mr. Cyril Sworder contributed a crisp, sharp, and polished performance as the parish officer, Schmidt; and Mr. Charles Quartermaine was thoroughly efficient as the parish overseer, Berger; Mr. J. Fisher White doing all that was necessary as the doctor, and Miss Marie Linden making a kindly and gentle Sister of Mercy and being impressively dramatic as Hannele's mother. Mr. Edward Sass made the most of his brief opportunities in depicting cruelty and brutality as Mattern; and Miss Elizabeth Valentine, Miss Isabel Merson, and Miss Sylvia Buckley spoke their lines fluently as the Three Angels of Light, Mr. Hugh Tabberer minutely embodying the terrible figure of Death. Mr. Compton Coutts quaintly represented the Village Tailor of Hannele's dream. The scenery and lighting effects were well managed, and the dresses were artistic. Hannele was preceded by a play in one act by Margaret M. Mack, performed for the first time, and entitled

"EMILY."

Emily ..... MISS SYDNEY FAIRBROTHER
Miss Brown ..... MISS AGNES THOMAS
George Goodwin .. MR. ARTHUR HOLMES-GORE

This was an unpretentious, but bright, well-observed, and amusing little piece. A servant girl, in order to buy a present for her sweetheart, has yielded to temptation, and has taken a sovereign belonging to her mistress. The latter allows her to pay the money back out of her wages, but stipulates that she shall confess her fault to "George," who is mightily indignant and breaks off the engagement. The mistress, in order to punish him, tells Emily that he has been seen kissing the girl next door, on which Emily repudiates him indignantly. Eventually they decide on mutual forgiveness, and the curtain falls on their reconciliatory embrace. Miss Sydney Fairbrother played Emily with ingenuous pathos and many welcome touches of humour; Mr. Arthur Holmes-Gore was the "very image" of a healthy, hulking, thick-headed countryman; and Miss Agnes Thomas was quietly effective as Miss Brown.

"KING RENE'S DAUGHTER."

King René ..... MR. FRANK TYARS
Tristan de Vaudemont .. MR. GERALD LAWRENCE
Ebn Jahia ..... MR. FRANK COCHRANE
Count Geoffrey ..... MR. STANLEY HOWLETT
Sir Almeric ..... MR. FRANK RANDELL
Bertrand ..... MR. J. PATRIC CURWEN
Martha ..... MISS E. FRANCES DAVIS
Iolanthe ..... MISS DOROTHEA BAIRD

The version of Henrik Hertz's play, which was revived by Mr. H. B. Irving at the Shaftesbury Theatre on Monday, was arranged for the stage by Sir Henry Irving, who himself appeared as Tristan de Vaudemont in a translation of the Danish piece by W. G. Wills at Miss Ellen Terry's benefit at the Lyceum on May 20, 1880, supported by Mr. J. H. Barnes as King René, Mr. F. Cooper as Count Geoffrey, Mr. T. Mead as Ebn Jahia, and Miss Terry as Iolanthe. He had already played the part in a version by Sir Theodore Martin, in which Miss Helen Faucit appeared, at the Lyceum in 1876. Previous to this the little drama had been presented to Londoners at the Strand in 1849, with Mrs. Stirling in the leading rôle.

The story of King René's Daughter is simple, but touching and interesting. It is, perhaps, a long arm of coincidence which brings Sir Tristan de Vaudemont, while wandering abroad, to the beautiful garden where the King has secluded his blind daughter and Sir Tristan's fiancée in the hope of curing her; and the fact that the King has betrothed her to the gentleman without, apparently, thinking it worth while to mention the detail of her defective eyesight savours of horse-dealing rather than chivalry. But such carping criticisms are out of place in treating so pure and poetical a piece as this. King René's Daughter only requires to be acted in the right spirit to be sure of its effect; and very imaginative and mysterious is Miss Dorothea Baird's beautiful impersonation of the principal character. Clad in a most picturesque and appropriate garb, she realises exactly the delicate timidity and the deep affection of Iolanthe. Her depiction of blindness is very pathetic; and her burst of joy at the first rapture of vision is spontaneous and thrilling, and raises the audience to enthusiasm. Mr. Frank Tyars looks like a mediæval picture in his superb costume as Sir Tristan, and plays the part with all the necessary refinement, elevation, and vigour, his delivery of the love-speeches being especially effective. Mr. Stanley Howlett hits off neatly the semi-humorous traits of Count Geoffrey; and Mr. Frank Randell's elocution as Sir Almeric is excellent, and his bearing and expression are very commendable. Mr. Frank Cochrane is a very courteous and dignified Ebn Jahia, and his appearance is suitably Moorish; and Mr. J. Patric Curwen and Miss E. Frances Davis render valuable assistance as Bertrand and Martha respectively. The single scene in which the piece is played is a very pretty set, and the dresses are artistic and becoming. The Lyons Mail, which has now passed its sixtieth night at the Shaftesbury, goes as well as ever.

A Landlady's Letter.

MR. FRED BENTLEY, master carpenter Mr. Harry Starr's company, sends us a copy of a postcard sent by a landlady about rooms in Scotland. It reads:—"I wish to inform you that I have a large, front, combined room vacant for when you are here, also a bedroom and sitting-room, or two bedrooms, and sitting room or a double-bedded bedroom, and bedroom and sitting-room, or a bedroom and sitting-room, with a bed in the sitting-room. Good English cooking, good fires, one minute from theatre. Highly recommend good open feather beds"! Can any reader of The Era solve how many rooms the kind lady had?

An Eccentric Manager.

"MY first introduction to the manager of a theatre in a small Yorkshire town," writes Mr. Butler Stanhope, "was very funny. He was a very ignorant and self-opinionated man, and carried on a business in the town. His advertisements in the newspapers would read as follows:—'To-night will be played the splendid drama of Maria Martin, with real ghost effects, &c. Try my first-class blankets, only two shillings each.' They were playing Lost in London at his theatre. In the last scene of the first act, which shows the interior of a coal mine, a cage has to descend at a given cue. One of the characters, called Tiddy Dragglethorpe, has to descend and tell Job Armroyd that his wife has eloped with the son of the mine-owner, named Gilbert Featherstone. The cage worked all right at rehearsal, but at night it only came half-way down, and there stuck. In spite of all their efforts it refused to come down to the stage, and the private interview between Job Armroyd and Tiddy was completely destroyed, as it had to be spoken out loud, so that all the miners heard it. His last words as he steps into the cage are, 'Let's go up into the world.' The cage was instantly drawn up, leaving poor Job below, and the act was ruined, and Job was left behind instead of searching through the wide world to find his wife and the partner of her flight."

MRS BELLAMY played Alicia in Jane Shore, in presence of the King of Denmark (who was then on a visit to George III.), who, wearied with very fast living, was in a sound sleep during one of her finest scenes. The angry lady had to exclaim, "Oh, thou false lord!" and she drew near to the slumbering monarch, and shouted it close to his ears with such astounding effect that he started up, rubbed his eyes, became conscious of what was going on, and how it had come about, and remarked that he would not have such a woman for his wife though she had no end of kingdoms for a dowry.

"THE LAST OF THE DE MULLINS."

Play, in Three Acts, by St. John Hankin, produced at the Haymarket on Monday afternoon, Dec. 7.

Hester De Mullin ..... MISS AMY LAMBORN
Mr. Brown ..... MR. NIGEL PLAYFAIR
Jane De Mullin ..... MISS ADELA MEASOR
Mrs. Clouston ..... MISS M'AIMEE MURRAY
Dr. Bolt ..... MR. ERNEST YOUNG
Hugo De Mullin ..... MR. H. A. SAINTSBURY
Ellen ..... MISS JEAN BLOOMFIELD
Janet De Mullin ..... MISS LILLAH MCCARTHY
Johnny Seagrave ..... MASTER BOBBIE ANDREWS
Miss Deanes ..... MISS CLARE GREET
Monty Bulstead ..... MR. VERNON STEEL
Bertha Aldenham ..... MISS JEAN HARKNESS

In his latest play produced at the Haymarket, we find Mr. St. John Hankin, like others of the new school of dramatists, girding at the conventionalities, and doing so very amusingly. Personally, indeed, we were interested every minute of the time occupied in the presentation of The Last of the De Mullins, but it is questionable whether the many-headed public who plank their money down at the box-office—the only public that counts with the theatrical manager—would regard the piece with the same favour as the special audience laughing at it and applauding it on Monday afternoon. It is a satire on the cruel things that are done in the name of respectability. What should be their attitude towards a disgraced daughter of a father and mother possessing an ancient family lineage and an unsullied reputation is not even suggested by Mr. Hankin. He does not give us any lesson in the charity which suffereth long and is kind: that may very well be left to the writer of provincial melodrama—just now largely concerned with the delinquencies of womanhood. But through the lips of Janet de Mullin he utters a vigorous and a bitter invective against the smug hypocrisy that closes every avenue of respectability to those who "find too late that men betray," and then establishes rescue homes for the fallen. Janet frankly declares that she obeyed the instincts of motherhood when, previous to the opening of the play, her relations with Monty Bulstead, a young subaltern eight years her junior, had resulted in the birth of a boy. She had refused to disclose the name of baby's father to her people, and had made her escape from home to London, where her application for work was refused when she told her story. She might have become a Magdalen, had it not occurred to her to lie without scruple and to assume widow's weeds and the name of Seagrave. She is brainy, possesses taste, and with the aid of legacy becomes partner in a hat-shop. When the curtain rises Janet has been summoned to the bedside of her aged father, who is threatened with paralysis, but has a wonderful recovery. There is nothing of the tearful repentant about Janet, who expresses herself pretty freely concerning the narrowness of country life to her sister Hester, a prim younger sister with a soul levelled to the joys of church decoration, flirting with the curate, and district visiting. During a jaunt in the woods with her boy as companion Janet meets her old lover. After an absence of eight years he shows almost complete indifference to her, and she certainly shares it. Marriage—even if she wished it—would be too late. Besides, she knows that Monty Bulstead is engaged to Bertha Aldenham, and she bluntly says that he is not at all the sort of man she should choose for a husband. Monty approves of his boy, whom he greets affectionately—so affectionately that his attitude raises a suspicion in the mind of Mrs. De Mullin that he is the boy's father. She extracts a confession from Janet that this is so. In the last act the aged father commands Janet to stay at her ancestral home with her boy, and give up the hat-shop. She flatly refuses, and in a stormy scene the old man casts her off. She expresses agreement with every word he utters, and after a tirade on the craving for maternity she leaves for ever the father, the last of a line of undistinguished squires, who thinks "the only true independence for a woman is to be dependent on her husband or nearest male relative," and washes her hands of the De Mullins, "who hadn't even had brains enough to have their portraits painted by decent artists." She lectures her sister Hester on the greyness of life as an old maid, and makes poor Hester—who has been disappointed at not securing the very unattractive curate, Mr. Brown—indulge in a good cry. As Janet departs the father exclaims: "There goes the last of the De Mullins."

Every justice was done to Mr. Hankin's piece. We have never seen Miss Lillah McCarthy so fine in a part as she was in that of Janet De Mullin. Janet, who had found a way out of the impasse imposed by an unsympathetic world on all women who "obey the call of the blood," was scarcely the woman to follow the daily round, the trivial task of monotonous village life, and the scene in which Janet fearlessly asserts herself was powerful in the extreme, and fraught with volcanic energy. Miss Amy Lamborn as the rigid exemplar of family religious life was artistically cold and unsympathetic. Mr. H. A. Saintsbury as Hugo De Mullin had the pedantic style and grandiose air that one would expect from a member of the squirearchy, the indignant protest of the old man in the last act being impressively uttered. Mr. Nigel Playfair made amusing capital out of the part of the curate, Mr. Brown; Miss M'Aimée Murray was full of acerbity as the rigid Mrs. Clouston; Miss Adela Measor did justice to the part of the weak Jane De Mullin; and Master Bobbie Andrews was quite delightful as Johnny Seagrave. The difficulties of delineating so contemptible a cad as Monty Bulstead were cleverly surmounted by Mr. Vernon Steel; and Miss Jean Harkness, Mr. Ernest Young, and Miss Jean Bloomfield completed the cast.

COLLEY CIBBER was extremely haughty as a theatrical manager, and very insolent to dramatists. When he had rejected a play, if the author desired him to point out the particular parts of it which displeased him, he took a pinch of snuff, and answered in general terms, "Sir, there is nothing in it to coerce my passions."

"ISAAC'S WIFE."

Play, in Three Acts, by F. D. Bone and Teignmouth Shore, produced at the Court Theatre on Monday, Dec. 7.

The Quartermaster ..... MR. HENRY STEPHENSON
Quartermaster Parker .... MR. C. LEVESON LANE
Quartermaster Sergeant Isaac Hunter ..... MR. CHARLES ROCK
George Mayhew .... MR. ARTHUR HOLMES-GORE
Tom Bradbury ..... MR. ASHTON PEARSE
Lieutenant Jack Benton .. MR. JOHN CABOURN
Lieutenant Harry Draycott .. MR. BASIL MERCER
Manager of Hotel ..... MR. WALLETT WALLER
Pim-Lum ..... MASTER GEORGE BURTON
Chinese Waiter ..... MR. H. ATTLAY
Norah Parker ..... MISS MARGARET YARDE
Alice Hunter ..... MISS LUCY WILSON

Avowedly with the intention of carrying on the work of the now defunct Pioneers, a society committed to the exploitation of plays by little-known authors, the Dramatic Productions Club inaugurated a series of monthly matinées at the Court Theatre on Monday. Miss Minnie Mouillot, who has taken a lease of the Court, is the moving spirit of the enterprise, and it is from her that particulars of membership may be obtained. The productions take place on the first Sunday evening of each month, but the public performance is reserved for the following afternoon. A good beginning was made on Monday with a play from the pens of Mr. F. D. Bone, who has hitherto been known chiefly for his striking one-act piece, Pride of Regiment, and of Mr. Teignmouth Shore. The piece deals again with military matters, and while presenting a vivid picture of European life in the Straits Settlements, reflects seriously on the methods by which promotion in the British Army is regulated in our remote possessions abroad. Though strongly reminiscent of other pieces, Isaac's Wife is powerfully written and contains scenes of great stress and poignancy, but its leading figure is an ignoble one, and awakens repugnance rather than sympathy. The play is too short for practicable purposes, and the authors might well utilise the space at their disposal to invest Alice Hunter with some redeeming qualities to render her in some way worthy of the sacrifices made in her behalf. On one's first acquaintance with her she is fretting at the lack of excitement in her life in the garrison at Penang, of which her husband, Isaac Hunter, is quartermaster-sergeant, and abusing him because he is so closely attached to his studies, by which he hopes one day to improve his position and hers. His subordinate, Parker, is, however, placed over his head, and is appointed quartermaster, not, it is suggested, because of any ability of his own, but chiefly by reason of the fact that Mrs. Parker has made herself agreeable to the former quartermaster. That lady spitefully foreshadows the appointment in an interview with Alice, at the same time revealing the fact that the young wife's flirtations with a sugar-planter named George Mayhew are known to the community. Isaac learns of Parker's promotion from the lips of the quartermaster, who attributes Hunter's failure to obtain the post to the scandal which attaches to his wife. Isaac disbelieves the accusation, but his wife admits that she has received the attentions of Mayhew, and ascribes her conduct to her husband's neglect. There is a violent scene and Alice goes off to join Mayhew, Isaac covering her with a revolver, but being unable to fire the fateful shot.

Eighteen months more than suffice to cool the love of Mayhew, who has taken Alice to his bungalow up-country. A divorce had been obtained by Isaac, but Mayhew refuses to make Alice his wife. Furthermore, he invites to his house no less unwelcome a person than Mrs. Parker, who would gloat over the outcast. Alice, however, loads her with scorn, and her cause is taken up by young Tom Bradbury, an employee of Mayhew's, the result being that Mrs. Parker and her husband are forced to leave. Mayhew proceeds to ill-treat Alice, but Tom is at hand, and after nearly throttling his employer is told to leave his service and take Alice with him. Bradbury's offer to take the girl to England is accepted, and the two depart. Their way lies in the direction of Penang, but scarcely have they reached the settlement than Mayhew arrives eager to get the girl back. He meets a formidable opponent in Isaac, now a prosperous hotel-keeper, who waives his right to revenge, and allows him to go. Hunter's love for Alice has by no means languished, and she herself has long since realised his worth, so that when she is asked whether she will go to England with Tom Bradbury or stay with Isaac, Alice gratefully chooses the latter course.

Admirable work was put into the piece. Mr. Charles Rock, under whose direction it was produced with every attention to detail, gave a most impressive rendering of Isaac Hunter, full of rugged and appealing force. His acting of the strenuous scene which ends the first act was thrillingly powerful and left a lasting effect. The title-rôle, as we have hinted, is weighted by the small claim made on the sympathies, but Miss Lucy Wilson represented the irritableness of the discontented wife with much realism, and the poignancy of the later scenes was cleverly maintained. Miss Margaret Yarde obtained a real success as the malignant Mrs. Parker, and was equally excellent in the grimly humorous passage of arms between herself and her rival and in the display of temper at her failure to crush her foe. The unscrupulous George Mayhew was naturally impersonated by Mr. Arthur Holmes-Gore, whose deep tones and skilful delivery made every line tell, while the blusterings of the bully were in effective contrast to the cowardice exhibited in later scenes. Mr. Ashton Pearse was the personification of a chivalrous young Britisher as Tom Bradbury, and his share of the scene in which he takes up the cudgels for Alice was finely accomplished. Mr. Henry Stephenson, an actor of imposing physique, thoroughly realised the elderly soldier in his embodiment of the retiring quartermaster, and as his successor, Parker, Mr. C. Leveson-Lane drew an amusing picture of the plebeian who moves in military circles. Master George Burton did well as a Chinese boy, and Mr. John Cabourn and Mr. Basil Mercer were typical exponents of two lieutenants on foreign service. The audience, though small, was very enthusiastic, but no response was made to the call for "Authors."

WILLESDEN HIPPODROME.

Mr. Walter Gibbons chose a splendid spot for his enterprise when he turned his attention Willesden way, and the handsome and perfectly-appointed Hippodrome has commanded steady support ever since its opening a year or so since. The management have put forth a specially entertaining bill this week, a novelty in which is the dramatic sketch by Edwin S. France, presented by J. G. Grahame and Horn Conyers, entitled

"RING UP 735 EAST."

Jake Stapleford .....Mr. Herbert Hollister
Marmaduke Ansted .....Mr. Horn Conyers
Rob .....Mr. Malcolm Cumming
Lucy .....Miss Dorothy Marsdin

A strike is in progress at the Arlington engineering works, and the men have been idle for weeks, and they and their wives and children are on the verge of starvation. On the rising of the curtain we see a deputation of the men, headed by their foreman, Jake Stapleford, waiting at the entrance of the works the coming of the proprietor, Marmaduke Ansted. It is Sunday, and he and his daughter Lucy return from church, the capitalist expressing surprise at seeing the men. Lucy, receiving an assurance that no harm shall befall her father, goes inside the house, and Marmaduke and Jake discuss the situation, and it is eventually suggested by the latter that the men are willing to return to work. Marmaduke, however, tells him that it is too late—he has already engaged a fresh gang of men (non-unionists) to take their place and start the next day. If their wives and children are starving they have only themselves to blame. The strikers, rendered desperate by this decision, break into the works when Ansted has gone indoors, and decid upon destroying the machinery, sinking a coal barge, and doing all the damage possible. Ansted has to leave home, and bids his daughter good-bye, giving her the keys and telling her that if frightened she is to "ring up" the river police. Jake gains admittance to the office, and also manages to get hold of the keys and break open the safe, with the intention of taking any money therein for the starving strikers. Lucy has seen one of the workers prowling about from the window, and, coming downstairs, feigns illness in order to summon the police. She asks Jake to telephone for the doctor, but gives him the police number, "735 East,' and he asks the doctor—as he thinks—to come at once. In spite of Lucy's entreaties, he then opens another drawer in the safe containing papers, which reveal that she is his (Jake's) daughter. The girl knows already that she is not Ansted's child. Her mother had been stabbed in a fit of jealousy by Jake, and his whereabouts had been unknown for fifteen years. While explanations are being gone into, the river police arrive, and Jake endeavours to escape, only to be brought back to die in his daughter's arms. The sketch is admirably played throughout, Mr. Herbert Hollister being a manly and earnest Jake, and delivering his lines with excellent elocutionary effect. Mr. Horn Conyers was quite satisfactory as Marmaduke Ansted; a refined and natural representation of Lucy was given by Miss Dorothy Marsdin; and Mr. Malcolm Cumming was a convincing Rob. Ring up 735 East—well staged, the special scenery being supplied by Mr. Fred Karno, and holding the attention of the audience till its conclusion, in spite of the lateness of the hour—was accorded a cordial reception, and will doubtless have a good run on the variety stage.

A hearty welcome was accorded the popular comedian, Mr. Sam Mayo, who kept his auditors continually on the smile, whilst warbling, in his own droll style, "I felt so jolly, I jumped for joy," and another nonsense ditty. A competition has been taking place during the week for the best impersonation of the immobile one in "The old tin can" and "I'm going to sing a song," and on the evening to which we are now alluding it resulted in much merriment. The aspirants for fame, silver cups, &c., were assisted—or otherwise—in their Mayoesque mimicry by some weird orchestral effects; the humorous announcements and comments of the comedian himself added greatly to the fun of the interlude. Another humorist in the programme who scored in no uncertain fashion was Mr. George Campbell, whose droll delivery of a comic number, "Then I rattled my money-box," was embellished by some really funny patter. Cole and Rags, comedy jugglers, introduce many ingenious devices that never fail to create laughter, and are loudly acclaimed for their entertaining and smartly-worked turn; and the vocalism of the Union Jack Boys—a dozen little sailor men—is much appreciated, particularly their singing of "Excelsior" and the rendering by one of them of "Love me and the world is mine." Mr. Jack Charman has an excellent number in "What's the use of worrying, father?" the applause with which it was greeted being most pronounced; and Miss Nora Guy, a dainty musical comedy artist, was heard with pleasure in "Come to my ivory palace," and another tuneful number. The renowned illusionist, Carl Hertz, assisted by Miss Emile D'Alton, created much wonderment by his bewildering "fantastic problems" and sleight of hand, his many illusions being very elaborate and clever, and gaining for him prolonged applause at their conclusion; and Rauschle impersonated faithfully the late Lord Salisbury, W. E. Gladstone, Campbell-Bannerman, and General Buller; his portraits of Lord Kitchener, President Fallières, the Kaiser, and lastly King Edward all being admirable studies. Cécile François and company, in a smartly-worked dancing and globe-walking act entitled An Artist's Studio, and the Bioscope also contributed valuably to the enjoyable programme.

BARNARD'S PALACE, GREENWICH.

This old-established hall changed its programme on Monday night, and opened as a picture show. The house was crowded, and there is every reason to anticipate a successful season under the new régime. Some amusing marionettes sang and danced themselves into favour, one giving an imitation of Mr. Harry Tate in "Motoring." Next came a very good picture of Rome in the reign of Nero, realistically depicting the destruction of the city. This was followed by Still Worthy of the Name, showing a man cheating at cards. His parents disown him, and he is about to drown himself, when a police-constable interferes, takes him home, feeds him, and persuades him to join the Army, where he does so well that he wins the Victoria Cross, and justifies the title of the picture. A Photographer's Flirtation followed. Sally arrives to have her portrait taken, photographer makes love to her, jealous husband arrives, finds them together in the dark room, and turns the key on them, an amusing denouément. A Child's Gratitude shows a caravan. The horse has fallen dead, and the man, wife, and child are in great trouble, when an old gentleman appears and gives them money to buy another horse, and departs amid the blessings of the family. Two tramps see the money, hear where it has come from, and determine to rob the old gentleman. The child overhears the plot, and fetches the police, who arrive just in time to prevent the crime. The next pictures illustrated the song called "When the berry's on the holly," capitally sung by Miss Daisy Elphinston, and there was also some amusing patter and dancing by the Vanderbilts. The final picture represented the match between Woolwich Arsenal and Blackburn Rovers.

The Queen, the King and Queen of Norway, and Princess Victoria witnessed the performance of the play What Every Woman Knows at the Duke of York's Theatre on Thursday evening.

MASONS AT WORK.

GREEN ROOM.

It is interesting to record the fact that there was a large gathering of the members of the Green Room Lodge at the Imperial Restaurant, Regent-street, on Friday, the 4th inst., under the presidency of the Worshipful Master for the year, Mr. E. H. Bull, who had journeyed to town expressly to carry out the onerous duties of the chair. Mr. Bull was loyally supported in his arduous undertaking by his officers, and the work throughout was carried on in a thoroughly efficient manner, thereby rendering the various ceremonies impressive in the highest degree.

Mr. Akerman May, L.R., the I.P.M. of the Lodge, had for co-workers Messrs. Charles Macdona (S.W.), Hubert Willis (J.D.), J. H. Ryley (S.D.), Frank Vernon (acting J.D.) Douglas Gordon (acting I.G.), W. Lestocq (D.C.) Sydney Lawrence (acting A.D.C.) Albert E. Raynor (acting Organist), Chas Patrick (T.) and Charles Cruikshanks (Secretary).

The Grand Lodge of England was represented by Messrs. Harry Nicholls, P.G.Std.B. and Charles Cruikshanks, P.A.G.Std.B. The visitors included Messrs. Wilfrid E. Payne, H. S. John Oliver, R G. Hunter, Martin Holman, and Chichele Nourse. Mr. Henry Neville, P.A.G.D.C., owing to a misunderstanding as to the time fixed for the commencement of the proceedings, did not, unfortunately, arrive until the business of the Lodge was concluded. There were also present Messrs. Lionel Rignold, Walter Maxwell, Julian Royce, Fred W. Permain, A. E. George, Chas. A. Doran, H. Nye Chart, Spencer Trevor, Frank Harding, Allen Thomas, Henry Ainley, Lauri de Frece, Daniel McCarthy, J. W. Macdonald, Ernest Cameron, and Lyn Harding.

Letters of apology, &c., for non-attendance were received from Messrs. Fredk. Annerley, J. Cooke Beresford, W. P. Besley, J. D. Beveridge, John Cabourn, Louis Calvert, Wilfred Draycott, Dermot Fitzgibbon, Richard Green, Lytton Grey Edward Jones, Gerald Maxwell, Percy Nash, Ernest H. Paterson, W. S. Penley, E. Vivian Reynolds, Chas. Rock, Herbert Shelley, Fred Terry, and Stephen Wentworth.

The ballot was taken for the election of Messrs. Leslie Carter, Robert Loraine, and Hubert Harben an candidates for admission to the Order, and proved to be unanimous in their favour, and Messrs. Leslie Carter and Robert Loraine, being in attendance, were admitted and received the benefits connected with the first step in their novitiation.

Mr. Charles A. Doran, having given the most satisfactory proofs of his proficiency in the degree conferred upon him some little time since, was advanced a stage in his masonic career.

Messrs. Julian Royce and Henry Ainley were examined as to their knowledge in connection with those degrees through which they had already passed, and gave unmistakable evidence of the care with which they had treated the subject, and the Master was pleased to confer upon them the distinctions appertaining to the completion of their degrees.

Mr. Alfred Brydone was nominated as a candidate for election as a member of the fraternity.

The Secretary reported that Mr. J. H. Ryley had expressed his intention of acting as one of the stewards at the forthcoming festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, and proposed that a sum of money from the Lodge funds should be placed upon his subscription list, and such proposition being seconded by Mr. W. Lestocq, it was unanimously agreed to. Mr. Ryley thanked the brethren, and expressed the hope that he might receive such support from them individually as to enable him to carry up a considerable sum to this deserving charity.

Mr. Lestocq gave notice that he should, at the next meeting, bring forward a proposition that in future the Lodge shall meet on the first Fridays in January and February, as well as on the first Fridays in May, June, Nov., Dec., and April, as he thought that in the interests of the Lodge it was advisable to increase the number of meetings during the year.

The brethren afterwards dined together, Mr. Akerman May presiding in the absence of Mr. Bull, who was obliged to leave early to take up his professional duties at Chatham. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, and Messrs. Leslie Carter and Robert Loraine were particularly happy in their replies to the toast of "The Initiates." The company separated at an early hour.

ASAPH.

On Monday last the members of the Lodge of Asaph met at the Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, London, to hold their first convocation since the installation of Mr. Ernest H. Paterson as Master, to which exalted position he was elevated a month ago.

Mr. Paterson, whose professional engagements precluded the possibility of his remaining with the brotherhood throughout the evening, though enabled to carry out the entire duties of the business meeting, was supported by his officers, Messrs. Herbert Chenery (I.P.M.), A. B. Tapping (S.W.), Chris. Hilton (J.W), Charles Cruikshanks (treasurer), James W. Mathews (secretary), Tom Clare (1st Steward, acting as S.D. until the arrival of Albert Le Fre), W. Edwyn Holloway (acting as J.D. in the absence of Frank Lister), E. Wesley Wooldhouse (I.G.), Rev. W. P. Besley (Chaplain), James E. Hambledon (organist), and John Gilbert (Tyler).

The Grand Lodge of England was represented by Messrs. James Weaver, P.G.Std.B. and Charles Cruikshanks, P.A.G.Std.B.

There were also present Past Masters W. J. Holloway, E. H. Bull, Ed. Humphrey (of the La Tolerance Lodge), and Charles J. Taylor (of the Strand Lodge), and the following brethren:—Messrs. Albert Alexandra, R. P. Black, Fred W. Crellin, Oscar Grimaldi, J. Stanford Hughes, Frederic Jacques, C. H. Phillips, Edward A. Pickering, Leonard Russell, and Burrell Saunders, and Mr. Charles Macdona (S.W. Green Room Lodge) a visitor.

Messrs. Charles B. Powell, Edward Swanborough, and Edward W. Whitmore, Past Masters of the Lodge, sent apologies for non-attendance, also Mr. Frank Lister, the J.D.

Mr. Frank Desprez, who was admitted as a member of the order some few months ago, having given the most satisfactory proofs of his proficiency in the degree through which he had already passed, received, from the hands of the Master, the privileges connected with an advanced stage in his novitiation.

Messrs. W. Edwyn Holloway and Edward A. Pickering, being unable to attend the Installation Meeting held last month, were presented and invested by the Master as 2nd and 3rd Stewards of the Lodge.

A very interesting item in the proceedings of the day was the presentation of "London rank" clothing to Mr. James D. Beveridge, who presided over the Lodge in 1899. This gentleman had been nominated and recommended by the Past Masters of the Lodge as a fitting recipient of the honour, and H.R.H. the Grand Master had graciously accepted the nomination and so appointed Mr. Beveridge. The Lodge agreed to present Mr. Beveridge with the insignia of his office, and in receiving it at the hands of the Master, on behalf of the members, Mr. Beveridge expressed the pleasure he felt in accepting their truly handsome gift, and while assuring them he regarded his appointment as a compliment to the lodge and of his intention of holding the rank conferred upon him in a measure in trust for the Lodge, he could not be insensible of the honour paid to himself as an individual, and desired to express his heartfelt thanks to the Past Masters for their kindly recommendation, the Grand Master for the acceptance of that recommendation, and the brethren for the testimony of their good fellowship.

Mr. James W. Matthews, in the unavoidable absence of Mr. W. Lestocq, officiated as Director of Ceremonies throughout, and the performances of the various duties were marked with that graceful attention to details which at all times characterises this gentleman's work in the Lodge.

The business of the day being concluded, the brethren journeyed to "Simpson's," and there, under the genial chairmanship of Mr. Herbert Chenery, the Immediate Past Master, a most enjoyable evening was spent. An excellent dinner was provided, and Messrs. Charles J. Taylor, Edward Humphrey, Albert Le Fre, and Leonard Russell contributed several interesting items of song and story, the first-named gentleman being particularly happy in the rendering of a new song, written by himself, dealing with the characteristics and idiosyncrasies of certain of the Past Masters. The rendition of this amusing ditty caused intense delight to everyone, even the victims selected, and the desire was expressed for more, in fact, a verse for every Master—thirty-nine in all. The various songs, &c., were interspersed with speeches—about thirty—and the proceedings concluded with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

MATINEE AT THE ALHAMBRA.

A grand matinée, in aid of the funds of the Licensed Victuallers' Asylum, was, by kind permission of Mr. Alfred Moul, chairman and managing-director, and his colleagues given on Thursday at the Alhambra. For some years the matinée was an annual event at the Oxford; but, owing to some hitch, the directors of that house were unable to repeat their kindness. With commendable generosity the Alhambra directors stepped into the breach, and not only gave the use of their magnificent building, but provided a long list of capable artists, who kept the entertainment going without a hitch from 2.30 to close upon six o'clock. There was a large and appreciative audience.

The programmes were the gift of James Buchanan and Co., Ltd., and these and button-holes were sold by ladies who have the interests of the dear old residents in the Asylum at heart, and who made the most of their opportunity of garnering on behalf of the funds stray half-crowns and shillings from willing contributors. There are 236 residents in the institution, and 70 non-residents receiving outdoor allowances, the ordinary annual expenses being £10,000.

Among the leading features of a full programme were Hubert Carter and company, in David Garrick, a sketch by Louis Cohen, which was excellently played; the Ten Ji troupe of Japanese magicians; the Max Wessely troupe in a pretty juggling pantomime; Henry Helme, chanteur Français, a powerful baritone, who is in the Alhambra programme; the Musical Millers; Doris Dean, a delightful dancer from the London Pavilion; Yolande Noble, a charming character singer, who sang most effectively her favourite ditty anent "Tomorrow"; Kitty Gordon, the sweet singer from the Waldorf Theatre, who rendered "Because" beautifully; the Boy Cornet Soloist, who played "Love me, and the world is mine"; the comical Fratellini Brothers; Mlle. Dolli, an agile toe-dancer and première danseuse fresh from La Scala, who won golden opinions; Frank Haskoll, in songs at the piano; Jury's Imperial pictures; and many other attractions.

At five o'clock Mr. W. H. Garrett, chairman of the Asylum, with the trustees, committee, and past officers, appeared on the stage, and, addressing the vast audience, he said it was his pleasing duty on behalf of the board of management to tender to Mr. Alfred Moul and the directors of the Alhambra their gratitude for having placed the theatre at their disposal for the benefit of that noble trade charity, the Licensed Victuallers' Asylum. He also begged to tender to Mr. H. Woodford, the business-manager, their gratitude for, and appreciation of, the interest he had taken in the matinée, and also to his staff for their co-operation in bringing about such satisfactory results. They also tendered their hearty thanks to the artists who had so generously given their services to a splendid entertainment. Their best thanks were also given to the ladies who had undertaken the sale of flowers and programmes, and last, but not least, to the audience for their presence and support, among whom they were pleased to see their president for this year (Mr. R. Stewart Bradshaw) and their president of last year (Mr. George J. Maclachlan).

MUSICAL COPYRIGHT.

Edward Solomon, 19, described as a carpet planner, of Assam-street, Commercial-road, E., was charged at the Guildhall on Monday with selling and having in his possession for the purpose of sale pirated copies of musical works

The prosecution was at the instance of Mr. Felix McLennon, a music publisher, of Bouverie-street, Fleet-street, who, on Saturday, saw the defendant selling large quantities of song sheets to hawkers in Aldgate High-street. There were two special songs published in these sheets to which he found exception, "Love me and the world is mine" and "Will you love me in December as you do in May?" He claimed that these were pirated copies of copyright songs.

Mr. Solomon Myers (for defence): I do not admit that these are pirated. You will see that there are a number of songs on each sheet—words only, and no music.

The Clerk: Have you a definition of "musical work"?

Mr. Myers: The Act describes it: "The expression 'pirated copies' means any copies of any 'musical work,' written, printed, or otherwise reproduced without the consent lawfully given by the owner of the copyright in such 'musical work.'"

The Clerk: These sheets are described as "Christmas Songs," but there is no music.

Mr. McLennon: I say that you cannot sing the songs without the words, and when the words are afterwards set to music, they become a portion of "musical work." There were five convictions at Darlington last week in respect of this. This point has never been established by the High Court.

Sir Vansittart Bowater said it was undoubtedly a very important point for the trade, and he suggested an adjournment for the parties to obtain further legal advice (To Mr. Myers): Your contention is that so long as there is no music, there can be no musical copyright.

Mr. Myers: That is so, and I submit there is no case to answer.

The Alderman ultimately came to the conclusion that the matter was of so much importance to all concerned that an adjournment was necessary.

Richard Duval .....Mr Gustav Lombardi
Mons. Lebeau .....Mr. Henry Bradshaw

Lebeau, a card-sharper, is in difficulties, and plans to rob Duval, a violinist, of his instrument, said to be worth £5,000. He seeks the assistance of Lena, his daughter, who is in love with Duval. The latter arrives, and after playing a solo, lays down his violin, which Lebeau steals. The theft is discovered, and Lena confesses her guilt, and pleads to Duval so eloquently that he offers her marriage. Lebeau is shot, and dies after restoring the violin. The sketch was cordially received, Miss Ursula Faucitt showing much promise as Lena Lebeau.

THE HIPPODROME, BIRKENHEAD.

After a prolonged interval the popular entertainment house in Grange-road hitherto known as the Metropole, Birkenhead, opened another chapter in its history on Monday evening, when what will probably prove to be a successful career as a variety theatre under the De Frece Syndicate management was inaugurated. Premier nights always possess an attraction to the playgoing public, and it was not surprising that a scene of unwonted animation was to be seen in Grange-road prior to the commencement of the first performance, there being a constant stream of eager patrons passing the box-office from the opening of the doors. Once inside the building all were immediately struck with the wonderful transformation that has been effected, and the many improvements were commented upon most favourably by everyone, the management having studied the comfort of the public in every detail. That this was fully appreciated was evidenced by the enthusiastic applause which followed the rendition of the National Anthem, with which the entertainment in the first house was opened.

The management could not have made a more judicious choice of a star turn with which to open the hall than Miss Vesta Tilley, who, by common consent, is the finest male impersonator on "the boards"; and the interest in her visit was considerably added to by the fact that she has not appeared in Birkenhead for a number of years. The magnificent reception that was accorded to her when she first stepped on the stage was proof of the fact that she has lost none of her old-time attractiveness among those who had previously seen her. Miss Tilley sang four numbers in her own inimitable way, "Following in father's footsteps" being given in response to an enthusiastic ovation that must have been very gratifying to her, and following the presentation to her of five magnificent bouquets.

The first of these was, appropriately enough, in the shape of a horseshoe, signifying good luck to the new enterprise, and another took the form of a beautiful Union Jack—the size of herself. Even then, the audience would fain have had further selections from her large répertoire, and Miss Tilley had to come before the curtain and make a graceful little speech, in which she thanked them for the splendid reception that had been given her. She also spoke of the pleasure it had given her to receive such a welcome on her first visit to the town for many years. In conclusion, she trusted that the hall would be a great success and have a brilliant career.

During an interval, Mr. Walter De Frece, the managing director, appeared before the curtain, and, after thanking the audience for their presence, said the aim of the management was to provide an entertainment to which they could bring their wives and children and make it a kind of family theatre. In conclusion, he trusted that all in the building that evening would be present at the anniversary twelve months hence.

In addition to Miss Tilley, a capital programme was provided. Ivy Aberdare, who had the honour of opening the performance, won loud applause for her clever dancing, while Herbert Clifton had a cordial reception. Culpitt, "a droll deceptionist," gave a very amusing turn, while the other artists who appeared were the Three Romas, the gladiatorial marvels; Simms and Simms, musical comedians; the Sivronis, eccentric duo; and Bert Kemble.

A LION'S VICTIM.

In the Court of Appeal on Tuesday, before the Master of the Rolls and Lords Justices Moulton and Farwell, was the case of "Hasselman and Another v. Poole and Others," which was an appeal from a decision of the judge of the Gloucester County Court, sitting as arbitrator under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1897. The applicants for compensation were the dependents of a man named Hasselman. The County Court held that the respondents were not liable, hence the present appeal.

Mr. Sturgess, in support of the appeal, said that Hasselman was employed by the well-known lion tamer Mme. Ella. On Sunday, July 28, Mme. Ella arrived at the Palace Theatre, Gloucester, with her troupe of trained lions in cages, in readiness to give exhibitions during the following week. On Sunday afternoon she left Hasselman in charge of the animals, with orders to keep them from quarrelling and fighting. Shortly after she had gone a man named Higgins happened to go into the theatre, and found Hasselman trying to get one of the lions from one cage into another. He heard him call out just afterwards, "A lion has got out, and is in the dressing-room."

Hasselman went into the dressing-room to drive the animal back into the cage, but the lion refused to go. He then threw a chair at the lion. That did not have the desired effect, and Hasselman then got another chair and threw at him. This seemed to infuriate the animal, which made for Hasselman, and, in spite of a terrific struggle, killed him. Before the County Court judge the claim was opposed by Mme. Ella and Messrs. Poole (the proprietors of the theatre), on the ground that the accident did not arise out of, and in the course of, his employment, and the County Court judge so held, and entered judgment for them. The learned counsel submitted there was no evidence to support that ruling, and that in any event Mme. Ella was liable to pay compensation.

Mr. Douglas Hogg supported the award of the County Court judge on behalf of Messrs. Poole, and Mr. Tyfield, for Mme. Ella, contended that Hasselman had been guilty of serious and wilful misconduct, and therefore could not recover. The man knew that he had done wrong, for he had called out to Higgins, "I have got a lion in the dressing-room, and I don't want Mme. Ella to know; I want to get him back before she comes."

Lord Justice Farwell: Was it not the duty of the deceased to get the lion back?

Mr. Tyfield: No, my lord.

Why not?—Because it was not his duty to let it out. His duty was to have told Mme. Ella.

The Master of the Rolls, in giving judgment, said that he saw no evidence of serious and wilful misconduct on the part of Hasselman, whose duty it was, when the lion escaped, to try to get it back into the cage. For these reasons he thought the accident arose out of, and in the course of, the deceased man's employment, and that Madame Ella was liable to pay compensation under the Act. The case must therefore go back to the County Court judge for him to assess the amount of compensation due to the applicants from her, and the appeal, so far as Madame Ella's liability was concerned, would be allowed, and so far as Messrs. Poole were sought to be made liable dismissed.

The Lords Justices concurred.

The Awards. The three interim Awards and the final Award, corrected and revised by George Ranken Askwith, Esq., the official arbitrator appointed in the Music Hall Dispute, may be had in pamphlet form at "The Era" Offices. Copy, including postage, three-half-pence. Address: The Publisher, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

OLYMPIA SKATING RINK

The huge roller-skating rink at Olympia was successfully opened on Monday evening by Messrs. C. P. Crawford and F. A. Wilkins, the organisers and managing directors. It is of interest to mention that this is the fourteenth "American roller rink" opened by Mr. Crawford in Great Britain within thirteen months. On Monday the Olympia rink was opened, and a considerable crowd assembled to enjoy the delights of whirling through the air on wheels. That the sport was most invigorating could not be doubted as one watched the merry movements of the skaters, who were accompanied by the inspiriting strains of the very able band of the 87th Royal Irish Fusiliers. Altogether, the spectacle was a gay and lively one. The great arena was illuminated by huge arc electric lamps, which brought out in all their brilliance the colours of the flags, bunting, and other decorations hanging from the roof and the walls. The display of light afforded by the multi-coloured globes, was particularly effective. The charges for admission are sixpence in the morning from half-past ten to half-past twelve, and one shilling in the afternoon and at night. For an additional charge of one shilling the visitors will be able to use the Samuel Winslow steel ball-bearing roller skates, which are undoubtedly the finest on the market, and come as a revelation to those using them for the first time. Everyone should be able to become perfect in the art of skating at Olympia, for there is a staff of forty skilled professors who each day give free tuition.

The aim of the promoters of the rink is to keep it as a very high class entertainment in every way. The catering is in the hands of Messrs. J. Lyons and Co., and the grill-room will be open from 11 o'clock daily, so that visitors may procure lunch, tea, and dinner. Messrs. Crawford and Wilkins have taken Olympia for a minimum of three winter seasons, so Londoners will again be able to skate at Christmas 1909 and 1910. The floor is specially smoothed and polished by patent American electrical surfacing machines, which will be at work every day between sessions. The arena is surrounded by specially constructed cloak and dressing rooms for ladies and gentlemen.

During the season there will be many special attractions in the way of masked and costumed carnivals, skating cinderellas, and other attractive social functions. The last week of the rink will be a highly interesting one, as there will be a great international six-days' skating race meeting at which most of the champion skaters of the world will compete.

Londoners are now afforded an opportunity of witnessing an American electrical floor surfacing machine in operation in the Olympia roller skating rink. This remarkable invention was brought over from America by Mr. C. P. Crawford. The apparatus has proved a revelation, and is revolutionising the problem of presenting perfectly smooth skating surfaces. Heretofore the means of preparing floors for dancing and roller skating have been very crude and primitive, and were brought about by manual labour and physical effort through the old style hand-planing system, with the results very unsatisfactory and costly. Mr. Crawford is the only man in the United Kingdom who has absolute control over a floor-surfacing machine, the only mechanical device ever invented to prepare a perfectly smooth area for dancing or skating, affording participants in these exercises the maximum amount of pleasure. With the most satisfactory and perfect roller skate constructed by the Samuel Winslow Skate Manufacturing Co., Worcester, Mass., U.S.A., and under the most conducive and pleasant environments any amusement resort has ever been fortunate in possessing, Olympia is due to meet with a wonderfully successful season.

VARIETY ARTIST'S DISPUTE.

In the Official Referee's Court, before Mr. Pollock, on the 4th inst., a settlement was arrived at in the action, Barclay v. Gray, the question for decision being whether the defendant, Mr. George Gray, music-hall sketch artist, was liable to pay the plaintiff, Mr. George Barclay, of Barclay and Co., variety artists' agents, 221, Brixton-hill, commission on third and subsequent re-engagements for music-hall performances.

The amount of the claim was £404 18s., being the balance alleged to be due for engagements obtained for the defendant between September, 1903, and February, 1906.

After much time had been devoted to the examination of different contracts, the Official Referee afforded the parties an opportunity of discussing the question of a settlement, and a conference took place between them.

Mr. Turrell, after a short interval, said they had come to an agreement by which judgment would be given for the plaintiff for £250 and costs.

The Official Referee remarked that he thought the parties had been very wise in making such an arrangement.

Some discussion then took place with reference to the time in which the plaintiff should be paid the amount awarded.

Mr. Turrell suggested six months.

Mr. Turner said he could not agree to that.

Eventually it was agreed that if the amount be paid within six weeks, and the costs within fourteen days of taxation, or within six weeks from the present time, the plaintiff should give up all outstanding claims against the defendant in respect of commission now due, or that might be come due under any existing contract.

Mr. Cyril Fielding Smith, formerly acting-manager of the Scarborough New Hippodrome, has resigned that appointment to take up duties as pilot for Mr. J. F. Elliston's pantomime companies on the road.

THE new provincial agent, Mr. Charles Hand, a well-known journalist of Liverpool, has been busy with the "stars." He has secured the exclusive agency for, among others, Happy Fanny Fields and George Lashwood.

MR. FRANK WEIR, of musical comedy fame, who has been making a success in his new act at the Hippodrome, Crouch End, this week, starts rehearsals next week as Dame at the Theatre Royal, Exeter. He is featuring the song "You all want something to cuddle," with special effects.

"LITTLE MENA" is to be the title of the musical comedy with which Miss Marie Dressler will open at the Aldwych early in the new year. Meanwhile, the popular American comedienne is giving the British public a taste of her quality at the Coliseum, where she is meeting with rousing receptions.

INTERNATIONAL AND COLONIAL COPYRIGHT.
Mr. A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes," which is at present required. — St. James's Gazette.

SMOKING IN THEATRES.

As we announced last week, the Lord Chamberlain has now withdrawn his prohibition of smoking in the theatres under his control. Petitions in favour of this removal were presented to the Lord Chamberlain and to the County Council about three years ago. The Council, though sympathetic, was not prepared to act without the Lord Chamberlain, and the Lord Chamberlain could not then entertain the idea. Petitions in favour of smoking were got up and presented, and a resolution in favour of smoking in theatres was passed by the Managers' Association and by the Theatres Alliance. From this body two deputations were received over a year ago by the County Council advocating smoking, and Mr. J. B. MULHOLLAND, of the King's, Hammersmith, who is always active in theatrical interests, was spokesman on both occasions. On the first the advocacy was without result; on the second, the County Council granted the permission requested and withdrew the clauses in their regulations and in their licences in respect of theatres under their control. At the recent licensing, the Lord Chamberlain's office withdrew its prohibition of smoking in all suburban theatres under his Lordship's control—viz., the Kennington, the Camden, the Dalston, the Elephant and Castle, the Broadway, the West London, the Crown, and the Marlborough. The theatres licensed by the L.C.C. had already been liberated from restraint in this particular.

Appropriately enough, something of a haze hangs about the history of this matter of smoking in theatres. In the old Elizabethan playhouses smoking was certainly permitted. "At the back of each cavalier," says Mr. H. BARTON BAKER in his "History of the London Stage," "stands a page, a veritable Moth, whose duty it is to keep his master's pipe supplied with tobacco from the fine lily-pots that, upon being opened, smell like conserve of roses; while between a pair of silver tongs he holds a glowing coal of juniper-wood to ignite the Virginian weed, which is 'drunk,' as the phrase goes, from bowls of silver or clay of many curious shapes."

Smoking, however, was then only in its infancy. It was an occasional indulgence, not a regular habit. It has now become so indispensable an accompaniment to the daily lives of hundreds of citizens that many persons devote the whole of their leisure to the enjoyment of tobacco—accompanied, of course, by other things. They smoke as they travel to business in the morning; they smoke after their luncheon; they smoke on the return journey home; and they smoke after dinner in the evening until it is time to go to bed. The practice, common in Germany, of "chain-smoking"—that is to say, of lighting a cigar at the end of one which is just finished, and so continuing throughout the day—is out of reach of most persons, whose occupations prevent them from this sustained and unceasing indulgence; but as near an approach to it as possible is made in England in many instances. It is possible that now and then the liberty to smoke may have weighed against the more dramatic nature of the attraction when the theatre and the music-hall competed for the patronage of the individual; but we are inclined to think that the choice was already made when the votary of the weed became its slave to this extent. The essential difference between the entertainment at the music-hall and the theatre is that the one soothes while the other stimulates. Mr. GEORGE MOORE has educed the theory that the more intellectual the individual, the more simple are his recreations. TURNER, in the intervals of painting his immortal masterpieces, loved to carouse with the rough sailors of Wapping; SPINOZA, when not engaged in writing his books, watched flies struggling in the webs of spiders. Carried out to its fullest extent, this would result in variety theatres being chiefly patronised by philosophers and statesmen, which is hardly the case. But Mr. ASQUITH is, we believe, an enthusiastic admirer of Miss MAUD ALLAN'S art; and, for all we know, the chief consolation of Mr. BALFOUR for his absence from office may be the joyous jocunditics of JOB ELVIN or the quaint diversions of Little TICH. The variety theatre forms a haven of rest for the exhausted brain-worker, who does not desire to have the problems of life, with which he has been wrestling in his vocation, re-introduced to his attention, when he is "off-duty," in a problem play. It seems, therefore, that there are natural "affinities" between smoking and a variety entertainment, and between non-smoking and the drama. When the attention is strongly occupied either by fiction or by a theatrical performance, the cigar is apt to be neglected to the point of extinction. Playgoers are by no means unanimous on this question of smoking in theatres. There are many men who regularly smoke their cigar or pipe every evening at home who dislike extremely to breathe an atmosphere laden with the smoke of others; and, curiously enough, some smokers become indisposed if they are not smoking when others around them are doing so. The ladies are, nowadays, so "acclimatised" to the cigar and cigarette that they stand on the same footing with the men; but they, we are informed, object to the fumes of tobacco, which are apt to cling obstinately to their dresses after an evening spent in a smoke-filled interior. A manager who invites smoking in his auditorium must have an intimate acquaintance with the desires and tastes of the majority of his patrons; or else, for one playgoer whom he gains by his innovation, he may very easily drive away two. But, certainly, the freedom of choice should be, as it now is, in the possession of all.

MR. G. ALEXANDER AND THE FEEDING OF HUNGRY CHILDREN.

At the weekly meeting of the London County Council on Tuesday a discussion took place, on a recommendation brought up by the Education Committee, that until further order the average number of meals per child be omitted from the weekly report submitted relating to the feeding of necessitous children.

Mr. W. Crooks, M.P., speaking in loud and indignant tones, charged the sub-committee with flagrant neglect in reference to the feeding of the children.

In the course of the animated debate which followed, Mr. George Alexander said he yielded to no man in his desire to see the children fed; but he would like to burst the bubble blown by Mr. Frank Smith, or at any rate to rob that bubble of some of its melodramatic heroics. Mr. Smith was accustomed to make references to members who went golfing or yachting, and apparently objected to their indulgence in rational amusements, but no one on that side of the house would desire to deny him the pleasure of smoking a Salmon and Gluckstein cigarette in the lobby.

Mr. Frank Smith: Will Mr. Alexander state when he has seen me indulging in a cigarette? I have never smoked one in my life.

Mr. Alexander said he hoped that members on the other side would try to understand that the policy of the majority was a very simple one—that it was an endeavour to get the ratepayer who could afford it to help the Council to feed the starving children, and thus relieve the struggling ratepayer, who would suffer severely if the whole cost of the feeding was placed on the rates. There were many on the border line of starvation, and there were the men with small incomes, such as the army of clerks, that they wished to protect. He trusted, therefore, that adequate support would be given the Lord Mayor and others in their voluntary efforts to raise funds for the feeding of the children.

Ultimately, an amendment moved by Mr. Jesson having been withdrawn, the recommendation was agreed to.

"GEORGE FREDERICK COOKE," writes Charles Lamb, "was once invited by a builder or architect of one of the theatres—Elmerton, as I think. He went; and Elmerton, being at a loss whom to invite, pitched upon Brandon, the box-keeper, to meet him. All went on pretty well until midnight, when, George Frederick getting very drunk, his host began to be tired of his company. George took the hint, and his host lighted him downstairs; when Cooke, laying hold of both his ears, shouted, 'Have I, George Frederick Cooke, degraded myself by dining with bricklayers to meet box-keepers!' tripped up his heels, and left him sprawling in darkness."

AN AMERICAN SATIRE-PLAY.

(FROM OUR NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT.)

The Americans like to make fun of the English custom of drinking tea in the afternoon. Fifth-avenue adopted the custom long ago, but "the masses" have not yet come to it, and according to the humorists they are not likely to, because they prefer something stronger. In the second act of The Patriot, a farcical comedy in three acts, by J. Hartley Manners and William Collier, which was produced at the Garrick Theatre, New York, on Nov. 23, the scene being the drawing-room of a flat in the Buckingham Palace-road, Mrs. Berkshire and her English friends drink tea at one table, while Pop Strong and his wife Bijou drink whisky at another, and extend an invitation to the Britishers to "come over to the American bar." The Strongs hail from Nevada, where the repose of the Vere de Veres is unknown, and the scene in which their "breezy" manners scandalise the "staid" Britishers provokes much laughter. And when the "Americanised" Englishman, Sir Augustus Plantagenet Armitage, whose love of his adopted country prompts him to leave a London drawing-room in disgust for a log cabin in Nevada, gets back among his own kind, the one thing that amuses his friends more than anything else is his description of the afternoon tea-drinking. Incidentally, he informs the company that the English ladies he met in society looked all right in the day-time, but all that they wore at night was "a skirt and jewels."

In writing this comedy the authors have utilised for fun-making purposes the little differences of pronunciation with which every transatlantic traveller is familiar, and for hilarity's sake have employed the somewhat hackneyed device of making the American characters conduct themselves in a ludicrously abject manner in the presence of the owner of a title. For instance, when Pop Strong and his wife meet the Hon. Ferguson Armitage they create diversion by bowing themselves double and by the absurd reiteration of "my lord" in their conversation. "Oh, lord, no, my lord," says Strong's better half in answer to a question.

Sir Augustus Plantagenet Armitage owns the Bull Frog mine in Nevada. In everything but his name he is distinctly a Western American, although he calls his log cabin "Armitage Manor." His mine has produced plenty of rock and dirt, but no gold. He is without any money, and as he owes his shareholding miners several weeks' pay they have begun to lose confidence in him. A meeting is held in the log cabin, and it is truly a motley gathering. The attempted formality of the proceedings is upset by comic interruptions and the decidedly informal conduct of the "shareholders." There is one of the company who hasn't lost faith in Armitage. She is a slip of a girl named Nell, who calls him "the boss," and secretly idolises him. Armitage persuades the men to stand by him for a few days longer, and just in the nick of time Mr. Percival Robertshaw, a solicitor from London, appears on the scene with the astounding news that Armitage is heir to an English estate and ten thousand a year. The legatee will have to comply with certain conditions, as the solicitor tries to explain. Armitage defies the lawyer to name any conditions that will stand between him and ten thousand a year, throws a few things into a portmanteau, and is soon on his way to England.

He is hardly recognisable when, in the second act, he strides into the London drawing-room dressed as a "heavy swell," and trying to bear himself accordingly. He has placed himself under the instruction of an individual named Gainsford, who not only acts as his valet and general factotum, but coaches him in the usages of polite society. This Gainsford is a terrible person—a regular martinet, in fact, and the man from Nevada lives in constant fear of him and his oft-repeated "Don't do that!" According to Gainsford, everything that Armitage does or wears they are not doing—or wearing—"this season." The orchid in his buttonhole is not correct, his waistcoat is too low and his collar too high. Furthermore, he is wearing his eyeglass in his right eye, and "they are not doing that this season." He mustn't touch his collar, although it almost chokes him, or smooth his hair, or do anything that he wants to do. He even stands up for fear they are "not sitting this season," and continually practises the approved style of sauntering along in an easy, unconcerned way, with his chin up, with one arm behind him, and the other swinging gracefully in front of him. Every time he tries it he falls over the furniture. What a blessed relief it is when Gainsford leaves the room. Posting Pop Strong at the door to keep a look out for him, Armitage takes off his coat and walks about in his shirt-sleeves. Incidentally he calls attention to his monogram, explaining that he would have had his full name on the sleeve, but it "went all the way round."

To obtain the legacy Sir Augustus must marry a distant relative, a girl named Nora. Mrs. Berkshire, a prim and punctilious person, calls with Nora, and the introduction is brought about in the drawing-room. As the ladies enter Sir Augustus tries to appear at ease, but in the next room the bouncing Bijou suddenly squalls out, "My Bonnie lies over the ocean," which quite upsets his equilibrium. Then he is reproved for saying Berkshire instead of "Barkshire," and the irrepressible Bijou, in trying to start a conversation with Nora's supercilious chaperon, becomes so free and familiar that Mrs. Berkshire rises in anger and disgust, calls her "an atrocious creature," and demands to know why she has been forced to meet "these dreadful people."

This is the last straw that settles Sir Augustus Plantagenet Armitage in trying to live up to his name. He turns on Mrs. Berkshire and berates her for insulting his friends, and the two ladies beat a hasty retreat. Then the Americanised Englishman breaks loose. He tears off his collar, throws off his coat, runs his hand through his hair that he has been forbidden to touch, hurls defiance at the flabbergasted Gainsford, and chases him out of the room. He is going back to Nevada, and everybody in London can go hang.

In the last act, preparations for a grand welcome to Armitage are going on in the log cabin at Bull Frog. A picturesque assortment of characters, including Indians and half-breeds, all of them wearing high hats and frock coats, but otherwise attired in their rough working clothes, get ready to receive "the boss." He has been in London, where they wear such things, and they must dress themselves accordingly. The effect is indescribably funny. When "the boss" arrives the scene becomes a pandemonium. Enthroned on the table, he addresses his friends, and tells them how glad he is to get back to Bull Frog. Then they sit down to eat, and he relates some, but not all, of his experiences. The mine is prospering now, and when he discovers that Nell is in love with him he is content to marry her and remain where he is. He wants to forget London. It is a painful subject. The fear of one person that he met there still hangs over him, and when somebody behind him exclaims "Don't do that!" he almost jumps out of his skin. It was a false alarm, however, and he laughs at himself for thinking it was the hated Gainsford.

Sir Augustus Plantagenet Armitage is played by Mr. William Collier, who made a hit in London a year or two ago in On the Quiet. To say that he is funny is like repeating a truism. He is always funny. The Patriot is a success.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

By kind permission of Mr. Beerbohm Tree the Royal College of Music, at His Majesty's Theatre on Thursday afternoon, Dec. 3, gave for the first time in England, a performance of Hermann Goetz's opera Francesca. The composer, already known to fame by his Taming of the Shrew, produced abroad in 1874, died Dec. 3, 1876, and his opera Francesca, heard for the first time on Thursday, was, as regards the music, completed by Ernest Frank. The libretto by J. V. Widmann, has been re-written by Hermann Goetz, and Marmaduke E. Browne has written the English version. Goetz evidently felt that the sombre tragedy of Paolo and Francesca required something to relieve the gloomy story, and therefore introduced Diana, a cousin to the Malatestas and Pietro, an old steward of Lanciotto. The story of Francesca is, in some respects not unlike the Montague and Capulet feud in Romeo and Juliet, the Rimini and Ravenna states after long disputes, being almost at the point of war. Paolo, a younger brother of the Prince of Rimini, meets Francesca, daughter of Guido da Polenta, Prince of the rival house of Ravenna, reading the romance of "Lancelot of the Lake," and it is very soon a case of love at first sight with them. Unfortunately war breaks out between Ravenna and Rimini, and the lovers are parted. In the battle Francesca's uncle is accidentally killed by Paolo. In great distress at this, Paolo takes service under the King of Sicily. After some time the Ravennas hear tidings of his death. In less than a year after the news of Paolo's death the long feud between Rimini and Ravenna ends, and at the wish of her father Francesca, to cement the union of the two states, marries Lanciotto da Rimini. The opera, which is in three acts, opens with the marriage festivities of Lanciotto and Francesca. Diana, secretly in love with Paolo in past years, tells Francesca the joyful news that Paolo is not dead, having been rescued by some Sicilian monks, and will shortly arrive. Francesca at first refuses to meet him, but at the wish of her father consents to do so. When they do meet, it is only to find the old love burning as fiercely as ever. Lanciotta finds his wife in his brother's arms; a duel between them is only prevented by Guido, and Paolo is sent to prison. In the last act Guido discovers Diana's love for Paolo, and asks his daughter to persuade Paolo to marry Diana, and Francesca consents. For this purpose Guido contrives a meeting. They are discovered by Lanciotto, who, not knowing the project of the meeting, stabs Francesca. Paolo draws his sword, but Francesca, mortally wounded, parts them with her last effort, and falls dead between the brothers as the curtain descends. Such is the gloomy story of the new opera, which is little relieved either by the character of Diana or the partly comic part of Pietro, the steward. After the unhappy Francesca, all one's sympathies are for her unfortunate husband rather than the hero. Hermann Goetz's music is graceful and flowing, and thoroughly Teutonic in character, without, however, any special dramatic features, while the ensembles at the end of the first two acts are weak. Were it not for some pretty music to the charming ballet arranged by Mr. B. Soutten and the graceful dancing and handsome costumes of the young ladies, the first act would have been somewhat dull. By far the strongest portion of the opera, both in musical and dramatic interest, is the second act. The fine duet between Paolo and Francesca in this act was, in many respects, worthy of Puccini, while the solo for Guido was most artistic and expressive. In the last act the opera depends more on the dramatic situations than on the music. Miss Viola Tree as Francesca acted with rare ability; statuesque and graceful, and like a "daughter of the god's, divinely tall," her gestures were always appropriate to the situations. As a vocalist Miss Tree is not so entirely satisfactory. Her voice, though good in quality and giving promise of future power, is not at present well produced. Mr. Frank Webster, who appeared as Paolo, has a small but pleasing tenor voice, but on Thursday afternoon he was severely handicapped by a cold. The part of Diana was most successfully undertaken by Miss Jean Fyans, who sang and acted with great intelligence, while Mr. John W. Birrell as Guido deserves hearty praise for his artistic singing of the solo in the second act, where, unaware of the truth, he urges Francesca to receive Paolo as a friend, saying, "The feud is at an end, and even I, my daughter, have forgiven." Mr. Joseph Ireland's Lanciotto was another good vocal feature in the performance, and Mr. George A. Baker did all that was possible in the small part of the steward, Pietro. The chorus sang and acted intelligently, while the orchestra of the College, under the skilful guidance of Sir Charles V. Stanford, played well and never overpowered the singers. Mr. Richard Temple proved an admirable stage director, the chorus-master being Mr. S. P. Waddington, assisted by Mr. Harold Samuel. The scenery and properties were lent by Mr. Beerbohm Tree, and the handsome costumes by Mr. Neil Forsyth, Royal Opera, Covent Garden. A huge audience were present at His Majesty's on Thursday afternoon, and the musical public ought to be obliged to the enterprise of the Royal College of Music for their interesting production of the new opera.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR.

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—SIR HENRY IRVING.

Mr. Strong states the whole case very clearly.—Illustrated London News.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, Dec. 10. — Herr Blech, one of the Royal Opera conductors, is a rising composer. His pretty little one-act opera Das war Ich ("It was I"), which has met with considerable success here and elsewhere, has already been described in your columns, and the new production is—musically speaking—far superior. Both instrumentation and harmonies are admirable; all is lyrical and merry at the same time, and there is abundance of melody. With the book our esteemed kapellmeister has not given himself much trouble; the plot is simple and has a Falstaff motif. Frau Gertrud is a merry widow, chief among whose lovers is the head of the little community, Burgomaster Braun. A friend of Gertrud—a certain Frau Willmers, living in the same house—is in debt, and to avoid the possibility of a valuable old wardrobe falling a victim to the bailiffs she has the heirloom taken to Frau Gertrud. The merry widow conceals her Burgomaster from inquisitive visitors in the convenient depths of the cupboard, but ill-luck will have it that the bailiff discovers Frau Willmers' property in her friend's room, and claps his seal upon it in no time. Frau Gertrud conceives a plot out of which she intends to derive lots of fun and make sure of the Burgomaster at the same time, having compromised him beyond recall. The cupboard shall be taken out into the meadow, where all the people are assembled for a fête. She goes off to put this cruel plan into execution, leaving Bertel Willmers and his sweetheart Else (the Burgomaster's daughter) to keep watch. The young couple promise Herr Braun his liberty if he will consent to their union, to which he has been hitherto opposed. This being satisfactorily settled, the lovers exchange places with papa, and the end of everything is naturally what all parties concerned wish it to be. The interpretation was faultless, Fräulein Hempel excelling herself in the part of Frau Gertrud. The composer, who conducted, was compelled to bow his acknowledgments times innumerable. That the opera, which is charmingly staged, will enjoy a long lease of life is a safe prediction. Herr Blech has, by the way, dedicated it to his teacher, Prof. Humperdinck. There was another work in the programme on this eventful evening—Laparre's three-act opera Habanera. How the management could present such a horrible piece of dilettante workmanship to a Royal Opera audience must ever remain a conundrum. Act I.—A man murders his brother, all through love of a maid; the deed is done to the tones of the Habanera, a national dance of Spain. Act II.—The ghost of the murdered man appears and demands a confession from the wicked brother; three blind men are playing the Habanera. Act. III.—The lady who caused the trouble dies, in consequence of the ghost's demand not being complied with; the dead march reveals a slow adaptation of the Habanera. All this is connected with crudeness a Royal Academy student of sixteen would disdain. Where the audience were intended to be impressed they roared with laughter, and so distinct and general a "refusal" has perhaps never before been witnessed in the Opera House. Alas for all the pains expended on its production! Habanera only lived one night. When Blech's Versiegelt appeared in the bill two days afterwards it was coupled with Bajacci, and not, as first announced, with Laparre's work.

Ibsen's fine play Der Volksfeind has been revived with considerable success at the Lessing—that Ibsen theatre par excellence. There is no other company in all Berlin—propably not in all Germany—who can play the pieces of the Northern Wizard as can the Lessing. Herr Bassermann in the name-part is well known; Herr Sauer (Stadtvogt), Herr Forest (Aslaksen), Fräulein Sussins as Frau Stockmann, and Herr Achterberg as the journalist Billing—one and all were above praise.

HENRY BERNSTEIN'S serious three-act play Israel is doing good business at the Neues, filling the bill every night this week. Herr Lothar is the translator, and has evidently done his work well. A detailing of the plot will be superfluous, it having certainly come under the notice of your Paris correspondent.

MR. AND MRS. FRANCIS MACLENNAN, of the Berlin Royal Opera, have obtained a four-weeks' leave of absence in order to sing at the English Opera at Covent Garden from Jan. 16. They will sing in the "Ring," Madama Butterfly, Naylor's new opera Angelus, and other works. Mrs. Maclennan (Miss Florence Easton) has made her principal success here as Butterfly—many considering it her best rôle—and she has given it close on a hundred times.

MATHEWS had known Mr. Braham in the autumn of 1803 at Liverpool, and it followed that he gave a perfect imitation of him both in private and public life. Of this Mr. Braham heard, and with all the liberality of good sense and conscious talent, he good-humouredly pressed Mathews to show him—what not more than one man in twenty is acquainted with—himself. In vain did he solicit; when one day dining together at a large party, after much importunity of the kind to Braham No. 2, it was discovered that Braham No. 1 had stolen a march upon his host and hostess; in fact, he had disappeared during the dessert, and it was said had left the house. After this fact was ascertained, it was urged that in the absence of the great original, Mr. Mathews could do no less than represent him, for the consolation of his bereaved friends; and under such circumstances he at length yielded, and Mr. Braham's absence was fully compensated for the time by the imitator, and Mr. Braham even favoured the company with one of his most popular songs. When the general enjoyment was at its height, two ladies, between whom Mr. Braham had sat at dinner, seemed as if suddenly discomposed, when a figure rose slowly from under the table, and in tones which seemed uttered as if intended in illustration of the recent mimicry pronounced "Very well, Mathews! exceedingly like indeed; nay, perfect, if I know myself," and the Braham stood confessed.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Miss Cecilia Loftus, following the advice of Sir Felix Semon, the eminent throat specialist, will rest during next week, and resume the last three weeks of her engagement on Monday, Dec. 21.

The Variety Artists' Federation held a meeting yesterday afternoon, at the Bedford Head Hotel, on the subject of the agent trouble. It was announced by Mr. W. H. Clemart, the chairman, that the General Federation of Trade Unions had, at the request of the Entertainments Protection Association (representing the managers of music-halls) arranged a meeting between those two parties and the Variety Artists' Federation, for the purpose of a conference on the agent question. The meeting will be probably held on Monday, and the interests will be represented by four managers, four nominees of the General Federation of Trades Unions, and four members of the V.A.F. executive.

Messrs. Fortune and Granville, variety agents, of Savoy-street, Strand, W.C., on Wednesday, at the Westminster County Court, sued the Paulasto Troupe, the Pender Troupe, Burnetti, Will Cornish, Keir and Kempton, Tom Stuart, and Vanando for commission due, and in each case judgment was given in their favour, the amounts sued for with all costs to be paid within fourteen days. Mr. T. E. Baker, solicitor, acted for plaintiffs.

With reference to the latest combine, Mr. Oswald Stoll makes the reassuring statement—"This is not a combination for fighting. It is a combination to employ talent, and to make it possible for all of us to get some of the best that is offering. Our object need cause no one any uneasiness. It is not directed against individuals or organisations."

Mr. Joe O'Gorman, chairman of the V.A.F., is quite prepared to take Mr. Stoll's assurance that the combine will in no way adversely affect the artists, who desire to work amicably with everybody. Mr. C. C. Bartram is not quite so sanguine. He is surprised that Messrs. Gibbons and Barrasford have joined Mr. Stoll, and says that the artists feel that the combine aims at reducing artists' salaries.

Mr. W. H. Clemart, the V.A.F. secretary, says that it will be ultimately discovered that the arrangement arrived at between the Moss Empires, the syndicate halls, and the other parties, is, in a strict sense, an amalgamation for the purpose of establishing a central booking-office to engage artists. This, of course, would be to the benefit of the artists, provided a fair contract be offered to them, and no attempt be made to levy a commission on their salary.

There are to be alterations in the administrative staff of the Syndicate, and it is understood that Mr. Leon Zeitlin, who is well known in connection with Mr. Henri Gros' halls, has been offered and has accepted a position at 1, Durham House-street.

By the kindness of Mr. Oswald Stoll a special morning performance in aid of Sir William Treloar's Cripples' Hampers Fund will be given at the Coliseum on Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 22. A strong programme is being arranged under the auspices of Mr. Harry Tate. The entertainment will be entitled "A Water Rats' Carnival," and novel and interesting features will characterise the performance. All the funds raised by this effort will go to the purchase of hampers to brighten the lives of little crippled children at Christmas. The Lord Mayor, Sir George Wyatt Truscott, will attend in state.

The following well-known music-hall artists have, subject to the permission of their respective managers, promised to lend their services: Messrs. Eugene Stratton, George Leyton, George Mozart, Arthur Reece, Joe Elvin, Chirgwin, Tom Costello, Horace Goldin, Miss Rachel Lowe, Miss Marie Kendall, and others. Seats for the matinée may be booked either at the Coliseum or at the offices of Sir William P. Treloar's Fund, 122-124, Mansion House-chambers, E.C.

In the ordinary course of events the Palace Theatre celebration of its opening should have been fixed for next week; but Mr. Alfred Butt and the directors have abandoned the idea of any special entertainment, and thus another anniversary becomes a "thing of the past."

Mr. Walter Gibbons will provide pantomime at the Camden Theatre at Christmas. This is good news for the playgoers of Camden Town, for the Camden Theatre has always been famous for its pantomimes. A highly original version of Blue Beard is announced, and the cast is an exceptionally strong one, including Mr. Ben Albert, Mr. Ernest Rees, Ferguson and Mack, Mr. Harold Carson, Miss Addie Lennard, Miss José Collins, Miss Lottie Sergeant, and a very strong chorus. The production is in the experienced hands of Mr. C. St. John Denton and Mr. Peter Davey.

It is with much regret that we hear of the serious illness of Mr. Edgar Lee, and this regret will, we feel sure, be shared by many of our readers. Mr. Lee, who is being tenderly nursed at home by his devoted wife, has been the recipient of much sympathy.

Miss Gladys Hompfey has been playing both at music hall and theatre this week. Besides appearing in the character she created in Havana at the Gaiety, she has been playing, with great success, at the Palace, Hammersmith, the part of the Schoolmistress in The Major's Niece. Miss Ada Reeve and Miss Kate Cutler have had the same uncommon experience of obliterating the dividing line between the greater and the lesser stage.

The great attraction at the London Hippodrome on Monday is to be Sir Genille Cave-Browne-Cave, the cowboy baronet, who will introduce a company of cowboys, Texan rough-riders, and Indians, giving a realistic idea of life in the prairies. There will be an exhibition of roping cattle, of Indians shooting with bows and arrows, clever Mexican whip manipulators, cowboys in daring acts of horsemanship—in short, a miniature Wild West.

In the New York Police Court on Monday Miss Vesta Victoria was charged with violating the city ordinance which provides that vocalists shall not wear fancy costumes at a presumably sacred concert. She was immediately discharged; but the whole affair has been a great shock to her nerves.

Mr. Alfred Butt will present on Monday, as previously announced in our columns, at the Palace Theatre, Miss Ellaline Terriss and Mr. Seymour Hicks in a new sketch by Mr. Paul Rubens entitled Fly By Night. This musical aero play, which is to distinguish the first appearance in vaudeville of the happy pair, has an "aero" and "aeroine." Cicely (Miss Terriss) is the daughter of the proprietor and editor of The Conquering Hero, and Rupert (Mr. Hicks) is in love with Cicely. They are to have the musical assistance of sixteen other ladies, all daughters of other editors. The scene is laid on the roof garden of Cicely's father's house in the neighbourhood of Aldwych. Mr. Walter Hann has painted special scenery, and the air is by Clarkson. The practical aeroplane, on which Mr. Seymour Hicks makes his "dramatic" entry from the sky, has been built by Mr. C. J. Cheeseman.

Birmingham's new Hippodrome at Barton's Arms, Aston Newtown, attracted a huge audience at the opening on Monday, and at the second house the Mayor of Aston and suite attended.

Messrs. Broadhead are contemplating the erection of another amusement house in Manchester; also at Liverpool and Preston. Lancashire folk are especially favourable to variety.

The Corporation of Scarborough invite tenders from entertainers for the occupation from May 1 to Sept. 30, 1909, of spaces on the South and North Sands; for the stage and arena of the Alexandra Gardenrs (evenings only); and the Clarence Gardens. Further particulars may be obtained on application to Mr. D. Arthur Nicholl, town clerk.

Liverpool is adding to its many cinematographic shows. On Monday the old abandoned Wesleyan Chapel at the bottom of Brownlow-hill, near the famous Adelphi Hotel, will be re-opened by the New Century Animated Picture Co.

Messrs. B. Kennedy and James P. Moore, who recently purchased the magnificent block of buildings comprising the King's Hall, Birmingham, have recently purchased the famous and spacious Geo. Dawson building, situated in the Parade, Birmingham, which is surrounded with a vast working-class population, and for which they have been granted a music and dancing licence by a full bench of magistrates. They open on Boxing Day with animated pictures. Messrs. Moore and Kennedy now possess three fine halls in Birmingham, and their circuit includes Hanley and Worcester.

The members of the Grand Order of Water Rats assisted with their patronage and presence at a testimonial matinée given to Mr. Ernest Lepard at the Brighton Alhambra on Tuesday, when the theatre was kindly lent for the occasion by Mr. Alfred Smith. Unfortunately, Marie Lloyd was absent, owing to the breakdown of her motor-car at Arundel while she was making her journey from Portsmouth (where she is engaged this week) to Brighton.

Those who appeared included Peggy Pryde, Millie Hylton, Josephine la Barte, Florence Esdaile, Joe O'Gorman, Duncan and Godfrey, Sam Mayo, Fred Earle, Johnny Gilmore, Geo. D'Albert, Arthur Reece, Ian Colquhoun, Herbert la Martine, and Dusty Rhodes. During an interval Mr. Joe O'Gorman, on behalf of the Testimonial Committee, handed Mr. Lepard a purse of gold subscribed for by friends. There was no one, he said, more popular or more loved in the profession than Mr. Lepard. The latter, in returning thanks, expressed his indebtedness to his directors for granting him the benefit, to Mr. Alfred Smith for kindly lending the theatre, and to the audience for their support, the artists for their much-appreciated help, and the staff and orchestra for their assistance.

Dr. Walford Bodie, the famous bloodless surgeon, who has lately been creating a sensation in the literary world as an author, has been commissioned by C. Arthur Pearson, Ltd., London, the well-known publishers, to write a series of romantic hypnotic stories for one of their magazines. They will be of a startling romantic nature, and will extend over a period of twelve or eighteen months. The first of the series is now in the press. The versatile doctor is also busy on a new musical comedy, which he hopes to produce at a West End house shortly.

The Doctor's "Stage Stories," now having a big run on the market, is published by Simpkin, Marshall, and Co. They ran in serial form in the Glasgow Weekly Mail, Leeds Saturday Journal, North London Gazette, The Luton Reporter, The Northern Gazette, &c. For the serial rights alone of "Stage Stories" he received over £500. The "Bodie Book," also written by Dr. Bodie, is now in the fourteenth edition, over 50,000 copies having been sold in three years—a record for any book of its kind.

Mr. Harry Hunter, the popular acting-manager at the Grand, Blackpool, has been much gratified by the gift of a beautiful autographed photograph and a silver cigarette case from Madame Albani, as a souvenir of her first variety engagement.

The many friends of Mr. Thomas P. Duignan, late manager of the Empire Palace, Belfast, and recently general-manager of the Hippodrome, Blackpool, will be glad to hear that he has now fully recovered from his illness, and is about again and now resting at his home at Inchicore, Co. Dublin.

Mr. Arthur Miller, from Southampton, on Monday at the Palace, Lincoln, succeeded Mr. R. R. Black as manager, the latter going to the Palace and Hippodrome, Warrington (the Macnaghten house), to fill up a gap caused by the illness of Mr. George D. Bradbury.

The new proprietors of the Tynemouth Palace are stated to be Alderman Wm. Dodds, of Field House, North Shields, and Mr. Jas. Johnstone, of Boldon Hall, Boldon, near South Shields. The original cost of the house was £100,000.

La Milo seems to be turning the tables on the ultra-Puritan, and instead of being the challenged she has become the challenger. At Blackpool she tells the local council:—"I am here to instil the lesson and message of loyalty to nature through the impersonal evidence of an ideal, and to assist you in the elevation of that art which defies the libertine but encourages the pure. The masters I follow fashioned their work in sweetness, inspired with a noble purpose."

The many friends of Mr. G. D. Bradbury, general-manager of the Palace and Hippodrome, Warrington, will be sorry to hear that he is now lying in the Warrington Hospital with an attack of diphtheria. The latest accounts are that he is progressing favourably. Mr. Bradbury, prior to coming to Warrington, was general-manager of the Southampton Palace and Hippodrome.

Last week, in the course of the celebration of the redecorating of the Empire, Bradford, there was a pleasant little interlude, when, before a crowded house, Mr. Thomas Speight appeared on the stage, on the introduction of Mr. Percival Craig, the manager, and briefly reviewed the history of the house. Ten years ago Mr. Speight, as Mayor of Bradford, was present on the same boards at the opening, and he now expressed his satisfaction that Mr. Craig valued his services equally with the previous manager, inasmuch as it would be noticed that he had no number up. Whether it was that Mr. Craig counted his abilities as higher or lower than those of the ordinary artist he did not know; at any rate he was not paid for his services there.

He was paid in one sense, however. When he opened that building ten years ago he had a conversation with Mr. Moss—now Sir Edward Moss—who assured him that at all times every effort would be made to provide first-rate entertainment without introducing any objectionable features, and that ideal, he believed, had been maintained. He was repaid by the knowledge that the performances had given satisfaction not only to the authorities but to the citizens of Bradford.

We regret to hear that Mr. John Dawson, through overtaxing himself, is suffering from throat trouble, and has been ordered a week's complete rest.

The enormously successful production of Lisette, the Laundry Girl, by Mme. Edith Mellor, has been booked for Christmas week by Mr. Henri Gros for the Metropolitan.

Bob Fitzsimmons, the well-known American prizefighter, and his wife will appear at the Oxford on the 21st in a new sketch, A Man's a Man for a' That; or, A Fight for Love, which is having a run through the provinces.

Mr. and Mrs. George Fuller (Miss Katie Lawrence) have returned to London from Eastbourne, and are now residing at 72, Delancey-street, Regent's Park, N.W., where the invalid will be pleased to see or hear from old friends.

The Smythsons Comedy Co. are returning to London, after five months' highly-successful tour on the Macnaghten circuit and the Bostock halls. They open on Monday at the Empire, Camberwell, with their ever-welcome novelty sketch The Lie-Alarm.

Since Miss Winifred Hare offered £100 for a song suitable to sing during her forthcoming pantomime engagement, she has received 218 manuscripts. It is understood that Miss Hare will make her final selection on Monday next, when a cheque for the amount will be sent to the fortunate writer and composer.

Following up her success at the Oxford and her appearance this week at the Tivoli, where she will appear all this month, Miss Helen Trix, America's wonderful lady whistler at the piano, has been booked by Mr. Oswald Stoll for his entire tour.

The next committee meeting of the Music Hall Home Fund will be held at the Palace, Camberwell, on Thursday next, Dec. 17, at twelve noon. The first list of The Era's New Year Appeal on behalf of the Music Hall Home will shortly appear. Kindly send in your full cards to Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, hon. treasurer, The Era, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

Miss Alice May, the English lady protean, has an amusing turn, entitled Tranquillity, in which she plays a lively young lady given to mischievous pranks. The character work of the artist has evoked much applause this week at the Palace, Gloucester, where Miss May is scoring a most gratifying success.

Mr. Horace Reeves, son of Fred Reeves, the well-known dramatic and variety agent, attained his majority on Thursday. Quite a large number of letters and telegrams reached him at the Cedars, Grove-road, Brixton. Will the many friends who favoured him with messages of congratulation accept this paragraph as an acknowledgment of their kindness?

Miss Kitty Rayburn is giving free permission for her popular song, "Won't you come to me in Canada?" for any theatre within two miles of the Lyric Opera House, Hammersmith, where she will play principal boy in Mr. Brydon Phillips's pantomime. During the week, at the Crouch End Hippodrome, she has been making a hit with her new song, by T. R. Robson and John Neat, entitled "It seems to make the sunshine brighter," a song of healthy sentiment, and one that audiences will appreciate wherever it is sung. Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter have secured the number for publication.

Clempert opened for the first time in London at the Palace, Stoke Newington, last week, with a clause in his contract to the effect that should he not make good at the first house on Monday his contract should be cancelled. At the conclusion of the act Mr. J. de Frece personally complimented him and gave him tours well into 1911, also arranging to take over the sole booking for the act.

The ease with which Mr. Clempert escapes from the English strait-jacket is surprising, but he shows his abilities to even greater advantage when he escapes from a Siberian torture jacket. As a finish to his act he enters a galvanised iron tank full of water, the lid of which is fastened with eight padlocks. Even this cannot hold him, as within the space of one minute he is free.

Mr. Jack Smiles, at the Hackney Empire and Coliseum, has caused the greatest merriment with his songs, "For months and months and months" and "On a summer afternoon." He has the gift of individuality, and should be in great request. Though not "raised" in the city known as the "Hub of the Universe," the cognoscenti instantly recognised his "Boston" parentage.

Miss Kate Walbran, following on her excursion into the Variety World as a single turn, has, we now learn, made a distinctly marked success in pantomime at the Grand, Glasgow, where on Wednesday night, as one of the Ugly (?) Sisters of Cinderella, she made a pronounced hit. Her quaint delineation is in the true spirit of burlesque, and evoked commendable plaudits, which were a pleasing tribute to the artiste's impersonation. She was the recipient of upwards of fifty wires and innumerable floral tributes.

The Tivoli and King's Theatre teams played a music hall and theatrical football League match at the North Surrey Poultry Farm on Sunday, when a pleasant but rather one-sided game ended in favour of the Tivoli by 11 goals to nil. The soft state of the ground prevented scientific play. The Tivoli, however, seemed to find their feet sooner than King's, and kept sending in ground shots, which gave the goalkeeper no chance of saving. The King's goalkeeper could not be blamed for any of the goals scored against him; in fact, he played a very good game indeed considering the state of the ground.

The other matches on Sunday in connection with the same League were won respectively by the Gaiety Theatre, who beat the Fulham Theatre by 6 goals to 1; the Croydon Empire, who wrested victory from the Holborn Empire by 4 goals to 1. The Queen's, Poplar, team were awarded points in consequence of the absence of the Stratford Empire.

Miss Kitty Colyer has just concluded a very successful four weeks' stay at the London Pavilion, and, as we predicted, is forging well ahead. She has this week taken her place at the bottom of the bill at the Palace, Camberwell, where her inimitable speciality dance is a firmly-established favourite. Miss Colyer is leaving town next week to star at the Tivoli, Manchester, returning the following week to open for a run at the Oxford, Tivoli, and other syndicate halls.

The Alhambra programme will be reinforced on Monday by the return of Mlle. Leonora, in "Narcisse." It will be remembered that early in the year this accomplished mimic and dancer made such a success in "Sal, Oh My" that she appeared in the travesty for seven months without a break, a most unusual occurrence at a variety theatre. She is making her return in the slight classical legend of the youth Narcissus, who fell in love with his own reflection, and is meanwhile rehearsing for the new production which Mr. Alfred Moul will present in the first week of January, in which she will take the principal part.

Miss Alexandra Dagmar is making a big success at the Empire, Holloway, this week with her new monologue and recitation Forsaken, by Nat Clifford. Her song, "A Marriage of Mayfair," is also going strong.

The usual monthly meeting of the committee of the Music Hall Sick Fund was held on Wednesday afternoon at the Crown Hotel, Charing Cross-road. Mr. W. J. Wainratta (vice-president) presided, and there were also present Messrs. Pat Carey (hon. treasurer pro. tem.), F. D. Harris, F. Boyce, and R. T. Baines (secretary).

On the motion of Mr. Harris, seconded by Mr. Boyce, it was resolved that the attention of newly-elected members be called to the regulation that cards are not sent to them until they forward to the secretary the first month's subscription.

It was also agreed that in cases where the address of members on tour was unknown to the secretary, letters to them concerning the Fund business should be sent to The Era office. After the disposal of some other business, the meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman.

Miss Nellie Neil, who is appearing successfully at the Palace, Bow, has had to refuse several tempting offers for pantomime, owing to her bookings on the halls. This clever lady has several novel songs in preparation which she intends to produce on her provincial tour.

Dr. Walford Bodie, on Saturday between the houses at the Hippodrome, Stalybridge, presented to Mr. W. A. Jackson, the resident manager, a gold-mounted tiger's claw, which the doctor had shot on his last visit to India. The gift was in recognition of the successful manner in which the business of a record week had been conducted.

Professor Henri, D.Ph., the celebrated Australian hypnotist, has just arrived in England, and will open in Glasgow with his latest sensation, "The Beautiful Mechanical Lady in Her Great Blindfold Drive," and several new and startling experiments. He opens in London at an early date.

The rôle of the diminutive Archibald in Mr. John Beauchamp's production of The Schoolmaster's Mistake is now being played by Mr. Chas. Caffrey, who well befits the character. The sketch is meeting with deserved success this week at the Chelsea Palace.

Desiring that definite steps should be taken to end the present unsatisfactory relations between the Variety Artists' Federation and the music-hall agents, the Executive Committee of the Federation has decided to issue a million circulars to trade unionists throughout the country. There will be no difficulty in doing this, owing to the fact that the Variety Artists' Federation is affiliated to the General Federation of Trades Unions.

The Liverpool Bench on Tuesday granted to Mr. Jasper Redfern licences for the Tivoli and Park Palace, Mr. James Rolmaz to be manager of the latter. Mr. Redfern, who has been successful elsewhere with entertainments, consisting of pictures and vaudeville, will open the Tivoli with a similar show on Monday, 21st inst. A licence for the Paddington Palace was refused owing to the unsatisfactory structural conditions of the building.

The Home Secretary stated on Tuesday that he is inquiring into the case of a troupe of young children sent out to perform as dancers at a place of amusement on the Continent. In cases of young girls engaged to perform in Continental music halls under very unfavourable conditions representations had been made to authorities abroad. He understood that the London County Council is considering the question of applying to Parliament for power to control agencies through which such performers are engaged.

The general manager of the Great Central Railway having offered him the position of pier-manager and agent to the Cleethorpes Improvement Estate, Mr. W. F. Stuart has, after carefully considering the matter, decided to accept the position. Mr. Stuart will be missed by the theatrical and music-hall professions and the show-world from his post as manager of the Publicity Department of the Great Central; but the courteous traditions of that office will be continued by his successor, Mr. T. W. D. Smith.

Mr. Fred Kitchen, who is appearing in G.P.O. at the Hackney Empire on Monday, is a native of London, and comes from a very old theatrical stock, his father having been for fifty-seven years on the stage. The elder Kitchen is now seventy-eight, and certainly the oldest clown living. Of his first appearance Fred has no very distinct recollection. He was carried on in long clothes when only a few weeks old. That was at the Prince's Theatre, Portsmouth, in a drama called The Dumb Man of Manchester. The first part he really remembers playing was that of a very young boy in a very old drama, The Sea of Ice. He could not have been more than four at the time.

He took part in a number of dramas and pantomimes in and around London until he was fourteen. As he was pretty tall and as experience gave him the appearance of being older than he really was, even at that tender age he was "quite a man."

An army of workmen just now are engaged in transforming the Ducal and Princes' Halls at Earl's Court into the semblance of Fairyland in preparation for the opening to-day of Toy City and Fun Fair, which will remain open from 11 a.m. till 11 p.m. during the Christmas holidays until February. Every kind of toy devised for children may be seen in "Toy City," which will also contain the famous beautiful and instructive "Dolls' Pageant."

There will also be two free performances daily of a spectacular fairy play, a refined variety entertainment and ballad concert, a continental circus, and all the jovial accessories of an old-fashioned English pleasure fair, not to mention illusions, haunted castles, and the like. The entrance faces Earl's Court Station in the Warwick Road, and while adults will be admitted for 6d., children will only be charged half price.

There was produced on Monday at John Henry Cooke's, Edinburgh, by Talberto and Douglas (Mr. Cooke's two talented younger sons), an original equestrian extravaganza entitled Rustic Revels, wherein seven persons took part, including the two authors. The entry to the arena is made upon a four-wheeled hay-cart, drawn by a horse, containing rustic farm hands, with the eatables necessary for the day. During the previous night a tramp, Paddy (Talberto), has managed to stow himself away amongst some straw in the cart, and is brought away unobserved.

Whilst wrangling amongst themselves some curious contents are extracted from a huge pie. A false alarm clears the stage for Paddy, who awakes from his slumbers to deal with a jar of beer. While doing so, Constable X.Y.Z., on his beat, sees him, and endeavours to arrest him. Calling for assistance, he brings on the rest of the farm hands. The crowd then indulge in rough and tumble acrobatic work, which fairly convulses the audience. Altogether, Rustic Revels is a decidedly novel acquisition, being brimful of comedy from start to finish.

Mr. Horace Wheatley has just produced at the Palace, Oldham, another great success, "The Oyster Supper," by Fred W. Leigh and Horace Wheatley. It promises to add largely to the fame of this favourite Irish comedian.

Mr. Walter de Frece has consented to take the chair at the dinner at the Motor Club, Coventry-street, next Wednesday, the 16th inst., and it is gratifying to note that he will be well supported by members and guests. Needless to say, an excellent entertainment is arranged at the conclusion of the dinner.

Miss Amy Marsden, who has undergone two serious operations, and now lies in a critical condition, desires, through our columns, to thank her many friends for their sympathy and kind inquiries, which are too numerous to reply to individually. She trusts that they will accept this acknowledgment of the same with her grateful thanks.

Mr. Albert Marsh's successful playlet Chums Till Death, which has met with such a magnificent reception at the Empire, Holloway, goes to the Empire Theatre, Ardwick, for the week commencing Dec. 14. It is pleasing to note that Messrs. Moss and Stoll have booked this attractive show for the Christmas and New Year holiday weeks at Birmingham and Leicester respectively.

The management of the Empire, agreeably impressed by the success as a dramatic sketch of the Grand Guignol "thriller," After the Opera, have decided to persevere in the policy of producing short pieces by eminent authors. The latest novelty is in the shape of a comedy, from the pen of Mr. William J. Locke, author of The Palace of Puck, who will be certain to exploit in his own inimitable way a graceful, fancy, and pretty wit in the new duologues, entitled A Blank Cheque. It contains only two characters, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Mahoney, and these will be played by, respectively, Mr. Charles V. France and Miss Evelyn D'Alroy. This delightful actress recently scored a great triumph at the Criterion on Nov. 10 in the part of Mrs. Cray in Miss Norah Keith's play The Builders.

Mr. Edwin S. France writes to us to say that he is the author of Ring Up 735 East, which was produced on Monday at Willesden Hippodrome.

Mr. Chas. M. Daly, who had been supplying the variety programmes at the Londonderry Opera House with signal success for thirteen weeks, took his benefit on Friday night, the 4th inst., when at each house audiences almost unprecedentedly large listened with unbounded enthusiasm to exceptionally enjoyable programmes. In addition to several local artists, excellent turns were given by Barry Cox, comedian and dancer; Miss Dolly Scott, solo violinist; Bert Kemple, comedian; Beeton and Osborne, vocalists; Rowan and Moore, in a delightful sketch, The Old Jawbone; Harry Bland in new songs; Jack Beeton, comedian; Kendrick and Laura, singers and dancers; and Dan Gillin, ventriloquist.

Mr. Gillin, who is one of Ireland's most popular ventriloquists, introduced for the first time, with great success, his electric apparatus—a large shamrock, set off with coloured electric lamps, which provided a charming picture. At an interval Mr. Daly, who was received with great applause, made a neat little speech.

On behalf of the committee of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, 61, New Oxford-street, W.C., Miss Melinda May (secretary) wishes to thank the following:—Harold Seyd (donation), £1 1s.; Miss Lottie Albert (donation), 2s. 6d.; Mr. Fred Sinclair (second collection), £2 17s. 6d.; Mr. Tom Fancourt (collection), 2s. 6d.; Miss Margaret Radcliffe (collection), 9s. 6d.; Miss Clara Smith for parcel of useful clothing; Miss F. M. Fox (Teignmouth) for box of clothing; Mrs. Mitchell for afternoon tea cloth; Mrs. C. C. Beyer for parcel of clothes; Miss Flo. Banks, parcel of clothing; Miss Florence Huntley, dolls for Xmas tree; Mrs. Herbert Shelley, handsome table centre; and Miss Alma Shelley, wool balls for Xmas tree; Miss Louie Davis, 5s. 6d. towards helping a sufferer into a home for consumptives. Mrs. Eugene Stratton, Miss Belle Elmore, Mrs. Vernon Cowper, Miss Lottie Albert, and Miss Irene Rose are thanked for coals—an extra gift to all the current cases.

Will all friends of the charity please note we are shortly going to have a Christmas tree for children? Any little gifts will be gratefully received by the above. In view of the forthcoming election, will all members please send addresses so Miss May can post on their votes? All are welcome to tea and receptions, held every Wednesday from four to five o'clock.

The Lord Provost, who was present on Monday at the Pavilion, Glasgow, sent a special messenger round to say how much he and his party had enjoyed the artistic manner in which Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Lucas had rendered their Dickens scenes and characters. The management were also so pleased with their success that they endeavoured to prolong their stay another week to support Mme. Albani. But the clever pair had already arranged to play Southport, where the management could not release them. Mr. Lucas will read Dickens's "Christmas Carol" on Sunday, Dec. 20, at the Metropole Theatre, Birmingham.

Miss Elma Morris, a talented young lady who has recently forsaken the concert platform for the "halls," is featuring a capital "Rule, Britannia" ditty this week at the Palace, Southampton. It is a very pretty song with a melodious musical setting, and Miss Morris presents a striking figure as Britannia. Her voice is particularly well trained, and she scores a great artistic success. En passant, we may mention that Miss Morris, who happened to be in Southampton last week-end, made a successful appearance at the Hippodrome, her well-chosen ballads being delightfully rendered, and highly appreciated.

The Theatre Royal, Dublin, opened a short season of "Hippodrome" with two houses nightly, and as a special attraction stars Mr. and Mrs. Bob Fitzsimmons in their first appearance in Europe in vaudeville. They appear in a sketch, A Man's a Man for A' That, in which Mrs. Fitzsimmons (née Julia Gifford) sings sweetly, and Bob punches the bag to the edification of his admirers. The sketch is above the average, being pretty and refined.

Mr. Alec Hurley appeared a few days since at the Bloomsbury County Court as a defendant, being summoned there at the instance of the Great Eastern London Motor Omnibus Company, who claimed £2 3s. 6d., the cost of repairs to one of their omnibuses, such repairs being rendered necessary owing to the defendant's motor-car colliding with the vehicle. After hearing witnesses, Judge Bacon said that running down cases were generally somewhat difficult to decide, but this particular case did not give him so much trouble as many others. He confessed he could not quite follow the statements with regard to the car travelling at only eight miles an hour. If people who could afford motor-cars were content to travel at that rate they had better go back to four-wheel cabs, which they would find cheaper, and, many would think, safer. The collision, in his opinion, was caused by the driver of the defendant's motor-car trying to get in front of the market garden waggon and thereby running into the motor-bus. There must be judgment for the omnibus company.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

THE flowing tide, as in past years, is again with the house of Francis and Day, which, like a lighthouse amid the clamour of yeasty, watery turmoil, guides the good ship Pantomime into the smooth harbour of success. Up to now an unbroken sequence of triumphs has been placed to the credit of the big firm, and Glasgow's splendid annual at the Grand Theatre—produced this week by Mr. Stanley Rogers for Messrs. Stevens and Buchanan—bristles with Francis and Day's numbers, among them being "Oh! Oh! Antonio!" "It's the Gay Gordons," "Shadowland," the "Parrot Duet," "My girl's a Yorkshire girl," and "Drinks." Mr. Rogers himself immediately sent a wire of congratulation to the publishers. Manchester, likewise, and other important centres, have taken up the tale of unbroken success, and it can be with surety stated that the daily papers of Great Britain on the 28th inst. will be one long category of deserved successes for the firm, successes which will be heard everywhere, from Drury Lane to the uttermost ends of these islands.

MR. DAVID DAY, who on Tuesday last was the recipient of score upon score of cables, wires, and letters, wishing him "Many happy returns," has during the past few days arranged on behalf of his firm for the publication of quite a number of new songs and dances, among which may be named: "Don't be ridiculous, Nicholas" (sung by Miss Josephine La Barte), by Geo. Arthurs and C. W. Murphy; "When my money-box is full," by A. Du Soir and C. W. Murphy; "The Tramp; or, You may have come down like me" (Miss Ida Barr), by Chas. Collins and Harry Castling; "Come to the city of palms and pearls," by H. Carlton and H. Staunton; "Dreamland," by Sydney Locklynne and Willie Rouse; "That's all that she lets me do" (George Collins), by Chas. Collins and Chas. Ridgwell; "For you, Laroo" (G. H. Elliott), by Sax Rohmer and T. W. Thurban; "He's deaf and dumb and silly" and "The fellow with the old black bag," written, composed, and sung by Harry Luck; "How d'you do, my Baby?" (G. H. Elliott), by A. J. Lawrance and G. H. Elliott; "I can't help loving you" (Miss Lily Black), by Scott Mackenzie; "Les Papillons," valse lente, by Edward Hesse; Harry Anderson's "Clock" song, by Kirby, Lorrimore, and Noble; "Art and Nature," by F. J. Barnes and R. P. Weston; "Ellaline" (sung by L. W. Harris), by Geo. Arthurs and Orlando Powell; "What's the good of mottoes to a man like me?" (Miss Carlotta Levey), by Geo. Stevens; "Underneath your mushroom umbrella," by Godfrey, Lawrance, and Gifford; and "When I wasn't any bigger than you," by Harry Castling and C. W. Murphy.

"CECILIA," the valse lente, by Henry E. Pether, is reported by Messrs. Francis and Day to be in great demand, applications for the band parts pouring in daily. Lieut. George Miller, M.V.O., bandmaster of the Royal Marines, has written the composer a complimentary letter, and Dr. Mackenzie Rogan, of the Coldstreams, lately included it in the musical programme at a civic function at Haberdashers' Hall.

MESSRS. FRANCIS AND DAY have just secured for publication three new songs of that well-known entertainer Will Bentley, whose ditty "Down where the breezes blow" has been in much request as a pantomime number. The titles of the new items are "They do things so different abroad," by E. A. Searson and H. E. Pether, and "The Matrimonial Magazine" and "Don't refuse her," both by Frank Wood.

THE latest additions to Messrs. Francis and Day's "Sixpenny Pops" series are Miss Kitty Colyer's songs, "I'd never think of leaving my little snowhouse," by Will Hyde; "What's the use of yer popping round?" by Will E. Haines and Will Hyde; and "Oh, Dolly," by T. F. Robson and Will Hyde. As we go to press, Miss Colyer is having a special souvenir night at the Camberwell Palace. She opens at the Tivoli, Manchester, on Monday. Her specially retained author and composer has just completed a song for her entitled "You don't know what you can do till you try."

CHARLES OSBORNE, the well-known song-writer, who is laying down his pen for a while to manage the Tally-Ho Trio's pantomime, which opens immediately in the North of England, has just completed, and disposed of to Mr. Bernard Russell, a song which may be expected to rank with his "Potted Poetry," a song which was worthily acclaimed in its line one of the finest humorous efforts ever penned. The new number is entitled "Press cuttings."

MISS VESTA TILLEY, who will, in April next, once again be the darling of the New York ladies and the admiration and despair of the mere males, has a fine new number, entitled "S-u-n-d-a-y," written by Charles Hilbury and composed by Kenneth Lyle, which has been secured by Messrs. Francis and Day. The same firm—who have already issued the London idol's latest hit, "That's the time a fellow wants his ma," also by Kenneth Lyle, which has earned the highest encomiums from the Manchester Press—are also publishing Miss Tilley's forthcoming polka song "To see if it was fit for father." It is by Edgar Bateman and Henry E. Pether.

MR. BERT FELDMAN has returned from his pantomime rehearsals in Scotland, and is much elated with the success of his firm's songs in the North, a good omen of the future popularity of the Feldman pantomime numbers throughout the country. Mr. Feldman asserts that never in all his experience has he had such a sensational success as "A tiny seed of love," which Miss Violet Loraine sang so charmingly, and which the Press of Glasgow eulogise at great length as the song that is certain to be whistled and sung all over the city in a day or two. Mr. Feldman is now happy that its success has justified his advice to all his friends to sing it. He maintains, moreover, that any pantomime omitting "A tiny seed of love" will lose a great attraction.

MESSRS. FELDMAN'S other great successes are "I want you to see my girl," "Connemara," "The bubble and the sunbeam," "Girls, girls, girls," "Girls, study your cookery-book," "Good-bye to Maudie," and "White Man," the principal boy number of the year.

MR. G. H. ELLIOTT introduced at the Tivoli last week his latest and greatest success entitled "Moon, moon, moon," from the pens of Messrs. Edgar, Lawrance, and Gifford. Messrs. Feldman secured the same for immediate publication.

MR. STANLEY ROGERS, of the Grand Theatre, Glasgow, wired the Star Co.: "All your seven songs—Whit Cunliffe's 'I don't care if there's a girl there,' 'I'm not satisfied,' and 'The very first girl I see'; also 'Salome,' 'Won't you waltz the Merry Widow waltz with me?' 'Dresden China,' and 'Anywhere will do'—were enormous successes. Many thanks."

THE Star Co. have this year broken all records having no less than twelve numbers in Glasgow. These are solos and not concerted. Mr. Rich Waldon wired: "'Chinee Man,' 'Carolina Brown,' 'Won't you waltz the Merry Widow?' cheered and sung by whole house."

THE COLISEUM.

Mr. Oswald Stoll has an all-star programme for visitors to the Cattle Show, and his principal attractions are certainly on the spindle side of the company. A return to London is made by Miss Marie Dressler, who will be filling in time at the halls until she opens at the Aldwych. She commenced on Monday evening with her Palace Theatre successes, "A great big girl like me" and "That's why Adam sinned," and also gave a mock-heroic recitation, "The Lion and the Glove," in which she showed herself an accomplished parodist, with occasional little touches of bitterness. The enthusiasm of her reception prompted her to make a neat little speech, in which she expressed her gratitude to the public for letting her get her living so easily. The Money Spider, a sketch by Mr. E. Phillips Oppenheim, has been seen before at the fine house in St. Martin's Lane. In it Miss Dorothy Grimston repeats an accomplished and powerful performance of the highly-strung wife of the millionaire.

The chief novelty of the bill is another version of Théodore de Banville's Gringoire, by Laurence Irving, entitled

"THE KING AND THE VAGABOND."

Louis XI. .....MR. LAURENCE IRVING
Olivier .....MR. LEONARD CALVERT
Simon .....MR. FRANK J. ARLTON
Loyra .....MISS PAULINE HUGEN
Gringoire .....MISS MABEL HACKNEY

The original French piece was first performed at the Théâtre Français in June, 1866, with Coquelin in the title-part and Mme Lafontaine as the heroine. Coquelin played the part in London in 1887 and 1889, and it is a favourite one with both English and American actors. In the version under notice Miss Mabel Hackney is the vagabond "nursed by hunger and want," who recites "The death-watch of the King" before the terrible Louis XI., and the study of character is picturesque and telling, the actress having the boyish and romantic air inevitably associated with the part. Mr. Laurence Irving's depiction of the senile monarch's unavailing rage answers all the purposes of the melodramatic interest; but the dialogue is occasionally that of a much more advanced period than the fifteenth century. Mr. Leonard Calvert is effective as the crafty Olivier le Daim, and Mr. Frank J. Arlton does well as Simon. Miss Pauline Hugen is a girlish and interesting Loyra. The playlet is set in an interior cleverly painted by Mr. W. Raphael, and the dresses have been designed by Mr. Tom Heslewood.

Miss Cecilia Loftus adds to her imitations almost nightly, and her exactitude in her realisation of Miss Carrie de Mar's "Lonesome Flossie" is really wonderful. Not a gesture or an inflection of the voice is missing. We do not admire the impersonation itself. Indeed, we think it exposes the seamy side of our civilisation, and holds up to ridicule the saddest of all characters; but Miss Loftus gives it the touch of genius. We understand that Miss Carrie de Mar has scored a success in two continents as "Lonesome Flossie." We would her triumphs had been in something less painful. Miss Evie Greene is scoring with her old favourite, "The Queen of the Philippine Islands," which must have for her exceedingly pleasant reminiscences of her earliest success as a star in musical comedy.

It is difficult for the comic singer to score at the Coliseum, and we therefore have a stronger reason for congratulating Mr. Jack Smiles, whose name promises agreeable relaxation and keeps it to the letter. "For months and months and months" Mr. Smiles will be engaged at the best halls if we have any knowledge of a comedian's power of "making good." He is a "Smiles" who easily "comes off" the stage, but on the night we heard him he was speedily recalled to the footlights to give an exhibition of clog-dancing such as we rarely see nowadays. We have seen him under another name, but he is making a name for himself as rapidly as his best friends could desire. Mr. Barrington is responsible for freak performances at the piano; the Daunton-Shaw bicyclists do most of the tricks accomplished by other performers; Miss Carlotta Levey sings her latest successes; Mlle Haydée's miniature vaudeville theatre is a most interesting and novel show; and the Bioscope gives a series of pictures that tell a touching dramatic story. Mr. Dundas Slater, the popular acting-manager, reports enormous houses, and it is evident that the Coliseum draws special audiences.

THE PALACE.

Mr. Alfred Butt is still unable to announce the definite return of Miss Maud Allan; but his programme has many varied attractions, and is decidedly cosmopolitan. Tortola Valencia, a new dancer from Algiers, is a handsome exponent of Mauresque dancing, and there is considerable dramatic feeling exhibited in her first number, in which her head is enveloped in a shawl. Like Miss Allan, she makes much use of her arms, and her sinuous and gliding movements have a distinctly Oriental character. Her second dance, sharper and more defined, has a distinctively European character; in fact, it may be said to have a Catalonian complexion; but it is spirited and effective. Tortola Valencia's dress, of rich texture and orange in colour, suits her dark beauty admirably.

Old favourites in the Palace scheme are Les Fleury, a duo of Paris artists, who were quite successful a year ago in their burlesque revue. Of course, their entertainment appeals more to the boulevardier than to the Piccadilly lounger; but the entente cordiale has done so much of late to make the great B.P. familiar with the doings of Parisians that the skits of M. Fleury of Paris types—such as the flower-girl, the cochère, the society man, and the taxi-driver are easily comprehended and the humour of the impersonations appreciated. Mme. Fleury contributes striking caricatures of Cléo de Mérode, Otéro, and Sarah Bernhardt, and the eccentric dances of the pair are much enjoyed.

Mr. Nelson Jackson, from St. George's Hall, tells some amusing stories that go with a roar nightly, and at the piano submits some entertaining songs—one describing with considerable humour a gamin's notions of spending a legacy if lucky enough to get one. Mr. Maurice Farkoa's engagement has been lengthened, and that consummate artist is delighting audiences nightly with "I love you in velvet," from Lady Madcap; a French laughing song, a new number, "I beg your pardon," and the Parisian rendering of "The future Mrs. Hawkins," Albert Chevalier's famous song. Mr. Ernest Mills has humour at the end of his crayons, and his skit on the cartwheel hat is heartily enjoyed by the fairer sex. One can appreciate also the little joke of turning an Arctic landscape—when coldly received by the dealers—into a view of Regent's Park during the winter season.

The chief sensation of the programme is provided by the Aero Femmees, a quartette of gymnastic ladies, who perform trapeze feats on bars that hang from an elaborate apparatus revolved by one of the quartette working the pedals of a bicycle. Later they don serpentine skirts, and, hanging by their teeth, float round while fluttering their diaphanous white raiment as if they were birds. We are sure that they are intended to imitate birds, as we hear the notes of the "thrush"—of the stage variety, bien entendu—"piped" from the wings. The show is exceedingly pretty, and it has been produced by Professor Leamy, who has been presenting aerial shows for thirty years.

Max Laube, Continental whistler, does not make us forget Frank Lawton or Arthur Slater; Rappo and Ella are responsible for equilibrism of a remarkable character, the gentleman balancing himself with feet in the air on very slender supports. Later he holds with his teeth a bicycle, which his lady partner pedals rapidly. Mysticus amuses with his mysterious talking figure, and does some rapid changes of costume; and Miss Iris Banfield, Miss Marie Dainton, and the Palace Girls also entertain. Mr. Herman Finck's fine orchestra is still playing "The Entente Musicale," which is full of lilting melody—French and English. Some excellent accompaniments are also played to the Urbanora Bioscope pictures, which show an interesting film of the Prize Cattle of Australia and other of our colonies.

MISS DOLLY ROSS is this year playing Prince Sprightly in Mr. J. F. Elliston's Humpty-Dumpty pantomime. Miss Ross is fully booked up for a considerable time.

MISS EDNA CRAGGE has been specially engaged to play Demon King at the Elephant and Castle Theatre.

SKETCHES AND THE V.A.F.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Mr. Monte Bayly's letter in your last issue must be my excuse for writing you. Mr. Bayly makes grave charges against what might be called "the inner circle" of V.A.F. officialdom. Similar charges have been made before, and, as one who took an active part during the very troublous times, and who has watched developments carefully ever since, I think the old adage which says "there is no smoke without fire" is true in this case. I call to mind a general meeting at Camberwell, at which I proposed that the secretary should be elected by the members; an amendment was moved by Mr. Monte Bayly, and supported by Mr. W. H. Clemart, to the effect that the "secretary being the servant of the committee" should, therefore, be appointed by the committee. "One nail drives out another at least." Bayly took Gerald's place, and now, what has been foreseen by many for a long time, Clemart has stepped into Bayly's shoes. Is this the long arm of coincidence, the whirligig of time, or the irony of fate?

At the present moment it is absolutely essential that the members should perfectly understand where they are. Mr. Clemart may be a very able man for all I know, but his articles in the Performer are those of an extremist, and hold out little promise of peace. As a sketch manager I am particularly anxious to know what is the new general secretary's attitude towards the sketch members of the V.A.F.—be it borne in mind, a very large and important section of the organisation. Has Mr. Clemart modified his views since he said before the Arbitrator that they should go to the theatres, and leave the V.A.F. to bona-fide music-hall artists? Again, does he still maintain that he is representing "standard artists" only, and not the rank and file of the profession?

Further, with regard to the dispute with agents, where do we stand? Let us have plain facts, and not beg the question. As a sketch-manager I welcomed the signs of a settlement with the agents, because we feel the paying of ten per cent. more than others (the sketch-manager pays two-thirds to three-fourths of his salary away to others, but pays ten per cent. on the whole amount received—not so with "single turns"). I agree with Mr. Bayly that the vote of the great body of members was never taken on this important subject, and, as one of the 2,000 who took no part, I ask, what is to be the finish?

Let us not shut our eyes to facts, even if they are unpleasant. The barred agents are still booking and plying their calling, but the V.A.F. agents are not. Christmas is almost with us, and I know many good sketch-managers and turns whose date books are empty. The magistrates are giving verdicts against those artists who are being sued for commission, and making severe comments upon the actions of the V.A.F. executive.

The best interests of the profession will be served by a genuine ballot of the members being taken without further delay. The feeling of dissatisfaction and unrest is perhaps more widely spread than some would care to believe, and it is to be hoped that the present officials of the V.A.F. will take the earliest opportunity of putting an end, by legitimate and honourable means, to the present deadlock.—Yours faithfully,

JOHN F. PRESTON,
Empress Theatre, Brixton, S.W.,

MR. SHAND AND THE V.A.F.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—My expulsion from the V.A.F. is more than a personal or professional matter; it is a public matter. Inasmuch as both theatrical and music-hall artists are well known to give their services on behalf of any charity, and yet because a member—myself—appeared at a charity matinée, he is expelled from the Association. I have been in a hospital for several weeks, and received every care and attention. Should I not be a moral coward if I refused to appear at a performance in aid of their funds because a "committee" make some twopenny ha'penny rule to suit themselves?

I was working six halls a night when Mr. Stoll asked me to appear for this charity at Hackney. Does anyone suppose that I was anxious to put myself to all that inconvenience for pleasure? I think it is disgraceful that a body of men who constitute the "committee" of the V.A.F., should be able to dictate to their fellow-artists what they should or should not do.—Yours faithfully,

ERNEST SHAND

THE V.A.F. AND AGENTS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—On Friday, Sept. 25, I accepted the Federation commission note of ten per cent. on actual engagements made, and asked where I could obtain the commission notes and price of same. Mr. Monte Bayly replied: "Send me the heading for your commission notes, and we will make you a present of 500." I sent the heading, and the commission notes were duly received by me at the Oxford, Middlesbrough. I noticed my name was omitted in the Performer from the list of agents who had accepted the terms of the Federation. I wrote repeatedly on the matter, but received no reply, till I got a letter from the temporary secretary, Mr. Barry, saying, "Your name will be printed in the next issue of the Performer." It was not printed at all. In the meanwhile, Mr. Johnny Fuller, Mr. Frank Coyle, Mr. O'Connor, and Mr. Brady approached me as to becoming a member of the Federation. I told them how I had been treated, but Mr. Fuller proposed me and Mr. Frank Coyle seconded me. I had a letter from Mr. Barry saying the committee had been pleased to accept me as a member, on condition that I worked my agency on a five per cent. basis, and would forgo all return commissions on past and future engagements. I replied saying I accepted ten per cent. on actual engagements made, and could not understand why they should try to get me to accept five per cent. after I had accepted the Federation note of Sept. 25. I also asked them if Cliquot and Mr. Tom Pacey worked for five per cent.. I told them my commission notes amounted to £105 if everyone played their return dates; that I would sell them to the Federation for £10; and that I preferred to be a non-member rather than to do any agency business for five per cent. I received a letter this week saying the Federation could not accept me as a member, as their rule was that any member wishing to become an agent must work for five per cent. Imagine my surprise on the Performer of Thursday, Dec. 10, saying I accepted five per cent., and had forgone all commissions on outstanding as well as future engagements! I have never done anything of the sort, neither have I ever wished to become a member. I never accepted five per cent. My terms are ten per cent., as per my acceptance of Sept. 25.—Yours faithfully,

ALLAN McASKILL.

THIS (Saturday) evening the combined staffs of Messrs. Francis and Day make merry at a dinner at that noted hostelry "The Crown," hard by the London Hippodrome.

THE Corporation of Ripon are inviting offers for the use of the Spa Gardens during next summer for the purpose of giving entertainments. Particulars may be obtained on application to the Town Clerk, on or before the 31st inst.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

Miss May Audrey produced at the Coliseum last week "Obedient Jane," words by Arthur Mills and music by Bennett Scott, which at once became popular and a success.

Mr. Arthur Lennard is making a tremendous hit on the Stoll tour with his new song, "He's a jolly good fellow," written and composed by Worton David and Orlando Powell, published by the Von Tilzer Music Co.

The Von Tilzer Co. inform us that, so far as pantomime permissions indicate, their forthcoming pantomime successes include "Keepsakes," a charming ballad suitable for both principal girl and fairy queen; "I'm wait-wait-waiting" (All I want is the man), principal girl and dame song; and "Let's have a song about the boys," a particularly bright chorus song for principal boys.

A set of fifteen magnificent slides have been issued by the Von Tilzer Company to their new ballad "In the village by the sea," which, together with a very pretty melody augur well for the success of this most effective song. These publishers have another new song in preparation entitled "Memories," which will be ready in the course of a week or so.

Mr. Fred Elton's 100guinea song, entitled "When the leaves are tinged with gold," with which he is making a tremendous success, has been secured for all the leading pantomimes this year. The National Music Publishing Co. are the publishers.

Wilkie Bard is producing the National Music Publishing Co.'s latest number for comedians, entitled "Put me upon an island where the girls are few," at the Drury Lane pantomime. This is a very up-to-date number. A special verse has been written on the recent Suffragette scene at the Albert Hall. The publishers will be pleased to send all artists wishing to use this number in pantomime a novel suggestion which would undoubtedly benefit its success.

Frank H. Fox and Jenny Hartley report immediate success with the National Music Publishing Co.'s latest song, entitled "Kate, won't you rollerskate?" for which they anticipate a great future.

Lowenwirth and Cohen's chorus song "My little Eva," is being used in almost every pantomime in Great Britain, and judging from the tremendous success they are making with the song, it should be a big winner.

Neil Kenyon is producing "You all want something to cuddle" at Drury Lane, and is making a special feature of this song, introducing from forty to fifty girls. Comedians should not overlook this number. It is published by the National Music Publishing Co.

The following songs, free for pantomime, are issued by the National Publishing Co.:—George Lashwood's two latest songs "If it's a lady" and "Nicolo, Nicolo, play on your piccolo"; also Will Godwin's success, "When I've a hundred pounds."

Please ask the pianist to play over "The Land of Promise," by Florry Cooper and Billie Bent, sung by Fanny Robina; then you will have a certain winner. Published by Francis and Day.

Real bass songs seem to be a great feature in Messrs. Sheard's catalogue. The appropriate song "Asleep in the Deep" was finely sung by Mr. Edward Benson as Davy Jones in the under the sea scene in Robinson Crusoe at Gaiety Theatre, Dundee—the first pantomime of the season.

Another of this firm's bass songs will be introduced to Tivoli audiences on Monday next by Miss Sybil Lister, who has several other of Stanley Gordon's numbers in her répertoire. On account of Mr. Gordon's songs being published with harmonised refrains they are also in great demand by quartette parties generally.

Valued old friend as is the famous "Auld Lang Syne," these are up to date times, and musical relief and change has to be sought for festive occasions. With this end in view Messrs. Sheard have recently published a new song with quartette chorus called "Here's to our next merry meeting," with words by Elphinstone Thorpe and music by Noel Johnson.

Miss Constance V. White's melodious "My Dreams" waltz has been selected for the great waltz scene in Mr. John Hart's pantomimes at Leeds, Manchester, Newcastle, and Sheffield.

Mr. T. W. Thurban is busily engaged in scoring the orchestral accompaniments to his successful songs, "I can't get away from the girls" and "Who'd like to pay for my holiday," for Messrs. Sheard to engrave and print, as they cannot cope with the demand for orchestrations for these songs by the manuscript process.

Messrs. Sheard report a brisk and sustained demand by artists, musical directors, and producers for their special pantomime numbers, "Little Silver Moonbeam," "Sweet Bells of home," "Love the cuckoo" (duet), "Tell me, dusky maiden" (duologue), "If I were a fairy queen," "The wedding of the stars," "Don't break your loving heart for me," as well as for the lighter numbers, "Jennie, don't swing on the gate," "I have lots of fun that you don't," "Hold me tighter, Mr. Lighter," and "Limelight Lou," &c.

Sunday evening concerts and P.S.A. entertainments are rapidly increasing in popularity, and Messrs. Sheard's catalogue contains many of the most favourite songs in use, such as Constance V. White's "The Day of Rest," "The Climbers," "The gates of dawn," "The garden of thoughts," and her two latest songs, "Life's passion flower," and "Wake and remember," a sequel to her famous "Sleep and forget."

Mr. Medley Barrett's great march song, "Baden-Powell Scout," will be featured by Miss Edna Morgan, as principal boy at the Broadway, New Cross. As in the case of the Tally-Ho Trio, at Manchester, and Mr. Fred J. Little, Miss Morgan was most enthusiastic after hearing the number.

Mr. Percy Ford's "Still your friend" has been secured by the Gothams, who anticipate making a great hit with this fine ballad. The same author has also written a sacred song, "The angel choir," with a fine musical setting by Medley Barrett. This will shortly be produced by one of our leading singers.

Miss Kitty Rayburn, who has during the week been cheered to the echo at the Crouch End Hippodrome for her splendid rendering of "I want a Woman's Rights (then I'll be satisfied)" and "Will you come to me in Canada?" both of which the popular lady has published with Messrs. Francis and Day, has a gigantic success in her latest number, entitled "It seems to make the sun shine brighter (when you know you've got a pal somewhere)." It is, we understand, from the lady's own pen. Mr. John Neat has supplied a spirited melody.

"THE MAJOR'S NIECE.

Miss Markham .....Miss Gladys Homfrey
Constance Carleton .....Miss Clarissa Bell
Arabella Schultze .....Miss Dorothy Rundell
Captain Carleton .....Mr. Murray Moore
Detective .....Mr. Arthur Murray
Major O'Brian .....Mr. John Beauchamp

They had been married that morning. He is Capt. Carleton and she was Miss Constance Dudley, and, worse to relate, a schoolgirl and a ward in Chancery. This is the foundation of the imbroglio of the above-named sketch, which is based on The Strange Adventures of Miss Brown, produced at the Vaudeville in 1895. The idea is carried out in a most humorous manner, the sketch going with a "roar" from beginning to end. The Captain is assisted by his brother officer, Major O'Brian, and when—the marriage having been discovered—a detective arrives at the wedding feast, the Captain is disguised as the Major's niece, Miss Jones, and so escapes capture, whilst his bride is carried back to school. The detective arrives at the school, and is given permission to stay the night there, as they suspect that the Captain will attempt to regain his bride. Major O'Brian arrives and arranges with Miss Markham to immediately admit his "niece" to her school, at the same time he professes his desire to assist in catching the wicked Captain. Having introduced the disguised Captain, the Major retires. Roars of laughter greet the funny situations caused by the introduction of "Miss Jones" to the head-mistress, and also a pupil, Arabella Schultze. He also meets his wife, and she speedily recognises her husband. The Major has arranged for a motor-car to await them outside, and they are to escape in the night; but as "Miss Jones" comes down, she finds the 'tec waiting, and so makes herself most agreeable, the officer being rather pleased with her company. When the young wife also appears, she sits down, and both chat with him. Begging him to show her how the handcuffs are put on, the 'tec satisfies her with an exhibition on his own left wrist. The disguised Captain immediately secures the right wrist in them, and they make a bolt for it. Escape is, however, unnecessary, as the Major returns with a wire stating that, owing to the death of a relative, the Captain has become a Peer of the realm.

Mr. John Beauchamp himself undertakes the part of Major O'Brian with much success. Miss Gladys Homfrey is particularly good as Miss Markham. Mr. Murray Moore makes the utmost of the many humorous difficulties Capt. Carleton gets into when disguised as Miss Jones. As his bride, Miss Clarissa Bell acts with much spirit and looks charming. Arabella Schultze is well played by Miss Dorothy Rundell, who dances neatly. The quiet fun with which Mr. Arthur Murray renders the character of the detective adds largely to the mirth of the piece.

A NEW "HUMANITY."

Jacob Silvani .....Mr. John Lawson
Capt. Grey .....Mr. J. K. Reynolds
John Cuthbert .....Mr. Horton Tree
Gabriel .....Mr. H. Schlesinger
Mrs. Grey .....Miss Lucille Sidney
Adele Silvani .....Miss Buena Bent

No sketch has obtained a firmer hold over the music hall frequenting public than this sensational piece, which has won for Mr. John Lawson such enduring success. This fact was substantially verified on Monday, when a thoroughly revised version was produced at the above hall amidst great excitement and applause. The plot runs on much the same lines, and the story of betrayed trust in a friend remains as engrossing as ever, and culminates in the customary sensational manner. The men meet with the grim determination to fight to the bitter end, one prompted by the longing for revenge, and the other by the hatred he has for his more successful rival. The fight rages fast and furious, and at the conclusion of the piece the hitherto elegant apartment is reduced to a mass of wreckage, scarcely anything in the room being left intact. The fight is carried out to such a nicety and is so well arranged that the spectators are kept in a state of breathless excitement throughout.

As Jacob Silvani Mr. John Lawson carries the rôle through with eminent success, and supplies a clever characteristic sketch of the Jew who discovers the false nature of the friend in whom he has placed full trust. Mr. J. K. Reynolds makes the most of the opportunities offered in the part of Captain Grey, and Mr. Horton Tree enacts the callous scoundrel John Cuthbert with marked success. Mr. H. Schlesinger is all that could be desired as Gabriel, the man-servant, and the rôle of Mrs. Grey is suitably delineated by Miss Lucille Sidney. Miss Buena Bent sweetly portrays Adele Silvani, and does all within her power to make the part interesting. The staging is on a scale of great completeness, and the furniture employed is exquisitely tasteful. The whole production is a huge success and should still have years of prosperity before it.

"GAY DOGS."

Lord Reggie .....Mr. Frank Stanmore
Joseph .....Mr. Mark Lester
Lieut. Frank Dewar ....Mr. Douglas Phillips
Dora Dewar .....Miss Sissie Brand
Winnie .....Miss Dora Lane
Rosie .....Miss Mabel Dent

In an entertainment frankly described as an "irresponsible musical absurdity" in the matter of plot, he that expecteth will be disappointed, and this is so in the present instance. However, for the time the sketch occupies the stage it serves its purpose fully, inasmuch as it keeps the audience thoroughly amused, and dull moments are not allowed to enter into it. The story concerns a jealous husband, who vows vengeance on a supposed rival. In the course of the piece the wife changes clothes with the threatened man. Of the material at their disposal the company makes the utmost. Nothing could be better than the valet of Mr. Mark Lester, an exceedingly droll and entertaining impersonation, which stamps the giver of it a genuine low-comedian. Nor is the Lord Reggie of Mr. Frank Stanmore far behind it in its amusing qualities, and to these two gentlemen is due the major portion of the laughter the sketch provides. Mr. Douglas Phillips is quite equal to all demands made upon him as Lieut. Frank Dewar, and the ladies' rôles are adequately filled by Misses Sissie Brand, Dora Lane, and Mabel Dent. Another sketch in the present programme is Trixie, which provides the always-charming Miss Violet Lloyd excellent opportunities for the display of her talents, and enables Mr. Horace Lane to show that he can work with the energy and abandon of a Seymour Hicks. The item is received as favourably as any in the bill. The Donaldson Bros., in Sports in a Jungle, introducing many fearful creatures of the animal world, find considerable favour, and are a deservedly popular turn. La Belle Greta scores with her Spanish song and dance, and Miss Ida Barr pleases with her song with a chorus. Miss Lily Eyton, Bros. Ford, Tate and Tate, Olga Dora, and George Collins are also in the programme, which the ever-popular Palace pictures complete.

ABRIDGMENTS OF SPECIFICATIONS.

15,319.—Targets. Reid, C., of Dublin.

Relates to targets carried by jointed parallel levers or parallelograms. One shaft b is mounted in slots in the uprights a, while the other shaft c is inserted in a hole m in one upright and a vertical groove n in the other, so that the target framework can be bodily removed. The shafts are of cruciform section, and the levers are longitudinally adjustable on the shafts to receive targets of different widths, and are locked by pivoted catches k engaging with slots in the shafts. In a modification, wooden frames carrying the targets are pivotally connected to the levers. In another modification, circular targets are connected by

Light is cut off from the film while the machine is not in operation, and the actuating mechanism can be adjusted in position without disturbing the gearing. Initial rotation of the handle (16) acts by means of a pin (20) and cam-slot (21) to force a disc (13) on to a wheel (14), which then rotates, turning the lever (24) on its pivot (25) and raising the screen (28) from the aperture (32) through which the light passes. When the handle is released, a spring (10) brings the disc out of engagement with the wheel and the screen falls. A spur-wheel (3) drives the film-feeding sprockets (44), and the wheel (4) on the other end of the main shaft (2) acts through spur-gearing to drive a shaft (53), which rotates the sutter (60) through bevel-gearing and also, by means of a star-wheel (54), gives the step-by-step motion to the film through sprockets (49). The carriage (51) carrying the shaft (53) and the intermediate gearing is adjusted on the main framing by means of a lever (70).

By correcting the central path by means of compensating refracting material such as F, and by employing specially-shaped prisms for the two outer paths, three photographic, or colour records (P1, P2, P3) can be projected and superimposed for kinematographic and like purposes. The records are placed in one plane, and one or three lenses and corresponding light sources are employed for projection, one light path being omitted if only two records are to be projected. The apparatus can be used for producing stereoscopic pictures, dissolving views, freak pictures,

LEIGH THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.

The site of the new Grand Theatre and Hippodrome, Leigh, which is to be opened on Monday, the 14th inst., is situated in Market-street, in close proximity to the Town Hall, the rear abutting on The Avenue, wide passages on each side of the building leading both into the latter road and into Market-street.

The entrance to the better-class portions of the house is situated in Market-street and in the centre of the main front, and consists of a spacious vestibule with pay-office in the centre, the floor on this vestibule being finished in mosaic, the walls having a tiled dado with plaster above. A handsome wide flight of steps leads from the vestibule to the various parts of the house. The entrances to pit and gallery are placed in the side passages before mentioned. A basement—provided in the front portion of the building—comprises large refreshment room, smoke room, and lavatories. The heating apparatus is under the dressing-rooms at the stage end of the building.

The front portion of the building on the ground floor is occupied by four lock-up shops. A large and commodious pit has seating accommodation for 720, each person having an uninterrupted view of the stage, the floor being adequately raked. In front of the pit are four rows of orchestra stalls, formed of handsome tip-up chairs, giving accommodation for about 110.

The circle is reached by a handsome staircase leading out of the vestibule. The floor is stepped down towards the front to give all a good view of the stage, the seats, comprised of tip-up chairs, providing accommodation for 360. Handsome boxes are provided on this floor, one on each side of the proscenium opening. A large and spacious gallery gives seating accommodation for 700, the floor being well "stepped" from front to back. Ample emergency exits are on each floor, so that in case of need the whole building could be emptied in a few minutes. All doors open outwards, and the emergency exits are provided with patent "panic" bolts. The whole of the staircases and the various corridors leading to staircases are fireproof. The ceiling over the auditorium, the proscenium front, the box fronts, and fronts to gallery and circle are finished in prettily decorated ornamental fibrous plaster, and charming electroliers assist the scheme of embellishment.

NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH CO.

Mr. G. Croydon Marks, M.P., chairman of the National Phonograph Co., presided at a Press luncheon given by his firm at Prince's Hotel on Thursday afternoon. The function was arranged with the object of displaying the latest Edison phonographs, and certainly the results as indicated by the singing and musical accompaniment of such songs as "A hunting we will go," "Daddy," "Stop yer tickling, Jock" (sung by Harry Lauder), and "Out on the Deep" were eminently satisfactory.

The chairman made an interesting speech, as follows:—

We are concerned to-day in speaking of an accomplished fact in reference to the development of the phonograph, that wonderful instrument which originally commanded the astonishment of royal personages, and to-day assures the admiration of the people of all nations on account of its universal adaptability for meeting one of the important ends of life—that is, giving pleasure to those hearing it. It is a far cry from 1908 to the year 1888, when Mr. Edison's phonograph was publicly introduced to an assembly of representatives of the Press, similar to those gathered here to-day, at the Crystal Palace. The developments that have arisen between those periods have all been in the direction of perfecting rather than of introducing new elemental features connected with the machine. There are many inventors who tire of that which has given them original trouble, which, having overcome, leaves but the details to be developed, and it is in this respect that Mr. Edison differs from so many other inventors of the world; he is careful of details, for he knows that the detail may make or mar the success of the whole apparatus.

To work for sixteen months and wearily speak into a phonograph for hours at a time a word such as "Spezia," and then to get back a faint echo "Pezia," must have been a time of patience, but that which the "Wizard"—as Mr. Edison is called—was seeking was to discover some means of overcoming the difficulty associated with the original phonograph connected with the reproduction of sibilants and aspirates. The first word that was ever reproduced from a phonograph, or that which led to the phonograph, was the word "Hulloa," due to the fact that Mr. Edison was experimenting with the telephone, and noticed that when speaking "Hulloa" into the mouthpiece of a telephone the vibrations of his voice sent the fine steel point into his finger, which set him thinking, for, said he, "if I can make that point record the actions over some surface, and afterwards draw the same point over the surface backwards, I ought to get a 'talking machine' or a reproduction of what I have said," and so we may take it that due to the prick of a finger Edison discovered the phonograph.

The original machine, when seen to-day, is a quaint one; the cylinder was a tin foil, and was looked upon by many as a scientific curiosity and by others as a device for enabling dolls to be fitted with something that would make them speak words instead of squeaking sounds. However, this was not Edison's idea of the commercial importance of the phonographs, and thus he has ever been at work on its detail even when engaged upon other most interesting scientific investigations. Up to this moment the Edison record is produced in a complicated yet beautiful process by moulding wax in a gold mould, and has had an immense success, but the demands of the people are for a little longer reproduction from the record, as they are not satisfied with the short run of two minutes as has hitherto been the duration of the ordinary record.

MR. C. CROYDON MARKS, M.P.

We have not asked you here to-day to hear an ordinary record, but to hear that which, while being on an ordinary phonograph, will last double the length of time. This most important improvement has been secured without having called upon owners of existing phonographs to discard their present machines. An attachment has been devised such as will enable the machine to reproduce the new "Amberol" or double duration of record of the old ordinary two minutes' record. The old record has one hundred lines or threads to each inch, and was 3/10in. long. That which has been done is to crowd the lines together and make them two hundred to the inch, a seeming impossibility when one remembers that even with one hundred to the inch they are, of course, impossible of discernment other than as crowded lines to the naked eye. The additional lines, instead of making the record less distinct, have had the opposite effect, so that Edison has produced an "Amberol" record which will last double the time of an ordinary record, and yet fit upon the existing Edison phonograph and be of the same size. The length of thread or line that passes round the "Amberol" record from the beginning to the end of its performance would cover a distance of 5,076in., and thirteen "Amberol" records would measure a mile of music. The finer thread required a small reproducing point, consequently a harder composition, for one alteration necessitates another, and it has taken over two years for several experts under Mr. Edison's direction to overcome first one difficulty and another in order that you may hear the developed and completed "Amberol" record which you have before you to-day.

We propose to give you an opportunity of hearing a few of these new records, and at the same time to ask you to send from this meeting greetings from the representatives of the Press of England to Mr. Edison by a record which we will make here and now in order that the possibilities of the record may be the better appreciated by you.

The chairman's suggestion was carried out by the members of the Fourth Estate, who sent messages to Mr. Edison through the phonograph,

"PUSS-IN-BOOTS" AT THE CANTERBURY.

Pantomime, in Three Scenes, produced on Monday, Dec. 7.

Juan	MISS ETHEL BEECH
Lola	MISS ELSIE DON
Sancho	MR. ARTHUR WATTS
Princess Carita	MISS EVA ELLIS
Dame	MR. WILLIAM BENSON
Pancho	MR. ALGERNON LEE
King Kimolfe	MR. WYN WEAVER

A foretaste of the festive season is this week furnished at the Canterbury, the patrons of which have been regaled with a production in which all the elements of pantomime are contained. A good deal of compression is rendered necessary by the brief period at the disposal of Mr. J. Collins, who presents the piece, which is therefore a continued succession of short songs, dances, and comic devices, while the story proceeds on lines of glorious uncertainty. The curtain rises on the realm of King Kimolfe, in Pandalusia, where there is an animated chorus of peasants and toreadors. Carita, the king's daughter, arouses the love of the youthful Juan, who is in a state of impecuniosity. Agreeably with ancient lore, Puss puts on the fabled boots, and, immediately becoming possessed of the power of speech, promises to provide Juan with a princess. He accomplishes his purpose in an incredibly short space of time without deigning to take the audience into the secret of how it is done, and the happy couple are betrothed.

The honours of the pantomime belong chiefly to Miss Eva Ellis, who makes a captivating Princess, and wins all hearts. Her singing of "A little piece of Dresden china" is very enjoyable, and the accompanying dance is gracefully executed. She has a smart partner in Miss Ethel Beech, who sings "I don't care if there's a girl there" with much vivacity. The King is played by Mr. Wyn Weaver, who makes the utmost out of his opportunities for the display of eccentricity; and the comic capabilities of Mr. William Benson and Mr. Algernon Lee are utilised in the parts of Dame and Pancho, to whose share a topical duet, "Put it to the vote," falls. The Collins Eight Gems, a well-trained troupe of juveniles, furnish agreeable specialities; and one of the most pleasing interpellations is a chorus and dance by the Collins Sextet of dancers, who add some graceful movements to their singing of "Send me a girl along." The pantomime is well mounted, a pretty woodland picture, with a waterfall in the distance, forming a charming environment for the last scene, to which a display of new dresses lends additional colour.

THE Corn Hall, Basingstoke, was opened as a Palace of Varieties on Monday to a crowded audience, under the management of Messrs. Hans Altman and R. C. Jenkins, the resident-manager being Mr. Geoffrey Hill. The following artists appeared: Duncan and Brasque, in a playlet entitled A Society Butterfly; Herbert and Rennie, comedians and dancers; Byron, comedy clay modeller; Mlle. Ottino, lady conjurer; Colin Mail, vocalist; Alfred Howard, actor-vocalist and musician; Dan Kutor, Scotch comedian; and pictures on the Bioscope concluded a fine bill. The orchestra is under the leadership of Herr A. Romanoff.

"AN OLD MAN'S DARLING."

Sketch, by John Chandler, produced at the Middlesex Music Hall on Wednesday, Dec. 9.

Frank Hetherington	MR. FRED LEONARD
May Hetherington	MISS GLADYS OSBORNE
Dr. Binot	MR. ALFRED GRESHAM

An "extra turn" was imported into the bill at the Middlesex on Wednesday evening last, when the sketch above-named received its first production. Thrice before has the title been utilised for small pieces on the regular stage; but the new playlet bears no resemblance to any of its predecessors of the same name. It has the elements of a thrilling little drama, and only requires an infusion of strong dialogue and an elaboration of the chief situation to make it quite acceptable on the variety stage. As it is it occupies only about ten minutes in representation, so slight is its scenario. It is a story of May and December mated. A strong-minded old man of eighty is married to a young girl in her twenties, and the husband, suspecting that his wife has no affection for him, enlists the services of a hypnotist, whom he allows to throw him into a trance so closely resembling death that the wife thinks he has really succumbed to a heart affection. In the presence of the medical man, the girl pretends to be grief-stricken at her bereavement, but no sooner is she alone than she indulges in ecstasies of delight at her release, by means of which she will be enabled to marry a young lover, and gives vent to her joy in a lively dance. The old man, however, at this moment awakes, and, fully convinced of his wife's duplicity, bids her begone for ever. There is room for improvement in the acting, Miss Gladys Osborne being none too thorough in her impersonation of the wife, but she managed to give quite a "Grand Guignol" touch to the scene where the girl indulges in her transports of joy in the presence of the supposed dead man. There is also grim humour in the episode which the Middlesex patrons were quick to perceive. Mr. Fred Leonard acted realistically as the asthmatic old man, though the delivery of his lines was a little too deliberate, and the hypnotist-doctor was creditably played by Mr. Alfred Gresham. The sketch was remarkably well received, several "curtains" being bestowed upon it.

MISS MABEL MAVIS
AT THE WINTER GARDENS, BOURNEMOUTH.

Miss Mabel Mavis proved a host in herself. Her clever trick piano playing including playing with one hand and fanning herself with the other, and also using her elbows with which to tap the keys, was loudly applauded, as were her glassophone solos. Owing to the large number of encores various items of the entertainment had to be omitted.—Daily Echo, Dec. 1, 1908.

A very interesting turn has been provided by Miss Mabel Mavis, a clever and versatile musician.—Visitors' Directory, Dec. 5.

Miss Mabel Mavis, a clever musician and society entertainer.—Guardian, Dec. 5.

No class of entertainment could be more suited to such "toney" places of refined amusement as the Winter Gardens, Bournemouth, than the glassophone solos and expert piano manipulation of Miss Mabel Mavis, who made her début there last Monday with unexcelled success.—Era, Dec. 5.

The Coming Social Events at Bolton Fair.

In addition to the annual showmen's supper and ball, for which arrangements are now being completed, it is confidently expected that there will be a showmen's football match for the championship of the showman world. The rival teams will be those old protagonists Lancashire and Yorkshire.

The Riot at a Welsh Fair.

The unfortunate affray at a colliery village outside of Wrexham, in which a number of showmen were concerned, reached a point this week which permits us, without prejudice to the matter in dispute, to make some reference to what is, at its best, a lamentable business. From what we have been able to gather, it appears that a number of travelling showpeople, mainly exhibiting shooting-galleries and various kinds of throwing-games, pitched upon some private land in the village Coed-Poeth, where there is a large colliery. In order to attract the villagers and the miners to the fairground a prize of a live pig was offered to the successful climber of a greasy pole. Unfortunately, a dispute arose between the showpeople and the patrons of the fair with regard to this particular prize. A riot ensued, and the miners and villagers became so aggressive that the showmen, in fear of their lives, held the mob at bay by using the firearms from the shooting-galleries.

The terrible thing about the matter is that some fifteen people were wounded. The showmen have been before the magistrate, and both the Bench and the police admitted that the showpeople had suffered great provocation, and, although a number of them were originally arrested and charged, the end of the matter up to date is that the two principal showmen only—James Cook, senior, and James Cook, junior—are to stand their trial at the Assizes.

Whilst, of course, it must be admitted that the use of firearms, even under great provocation, is not permissible, there is no doubt that the riot at one time was of such a serious character as to make it quite understandable that men fearing for their lives, and for that of their wives and children, should take the law into their own hands.

Serious Ex-parte Press Comments.

Although this matter is one of the gravest concern to the showman world we have scrupulously refrained, out of the most kindly consideration to the showman concerned, from making any reference to it. We are sorry to notice that considerable capital has been made out of this matter by a certain number of newspapers to prejudice and to injure the character and the avocation in life of the whole body of travelling showpeople.

A glaring example of this appeared in an Ipswich paper, the Evening Star and Daily Herald. It reads as follows:—

"THE PLAGUE OF VAN-DWELLERS.

"When Celt meets gypsy in dispute, it appears but natural to expect an outbreak of violence in some form or another. Last Saturday, for example, a Welsh mining community first stoned and then burnt a travelling fair owned by gypsies, who, in their turn, resorted to the use of shooting-gallery rifles, wounding no less than fourteen of the crowd. The innocent subject of this dispute was a pig, offered as prize in a greasy-pole competition, which was apparently unjustly withheld by the 'fair' people who promoted the contest.

"To find the real cause of this serious outburst of feeling—even allowing for the proverbial Celtic temperament—one has to seek further than righteous indignation on the part of successful competitors at being baulked of their porcine guerdon. The wandering alien nuisance is not unknown in the large towns, Ipswich included, but it is fortunately only rarely in the larger communities that these lawless wastrels defy law and decency with the same impunity as is noticed in rural Britain.

"How strongly their presence is resented by all classes in those districts is hardly appreciated by the authorities. Landowners and tenants alike, especially farmers, unite in a common dislike of these whilom picturesque Bohemians who now merely serve as a recruiting agency for an ever-increasing band of itinerant ne'er-do-wells.

The inhabitants of Leiston, obviously a more law-abiding people than the Welsh of the hills, have recently appealed to the Urban District Council to prohibit the nuisance created by these so-called fairs, and it is satisfactory to note that they have not been unsuccessful.

"It seems a pity some better regulation of the vagrant population cannot be instituted. The Scottish authorities not long ago set a good example by expelling some German gypsies, whose half-starved, performing bears were a terror to the countryside. The home-born gypsy problem is perhaps a difficult one to handle, but surely it should be possible to prevent any accession to their numbers from Europe."

The Answer of the Showmen's Guild.

At a recent special committee of the Showmen's Guild held at Manchester this matter was under consideration, and the Guild Chaplain was requested to write a letter to the Ipswich paper in vindication of the van-dwellers who are showmen and provide the popular amusements of the people. The Rev. T. Horne indited the following letter:—

"Dec. 9, 1908.

"To the Editor, the Evening Star and Daily Herald.

"Sir,—Several of the members of my Guild have sent me cuttings of your leader on 'The Plague of Van-dwellers,' under date Nov. 10. They point out to me that such an attack upon the character and the business in life of travelling showmen is calculated to do them a serious injury and to prejudice the show business in the eyes of the general public. The provision of the open-air amusements of the people of Great Britain is one of the oldest industries of our country. The fairs, feasts, and wakes of Great Britain provide wholesome and cheap amusements not only for the toiling millions, but for all classes of the community. Throughout the great industrial belt of England, where the workers are massed together in large centres of life, the fairs have not only grown with the growth of the nation, but it is being increasingly recognised that the very best form of amusement at holiday times is that which induces the workers to spend their holiday in the open air.

"This industry of the fairground employs directly seventy thousand persons, and indirectly it contributes to other industries concerned in the making and distributing of the working plant of the showmen themselves and the innumerable articles, fairings, toys, &c., sold on the fairgrounds. It is a great mistake to imagine that the fairs are dying out or that the permanent music halls and theatres supply all the needs of popular and cheap amusements for the people. Great municipalities like London (the L.C.C.), Manchester, Liverpool, Birmingham, Leeds, Sheffield, Bradford, Hull, and over a hundred other large and growing towns, not only recognise the necessity and utility of the fairs, but they are co-operating, through the Showmen's Guild, with the showmen to improve the entertainments offered to the people.

"You will quite understand, Sir, that the great body of showmen, who are of necessity van-dwellers—for the home of the showman-on-wheels must be part of the working plant of the show—resent the very title of your article, 'The Plague of Van-dwellers.'

"With your local circumstances I, of course, can have no concern, and it is not so much your application of the warning of the lamentable affair at Coed Poeth that I join issue with, but it is the generalisations particularly when you refer to the 'common dislike of these whilom picturesque Bohemians who now merely serve as a recruiting agency for an ever-increasing band of itinerant ne'er-do-wells.'

"And, again, you say that 'it seems a pity some better regulation of the vagrant population cannot be instituted.' Your concluding remarks, too, are very misleading. You say 'that the home gipsy problem is perhaps a difficult one to handle, but surely it should be possible to prevent an accession of their numbers from Europe.' I admit that the gipsy problem is a difficult one; but I submit that it is very unfair to confound showmen van-dwellers with gipsies. The two classes are so essentially different that it is to me a constant source of amazement that anyone should make the mistake of regarding every person in a van as a gipsy. It is particularly unfortunate in this particular instance, for the Press agencies, with almost one consent, dubbed these unfortunate showpeople as being gipsies. The truth of the matter is that they are not gipsies, but itinerant providers of small amusements, shooting galleries, throwing games, and variety stalls.

"So obvious was the mistake that a considerable amount of public sympathy was shown towards them by the people of Wrexham, and a number of local gentlemen bailed them out after the first police inquiry. For many years I have carried on a distinctly religious and educational work amongst the showpeople of Great Britain. In this work I have the sanction of the Bishops and the cordial assistance of the local clergy. I have been identified with the van-dwellers of our fairs, feasts, and wakes for over twenty years past. I know them to be honest, law-abiding, industrious citizens of the commonwealth. It has been my duty to speak for them and to defend them whenever they have been unjustly attacked.

"I therefore trust, Sir, to your sense of justice and impartiality, and that you will give this vindication of van-dwellers as wide a publicity as the article I have referred to obtained.—Yours ever, for God and for good, "T. Horne.

The Mitcham Fair Rights.

Following on the surprising developments of public opinion at Mitcham concerning the scheme of a few persons to abolish the old Charter Fair, the Rev. T. Horne, Guild Chaplain, has opened up negotiations again with the Mitcham Conservators. Of course, the impending inquiry into the whole of the circumstances leading up to the attempt to abolish the Fair without the consent of the Home Secretary makes it of the gravest importance that the organised London showmen concerned in the maintenance of Mitcham Fair, should not only tender evidence at the L.G.B. inquiry, but that they should submit at this critical juncture suggestions from the showmen's side for a settlement of the question.

"To the Chairman and Members of the Board of Conservators of Mitcham Common.

"Gentlemen,—About this time last year I laid before your Board various proposals with regard to the removal of the venue of Mitcham Fair to another part of the Common. My last communication to your Board discussed the possibility of removing the Fair to (1) the Three Kings Common; (2) Figgs Marsh; (3) a site at a point on the Croydon road known as the Blue Houses; (4) the Sand Pits, still further away on the road to Croydon; or, failing these sites, any other site determined by the Conservators, the organised showmen undertaking to prepare and lay out the fairground to the entire satisfaction of the Board and at their own cost. The showmen also were ready to pay such yearly rent to the Conservators as might be deemed adequate and mutually satisfactory.

"The other points of public interest were that the organised showmen, through the Showmen's Guild, would co-operate with the Conservators in getting the consent of the Home Secretary to the removal of the old Fair to its new site, and also would guarantee that the entertainments of the Fair should be subjected to full control and veto of the authorities. You will find in the letter under date Jan. 7 (copy enclosed) the answer to that communication.

"I am enclosing for your information a printed copy of the whole of the correspondence between myself as the appointed Conciliator for the organised showmen and the Mitcham Conservators and the holders of the Fair franchise.

"Since then great additional interest has been given to the question of the retention of Mitcham Fair by the proceedings of your Board, and by the striking development of public indignation leading up to a duly convened parish meeting, at which resolutions were passed condemning the means taken to raise funds by the abolitionists of the Fair, and a demand to the Local Government Board to hold an inquiry into the matter, so that the people of Mitcham might know why it was that £400 of the ratepayers' money was voted for the purpose, with which the great body of the people of Mitcham disagreed.

"It is in the light of these recent events that I venture to attempt to reopen the abortive negotiations of a year ago with your Board. In the face of the manifest desire of the people of Mitcham to retain their local Fair and annual holiday, I venture to ask your Board to consider whether it is not wise to accept the strong expression of public opinion in favour of retaining the Fair, and to admit that the matter has materially changed owing to the decision of the parish meeting to ask for an L.G.B. inquiry.

"This point is considerably emphasised by the admission of the Clerk to the Parish Council that the Council had no right to vote public money for the purchase of Fair rights.

"I am extremely anxious to re-open negotiations with your Board, either on the basis of my letter, briefly outlined in the opening paragraphs of this communication, or (1) to purchase the Fair rights at the same price paid for them to Mrs. Bailey; (2) agreeing either to continuing the Fair on its present limited area, and limiting the shows and stalls to the ground at our disposal, or petitioning jointly with you even after we have repurchased the Fair rights for its transfer to a site to be decided upon.

"You will understand that if we purchase the Fair rights at their present value, and accept the financial risk involved in a petition for its removal to another site, that the new owner of the Fair rights would be entitled to the use at the Fair time of space on the new ground equal in area and letable value to the relinquished Fair Green.

"In venturing, gentlemen, to put these suggestions before you, I assume that you do not feel it your duty to go contrary to the manifest wishes of the people of Mitcham, whose interests you serve as Conservators of the Common Lands.

"I shall be glad to have an expression of opinion from you, and place myself entirely at your disposal in the endeavour to obtain a satisfactory solution of what is fast becoming a burning question in Mitcham.—Yours ever, for God and for good. "T. Horne."

For the old tenants of the fair who in 1906 and 1907 were mulcted in heavy law costs and placed under an injunction of the High Court, the Rev. T. Horne has addressed the following letter to the President of the Local Government Board:—

Dec. 8, 1908.

To the Right Hon. John Burns, M.P., President of the Local Government Board.

Sir,—The Showmen's Guild, a trade organisation representing the showmen of Great Britain, begs to submit the following statement with regard to the proposed abolition of Mitcham Fair. We do so because we know that you are being asked to hold an enquiry into the circumstances of the grant of £400 of the ratepayers' money to help a scheme to purchase the fair rights, with a view to the abolition of the people's fair. We understand that, stripped of its technicalities, this money has been devoted with other monies to purchase the fair rights. If an enquiry is granted we respectfully claim to be heard thereat. A number of our members are already under an injunction of the High Court for having dared to maintain the fair until it is properly abolished by an order from the Home Office. Our members have already been mulcted in heavy legal charges, amounting to nearly £200, in trying to assert the principle that the fair exists until such time as it is abolished according to statute. We therefore feel that as the grant of the £400 was a material element in putting power into the hands of the abolishers of the fair, that we are entitled, we submit, to be heard as parties concerned in the enquiry, if such enquiry be held at Mitcham.—We are, Sir, yours respectfully,

T. Horne, Organiser.

Neath.

Messrs. Orecraft extended their visit for another week. On Thursday night, under the patronage of the ex-Mayor, Dr. Thomas, and several influential inhabitants, a special performance was given in aid of the Nursing Association, when the whole of the proceeds was handed over to the committee. A vote of thanks was accorded to Messrs. Orecraft for the generous way they had chosen to recognise local charities. Mr. Orecraft responded in a few well-chosen words that it gave him and his family great pleasure in aiding the sweet cause of charity, and he hoped at a later date to again help any deserving cause at Neath.

A Coming-of-Age Party in Showland.

Miss Lucy Maude Whiteley ("Dolly"), daughter of that well-known showman, Thomas Whiteley, of cinematograph fame, attained her twenty-first birthday this last week. To commemorate the interesting event, Mr. and Mrs. Whiteley invited a number of their friends to a birthday party. Amongst the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Wilkinson (Wigan), Mr. and Mrs. Palmer (Wigan), Mr. Alf. Bussell, Mrs. Annie Morse, Miss Lena Wallis, Miss Ross Sedgwick (Liverpool), Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Whiteley, jun., Mr. Percy Whiteley, Mrs. Dickenson, Mr. Bert Roberts, and numerous others.

The toast of the evening, wishing Miss Whiteley "Many happy returns," was proposed in felicitous words by Mr. Fred Sharpe, and was responded to in the most hearty and demonstrative manner by the whole of the company. The guests and the family party spent an exceedingly pleasant evening, and one that will be long remembered by all who had the pleasure of taking part in it.

The birthday presents were both numerous and costly; the following list gives a few of them: Mr. Thomas Whiteley (father), cheque; Mr. and Mrs. Wilkinson, silver comb and hair brush; Mrs. Palmer, silk Japanese head shawl; Miss Lena Wallis, silver toilet set; Mrs. Fred Sharpe (sister), silver egg stand; Mrs. W. Haferkorn (sister), diamond bracelet; Mr. Tom Haferkorn, silver mounted purse; Miss K. Haferkorn, silk neck shawl; Master W. Haferkorn, silver belt; Miss K. Whiteley (sister), diamond brooch; Mr. T. Whiteley, jun., gold stud ear-rings; Mr. Alf. Russell and Miss Morse, silver scent-bottles; Mr. Fred Wiesker, gold bracelet; Mrs. Whiteley, silver tea service; Miss Florrie Haferkorn, silk handkerchiefs; Mr. Percy Whiteley (brother), diamond necklace; Mrs. Dickenson, silk handkerchiefs; Joe Whiteley (brother), diamond cross; Mr. Bert Roberts, silver fruit dish.

Notes from Wales.

Mr. H. Steel Parry's Electric Bioscope occupies a site on the fairground at Bridgend, South Wales, this week, and is attracting many visitors. The pictures are bright, varied, and amusing, while interesting variety turns are given, aided by a concert gramophone.

The Phoenix Theatre, under the proprietorship of Mr. Harry Cowell, at the Carmarthen Pleasure Fairground, continues to attract large audiences. On Monday Hunted Down was presented with much dramatic effect; Tuesday, The Poacher's Fate; Wednesday, East Lynne; Thursday, The Lady of Lyons; and Friday, The Ticket-of-Leave Man. For Saturday evening The Octoroon was billed. Considering the fact that the company have to study different parts each evening, the acting is really good, and the staging of the respective plays very effective.

Mr. Frank A. Small, Press representative of the White City, Manchester, writes:—"Showmen can no more do without The Era than can the Churchman do without his Prayer-book."

THE TALKING PHOTOGRAPH.

Mr. Thomas Bedding, F.R.P.S., recently read a paper before the London and Provincial Photographic Association. Referring to moving pictures in America, Mr. Bedding stated: The moving picture in America is a form of entertainment which satisfies the temperamental demand of a nation for constant change, variety, and novelty in its amusements. Made commercial about fourteen years ago, the device of projecting by artificial light numerous small photographs in consecutive series so as to give an audience the illusion of lifelike motion is now firmly established in public favour. The moving picture theatre to-day is as marked a feature of American amusement life as the house on the boards of which the living actor struts his brief hour for the amusement of the people. In New York City alone there are between two and three hundred moving picture theatres. It is probably near the mark to say that the average daily attendance at these theatres reaches the number of half a million persons. In Denver recently 11,000 people patronised a moving picture theatre in one day. In Philadelphia theatres have been specially built for the moving pictures, which equal in completeness, costliness, and beauty the most elaborate of the old-fashioned form of theatre. And what is true of these cities is generally true of the whole of the large cities of the United States of America, where the capital invested in the moving picture industry runs into hundreds of millions of dollars. This photographic ministration to the pleasure of the eye is a natural development in a country where the cults of the spectacular in advertising devices, in illuminated signs, and in the science of directing attention to the saleable articles are carried to their uttermost limits.

In England, hitherto, the moving picture has been exploited as a supplement to the daily newspaper. A horse race, a ceremony, a procession, the arrival or departure of a King or other notability—some happening of the day, in short, has furnished the theme for an evening turn at the theatre of varieties. England is such a small place that the lovers of topical moving pictures are easily catered for. The very vastness of the United States, on the other hand, operates against this usage of moving pictures. In both countries we shall see a vast growth in popularity of moving pictures in narrative form—plays, operas, sketches, songs, dances, and so forth shown by simple optical projection on a stationary screen.

A development of the system is obvious to those who, like myself, have followed the evolution in moving pictures work since the productions of Lumière, Birt Acres, and others in 1895. The association of the photograph with the phonograph was a logical combination that was bound sooner or later to be made. A living performer on a stage does no more than appeal to the senses of sight and hearing. A moving picture on the screen interests the eye alone; but if it can be made to seemingly talk or sing as well as move, dance, or walk, we arrive at that fine point in scientific ingenuity where Art successfully displaces (and replaces) Nature. It does not precisely matter how, or by what means the optic and aural nerves are excited to produce in the brain the sensations of movement and sound; the resulting effect is the same, whether it be by human or mechanical agency. The emotions of pleasure and interest are aroused, and the mind is stimulated and absorbed. Caruso and Melba do no more; Irving and Jefferson did no more. The human machines—for such these gifted persons are or were—have merely been replaced by the mechanical productions of the studio and workshop, which millions, instead of merely hundreds, can see and hear at one time. Argue round this proposition as you will, and as much as we may, it is a fact that the equality of Art with Nature is in process of daily demonstration, and that a combination of the work of the camera and the phonograph gives us a result as sensuously if not as aesthetically pleasing as the real thing.

We must realise that the public taste in the matter of entertainments has undergone great changes in recent years. The times are too strenuous for the long drawn out dramas, tragedies, and the like of our parents. We take our pleasures in tabloid doses—many and often. Short plays, quick and numerous turns at the variety theatres: these are the comparison phenomena of the paragraphic newspapers; the automobile, the Kodak, the motor-boat, and many other conveniences of the Age of Speed. The civilised world, it is said, is rapidly becoming Americanised. A good thing, too, for Americans know how to get more out of life than most other people. If we must be entertained, let us be entertained quickly, brightly, and cheaply.

The talking photograph, then, makes its appearance at the psychological moment. The world has been waiting for it, and should be happy now that it has got it. Excuse me for saying that "it has come to stay." Of two hackneyed phrases that and the other—"a long felt want"—I have chosen, I think, the least undesirable. The Melba, Caruso, Irving, or Jefferson of the future instead of wearing herself or himself out in public will live comfortably on an early-made reputation by producing phonographic "records" in the boudoir or the study.

Ignorant persons of the superior variety sometimes jeer at the photographic qualities of moving pictures. They know nothing of the great difficulties of making them. They do not realise the fact that by the time it reaches the screen each little photograph in the series is magnified many hundreds of times. The consequence is that each microscopical defect or mark on the film is enormously enlarged, and the marvel is not that the photographs as seen by the public are not entirely faultless, but that they are so good, so even in quality, so realistic in effect. A more wonderful illusion than the talking photograph does not exist in the world to-day. You get a faithful reproduction of the original scene and the people in it; you watch their lifelike movements and gestures; you listen to their voices whether speaking or singing—in a word, the whole thing when well done is so astounding that people are known, at the first blush, to refuse to believe in the possibility of the phenomena being other than real.

It is clear that this form of entertainment is capable of great development. The arts of the painter, the dramatist, the musician, the costumier, are being pressed into its service; the intellectual cravings of all classes in the community will be catered for; and before long hardly a village in the civilised world will be without its talking picture theatre. It is all an obvious and legitimate growth and modern science and enterprise, and I specially predict the greatest popularity for this kind of entertainment in England, where, as I have said, those responsible for the amusement of the people are just waking up to the immeasurable possibilities of the talking photograph.

Mr. Bedding concluded by giving a short account of the manner in which talking photographs are made by the Cameraphone Company, of New York, of whose experimental department he had charge.

THE WHITE-GLOVED MAN.—In this we are given a dramatic comedy by M. George Docquois.—An adventurer is going out in search of somebody he may dupe. He looks respectable, his clothes are of the best cut, in spite of his purse being quite empty. He finds his opportunity in a night restaurant in the person of a beautiful girl, smartly dressed, with a dog-collar necklace of the most costly pearls. The lady answers his curtsey, because she thinks she likes the look of him, and they soon begin talking like old friends. The moment their motor-car stops at her gate, a haggard-looking rascal, Mr. Pennorth, opens the door, and looks after them steadily as they disappear in the garden. He, also, is in search of an opportunity. An hour later the swell leaves his new friend, and looks with pleasure at the thing he has just slipped out of his pocket, i.e., the pearl necklace, but his white gloves, bought that very day, drop from his pocket at the same time, unknown to him. Left alone, Mr. Pennorth picks them up, and puts them on. He has never looked so elegant before, and, taking from his pocket a skeleton key, he enters the villa, and forces the desk open; but he is disturbed by the beautiful girl, and in order to secure his escape he strangles her. There is an inquest. Near the body they find a pair of white gloves with the address of the glove merchant inside. With this clue it is not difficult to trace the robber of the pearl necklace, who is naturally supposed to be the murderer. He is arrested, although he pleads "not guilty." Just as the van stops outside the prison, Mr. Pennorth steps forward, and cynically cringing, picks up, with the air of one with a pure conscience, the walking-stick the examining magistrate has just dropped.

INDIARUBBER SHOES.—Mr. Rolly has just bought a pair of boots fitted with indiarubber soles, which make him rebound like a ball and perform high jumps, thus causing him to cross over rivers, lakes, newspaper stalls, &c., like the ogre in the fairy tale with his seven-mile boots. Mr. Rolly is very pleased, but his jumps make him sometimes land on passers-by. It is very lucky for him that he can walk so quickly, and get home, where his servant, catching hold of him by chance, takes off the ill-fated boots, else he would have had a very unpleasant time at the hands of his victims.

THE MISDEEDS OF A SACK OF COAL.—Chased by several passers-by on whom he has been playing tricks, Bob takes refuge in a sack of coal. Unluckily for him, the coalman takes the sack on his shoulders and carries the whole to the house of his customer. Bob makes himself comfortable, cuts a slit in the canvas, and from his place of vantage he plays all sorts of pranks on everybody. He has a ripping time; but where it becomes less amusing is when Bob is put into the cellar, and then caught by the house-porter, who gives him a good thrashing for being where he is not wanted, and really Bob finds now that it is not all exciting fun to do such things as playing tricks.

WHALING IN THE SOUTH SEAS.—This is a most interesting picture of a certain phase of a great industry. The scenes depicting the sighting of the great monster of the sea, the whaler pursuing her prey, the harpoon attack, and with a harpoon embedded in its side, the wounded whale swimming swiftly, dragging the boat after it. The whale is eventually brought alongside the whaler, and carried to shore to be cut up. The monster represented in the picture measured 63ft. in length, weighed 87 tons, yielded 37 tons of grease, 30 tons of oil, and 37cwt. of fins.

AN IMPROVISED CONSULTATION.—The doctor having been called away on account of a serious motor-car accident, has not returned when the consultation hour comes, and the patients are growing impatient. Adolphus, his servant, is a resourceful man, and having lived in the home of the doctor for some time he thinks he will be able to see the patients himself. Having put on his master's clothes, he very solemnly prescribes the most unheard of medicines to the astonished people. But all is discovered a little later at the chemist's, and Adolphus, having been found at the public-house after his day's work, is handled roughly by his former patients.

THE CUSTOMS-OFFICER'S FIANCÉE.—A smuggler's daughter, in whom the chief of the gang has become interested, has given her heart to the young customs officer she sees during the long hours of the smugglers' absence. The smugglers arrive, loaded with bales of goods. Their path is a dangerous one on the rocks. The young officer is lying in wait there, and as they cannot avoid passing him, they assault him. A stab in the back makes him fall down. A long time after the skirmish, the poor officer arrives exhausted at the house of his sweetheart. In a fit of despair she runs to the customs house for help, and while the wound is carefully bandaged up, the girl is cross examined. She hesitates a long time before betraying her people. At last she promises to deliver the chief of the gang into the officers' hands. On her return she calls the man, who follows her to the cliffs unsuspicious of her treacherous designs, yet wondering and happy at her sudden change of mood, until he is captured by the customs officers on duty amongst the rocks.

COLONIAL VIRGINIA.—The great value of moving pictures is well illustrated in this subject, for here we see the colonists as they lived, together with historical scenes and incidents connected with the founding of Jamestown, Virginia. It was in April, 1607, that the first landing was made at Cape Henry. Three ships arrived in Chesapeake Bay bearing gentlemen and mechanics, all fortune-seekers. An amusing scene occurred one month after their landing. It was at this time the party arrived at the spot where Jamestown now stands, and were the cause of the hurried departure of a band of Indians who were enjoying an oyster roast on the beach. Profiting by the absence of the Indians, the new arrivals experienced their first oyster roast in America. We are now given a sight of the colonists' first Legislative Assembly, from which two unruly members are ejected. After this we are introduced to a merry-making promoted to entertain a ship-load of buxom English maidens who have come out to make the colonists happy. An event of a different character is now shown us. It is the institution of the first American slave market. A very realistic representation of the destruction of Jamestown by fire is shown, and a most interesting scene of the visit of a Virginia colonist visiting England and introducing tobacco to Sir Walter Raleigh follows. The subject is wound up with a picture of a colonial ball many years later, when the colony was well established and prosperous.

THE NEW STENOGRAPHER.—Burns tells us the best laid schemes of mice and men "gang a-ft agley," and Joy and Hope are no exceptions when they plot against a woman. Joy and Hope are a firm of theatrical agents who advertise for a typist. This announcement being seen by an intimate friend, he telegraphs that he is sending a "peach." This message arrives at breakfast-time, Mrs. Joy seeing the message. Then Joy's trouble begins. Arriving at the office, he finds Hope barricaded in an inner office, a policeman on guard, and typists of all kinds besieging the place. The recommended "peach" arrives, is admitted, but Mrs. Joy—a good second—is refused admittance by the policeman. Not to be denied, she gains an entrance, but her little detention has given the firm time to hatch a plot of evasion. Hope borrows, and puts on, the blouse and skirt of the "peach," then dons a wig, and upon the entry of Mrs. Joy he is found busy working the typewriter. The girl is, of course, hidden away in another room. Critically examining the supposed new typist, Mrs. Joy finds "her" harmless, but her suspicions are aroused when she is not allowed to depart through the other door. Forcing her way through, she finds, and brings forth, the trembling girl. Being unable to explain, Mrs. Joy goes to the supposed typist for sympathy, and weepingly persuades "her" to accompany her home. The play must proceed to the bitter end, so Hope goes with her, Joy following to find his wife in dishabille and Hope very nervous. Finally Mrs. Joy dons a new bathing suit to show the supposed typist, whilst her husband is kept busy trying to prevent discovery. Hope tries to escape, but in the resulting struggle his wig is pulled off accidentally, and the whole plot is shown up.

Lumière Non-Inflammable Film.

AN extremely interesting demonstration was given at the Holborn Restaurant on Tuesday evening by the Lumière N.A. Company (of 89, Great Russell-street, W.C.), when the properties of that firm's patent gelatine film were thoroughly tested and found to be highly satisfactory. Hitherto all cinematograph positives have been printed on film with a celluloid base. The properties of celluloid are so generally known that an explanation of its qualities is unnecessary here. One outstanding feature, however, is the danger of fire inseparable from the use of celluloid film, owing to its highly inflammable nature, which has, unfortunately, led to loss of life and property. The new Lumière patent film, having neither celluloid or any kindred substance in its composition, is completely non-inflammable, and even if left in the projecting apparatus unprotected from the heat of the illuminant, suffers no change beyond blistering, and under no circumstances does it ignite. The Lumière Company claim that their new non-inflammable film removes all possibility of fire and the attendant dangers which have hitherto been attached to the use of cinematograph films. The visitors to this demonstration were invited to test personally in any way they desired the claims made by the Lumière Company on behalf of their non-inflammable film, and the results were distinctly to the credit of the Company, the scenes shown by the film being clear and distinct.

Fire Preventative and Extinguishing Apparati.

MR. WALTER REYNOLDS, L.C.C. presided on Thursday morning at the Hippodrome over a committee of judges appointed for the purpose of examining and reporting upon certain inventions calculated to prevent or extinguish cinematograph fires. The other members of the committee were Mr. J. T. Bullock (Union Insurance Company), Mr. R. Brice Higgins (Caledonian Insurance Company), Mr. Arthur C. Cockburn (Norwich Union Insurance Company), Mr. C. Seaton (National General Assurance Company), Mr. R. W. Paul (representing the manufacturers of cinematograph apparatus), and Mr. T. J. West (representing the exhibitors of the various protective devices). Mr. Oswald Stoll, who has all along interested himself in and helped to promote this demonstration, permitted the use of the Hippodrome, the manager of which, Mr. Fred Trussell, superintended the general arrangements in connection with the exhibits, Mr. Frank Parker attending to the electric lighting and directing affairs connected with the machinery. Mr. Frank Allen, a director of the Hippodrome Company, was also present and rendered assistance.

MR. REYNOLDS, in opening the proceedings, stated that there was not the slightest desire on the part of the London County Council to interfere with any man who was trying to get a living with a cinematograph machine. Everyone knew that the animated pictures formed one of the most delightfully entertaining and educating of all the amusements now placed at the disposal of the public. They were met there that morning for a noble purpose, namely, that of protecting the public against fire. That, too, was the object which the L.C.C. ever had before them, and most desiderated.

THE committee then proceeded to examine the various inventions, the exhibitors being Messrs. Shilbeck Brothers, the Charles Urban Trading Co., Ltd.; the Underwriters' Fire Appliances, Ltd.; Weisker and Co., of Liverpool; the Walturdaw Company, Butcher and Sons, Kann and Company, Tacchi and Co., Pathé Frères, the Gaumont Company, the Dawson Cinematograph Company, W. Faulkner, W. Bennett, J. Wrench and Son, and the Lumière Company. The representative of the last-mentioned firm, to whose demonstration earlier in the week reference will be found in these columns, gave a striking test of the non-inflammability of the Lumière gelatine film by applying a light to a quantity of it. The film "frizzled," but did not flare up, while a mass of celluloid film which was similarly treated speedily ended its existence in a bright conflagration. We understand that the decision of the judges will be made known very shortly, and no doubt that decision will form a recommendation to the London County Council.

SAVED FROM THE SEA; or, the Man They Could Not Hang. A brilliant, superb, cinematograph version of Mr. Arthur Shirley's great drama. Played to crowded houses all over the country. Scene 1: Jim and Dan rescue a little girl—the only survivor of a wreck. She is adopted by Mr. Ellington and named Nancy Ellington. Scene 2: Ten years later. Dan and Nancy are lovers. Jim is also in love with Nancy, and vows to kill Dan and marry Nancy himself. Scene 3: Dan and Nancy are married. Scalcher and Fenton find out that Nancy is entitled to a fortune, and scheme to obtain the money by foul means. Jim is told that Dan's life stands between him and a fortune, and he decides to get rid of Dan. Scene 4: Jim and Dan start out for the day. On board Jim has a violent struggle with Dan, overpowers him, and ties him to the mast, lights the fuse of a quantity of blasting cartridges, gets into the dinghy and pulls away with all speed. Scene 5: Nancy suspects plot and goes to the rescue. Immediately after the rescue smack blows up and sinks. Scene 6: Scalcher and Fenton obtain entrance to Dan's cottage and attempt to murder Nancy. They are disturbed by Jim and hide behind the curtains. Jim begs Nancy to give him money to enable him to escape. Nancy goes out of the room, and a terrific struggle takes place between the three scoundrels; Jim is murdered and others escape. Dan now enters, followed by police and rogues, and is accused of the murder and taken into custody. Scene 7: Dan, under sentence of death, is allowed an interview with his wife. Scaffold scene; bolt refuses to work three times, and sentence commuted to penal servitude. Scene 8: In the Quarries. Scalcher (also imprisoned) working with Dan. They plot to escape and are successful. Scalcher is wounded. Scene 9: Dan's Cottage. Arrival of escaped prisoners. Fenton also appears. Scalcher confesses to the murder and accuses Fenton of being his accomplice. Fenton is imprisoned and Dan liberated.

It has been authoritatively stated

That a new law compelling the use of a Fire Extinguishing Apparatus on every Kinematograph Show throughout the country will come into force at Christmas.

THE GAUMONT CO.'S

PATENT EXTINGUISHING DEVICE

HAS THE FOLLOWING POINTS:

1. It is reasonable in cost.
2. An absolutely reliable safeguard.
3. Does not under any circumstances injure the film.
4. It represents a very slight operation in threading the machine.
5. No cotton or other similar device required to release it.
6. Is always in operation.
7. It does not let loose a flood of water or sand or other material to ruin the film and injure the machine in case of fire.
8. It cannot "go off" accidentally with the same effect when there is no fire.

VAUDEVILLE CLUB SMOKER.

THE members of the Vaudeville Club and some of their friends spent a most delightful evening at the premises in Charing Cross-road on Sunday evening and the early hours of Monday morning, when the club's ninth grand Bohemian smoking concert was held. Mr. W. W. Sampson presided over a goodly gathering, the entertainment, which lasted from 9.30 p.m. until 2 a.m., being of the bumper order. Mr. Harrison Brockbank aroused the enthusiasm of his audience by his fine rendering of Kipling's "Follow me," and another gentleman whose first name is Harrison—to wit, Mr. Latimer—also distinguished himself in the vocal line. Mr. Horace Goldin submitted some clever sleight-of-hand tricks, which were greatly admired; Mr. Walter Hart was capital in his representation of the late Sir Henry Irving as Shylock and in his song "Keepsakes"; Mr. Humphrey Bishop delivered in fine style two pieces, "The Old Shako" and "The Trumpeter"; Mr. Percy Yorke sang "The Bandolero" and "Bonny Mary of Argyle"; Mr. Will McIvor delighted his hearers with his fine interpretation of "The Star of Bethlehem" and "Sally in our alley"; Mr. Bosanquet played in pleasing fashion on the Bosanquephone a couple of selections, "O, star of eve" and "Eileen Alannah"; and Mr. Andie Caine caused huge merriment with his ditties, "The River Gay" and "The Sparrow." Mr. Dave O'Toole entertained with "The Spanish Serenade" Mr. Dusty Rhodes was also mirth-provoking in a couple of numbers; Mr. Wilson Hallett was extremely funny in his imitations of little girls, and his vocal representations of various people reciting "The Charge of the Light Brigade"; and Mr. Harry Claff won golden opinions for his singing of "The Toreador" (from Carmen) and "The Gallant Salamander." Mr. Tom Child was heard in a capital performance of "Take a pair of sparkling eyes" and "I hear you calling me"; Mr. George Ridgwell capitally executed a cornet solo ("Killarney"); Mr. Bernard Russell submitted "Muddled Melodies" and "The Vegetarian"; Mr. Irve Hayman was most comical in a recitation, "The Sullivan v. Silvestre Bowling Match"; and Messrs. Edward E. Ford and Stanley Holt gained much applause in musical turns. Mr. Pennyston Miles was an able and untiring accompanist, and Messrs. W. H. McCarthy (secretary) and T. H. Case (manager) rendered excellent service in other directions.

LITTLE HACKENSCHMIDT, the champion bantamweight wrestler, who was reported by some papers as having died, says he is very much alive and in best of health.

MR. FRED P. VERE (of Vere and Royal) desires it to be known to artists and managers that he is in no way connected with the person of the same name convicted at Nottingham this week.

THE FINANS, having finished their music-hall season, return to Milton Bode for pantomime, playing their old parts of Chinese policemen in Aladdin at the Grand Theatre, Wolverhampton.

MR. PERCY VICTOR, who is now appearing at the Crystal Palace with his wonderful dogs, has been engaged to produce Mr. J. P. Moore's forthcoming Whittington pantomime.

MR. W. S. HARTFORD, who concludes to-night his ninth re-engagement with Mr. J. F. Elliston, will, on Monday, at Peter Davey's cosy theatre at Kingston, produce a new and original monologue, specially written for him by Harry Mapleson, who doubles the parts of scenic artist and author. It is called by the happy title When We Were Boys Together, and Mr. Hartford plays the dual rôle of two brothers—one a City gentleman, the other a burglar.

FUN CITY AT OLYMPIA.

Mr. Charles B. Cochran, the manager of the Fun City at the Olympia Annexe, opened that happy fairground on Monday evening. There is plenty to see and hear. On the ample stage in the centre of the hall "vaudeville sessions" are given three times daily, and the performances may be witnessed free of charge, though for sixpence or a shilling one is given a comfortable seat on the raked floor. The array of talent presented—which, by the way, is to be changed weekly—speaks for itself. Performing animals possessing almost human intelligence, amazing gymnasts, grotesque comedians, freaks, jugglers, dancers, and many sensational acts are brought to our notice. One of the chief items on the programme this week is that of Permane's Siberian educated bears, which are a remarkably accomplished lot of animals, and include a talking bear. Then there are the Paalias, who are greatly admired in a graceful gymnastic act, in which is introduced a Lilliputian performer who goes by the name of Little Paalia, and who, for his 9st. and his 4ft. 10in. height, is quite a picture of muscular development. The Missouris are exceedingly entertaining eccentric comedians, and the Dancing Gilberts furnish a most attractive Terpsichorean act. Mme. Roma's six juggling girls execute many smart tricks, and Walter Levetto proves that he has wonderful abilities as a pedestal dancer. Les Surpriskis present an interesting and daring gymnastic act, and Frivola and Deep, from the Folies Bergères, are a highly entertaining couple of artists.

Special mention can be made of a natural history exhibit, which is in the charge of Mme. Siva, who, by the way, was showing snakes last year. This season she is presiding over a large tank of water containing crocodiles. Of these she has six, and the mystifying part of the show is that she contrives to make them act and move in precisely the way she desires. She appears to have complete mastery over them, and one of them, which she affectionately terms "Baby"—though the baby is five years old, that is considered extreme infancy in the family of any decent crocodile, for these reptiles live to a hundred—has only just arrived from Florida, and had a serious illness on the voyage. Certainly the alligator farm is worth a visit.

There are, of course, in addition to the attractions already mentioned, several "side shows." The lighthouse helter skelter is an old friend, but none the less popular. The Brooklyn cake walk, like roller skating, makes one graceful. The bicycle circus gives fine opportunity for exercise, whilst Frank Wilson's rifle range should not be missed by those who have the defence of England at heart. Cokernut shies and gamés there are in plenty, and in Salome and Transmigration one finds two up-to-date illusions. Kelph and Pedley's motor cars command attention from every part of the building, and a ride in one of them is most exhilarating.

The visitor might also be well advised to look out for Colossus, the prodigious Hungarian Boy, Peter Connor, the tallest British subject, and their tiny friends, Major Thornhill, Princess Gill, and the Queen of Lilliput. Apropos of tiny creatures, one should not miss Napper Tandy, the tiny mare, and Professor England's performing fleas, the smallest actors in the world. Then there are: Suffragettes' Rest—the Fun City's Holloway, the new game of Houp-La, the Katzenjammer Castle, and the palmists.

Next week the new turns included in the free show are Charley, the wonderful quick-change performer; the Reca Trio, daring gymnasts; and Les Fiers, grotesque acrobats; whilst the equestrian and talking bears are retained.

Special attractions for children are presented between 11 and 1. The admission during these hours is 3d. only, and for this modest sum one can see the variety show, the animated pictures at the Gem Electric Vaudeville Theatre, and the numerous Fun City wonders.

Next Friday there will be held a Beauty Show for Men and Whiskana or Face Fungus Fête, with Mr. Frank Richardson as judge.

ROLLER-SKATING AND BEAUTY-SHOWING.

The directors of the mammoth roller-skating rink at Empress Hall, Earl's Court, organised a beauty show there on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday of this week, and it proved a great success. There were over five hundred entries, and the competition was quite of an international character. Four Italian, one Hindu, forty-four German, and ten French ladies entered, though by far the most numerous applications came from Scotland. The competitors' names were kept a secret from the audience, who voted by numbers. The system of judging was a novel one, the competitors being arranged in tens in a specially-built frame, on which the rays of forty limelights were concentrated, the audience inspecting the "beauties" from seats on a slope. The committee included Mr. Seymour Hicks, Mr. Tom Browne, Mr. John Hassall, Mr. Albert Toft, Mr. Lance Thackeray, Mr. Mostyn Piggott, and Mr. Max Cowper. Cash prizes of £50, £15, and £5 are to be awarded to those regarded by the judges as the three most beautiful women in the world. The announcements of the winners had not been made when we went to press. The Empress Hall, tastefully decorated with flags and brilliantly lighted, has a most picturesque appearance, and a skating gymkhana will take place every Wednesday throughout the season, with valuable prizes for winners in the events. A fine military band plays during the skating, and instructors in the art are always in attendance.

On another page of this issue of The Era will be found an advertisement announcing the sale of the Johnstown Flood, at public auction, on Tuesday, Dec. 22. Londoners will regret to learn of this, as the Flood was undoubtedly one of the most popular side shows on the Franco Exhibition grounds, and was enjoyed by all who saw it. It was shipped to London direct from New York at an enormous expense, and opened during the latter part of July. Its success was apparent from the opening day, and during the short season of three months only, nearly 800,000 people passed through its turnstiles.

It is a reproduction of the famous flood which took place in Johnstown, Pa., nineteen years ago, which destroyed the entire city. The effects are produced on a very large scale by modern electrical, mechanical, and scenic devices, and is considered by all who saw it to be the finest show of the kind ever produced in Europe.

The property is to be sold owing to the company's contract having expired with the Franco-British Exhibition.

In the Centre Transept at the Crystal Palace Mr. George O. Starr is arranging for an Old English Circus, in which the grown-ups as well as the children are promised a really good show. There will be accommodation for about 2,000 people, and everything possible for the comfort and convenience of visitors is being done. In the South Nave there will be a "Yuletide Fair," and Mr. Hyatt, the well-known amusement caterer, is fixing up all kinds of seasonable attractions. A Children's Carnival is also being arranged, and the Monster Christmas Tree will be again in evidence. The tree is a present from Sir Jeremiah Colman, and reaches a height of 89ft. It holds about 3,000 toys, and is a source of great delight to the thousands of children who visit the Palace.

"ARIZONA RIDE."

To be produced by Joseph Menchen in amusement resorts in England and the Continent this coming summer.

This is absolutely the last word in gravity railway devices, replete in countless improvements and sensational novelties. It is superior in every way to anything ever before constructed, and will be an interesting, educational, and artistic feature certain to create a perfect furore of enthusiasm and comment.

The interior will represent the Great Canon of Arizona, with the highest point rising to 85ft. The canon will be 200ft. wide, with a steel bridge (100ft. span), and the railway will run 200ft. on either side of this canon, making a stretch of 500ft. in all, and leaving a space between the two extremes of the 200ft. wings on either side of the canon.

The construction will be a most artistic and attractive design, finished with decorative plasterwork by expert artists, and as a construction, will be a credit to any exposition At night we would use concealed illuminations and the most up-to-date electrical effects, giving an actual reproduction of an Arizona blizzard, with moving clouds, snowstorms, and other startling phenomena of Nature, which alone would be a spectacle in itself.

It is the invention of Joseph Menchen, the inventor and patentee of almost every startling projecting device used in America; he produced the "under and over the sea," at the St. Louis World's Fair, as well as installed the complete electrical projecting appliances for the New York Hippodrome. He also produced the famous moon and cloud effects in the song called "Moon, Dear," which ran 626 performances at the New York Hippodrome, and which he will put in vaudeville here within the next month, as well as the beautiful electrical spectacular novelty called the Artist's Dream, a unique posing act, occupying the entire width of the stage, and using such projecting appliances as ocean wave and cloud effects, as produced by Mr. Minchen in Brewster's Millions at Hicks' Theatre, as well as fall, roses, fly, butterfly, and Egyptian panoramic effects, and other startling sensations. Mr. Menchen has opened a factory and office at 371, Walworth-road, London, S.E., where he will be pleased to demonstrate to any manager any effects desired. He calls your attention to his page advertisement on page , which will show the other novelties that are in course of construction.

OPENING OF ASTON HIPPODROME.

Monday saw the opening of this magnificent new building, both houses being crowded. The Mayor (Alderman A. Taylor), who was wearing his chain of office, Aldermen, Councillors, and leading local residents were present. The building, which was only commenced in August, has a substantial frontage, plain terra-cotta, ornamented with stone, the entrances being overhung with an ornamental verandah. Surmounting the facade there are two effective cupolas. The interior is decorated in crimson, cream, and gold, the seats are upholstered in red, and the rich carpet is of a pretty pale green, the furnishing being in the hands of the celebrated firm of A. R. Dean and Sons.

The directorate is not connected with any other syndicate, but is formed of gentlemen largely interested in Barrasford's Hippodrome, and the bookings are controlled by a Manchester agent. The auditorium holds 2,000 people, and a special feature has been made of what is technically known as the "headroom," between the ground floor and circle and circle and gallery.

The house, which has cost £14,000 to build, makes the fifth music hall in Birmingham. The manager is Mr. T. E. Middleton, and the musical director is Mr. Benedict Sorge, a gentleman well known in the musical and theatrical society of Birmingham.

After the National Anthem had been sung, the programme, which was an excellent one, commenced on Monday with Charles Ulrick, the well-known barrel king, whose exhibition was neat and clever. The "star" of the evening was Zona Vevey, whose special scene, My Lady's Bower, is most artistic. She was repeatedly encored for her songs, her enunciation being perfectly clear, and her voice and style most charming. She was assisted by Herr Max Erard at the piano. The Bensons presented an amusing musical comedy act, The Page and the Maid, and the skit Would-be Actors, submitted by E. Carter Livesey and Lilian Rosebery, was one of the drollest turns of the evening. Paul Vandy is a smart juggler and sleight-of-hand performer; Barney Armstrong was applauded for his songs, as also was Leo Trainor. Nellie Montague is a dainty burlesque artist, and the ventriloquial entertainment provided by Baddon is very good.

At the second house on Monday the performance was witnessed by the Mayor of Aston, who was accompanied by many members of the Council.

"THE YAP YAPS."

A Sketch, in Three Scenes, Written by Fred Karno and J. Hickory Wood, Produced, for the first time in London, at the Paragon, on Monday, Dec. 7.

Hon. Charlie Chinn ..... MR. GUS LE CLERQ
Molly ..... MISS MARJORIE CECIL
Reggie Lovell ..... MR. H. V. SURREY
Ben Burley ..... MR. JAMES PRIOR
Tom Trotter ..... MR. CHARLES PRINCE
The M.C. ..... MR. FRANK RICKARDS

This sketch, in three scenes, which had a preliminary trial at Margate, was presented for the first time in London at the Paragon on Monday, and excited considerable mirth as played by Mr. Fred Karno's specially organised company of comedians. "The Yap Yaps" is the name given to a certain club, the members of which are a set of smart young dandies, immaculately dressed, who certainly make a good picture. The first scene represents the Brighton Promenade, where there is a meeting between several of these gentlemen and the lady promenaders, a good opening number, "Go away, Miss," being well rendered by the company. The Hon. Charlie Chinn, in a moment of excitement, has backed himself to box a certain Big Ben Burley for £100 a-side. His friends are highly pleased with the pluck of their hero, for they are all taking lessons in the noble art, and the craze for oxygen as an aid to athletes plays a great part in the plot. A meeting takes place between the combatants, the different weights of them, together with the fun and humorous repartee, keeping the house in good humour. In a particularly realistic seaside scene is witnessed a clever piece of stage mechanism, for the breezes are made to blow very freely, giving a wonderful display of the ladies' lingerie, the little incident causing shrieks of laughter.

The next scene is the National Sporting Club, where an exhibition three rounds is sparred between those well-known boxers Johnnie Summers and Young Josephs, the little item being greatly appreciated. The great contest is announced, Yap Yaps being well represented in the club, and the fight commences. The scene is a scream from start to finish, the Hon. Charlie winning, after having a dose of oxygen administered, which works wonders.

Mr. Gus Le Clerq as the Hon. Charlie and Mr. H. V. Surrey as Reggie worked splendidly together. Mr. James Prior as Big Ben Burley represented the character perfectly. Mr. Fred Karno is to be congratulated on his big venture, and he has a first class company of excellent performers.

MUSIC HALL ARTISTS WANTED.

270 Replies.

WANTED. Wanted, Known, Sir,—
I inserted an advertisement, asking for Music Hall Artists in the last week's issue of "The Era." May I say that I am absolutely astounded at the number of replies I received to my small advertisement, no less than 270 Artists favouring me with applications. May I by this means thank the many artists who sent in their terms, as it is impossible for me to reply to each individual. I thank all for their very kind promptitude in responding to my advertisement.
I remain, yours faithfully,
ALFRED BALL.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS.

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office. Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns. Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow :—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING, Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON, Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT MITCHELL, Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON, Empire Palace, Leeds.

LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT BULMER, The Empire, Liverpool.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. J. CHRISTIE, Empire Theatre, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

Artists are requested to note that the Alexandra Theatre, Stoke Newington, comes within the area absolutely barred by us. Artists and Agents are requested to note that the Standard Theatre, Shoreditch, and the Terriss Theatre, Rotherhithe, also come within the area absolutely barred by us.

INSTRUCTIONS TO ARTISTS.

Artists must have at least Fourteen Band Parts for English Orchestrations, and Seventeen Band Parts for Foreign Orchestrations. Matter of Bill, Blocks, and Specimens of Pictorials FOR ALL THE ABOVE THEATRES must be sent to Co-operative Offices, at above address, THREE WEEKS before Opening, failing which Artists will run the risk of having their Engagements cancelled.

IMPORTANT.—Artists must forward Copies of Songs to the STAGE DEPARTMENT, ABOVE ADDRESS, TWO WEEKS previous to opening, with Assignments for same, which will be returned. Artists are requested to note carefully that the clause in their contracts relating to rehearsals will in future be strictly enforced. Artists' Scenery, Properties, &c., MUST be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Licensing Authorities.

ARTISTS WILL CLEARLY UNDERSTAND THAT THEIR BUSINESS MUST BE FREE FROM ALL VULGARITY.

No order or contract for goods or services must be accepted for any of the foregoing theatres except upon receipt of an Official Form, issued from the Co-operative Offices, London, and signed by either Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Frank Allen, or the Chief Accountant, otherwise the Company concerned will not be responsible for same, and will refuse payment. In special cases, where goods are required at once, suppliers must look to the individual placing the order, who will be personally liable, unless an official confirmatory order, signed as above, is received within forty-eight hours. Invoices must be sent to the Theatre, but monthly statements should be sent to the Co-operative Offices. The individual Company on whose behalf orders are signed is solely responsible for payment. The Management will not hold themselves responsible in the event of loss of or damage to any MSS., Songs, &c., submitted for consideration.

THIS WEEK'S NOVELTIES.

THE WHITE GLOVED MAN.

Code Word, "FRAGMENT."

An adventurer is going out in search of somebody he may dupe. He finds his opportunity in the person of a beautiful girl, whom he eventually robs of her costly pearl necklace. As he is leaving her villa with his booty, he drops a pair of white gloves on the pavement. These are picked up by a ragged villain, who then enters the house in the hope of finding there something of value. He is disturbed by the mistress of the house, whom he strangles in order to escape. The next day, the white gloves being found near the body of the victim, the adventurer is traced, and the police finding the necklace in his hand-bag, they suppose him to be the murderer. Just as the prison-van stops, Mr. Pennorth, the actual murderer, steps forward, and, with the air of one with a pure conscience, he restores to the examining magistrate the walking-stick the latter has just dropped. This film has been skilfully acted, its dramatic interest is well sustained from beginning to end, and new ideas add to its attractiveness.

1023ft. The Subject, £17 1s. 0d. Toning, £2 0s. 0d.

MR. JAUNTY'S RECEPTION DAY.

Code Word, "FOURRURE."

While they were making ready to receive their guests, the sheriff's officer presented them with a writ. Mrs. Jaunty weeps profusely, but her husband squares his shoulders and goes out in search of something he may use instead of the furniture, which is being removed. Later on he comes back with a lamp-post, a bench, and a pair of sewerman's boots, and this paraphernalia proves to be to the guest's taste. The "fête" is disturbed once more, this time by the policemen, who march off the whole crowd; but Mr. and Mrs. Jaunty are enjoying the situation to the full, and their laughter is so catching that the policemen join in the fun.

528ft. The Subject, £8 16s. 0d.

THE CUSTOMS OFFICER'S FIANCÉE.

Code Word, "FIXATIF."

660ft. The Subject, £11 0s. 0d. Toning, £1 10s. 0d.

AN IMPROVISED CONSULTATION.

Code Word, "FABULEUX."

The doctor having been called away suddenly, he has not returned when the consultation hour comes, and the people in the waiting-room are growing impatient. Adolphus, his servant, thinks he will be able to attend to the patients himself, and he prescribes the most unheard-of medicines. All is discovered a little later, however, and Adolphus receives a good thrashing for his day's work.

510ft. The Subject, £8 10s. 0d.

THE FIDDLERS.

Code Word, "FORBAN."

Three negroes are scratching on their violins at the same time as they execute all sorts of eccentric turns. They juggle with their heads, arms, and legs, or make their limbs lengthen and twist about so as to make fancy and varied figures with them.

280ft. The Subject, £4 13s. 4d. Colouring, £2 18s. 0d.

THE MISDEEDS OF A SACK OF COAL.

Code Word, "FLEURET."

Bob having played tricks on passers-by, he takes refuge in a sack of coal. A moment later the coalman carries the sack and its contents to the house of his customer. Bob makes himself comfortable, and after cutting a slit in the canvas, he has a ripping time, inasmuch as he can resume his tricks. All is not exciting fun, however, for on his arrival in the cellar Bob is found out and treated according to his deserts.

215ft. The Subject, £3 11s. 8d.

INDIA-RUBBER SHOES.

Code Word, "FLAGRANT."

Mr. Rolly has just bought a pair of boots fitted with indiarubber soles, which make him rebound like a ball and perform high jumps, thus causing him to cross over rivers, lakes, newspaper stalls, &c. It is very lucky for Mr. Rolly that he can walk so quickly and get home, where his servant manages to take off the ill-fated boots, which have caused their owner to land on several passers-by, who are now furious at Mr. Rolly's want of manners.

248ft. The Subject, £4 2s. 8d.

WHALING IN THE SOUTH SEAS.

Code Word, "FRICTION."

Titles of Pictures:—A whale has been sighted—The whaler pursuing the prey—With the harpoon embedded in its side, the wounded monster swims swiftly, dragging the boat after it—The whale having been captured, is brought alongside the whaler and carried to shore to be cut up. This whale, which measured 63ft. in length, and weighed 87 tons, yielded 37 tons of grease, 30 tons of oil, and 37 cwt. of fins.

510ft. The Subject, £8 10s. 0d. Toning, £1 0s. 0d.

THE TRAINING SHIP "LA BRETAGNE" AND HER STAFF.

Code Word, "FRAGILE."

Titles of Pictures:—Drilling ashore—The march past of the squad—Returning on board—Studying—Rigging—Gymnastics on board—The kit inspection—Sunday pastimes, &c. A very interesting subject.

510ft. The Subject, £8 10s. 0d.

A BAD PINCH OF SNUFF.

Code Word, "FOIE."

At the tobacconist's a customer is making love to the pretty girl behind the counter, but in order to play him a trick she mixes with the snuff some sneezing powder. Suddenly and convulsively, everybody in the shop bursts into a tremendous sneeze. The young man hurries out, but his fit of sneezing is so catching that he makes everybody in the street sneeze irresistibly. A horse seems also to have caught the complaint.

248ft. The Subject, £4 2s. 8d.

MANNERS AND CUSTOMS IN HUNGARY.

Code Word, "FRACTURE."

Titles of Pictures:—On a Sunday—A wedding—The invitation—Going to church—The plants given by the guests are masterpieces of the pastrycook's art.

396ft. The Subject, £6 12s. 0d.

CHRISTMAS EVE DREAM.

Code Word, "ETOILE."

This sweetly-pretty subject has been appreciated so much by our customers that we were obliged to cable over to our factory for a repeat order, which we are pleased to say is now ready for delivery. This delightful film appeals to children, but it will doubtless interest their parents also.

610ft. The Subject, £10 3s. 4d. Toning, £6 15s. 0d.

ELIXIR OF DREAMS.

Code Word, "FANTOCHE."

This is another trick film, closely related to the fairy-tale subjects, for in it Pierrot is seen to go to sleep and dream that he is in a magnificent palace, with a host of pretty girls in attendance upon him; and all this in the Orient, where everything seems so picturesque and impressive. One more point in its favour is that on waking up Pierrot seems to continue his enchanted dream, for he receives the visit of a rich customer, who buys from him one of his pictures (Pierrot being an artist). With the money Pierrot will be able to procure food, which he has not tasted for a long time.

857ft. The Subject, £14 5s. 8d. Colouring and Toning, £8 10s. 0d.

NEW CENTURY THIEVES.

Code Word, "FONTAINE."

Three rascals, being hard up, they put their heads together and try to find a way out of their difficulties. Rood, the most intelligent of the trio, thinks it would not be a bad plan to go to the nerve specialist and strip his house of its valuables, while one of the accomplices simulates a severe nervous complaint, which will keep the physician busy. They do it, and it would serve them right if the police could catch them while they are thus engaged.

280ft. The Subject, £4 13s. 4d.

BUTCHER'S

"EMPIRE" CINEMATOGRAPH

Manufactured by W. BUTCHER & SONS, Ltd., Farringdon Avenue, E.C.

SPECIAL FEATURES APPERTAINING TO THE PREVENTION OF FIRE AS EMBODIED IN THE 1909 MODEL OF THE ABOVE.

The Safety Shutter.

Hitherto all automatic cut-offs adopted on cinematograph projectors have been actuated or controlled solely by the starting and stopping of the machine. Thus, should the operator fail to immediately stop his machine upon a break occurring, the so-called "safety shutter" will remain open until such time as the machine is brought to a standstill, by which time the film has, of course, "fired."

This is a serious defect in all automatic shutters, when it is remembered that only a few seconds have to elapse with the film stationary in the gate before a fire in the gate is raised.

With the "safety shutter," as fitted to the above cinematograph, however, the action is controlled by the film itself; thus, immediately the film has broken, and before the operator has time to stop his machine, the shutter drops, and automatically cuts off the rays of light concentrated upon the film.

The action is in no way whatever dependent upon the machine being stopped, and it is impossible for the shutter to remain open unless the film is passing through the machine in the ordinary way.

Film Trip.

Owing to the construction of the film-trap in the "EMPIRE CINEMATOGRAPH," only one picture can be burnt, and that, of course, only supposing that the shutter, as above, is not considered.

Fireproof Spool Cases.

In the "EMPIRE CINEMATOGRAPH" these cases have been adopted, and were first used by Messrs. W. BUTCHER and SONS, Ltd., some ten to twelve years ago, in connection with a projector called the "MATAGRAPH," which they then manufactured at their works at Blackheath, some of which are still in existence and being used.

These fire-proof cases are fitted to prevent the entire film burning in the event of same becoming ignited through the proximity of fire outside the ordinary illuminant of the cinematograph.

It is claimed, however, by the introduction of the shutter referred to, that all devices for preventing a fire spreading are unnecessary.

It is decidedly better to prevent a fire of any description whatever rather than to seek to stop it after it has already started.

In connection with the above shutter, a further improvement has been designed for use with projectors driven by an electrical motor.

Motor.

In this case, in addition to the safety shutter coming immediately into action upon a break occurring, the circuit upon which the motor is running is automatically broken, thus bringing the machine to an instantaneous standstill.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER.

BY
ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).

Copyright confusion is like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr. Albert A. Strong's new work, entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr. Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his textbook on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee.

SHAKESPEARE ON THE STAGE.

"It is a really interesting question," says Mr. Percy Fitzgerald, in his commentary on Charles Lamb's Essays, "whether Shakespeare does or does not gain by the interpretation of a great actor. It might be answered that the student at his desk, poring over his loved volume, was lifted too much into the abstract world, and that many a passage, which appears to him perplexing, or at least colourless, becomes perfectly intelligible when uttered with emphasis, and in the real situation. Even in ordinary plays, written by practised stage-wrights, the reader will note passages which seem pointless, or colourless, but, which, to his surprise, when uttered on the boards 'tell' with surprising effect. In a very pleasing essay our leading tragedian has himself dealt with this subject, and has proved convincingly that the actor brings additional light to the text, and supplies a meaning which would otherwise be lost.

"There is a little Shakespearean fragment of Lamb's criticism in his 'Table Talk,' which is truly admirable and is an excellent revelation of what such criticism should be. He is speaking of the closing lines of Lear, when the faithful Kent is dimly recognised by the dying king; and here Elia seems effectually to enfeeble his own theory—that Shakespeare should not be set on the stage—a plea born of excessive reverence—in a magnificent way. It might escape the student at his desk that so much was intended in these abstract lines. Lear says, 'Who are you?' and Kent gently tells him; but without effect, beyond a general—'You are welcome hither.' The lines, however, should be read to see the force of Lamb's inspired criticism—'What a puddle,' he says, 'would a common dramatist have raised here of a reconciliation scene. The old dying king partially catching at the truth and immediately lapsing into obliviousness, with the high-minded carelessness of the other to have his services appreciated, are among the most judicious, not to say heart-touching strokes in Shakespeare.' Now, it is clear that the readers or students that could pierce to this meaning are few indeed, but to the thoughtful poetical actor it would be suggested by the very situation itself.

"In fact, it is certain that a person who first read over a scene ever so carefully, and then saw it acted by capable performers, would be astounded at all that is evolved, at the wealth of meaning which a simple line seems to hold, and which is brought out by movement, and gesture, and acting. The very grouping suggests.

"This presentation, he urges, tells specially against Shakespeare; as the system reduces everything to 'scolding scenes,' to 'a controversy of elocution,' or to preachings, &c., so as to impress what is going on upon the audiences, as an extract from daily life, and thus destroys what is the charm of Shakespeare. 'What does not Hamlet suffer by being dragged forth as a public schoolmaster to give lectures to the crowd,' whereas nine-tenths of what he does are 'inner transactions, communings with himself,' silent meditations, which cannot be represented by 'a gesticulating actor, who comes and mouths them out before an audience.' The love 'dialogues of Romeo and Juliet—all the delicacies which are so delightful in the reading, how are they sullied by being addressed to an audience—drawling out of the mouth of a hired actress.' All which commends itself. But the answer is obvious. First, the objection will apply to all plays and all acting. Then it may be asked: Is this, or must this be the sole and exclusive mode of presenting Shakespeare, or does every actor necessarily adopt this form of lecturing the audience—the scolding matches, &c.? Lamb is here, therefore, only urging his grand principle that the material or realistic system—imported from that of the streets and interiors of daily life—is fatal to proper dramatic interpretation. There was before his eyes the 'pavior style'—the pattern of which was set by Mr. Kemble; and still lingers in the Provinces and on the American stage. The truth is, since, Lamb's day, a complete reformation and new modes of interpreting Shakespeare have been applied, and the great dramatic reform introduced by Victor Hugo, of applying the colour and passions of nature to life, instead of the cold classic reserve, had not yet passed to England. And so I fancy as to that 'delightful sense of freshness' which is felt when we turn to such plays of Shakespeare which have 'escaped being performed.' Here the generous enthusiasm of the writer may have carried him away: for it does seem that the plays may have 'escaped being performed' on account of their comparative inferiority—or, if of equal merit, would certainly have been more appreciated had they been performed. Those pieces, too, which have been 'spouted,' done to death, as it were, might appear to have lost their bloom and freshness; but I confess the instance selected, that of 'To be or not to be,' scarcely seems to support his view. That strange, mysterious, and perplexing piece of philosophy, every time it is heard, offers new lights to an intelligent and sympathetic actor—nay, even with its repetitions by the same actor there come revelations and glimpses of meaning, which make the whole clearer and more intelligible. In short, the character of Hamlet is itself so many sided, and offers such modes of interpretations—the spiritual, the realistic, the antic, dreamy, revengeful—or may be so mysteriously compounded of all these, that each player offers a different view, and is an altogether different Hamlet. For the time, indeed, it may be associated with one poetical figure, like the present cynosure of the public; but it is curious that even the Lawrence picture of Kemble in his inky cloak, moralising, familiarly enough, on a skull, suggests even to these who had not seen him a Hamlet of another order. But the truth is, your true reader of Shakespeare will not allow his ideal to be disturbed by any fleshly embodiment, and will hold all far short of what he desires, while the pure playgoer will be content with what he sees. Nay, even the student playgoer, so far from being disturbed by individual presentments, finds pleasure in comparing and contrasting them, and seems to compound his Hamlet out of many.

"To this does not belong that realism as exhibited by Fechter and others which assumes Hamlet to be a gentleman of our day, giving his various speeches quite a colloquial turn, than which nothing can be more opposed to the spirit of Shakespeare. In the common ceremonials of everyday life—such as marriages, receptions at Court—there is imported a certain state dignity, while a familiar tone is out of all keeping. And so in the plays of Shakespeare, everything, diction, era, character, incident, all are removed from this light familiar manner of our life, and should be portrayed in a stately fashion. The very metrical form of the verse require declamation; and, indeed, now-a-days nothing is more offensive to the ear than to hear the fine poetical lines 'gabbled over,' as it may be termed, by some young untrained 'Lord' or courtier, who models his diction on the familiarities of his club. How refreshing, then, when some well trained, 'well graced' performer deigns to declaim his lines, with a musical, melodious rise and fall, and what a meaning, what a new charm is thus imparted!

"Next, as for the objection against soliloquies, or communings with oneself, such as those of Hamlet, represented by 'a gesticulating actor, making four hundred people'; or, rather, over a thousand, his confidants at once. To do this effectively, it is objected he must emphasize everything by 'some trick of eye or tone, and this is the way to represent the shy, negligent, retiring Hamlet.' Yet is it not conceivable that a player might so deliver these soliloquies without any of the 'tricks' alluded to, exactly as though he were unconscious of the presence of the four hundred persons?

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS AND OTHERS.

Owing to CHRISTMAS DAY this year falling so late in the week, causing a consequent disruption of postal facilities, and in order to prevent disappointment, THE ERA will be published at midnight on WEDNESDAY, DEC. 23.

Copy intended for that issue should therefore reach us as early as possible on Tuesday or first post Wednesday at the latest. In the case of pantomime notices, plots should be kept very short, chief attention being paid to scenery, acting, and vocal specialities.

POST EARLY.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

ABERDARE.—NEW THEATRE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting-Manager, Mr. B. Richards.—The Face at the Window is being played here by Messrs. Armadale and Warren's company. Mr. E. Hoggan-Armadale plays the weird part of Lucio Delgado with effect; Mr. Scott Leighton gives an excellent rendering of Paul Gouffeit, a detective; and Mr. Arthur Beverley is successful as Lucian Cortier. Marie De Brisson is effectively represented by Miss Elsie Marriott-Watson; and the necessary comedy element is abundantly supplied by Mr. Bert Ellis as Peter Pottleberry and by Miss Ruth Glynn as Babette. Mr. Geo. P. Greatrex acquits himself admirably as Le Blanco, known as the mad doctor; and Mr. Alfred Warne as Henry De Brisson is good.

ABERDEEN.—H.M. THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—The pantomime Robinson Crusoe is now in its second week, and running very smoothly. All the principals are prime favourites with the audiences, and as they act with unflagging vivacity from start to finish, the performances are exceedingly bright and entertaining. Some of the best work is contributed by Messrs. Keith and Merson as the funny men, Salt and Pepper. Both are exceptionally clever artists. Without in the slightest degree disparaging his partner, it may be noted that Mr. Merson is excruciatingly amusing all the time.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessees, the United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—Captain Bedini's Highlanders give a marvellously smart exhibition of various intricate military evolutions, which are followed with the closest interest; the Gerretti Sisters show remarkable daring and dexterity as double-trapeze gymnasts; the Kurios are as popular as last week; Ryan and Hall excel as funny acrobats and eccentric comedians; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Finden act a humorous sketch very cleverly; the Three Sisters Lee are warmly applauded as duettists and dancers; the Three Orleans are enthusiastically encored; and the drollery of Mr. Reg. Bolton is keenly appreciated.

ALHAMBRA MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. John Sinclair; General-Manager, Mr. George B. Lee.—The principal artists this week are Messrs. Currie and Foote and Fred Rex, comedians; Mr. William Smith, baritone; and Miss Elsie Osbourne, soprano. Miss Osbourne's fine, sympathetic voice is heard to the best advantage in her rendering of the illustrated-song solos. The hall is well filled at both the evening performances.

EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Managers, Messrs. R. Calder and J. Montague.—The house is packed every night. All the turns are highly appreciated. Among the artists are Miss Marie Rosie, vocalist and dancer; Mr. Jack Marson, vocalist and raconteur; Mr. Archie Murray, coon comedian; and Handy Andy, a very clever burlesque acrobat, who is assisted by a troupe of local youngsters. A capital sketch, The Dude's Wooing, is most amusingly played by the members of the Empire Sketch Company

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company opened here on Monday with Two Little Drummer Boys. Mr. Edward Bikker cleverly sustains the part of General Kingsley; Mr. Harry Scott gives a fine rendering of Captain Frank Carsdale; and Mr. Oswald Douglas creditably represents George Darrell. Miss Marie Anisley acts with sympathy as Alma Kingsley; Miss Violet Ingram is seen to advantage as Margaret Rivers; and Miss Maggie English as Eric Carsdale and Miss Maud English as Jack Smith gave valuable assistance. Mr. Will Percy as Quiney O'Quirke is both clever and amusing, and receives excellent support from Mr. Dick Seddon as Timothy Trimmer. Miss Patricia Connaughton is decidedly good as Molly Meadows. The remaining characters are carefully played, and the mounting is excellent.

ALDERSHOT.—ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Jack Gladwin.—An excellent repertory of opera is being presented here this week by the Moody-Manners Opera Co., Ltd. On Monday Madame Butterfly was translated to a delighted audience. Miss Enriqueta Crichton gave a talented impersonation of the name-rôle; Mr. Charles Carter's Lieut. Pinkerton was, both vocally and histrionically, a huge success; and Mr. Marshall Vincent (Consul) and Miss M. Dennis also gave excellent portrayals. On Tuesday Carmen was presented to a large house. Miss Rosina Beynon's charming appearance, sweet, yet powerful, voice, and careful acting as Carmen caused that part to stand out with great prominence. Mr. Paul Weiss as Don José proved a capable exponent; Mr. Charles Moorhouse's fine conception of Escamillo was well appreciated; and Miss T. Addington's capital voice was heard to perfection as Michaela. Maritana was presented on Wednesday, Lohengrin on Thursday, Faust on Friday; and for Saturday Tannhäuser and The Bohemian Girl are underlined.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill, jun.—Mr. Alfred B. Cross and company are here for the week in The Manxman. Mr. Cross sustains the part of Pete with fervour and pathos; touching, too, is the portrayal of Kate Cregeen by Miss Minnie Watersford; Mr. Harold B. Lewis gives an impressive depiction of Philip Christian; Mr. Fred Mace gives a good portrayal of Cæsar Cregeen; Mr. Fred Charles as Ross Christian, Mr. W. H. Dewhirst as Dr. Mylchreest, Mr. W. Berson as Monty Missit, Mr. F. Lynton as Professor Mawley, and Messrs. Jackson, Horgen, and Morton, in minor male parts, also do well. Miss Annie Jackson finds in Bella Kelly a character well suited to her powers; Miss Adelaide Ross-Ford does satisfactory work as Miss Christian; and Miss Blanche Lee as Nancy is all that can be desired.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son.—The versatile comedienne, Miss Ada Fawn, heads the bill here this week, and is popular; Mack Olive, assisted by Miss Daisy Baldry, appears with success in the whistling scena, "The Candy Store," from The Belle of New York; Devon and Earle figure prominently in the programme as wooden-shoe wonders; Will and Alicia Frohman give an artistic instrumental act; Dan Merrett is an exhibition bass drummer; and Cara Magda engages in daring gymnastic exercises. Other artists are George Lawrence, ector vocalist; Will Harney, refined vocal comedian; and Greener, the singing pit lad. The Bioscope has the story illustrated, The Fisherman's Daughter.

PICTUREDROME.—Lessees, Messrs. Weisker Bros.; Manager, Mr. Marks.—The cinematograph picture exhibition continues to draw a fair share of the patronage. This week's Pathé pictures are all first-class. The Torrent is a fine series of water scenes; Benvenuto Cellini proves exciting; there are also depicted a number of other interesting pictures; Will and Beatrice Lenvardo, a coloured duo, submit amusing song and dance turns and banjo and patter items; and Miss Violet Land also gives some good songs.

ATTERCLIFFE.—PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Bert Dent; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harry Sanders.—An interesting programme this week is headed by the Colonials, in a picturesquely-staged musical comedy scena, Unexpected Guests, admirably presented by Messrs. W. H. Grant, F. Alkin, R. Orlish, R. K. Woodville, and Misses Fanny Rowe and Lillie Kennion; the Dancing Gilberts, a couple of chic young ladies, gave evidence of ability in their appreciated act; a series of beautiful and artistic living pictures are given by A. Ba-Be, with his picture postcard album; a pleasing musical act is that of Mostol; Mr. Clayton's pictures meet with approval; Rosie Batt, a local juvenile vocalist, obtains much favour; and items are given by Miss Connie Mascot, comedienne and dancer, the Sisters Lytton, vocalists, and Johnnie and Willie, acrobatic piccaninnies.

BACUP.—NEW COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood.—Mr. Frank Denman-Wood's star variety company is appearing here this week, the programme being headed by Ebrahim's troupe of Indian wonder-workers in some extraordinary tricks. Marie D'Alcourt and Mr. Wheelan, in the operatic sketch The Highwayman, contribute some high-class singing; Harry Bland is a smart comedian; Capner and Steele are good character duettists; and Glyn is eminently successful as a coon delineator. Other turns include Miss Doris Sterling, comedienne; Max Merlin, the human crocodile; and Page, the Lancashire comedian.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—TIVOLI.—Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edgar G. Laban.—The following excellent artists are appearing here:—Viviana and company in a new and original sketch, The Toy Shop; Johnson and Bert in a novel knockabout act, A Queer Customer; Alec Kennedy, actor-vocalist; Thomas and Taylor in a quick-change sketch, Fun on the Midland; Cotsgrove and Burns's drawing-room entertainment, and Vernon's Bioscope.

ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. Chas. H. Lester's company in A Life for a Life is here. He himself plays Don Leon in a picturesque manner, and Mr. Richard Bosco is a lifelike Pedro, Mr. W. Carr a capital John Evelyn, Mr. Harry T. Wood an excellent Kit Oswald, Mr. E. O'Grady a funny Tim, Miss Fernandez a clever Aulalia, Miss Dorothy Riddell a sweet Kate Evelyn, and little Winnie a winning Venetia. The Sorrows of Satan is also given.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Owners and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ralph D. Fenton.—A most interesting series of pictures is being presented here.

BARRY DOCK.—NEW THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brogden.—A large and appreciative audience witnessed on Monday The Scarlet Clue, presented by Miss Grace Warner. Sal Scarlet is capitally played by Miss Grace Warner, who is well assisted by Mr. Geo. Gordon as Michael Stanton; Mr. A. B. Lyons as Crocker was excellent; and so were Messrs. Fred Wilson, Fred Chester, and Rhoy Rhind in their respective parts. Miss K. Stewart was a satisfactory Elsie Dane.

BASINGSTOKE.—PALACE (late CORN HALL).—General Managers, Messrs. Hans Altman and Jenkins; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geoffrey Hill.—Another capital bill is put before the patrons of this new venture, at the top being Herbert Dickeson and Miss Violet Lyttou and company in an attractive musical comedy entitled A Fair Exchange; Arthur Leslie is clever in his lifelike impersonations of variety and dramatic artists; Clive Watts as a comedian is responsible for much merriment, whilst his clever dancing is well appreciated; a pretty and dainty turn is given by Miss Evelyn Fowler with her songs at the piano; Herr Audrie Romanoff plays the violin with great expression, May Bass is a charming comedienne, Irene Glynne is seen to advantage in song and dance, Colin Mail is successful as a descriptive vocalist, and the programme concludes with some good films on the bioscope.

BATH.—PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—The company appearing here this week includes such excellent artists as Eileen Douglas, the musical comedy girl, and Taree, the Australian bushman, whose musical act meets the utmost favour. Gus Harris, the Hebrew comedian, scores with his clever delineations; the Sovereigns, one-legged equilibrists and chair-jumpers, come in for a big reception, and the Three Royal Temples secure approbation for some capital vocalism. Others who are favourably received are Chas. Denton, comedian, and Annie Heath, comedienne and dancer. Raymond's Bio-Tableaux, as usual, remains quite up to date.

BELFAST.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Mr. Dickie Clare's company opened here on Monday in the farcical absurdity, Lucky 'Liza. In the title-rôle Miss Madge Browne was successful, playing the part with much vivacity; honours are due to Mr. Dickie Clare for his amusing impersonations of Silas Slim, the Judge and the French waiter; Mr. Clare is an excellent comedian, and fairly convulsed the audience; Miss Vesta Brownie charmingly portrayed the rôle of Virginia Blatherwick, her Scotch dances being capital; the rôle of Paul Pettitoe was done full justice to by Mr. Norman H. Lee; and the part of Peter Pettitoe was cleverly presented by Mr. T. W. Benson. Mr. J. W. Forrest afforded every satisfaction as William Biffins; and Miss Evelyn Wood, who appeared as Sadie Potts, pleased all with her vocalism. Other rôles were sustained by Miss Helen Douglas and Messrs. Harry George and W. Merry. The dances by the Astor Trio gained much approval.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. A. Salmond.—The leading attraction here is provided by Wizard and Irene Stone, who introduce their sensational act, consisting of looping the loop on a motor-cycle, a remarkable feat which holds the audience spellbound. Mr. Fisher White's company appear to the utmost advantage in the dramatic episode, entitled A Royal Heart, the various rôles being cleverly sustained by Miss M. Omar, Mr. A. Corney Grain, Mr. Frederick James, Mr. Scott Craven, and Mr. Thomas Brooklyn. The Zampas are exceedingly smart duettists and dancers; and Stelling and Kiswaski return with their novel act, which has taken immensely. Other items of the programme are Miss Jenny Lynn, character comedienne; Morris and Cardiff, comedians and dancers; Mr. Chas. Gardner, comedian; and the Palace Pictures.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Will Sley and Fred Willmott; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry J. Downs.—Mr. John Tiller's pantomime, Jack and Jill, was produced here on Monday, with eminently satisfactory results. Miss Harriet Fawn was a dashing Prince Fearnought, singing "I'm afraid to come home in the dark" and other songs with much acceptance; Miss Nelly Rodney was a charming Princess, her rendering of "Under my umbrella" being loudly encored; Mr. Bruce Green was an exceedingly droll Dame Durden; and Mr. Horace Jones a capital comedian, kept the fun going merrily with his impersonation of Ginger, the page. Miss Cissy Iris and Miss Nelly Grimshaw were delightful as Jack and Jill, the former singing with much success, "Sue, Sue, Sue"; Mr. Harry Cotton was an excellent Baron Jolliboy; and Mr. F. Le Cren furnished able support as General Biff. Other rôles were presented by Miss Jessie Vernon (Truth, the good fairy), Miss Adah Le Cren, and Mr. S. Oscar Karno. The Imperial Ballet Troupe are clever dancers; and the specialities by the Le Cren Trio, the Eight Merry Midgets, and the Tiller Quartette of dancers add materially to the success of the production. A grand Scotch ballet gained a tremendous reception. The Hipposcope is also included in the programme.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—The star here is Mr. Henry Coutts, the clever protean actor, who has amazed all with his remarkably smart quick-change act, entitled Outflanked; Mr. Henry Grey, eccentric comedian, repeats his former successes here; and a hit has been made by Mr. James Reilly and Miss May Templeton with their witty act and capital vocalism. Mr. Percy Honri's cleverly-rendered concertina solos reflect much credit on him; and Miss Nellie Coleman has been accorded a good reception; Miss Olive Armadale is a charming serio; and also appearing are Miss Sybil Lester, the little girl with the big voice; and the Bioscope.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL.—General-Manager, Mr. Robert Wilson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—The success here continues to be unbounded. This week, among the films presented may be mentioned Our Banana Supply, Mr. X Goes Hunting, Put Pa Amongst the Girls, Motor Smugglers, &c. Miss Cissie Mills, winner of the recent lady's competition, appeared on Monday, with success. Mr. F. Herman, entertainer, gains a good reception.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Will White.—The following films have been projected this week:—The Messenger's Daughter, Bargain Sale, Wright's Aeroplane, The Lightning Barber, The Traitor, Sold by His Parents, &c. In addition, Mr. J. A. Cassels, Scotch comedian, and Mr. George Powell, vocalist, appear with success.

CLIFTONVILLE HALL.—Resident-Manager, Colonel Frederick T. Cummins.—The interest in this, the latest addition to Belfast amusements, continues to increase, and undoubtedly "rinking" is all the rage.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant; Secretary, Miss Isabel Morris.—Mr. Eugene Stafford's company in The Private Secretary awakens pleasant reminiscences. On the present occasion the Rev. Robert Spalding is admirably represented by Mr. Donald Price-Evans; Mr. W. Hargreaves gives a fine performance of Mr. Cattermole; and Mr. Frederick Tyrrell plays Mr. Sidney Gibson with a finish that denotes long familiarity with the part. Mr. Marsland, M.F.H., is well embodied by Mr. Frank Stanley, and Mr. Patrick Fitzgerald as Harry Marsland and Mr. Stanley Ravenscroft as Douglas Cattermole are both most efficient. Miss Nan Macrae is a charming Edith Marsland; her friend Eva Webster is enacted with much acceptance by Miss Helen Child; and Mrs. Alfred Davis as Miss Ashford and Miss Cecily Wade as Mrs. Stead accord valuable assistance. The Wild Man from Borneo serves as a curtain-raiser.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Few greater favourites visit this hall than Mr. George Gilbey, the popular comedian, who is again received with the utmost cordiality. Lowenwirth and Cohen, Hebrew comedians, are on a highly successful return engagement, and Mr. Austin Rudd, a resourceful comedian, meets with his usual big success. Coram is a smart and entertaining ventriloquist; Pick, Tholl, and Taylor score heavily in their amusing sketch The Dancing-Master; and an excellent company also includes Miss Elsie Steadman, an accomplished comedienne; the Three Brothers Huxter, a trio of clever acrobats and vaulters; Miss Carrie Bowles, comedienne; Ned Keeton, a good comedian; and Brown's Royal Bioscope. Crowded houses are the rule.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Manager, Mr. Harry Ball.—Mr. Eugene Stratton, a sure draw in this town, is received with acclamation; Paulton and Dooley give an excellent bicycle show; and the Hanlon Troupe of gymnasts and bar performers are a strong attraction. Stylo, hoop manipulator, gives an interesting turn; and a liberal programme is also contributed to by Mr. Ernest Powell, the lieutenant at the piano; Will Driscoll, comedian; Miss Else Joel, operatic vocalist; Miss Beatrice Bonnie, comedienne; and a good selection of animated pictures.

BIRMINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—Mr. Cyril Maude appeared here last Monday, at a special flying matinée, with the Playhouse company, in Toddles. A very numerous and fashionable audience took advantage of the visit, and showed the most obvious appreciation, laughing unrestrainedly at Mr. Maude's clever and amusing portrayal of the beleaguered lord. The parts of Mr. Joblyn, Mrs. Bowler, the Countess, Lady Dover, and Mrs. Joblyn were in the able hands of Mr. Allen Thomas, Miss Mabel Trevor, Miss Marie Shields, Miss Helen Ferrers, and Miss Emma Chambers respectively. The theatre has since been closed for the production, on Boxing Day, of Dick Whittington.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—Save for the appearance on Thursday of Miss Marie Hall, the celebrated violinist, this theatre has been closed, and will remain so for rehearsals of Boy Blue, which opens on Christmas Eve.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—A Modern Adventuress is being played here by a capable company, under the leadership of Mr. Ernest J. Fare. Mr. Fare plays Pietro Danelli, the sculptor, and his impersonation is one to be commended without reserve; Miss Mabel Fare renders the rôle of Violet Meredith with a fine eye for effect; Mr. Frank Kelland wins favour as Harry Delby; Mr. J. B. Lallen is successful as William Delby; Mr. Jas. Mailey presents the rôle of Wallace Denton with fine force; Miss Shirley Dalton makes a very pleasant impression as Vivette Delby; and Mr. Chas. Dockway as Walter Beal and Mr. George Ashley as Steve Meredith give clever portrayals. The humorous characters are productive of great mirth in the hands of Mr. Will White as John Crompton, and Miss M. Courtney as Sally Hodges. My Mother, God Bless Her! is also in the programme.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-

Manager, Mr. A. J. Robertson.—Miss Mary Neil and Mr. George Kirk's company is playing From Shop Girl to Duchess, which pleases Astonians immensely. In Sylvia Grey, the titular rôle, Miss Neil has a part that suits her emotional powers admirably, and her success is overwhelming; Mr. Douglas Cecil brings the rôle of Arnold Vyvian into very favourable notice; Mr. Frank S. Strickland displays the ignoble qualities of Gilbert Spate with due effect; Mr. Lionel T. Ellis makes a highly popular rôle of Sir Morris Maitland; Mr. Douglas Tremayne scores as Pelham; Miss Amy T. Ellis makes an agreeable character of the Dowager Duchess; Miss Beatrice Hudson acts uncommonly well in the unpleasant rôle of Lady Delamere; and Miss Florrie Grove's humorous talents are richly enjoyed in the part of Tilly Dobson; Mr. Henry Gerald shining as Tommy Tinkler. The Misses Quennie Lamont, Marie Clavering, and Georgie Hawkins are also prominent.

PALACE THEATRE, BORDESLEY.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Goodwin Woodward.—Mr. Wentworth Croke is presenting The Bondman here in his well-known complete style. Miss Georgina Wynter is cast for the part of Greeba, and comes out most successfully, her acting being in perfect taste and sympathy with the character; Mr. R. Scrope Quentin is conspicuous for his fine conception of Jason; Mr. W. Henry Hargreaves is very thorough and capable as Michael Sunlocks; Mr. W. H. Rotheram, as on a previous visit to this town, doubles the parts of Father Ferrati and Grandfather with distinction, and also distinctiveness; Mr. Oswald Lingward repeats his fine performance as Adam Fairbrother; and Miss Madge Lanerton is seen again with decided pleasure as Mrs. Fairbrother. Praise is also due to Mr .Wilfred Beckwith as Governor Testi, Mr. Fred J. Waller as Dr. Boni, Miss Lilian Mayne as Martha, Miss Marie Greenhouse as first Callow Girl, and Miss Julia M. Willis as second Callow Girl.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — EDEN THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. Huntley.—Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Mackey's company is here this week, and a good house was present on Monday, when they opened in Rollicking Rory. Mr. Mackey was very diverting as Rory O'Donohoe; Mr. Edward Warden was a capital Stephen D'Arcy; and as Captain Ashley Mr. Percy Horton was thoroughly effective. Miss Nellie Flensberg was very successful as Rosie Callaghan; and Mrs. Chalmers Mackey portrayed Rosaleen Ashleigh admirably. The scenic effects were charming.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—True to the Core is the title of a play which is being performed here this week by Mr. H. J. Snelson and company. Besides being the author of the play, Mr. Snelson creditably embodies the rôle of Mat Blacklock, and Mr. J. B. Stewart scores a success as Timothy Twist; Captain Meadows is ably accounted for by Mr. Charles Lincoln, and Mr. Bert Albert contributes a faithful representation of Noel Meadows; Miss Isabel Norman as Mabel Gratton and Miss Hetty Marriot as Polly Pringle also give the utmost satisfaction. Several songs are rendered during the performance, the vocalists being Mr. Stewart and Miss Marriott.

GRAND THEATRE.—Owner, Mr. T. Sergenson; Responsible Tenant and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Hunter.—A varied and pleasing programme is provided here this week, the place of honour being occupied by the Clement Trio, in their comedy trapeze act. Other turns are supplied by Hardon Vardon, ventriloquist; Flo Warner, a dainty comedienne; Les Rallis, in a comedy act; Clack and Clack, lady acrobatic barrel jumpers; J. H. Ellis, a talented comedian; and Effie White, in a kaleidoscopic dance.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Zbysco, the famous wrestler, is proving a tremendous draw here this week. Harry Nelson, comedian, is a favourite; whilst Haines and Borthwick's sketch, entitled Half a Dollar, is also a popular turn. W. G. Webber, bass vocalist; Jack Neil, Scotch comedian; the Three Calbas, acrobats; Rose and Challoner, in a novel duologue, and Miss Anileda, in song and dance, are likewise well received.

GAIETY.—Lessees, Messrs. Claggers.—Another good programme of variety has met with a hearty reception, the star turn being Mackie, described as "the automatic man controlled by Mme. Lila."

BOLTON. — THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Moncur.—Miss Annie Bell and a specially selected company are here with the drama The Idol of Paris. Miss Bell is responsible for the arduous part of Flare-Flare, which she plays with conspicuous success, receiving adequate support from Messrs. Wilson Howard, Leonard Aardale, Gordon Robey, Frank H. Dale, and the Misses Phena Powell, Annie Megson, and Grace Noble. The drama is elaborately staged.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; General-Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Harrison.—A programme of "good things" is headed by the Olympians, a troupe of ladies and gentlemen, in a demonstration of Japanese Ju-jitsu wrestling, &c. Other turns are those of Fred Mason, F.O.S., whistling comedian; the Musical Palmers (the five M.P.'s); Beattie and Babs, juvenile entertainers, in a song and dance scena, A Pavement Rehearsal; the Paul Hesse Trio in their equilibristic acrobatic wire performance; Claude Feldman's beau-ideal troupe of prize juveniles in a refined and lightning vaudeville act of mimicry dance, and song; Marie St. John, a refined descriptive vocalist; Stewart and Morgan in their vocal speciality Return to Ireland, and the Empire Bioscope.

BOSTON.—PALACE.—Manager, Mr. E. Cass.—The Hour of Her Triumph is being played to good houses. Mr. Louis Nanton plays the part of Ben Brodie in fine style. A Knight in Armour, a pleasing musical comedy drama, was played during the latter part of the week by the same company.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors, Messrs. David Allen and Sons; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Hubert Dunbar.—For the first three days of this week, the theatre was occupied by Mr. Fred Terry and his company, in The Scarlet Pimpernel. Large audiences applauded Mr. Terry, who appeared in his original part; Miss Julia Neilson's place was taken with much success by Miss Miriam Lewes. For the remainder of the week, Mr. James Welch's company, including Mr. Harry Ford, in When Knights Were Bold, were announced.

BRADFORD. — THE EMPIRE. — Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—Those amusing comedians, the Boisset Troupe are on a return visit this week, with their funny knockabout sketch, The Bricklayers, eliciting roars of laughter. In a dramatic playlet, viz., Nell of the Halls, billed as a sidelight on life behind the scenes in America, Miss Mabel Bardine, in the title-rôle, scores well, and is capably supported by Mr. Hugh Ardale and Miss Leila Russell; Carney and Armstrong are comedians of originality; Leo Tell is a mimic of considerable ability; Happy Tom Parker's songs and dancing please greatly; and Eddie Hayes and Mona Wynne are good vocalists and expert dancers. With a voice of great flexibility, Chas. Santon submits, with success, a turn as a "double-voiced vocalist"; some daring and clever feats in trick cycling are accomplished by the Cumberlands; and there are a number of interesting pictures shown by the Bioscope.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Harrison.—Consul, the wonderful performing monkey, and the most convincing exemplification of the Darwinian theory yet discovered, is astonishing and amusing the audience here this week with his quaintness, dignified demeanour, and cleverness; a very excellent comedy wire act is submitted by Rose and Wold; the Transfields are a trio of very clever lady instrumentalists; the turn by the Lizette Troupe of lady acrobats is graceful and clever; Mollie Augarde, vocalist, sings with taste; the Milton Trio win well-merited applause for their excellent step dancing; Walter Clyde, a good tenor vocalist, sings well; in her sketch, Dr. Spot's Patients, Addie Dorina acts cleverly, and displays remarkable skill as a quick-change, or protean, artist; and there are very entertaining features in Raymond's Bio-tableaux.

BRIGHTON.—ALHAMBRA.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Alfred Smith.—There is a capital company here this week. The Maningos, original and clever equilibrists, are warmly received; Edward E. Ford's company is highly successful in a comedy trifle entitled Milk-oh! Ruby Emerson is a pleasing comedienne; Charles Williams, vocal comedian, achieves much success; Queenie Deel is a smart comedienne; Elton Black, comedian, contributes a good turn; Macintosh and Royal are expert clog dancers; Harvey and Holt are accomplished speciality artists; Sergeant Mumford appears in a clever wire act; De Lilo, a charming "lady bender," and her brother, Metz, with comedy juggling, are cordially applauded; and the Alhambra Picturegraph comprises an excellent series of films.

COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. M. Barrasford.—The exhibitions of animated pictures here are highly attractive. The Flight from the Harem is replete with stirring incidents; Hunting in Russia is a very interesting film; and great amusement is afforded by The Servant of an Acrobatic Family, Adventures of an Invalid, The Lost Pictures; India-rubber Shoes, and The Unlucky Bridegroom. Mr. Charles Black contributes baritone songs in good style, and Mr. Arthur W. Briggs adds materially to the enjoyment of the pictures by his clever and descriptive pianoforte accompaniments.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—Mr. Edward Compton and his company, including Miss Viola Compton, are here for three nights. On Monday evening Davy Garrick was performed to a well-filled house, Mr. Compton playing the title-rôle with his accustomed distinction; Miss Kathleen Leigh was pleasing in every way as Violet; Mr. Henry Crocker acted admirably as the sturdy Alderman Gresham; Mr. Henry Worrall made a good character study of Tom Tallyhaut; Miss Marie Hassell and Miss Constance Merton made capital comedy parts of Mrs. Rumbelow and Selina Sowerberry; and the remaining characters were all carefully taken. The staging of the play was all that could be wished. The performance commenced with The Desperate Lover, in which Miss Viola Compton presented a highly pleasing and interesting exposition of Mistress Prue; Mr. Henry Worrall acted effectively as Harry Waintree; and Miss Marie Hassell was admirable as Lady Vaynard, the remaining parts having competent exponents in Miss J. Norton, Mr. Neville Clifford, Mr. Laurence Meade, Mr. Ivan Leslie, Mr. G. W. Johnston, and Mr. J. W. Austin. She Stoops to Conquer was billed for Tuesday, and The School for Scandal for Wednesday.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr H. C. Alty.—The Love That Women Desire is being well played here by Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company. Mr. Herbert Pearson and Miss Maud Hastings both do admirably in their respective parts of Philip Carnaby and Sybil Thorburn; Mr. Morris Maud acts effectively as Richard Abingdon; Mr. J. O. Stewart is well placed as Squire Abingdon; Miss Jessie Elvin acts cleverly as Madge Abingdon; Miss Dorothy Northmore is pleasing as Marquitha; and other important parts are capitally taken by Miss Violet Young, Miss Dolly Hildebrand, Mr. J. W. Wilkinson, Mr. John Hignett, and Mr. Bert Butler. The play is excellently staged.

PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Joseph Hart's American racing sketch Futurity Winner heads the programme, the sketch being well mounted and capitally played; Frank Hartley, boy juggler, is smart; the Cosman Couple amuse with cross talk, &c.; Mark Merry, comedian, obtains applause; Allan and Hart do some excellent dancing, &c.; the Vays have a good scena, Life in the Slums, and the performance concludes with interesting animated pictures.

EMPIRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Ben Nathan and company are successful with their comedy-drama Filby, the Faker; "Captain Koepenick," a marvellously constructed automaton, is much appreciated; the Gascoignes do some clever comedy juggling, &c.; the Franck Comedy Five present a good interlude, introducing clever acrobatic feats; Sadie Seymour is a pleasing comedienne; Eva Lumley and Freda Ettrick's company amuse with a smart comedy skit, Jimmy-all-of-a-Twist; Fred S. Howard, lightning caricaturist, does some good work; Ronald Bayne and Evelyn Hope successfully present their dramatic sketch An Emperor's Divorce; Charles Pastor, character comedian, is appreciated; Constance Mori, comedienne and dancer, does a good turn, and animated pictures conclude the entertainment.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Mr. Douglas Bruce's company drew a full house on Monday, when Walter Melville's sensational drama, The Girl Who Lost Her Character, kept the audience fully interested right through. Miss Violet H. Lawson played with vigour in the title-rôle; Mr. R. Ferris was excellent as Captain Caversham; Mr. E. McLean made a good study of Rev. Robt. Everton; Mr. Harold Macartney as Jack England was also good; Mr. G. H. Asquin as Dick Punch, and Miss Doris Laine as Lucy Vere made the most of the comedy business; Miss S. Hare was a charming Rose Seymour; and a good study is presented by Mr. G. Mitchell as James Sutton. The company is a good all-round one, and the staging and scenery are very creditable.

BURNLEY.—EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—There was a well-filled house here on Monday. John Warren, "Court magician to the Sultan of Morocco," presents a musical military mystery, The Magic Carpet, and is applauded to the echo; the Paul Kramer Troupe of head balancers earn the warm plaudits of the house; and Miss Maud Lordy's troupe of trained dogs are in the front rank of canine acrobats and equilibrists. The Elite Harmony Boys, in Messmates Ashore, score a success with songs and choruses; and Miss Blanche Vincent sings a pretty song, entitled "Starry eyes." Arthur Schofield, comedian, raises laughter; and the Sisters Henderson, vocalists and dancers, are cordially received. The Empire Theatroscope is applauded for a beautiful panorama of Buda-Pesth.

NEW HIPPODROME, BIRKENHEAD, CHESHIRE.

THE CONTRACT FOR THE FIBROUS PLASTER, DECORATION, ELECTRIC LIGHTING, FIRE CURTAIN, SEATING, DRAPERIES, CARPETS, SCENERY, AND STAGE FITTINGS WAS CARRIED OUT BY FRED WILKINS AND BRO., LTD., 54, WHITECHAPEL, LIVERPOOL.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. de Hague Body.—Mr. Roy Redgrave and Miss Daisy Scudamore's company is here this week in Shadows of a Great City. Mr. Roy Redgrave, in the rôle of Tom Cooper, distinguishes himself by his admirable impersonation; and Mr. Herbert Hewetson's George Benson is a careful and well-studied interpretation. Mr. John Blake achieves a success as Abe Nathan; and Mr. Thomas Barry makes a hit as Jim Farren. As Arkwright Mr. Royce Milton appears to advantage; as Nellie Standish and Annie Standish Miss Daisy Scudamore meets with a hearty reception; and as Biddy Rooman Miss Molly Hadyn gives a clever Irish sketch.

BURY (Lancs.).—THEATRE ROYAL AND PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—The Woman Who Gambles, presented by Mr. Morton Powell's company, is a drama full of exciting incidents, which are followed with keen interest. Countess Natalie Steinbach is strongly played by Miss Laura Walker; Miss Lily Maldern is successful as Stella Malakoff; Count Otto Steinbach is ably presented by Mr. Clifford Rean; and Mr. Norman A. Overton is convincing as Baron Cratzlaw. Mr. Victor T. Raymond is most amusing as Hon. Bertie Bray; Mr. Reginald Fox makes a manly Karl Ctzartoriski; and other parts are suitably played by Messrs. Ernest H. Clarke, Arthur Brandhurst, and Misses Brenda May and E. Conway.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Acting-Manager, Mr. H. H Potter.—Another capital bill is attracting good houses. Curtis Leo, assisted by Little Noblesse, is the chief attraction, and they are responsible for an excellent juggling and conjuring performance, in which an educated bantam is also introduced; Shirley and Ransome give an entertaining coster sketch, entitled 'Arf a Quid; Adah Payne is heard to advantage in her songs; the Eeduns submit a novel and entertaining musical speciality, their singing being very successful; Turning the Tables is an excellent sketch, as presented by the Brady and Johnson company, and keeps the audience in continuous laughter; the Paolias, in a graceful athletic act, Horace Monto, the versatile soldier, Sam Redfern, comedian, and the Pictures are all good.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Brearley.—A Scottish military sketch, entitled, The Kilties Camp, is quite a novel turn, and the singing and piping of the company is distinctly good. Other excellent items include Lewis's Mannikins, very skilfully handled; F. S. Gilbert, in an operatic sketch; Bubbles, the Dodger; George Acre, vocalist; Mr. and Mrs. Pettitt, banjo and vocal entertainers; Gorman's Juveniles, in an artistic scena, The Waif; Will Walton, comedian; and A Broken Heart on the Bioscope.

CARDIFF. — EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—The famous Russian giant, Machnow, is once again drawing exceptionally big audiences. Bioscope pictures of the Gotch and Hackenschmidt wrestling match provide an exceedingly interesting and exciting film; for pure, unadulterated fun Ernest Cadle's act Casey's Court would be hard to beat; in a sketch entitled The Daughter of the Regiment, a display of delightful vocal ability is made, Mlle. Adele Prescott enchanting her audiences by her sweetly-rendered numbers; the gifted acrobatic Sisters Urma are seen again in their sensational trapeze performance; the Imperial Russian troupe of singers and dancers are still as attractive as ever; while Vanando, in a clever ventriloquial turn; Tom Collins, in an amusingly-rendered song; Beatie Kent, in a pleasing song and dance; and George Young, a talented blind musician, are the remaining artists.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Under the management of Mr. Rollo Balmain.—Mr. Montague Beaudyn puts forward this week the romantic drama Send Him Victorious. This piece is expensively staged. A better representative of Colonel Heinrich Kaufmann's villainies could scarcely be found than Mr. G. M. Montanini, his portrayal stamping him as an actor of merit; Mr. Wm. Alington makes a manly and perfect hero as Captain Frank Allison; and Mr. Frank Holyoake is distinctly good as the King of Ravonia. The success of Miss Marie Robson as Countess Kara is pronounced, her trying part being carried through with consummate ease; a pleasing performance is that of Miss Isabelle Hunt's Ethel Hardinge, who as the heroine gives a particularly charming delineation. Exceptionally clever comedy is introduced by Mr. Bert Woodin (Geordie Walker) and Miss Madge Palmer (Gretchen Holt).

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Arthur Burton.—Les François, in their wonderful acrobatic act, appear at the top of the bill. Their performance is a marvel of strength and precision. A sketch presented by Sydney Mason and Theresa Moor is entitled The Usurer, and the two artists mentioned distinguish themselves in their respective parts; quite a novel turn is that of Sergeant Brennan, who most decidedly deserves the title of the world's champion diabolist; Cassie Walmer makes a great hit in her song "Good-bye, Eberneezer," some capital imitations being introduced; Helen Martin renders two pleasing ballads in a sweet voice; and Cissie Esdaile is a smart comedienne. Archie Pitt, quaint comedian, and Raymond's Bio-tableaux complete an entertaining programme.

CARLISLE.—H.M. THEATRE.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—The annual charity festival is taking place this week.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Morgan.—The Brooklyn Comedy Four provide excellent fare, and meet with a hearty reception; Ted Karno's company in Dinner Hour is very amusing; Gillin, ventriloquist, is as bright and original as ever; Tee and Tee, musical eccentrics, are funny; Miss Lena Wylie vocalises with artistic effect; Arthur Slater meets with quite an ovation for his excellent whistling of the overture to the Poet and Peasant, and some fine films are exhibited by the Pepiscope.

NEW PUBLIC HALL.—Lessee, Mr. Sidney Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Thomas France; Resident-Manager, Mr. Franklin Moores.—This popular place of amusement still continues to draw large and appreciative audiences. Some capital pictures are provided this week, including The Rag-picker's Daughter, The Son's Crime, and The Mohawk's Revenge amongst others. The varieties are supplied by Fred Horsfall, double-voiced vocalist, whose Tyrolean songs and mimicry are excellent.

CARMARTHEN. — ASSEMBLY ROOMS. — Proprietors, Public Rooms Co.; Secretary, Mr. Edward Baldwin.—Will Gordon's No. 1 Animated Pictures and Popular Variety Company opened for a three nights' visit on Monday. The pictures were a fine series, being quite up-to-date and of a dramatic, comical, and topical description. Mr. Will Francis scored in his illustrated songs, his rich tenor being heard to great advantage; Miss Nina Vernon was most pleasing in her catchy songs; and Mr. Jack Hamilton was highly amusing in his comic songs and patter. Mr. A. E. Bradford is a capable operator, and the manager (Mr. Zey Harte) a clever illusionist.

CASTLEFORD.—ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Councillor Hy. Masterman, J.P.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and Mr. J. E. Cardwell's company in the pantomime The House that Jack Built were greeted by a good house on Monday. Miss Florrie Taylor (as Jack is as dainty as could be desired, and her songs are well chosen and successfully rendered; Miss Evelyn Major is a sweet and winsome Jill; she sings tunefully and plays well. Mirth is provided at a rare pace when Mr. H. Hillerby appears as Aunt Purdy, while Doyle and Gibson are a great attraction in the comic department; Miss Olive Purcell scores a success as Fairy Twinkle Star, her songs being received with great favour; Miss J. Marsden as Gretchen is clever in song and dance, and Miss H. Jones makes a pretty and fascinating Colin. As Wee M'Gregor Miss Gladys Wyse is repeatedly encored for Scotch songs and dances; Paddy Sloan makes a highly entertaining Squire Bounce; Harold and Percy find amusing representatives in Messrs. Stanley Jefferson and Ireland Cutter; the Forget-me-Nots are a quartette of graceful dancers, and Miss Florrie is a smart and clever solo dancer. The augmented orchestra is under the direction of Mr. H. Marsden.

QUEEN'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Proprietors, Messrs. Chas. Beanland and W. H. Emerson; General-Manager, Mr. Will. H. Emerson.—This week's programme is headed by Carl and Mary Ohm's well-trained ponies, bears, dogs, and monkeys, who give a really marvellous performance; the Four Scoreys find plenty of admirers in their musical and acrobatic scena, in which they prove themselves artists of considerable versatility; George Bernard sings well, and his impersonation of an old veteran is capital; Lozelle gives an elegant and graceful gymnastic display; Tray and Rich's songs, dances, and comic business are provocative of much laughter; The Veteran's Birthday, presented by Donaldson and Ferina, is a dramatic and pathetic episode, which calls for much applause; the Vanderbilts (Harry and Edith), singers with quick changes, submit a thoroughly enjoyable turn; Jim Chippin gives a good account of himself as a comedian; and the pictures of the Loyal Dominion Co. are very interesting and amusing.

CHATHAM.—BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Here we have Will Nosan in coon songs and dance; the Recar Trio of lady acrobats, two of whom appear later on as the Rizarelis in a very creditable trapeze act; Spry and Austin, who always get a big reception here; Ferguson and Mack in a side-splitting display of burlesque gymnastics; George Rapley, with amusing patter; and Maud Courtney and Mr. "C," both of whom have pleasing songs and up-to-date patter; Lacey's Erascope projects most clearly a trio of interesting films, consisting of The Tramp's Cycling Mania, The Road of Life, and The Servant of an Acrobatic Family.

CHESTER. — ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—The leading feature is undoubtedly the smart and graceful performance of Dancit, the American Dancing Nugget and Queen of the Golden Clog. Mephisto is a past-master in the art of illusions; T. E. Johnson is a good actor-vocalist; the Two Countees shine as humorists; and Halma is a clever juvenile juggler. Herbert and Lindon deserve praise for their clever dancing and witty duets; and W. L. Murray, as the Roman gladiator, is a superb specimen of herculean manhood. Some good pictures by the Premier Imperial Biograph complete the programme. This week ends the variety season.

COATBRIDGE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Coatbridge Theatre Company, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Commins.—The Royal Amateur Dramatic Association is producing here this week The Octoroon.

COLCHESTER. — HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Colchester Hippodrome Co.; Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—Charcot and his automatic man are the leading business here this week, and prove a very interesting item. Onda and Artell, aerial gymnasts, score heavily; the Claymore Trio juggle and dance in unison to much applause; Nellie Nestle proves herself a good vocalist; Burt Welch is capital as a ventriloquist and mimic; Frank Jester goes well as a comedian; and the pictures are thoroughly appreciated.

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—Mr. Lloyd Clarance took his twelfth annual benefit on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday this week. The boards were occupied by some good local talent, and there was a crowded house on Monday night.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. R. J. Bell.—Miss Horniman's company opened here on Monday in Candida, and gave a finished rendering of the play. Mr. B. Iden Payne's Marchbanks is wonderfully clear cut and decisive; Mr. Henry Austin ably undertakes the part of the Rev. James Morell; Miss Sybil Thorndyke presents Candida admirably; Mr. Edward Landor's Burgess is a capital character sketch; Miss Ada King as Prosperine Garnett is very good, and Mr. Basil Dean as the Rev. Alexander makes much of the part. The piece is preceded by a farce entitled Gentlemen of the Road, by Charles McEvoy.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Thomas F. O'Brien.—Mr. Albert Bellman and Miss Lottie Moore are here in a piece entitled A Real Bit of Vaudeville. They keep the audience in roars of laughter. The gentleman has a good baritone voice and the lady is a clever vocalist and danseuse. Charles E. Robinson, vocalist, appears with success in illustrated songs; the Sisters Trentanovi supply an amazing gymnastic act; the Sisters Amy and Ada, male impersonators and patterers, are clever; Mlle. Ameda, foot and hand equilibrist and contortionist, does a difficult turn; the Westwoods (lady and gentleman) are clever trick cyclists; Mlle. Renee wins much applause for her playing on several instruments; R. A. Speedwell is a clever lightning portrait painter, and the Palascope throws some capital pictures on the screen.

COVENTRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Bennett.—Mr. George Alexander's company in The Thief is proving a big attraction here. Mr. Stephen T. Ewart again appears, and too much praise cannot be given to his rendering of Richard Chelford; Miss May Congdon shows to advantage as Marise; Mr. Gerald Ames undertakes the part of Raymond Leyton with success; Mr. Alfred Lugg portrays the difficult part of the accused boy with ability; Mr. Cyril Cattley is a clever detective (Mr. Protheroe); and Miss Mary Dibley as Isabel is responsible for some charming acting.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. S. T. Newsome; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. E. Wright.—The principal turn this week is the famous wrestling champion, George Hackenschmidt, who is meeting local champions. Pictures were also shown of the American wrestling match with Joe Rogers. A very attractive item is given by Mr. Fred Winn and company, a dramatic episode The Light in the Window; a smart turn is contributed by Picitt and Lizette, illusionists, entitled The Crazy Cook; Dusty Rhodes is a capital comedian; John Shaw gives a good performance on concertinas and pianoforte; Violet Ashcroft, comedienne, is good; and Frayer and French are marvellous dancers.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Dance; Manager, Mr. K. Draco.—The Harmony Four, in an original musical comedy, are quaint and clever; very amusing is the sketch entitled The Belles of the Kitchen, given by Carrie Laurie's Miniature Comedy company; Dorothy L. Clarke is an entertaining comedienne; Les Barros are hand balancers of ability; Handford and Wayne's company appear in The Punishment; Charles Russell gives a couple of acceptable songs; and the Bioscope concludes.

CREWE.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. G. Dudley Bennett; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. Howard.—Mr. W. W. Kelly's company in A Royal Divorce is here. Mr. Keith Fraser's portrayal of Napoleon gains general admiration; Mr. Percy H. Vernon gives a capital impression of Talleyrand; Mr. Stanley Harrison is a capable Marquis de Beaumont; Mr. E. Plumpton an effective General Augereau; Mr. Harold S. Standing an able Marshal Murat; and Mr. Geo. Hudson is appreciated as Grimaud. Miss Margaret Watson wins fresh laurels as Empress Josephine; Miss Maud Lacy is a dainty and piquant Stephonie de Beauharnais; Miss Winnie Tempest a haughty and dignified Marie Louise; and Miss Nellie Lucas a commendable Blanche d'Hervas.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Bell; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hal Cummings.—This week good business is being done by Mr. C. Watson Mills' company with A Warning to Women. Miss Blanche St. Albans as Moira Kennion gives a capital rendering; Mr. Henry Rutland makes a typical Squire Kennion; Mr. William Vane looks well and acts with earnestness as Shaun; Mr. C. Robinson as Dr. Marcus Dread is also effective; Miss Edith Rutland acts with distinction and ease in the part of Myles O'Moore; Mr. W. Pallister Acock is a clever Ferdinand de Joules; Miss Ellen Beverley is fine in the part of Molly O'Moore, and Mr. Leicester Jackson as Lord Eversleigh, a light-comedy part, is very funny.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Theatre, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Hersee.—Maurin's marvellous fountains head the bill, and their pretty effects justified their reputation; the Three Stewarts in their acrobatic balancing act were recorded a hearty reception; Marie Collins treats the house to some clever songs; the Great Northern Troupe are clever dancers; enjoyable contributions are given by Charles Ulrick, the barrel king, and Flake White, lightning painter.

DARWEN.—PUBLIC HALL, PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Lessees, Messrs. Thomson, Leivers, and Bennett; Manager, Mr. J. E. Thomson; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Kerrigan.—Good business is being done here this week, a capital bill being presented. The Gelders give a smart conjuring turn; Ivy Dene's dancing is above the average; Marie Francis, a dainty soubrette, is deservedly applauded for her chorus songs; and Farrell and Dunn are comedians who provide much amusement. The pictures on the Bioscope are of the best.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley.—Miss Adria Hill and Mr. Robert Ayrton's company with a new domestic drama, entitled The Woman from Russia, occupy the boards here this week. As the hero, Mr. Robert Ayrton makes a manly Frank Haldane; and Miss Adria Hill proves herself a talented actress, and is successful all through; the villainous Yarviski is capably accounted for by Mr. Basil Mitchell; Mr. T. Byron is clever as the dude, Reginald; the Jew is well portrayed by Mr. G. Mortimer Hancock, and Miss Bateman enacts Edith in a praiseworthy manner. Much merriment is introduced into the play by Mr. H. Buckley as Jerry, and his songs, in which he is joined by Miss Ingram, as Mary, are thoroughly appreciated. The production is well staged.

PALACE.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes.—The attraction here this week is Rosie Lloyd, a dainty comedienne, whose well-rendered songs and pleasing manner secures her an enthusiastic reception; Captain Roberts, musician, athlete, and balancer, appears in a very clever performance, in which he is assisted by two ladies, two ponies, and his acrobatic boys, and is deserving of special mention; Walter Wallis, eccentric comedian, is as diverting as ever; Matt Wilkinson and company cause much amusement in the laughable act, On the Flip Flap; Godfrey James, the singing collier, is heartily received; Melia and Mozarabar, Oriental equilibrists, with their cleverly-trained pigeons and ravens, are entertaining; and the Forsyths are amusing in their diversion, entitled The Tramp in the Nursery. A humorous film on the Bioscope concludes a good all-round programme.

DEVONPORT.—HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. H. Taylor.—The leading turn is furnished by the Stein-Eretto Troupe, whose acrobatic feats are loudly applauded; the ever-popular Mark Melford made a marked success on his first Devonport appearance in the sketch Non-Suited, which evoked roars of laughter; Will English, coloured comedian, is an entertainer of no mean ability, and has a fund of patter, and Miss Florence Esdaile, the possessor of a lovely soprano voice, renders some choice operatic selections. The Monckton extract plenty of fun from their sketch A Woman's Curiosity; the Twin Andersons supply some pretty dancing, and Reg Beauchamp's witticisms conclude the programme.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. G. S. King.—The Trail of the Serpent, played by Mr. Campbell Kelly's company, is proving very attractive. Mr. Kelly undertakes the arduous rôle of the villain, Ralph Hammond, and gives an excellent representation; Mr. George Keith as Gerald Kingstown is a first-rate hero, and Miss Kathleen Payne is an equally good heroine. Miss Nana Cameron is quite at home as Rachael, the Gipsy, and Miss Florence Spencer scored as Ethel Kingstown. Other noticeable members of the company are Messrs. B. Webb, H. K. Penn, and A. Raymond. For the end of the week A Gamble with Life was billed.

DEWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Asquith.—During the past week a very successful performance of Les Cloches de Corneville has been given by the Dewsbury Amateur Operatic Society, for whose efficiency and artistic merits the professional stage coach, Mr. W. G. Bedford (an old Savoyard), may take flattering unction. His untiring zeal and method have wrought quite an excellent achievement. Drama in the shape of The Great Awakening, as presented by Miss Maud Hildyard (lately returned from her Australian tour) has been very stimulating fare to the pit and gallery lovers of the intensely melodramatic. Given such scope as Lola Selby affords, Miss Maud Hildyard played with both verve and vigour; in the heroic rôle of Molly Merton Miss Elsie Capel fulfilled the artistic necessities of the character; Mr. Cecil Gray doubled the parts of Sir Henry Merton and his son Jack; James Selby was well played by Mr. Wallis. The humorous interludes are submitted by Mr. Tracey Barrow (Billy Brass) and Miss Cissie Podmore (Selina Worts).

DOVER. — ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Sole Proprietor Mr. S. W. Winter; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. W. Holford.—In a scena entitled Flights of Imagination Luis Hardt gives evidence of his marvellous strength as a weight-lifter; the grace and skill displayed by Estrella, barefoot dancer, places her high in the ranks of terpsichorean artists; the clever tumbling and smart acrobatic tricks of the Bros. Werds call forth hearty applause; Hampton and Bauman are versatile, and in their scena Down in Kentucky play a variety of musical instruments; a pathetic sketch, capitally played, is given by H. J. Crane and company, the violin playing of the younger lady meriting a special word of praise; a couple of coon songs are rendered by Elsie Ward with success.

DUBLIN.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mrs. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Hyland.—The Trinity College Dramatic Club occupy the boards here, and are presenting Much Ado About Nothing and The Duke of Killicrankie to large audiences.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—The big attraction here on this the last week of the Hippodrome season is Constanto Bernardi, quick-change artist, whose marvellous performance has been delighting large audiences; Bostock's baboons display remarkable intelligence, and their turn, which is highly amusing, evokes much applause; Kelly and Gillette, the bounding billiardists, create roars of laughter from start to finish; the violin selections contributed by Edie Reynolds are well received; and the Royal Pictures, displaying the latest events, conclude the programme.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. W. S. Pearce; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Hereford Jones.—Large audiences continue to witness the excellent change of pictures here this week, which include The Flower Girl's Life Story, His Only Son, The Dressmaker's Dummy, The Knife, Ma-in-Law's Misfortunes, The Blacksmith's Revenge, Eastern Magic, and The Harbour Pirates. The variety artists appearing are Charlie Bayman, Ethiopian delineator; Bayne and Murray, in an amusing vocal act, entitled Black and White; and Bob Pearson, humorist and guide.

EMPIRE. — General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—A distinct hit has been made here this week by Bellew and Lock's company, including the boy actor Master Edward Garrett, in an interesting sketch, entitled An Outside Chance. Another excellent turn is the marvellous feats of jumping performed by the Hartley Wonders, which are well appreciated; Ina Lorrimer, Scotch comedienne and dancer, is warmly applauded; Jack Binns sings several descriptive songs very pleasingly; Webb and Branston, operatic duettists, score a great success; and Mlle. Pollo, in a clever trapeze act, meets with approval; Lambeth and Robertson, in an amusing sketch, are highly popular; Maggie Walsh, the Lancashire mill girl, sings with much acceptance; and the Empire pictures are, as usual, up to date.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—The Lavails, in a daring revolving-bar act, top the bill here, and meet with a flattering reception; another capital turn is furnished by the Serenaders, the old Venetian quartette, who are well received. Other items of note include Miss Nellie Hewitt, in a pleasing musical act, assisted by Miss Elsie May, club manipulator; Wills and Warlock, a pair of excellent patter comedians and dancers; Lucie Tilton, girl baritone; Zarmo, an amusing comedy juggler; J. H. Carney, a smart comedian and dancer; the Longfords, comedians and expert dancers; Lestre, in a clever juggling act; and the Bioscope, depicting The Guard's Alarum.

WORLD'S FAIR AND MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The newcomers here this week include the Goldstons, comedy entertainers; Miss Vera Winston, soprano vocalist; Arthur Rugby, ventriloquist; George Ferguson, comedian; Jack Danby, society conjurer; and Teddy Lennon, comedian and dancer. The Cinematograph is also shown.

DUDLEY. — EMPIRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. H. Waters.—The many patrons of this house are being greatly mystified by the performance of Mahatma, the queen of second sight, ably assisted by Professor C. N. Steen; the three Brights give a refined vocal and instrumental speciality; Lambert and Butler are comedians and dancers of an excellent brand; good singing and clever acrobatic feats are introduced by Darcy and Lewis in their comedy act; Bert Sanderson is a smart society conjuror; Charles Craston, quaint comedian, secures a favourable verdict; as a ventriloquist and mimic Tom Garland proves one of the best; Maggie Rimmer is a dainty comedienne; Woolmer Young, actor-vocalist, has some good songs; and the Empire pictures are always appreciated.

DUNDEE.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—A successful revival of the drama The Ticket of Leave Man is given here this week. Mr. Louis Karpe himself undertakes the part of Bob Brierly, the Lancashire lad, and gives an admirable impersonation; Mr. R. Gilbert's James Dalton is a powerful piece of acting; and the Jew of Mr. H. Urquhart an effective bit of work; Mr. F. C. Berridge is capital as Hawkshaw; and Green Jones is made an amusing personage by Mr. Douglas Murray; Miss Edith Vogne as May Edwards acts with great tensity and force; Mrs. Louis Karpe is bright and breezy as Emily St. Evremond; Miss Millie L. Emden deserves special praise for her Mrs. Willoughby; and Sam is cleverly enacted by Miss Nancy Blackwood.

PALACE THEATRE. — Lessees, the United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. S. McIntosh.—In place of the usual variety show we have here Mr. Jack Haddon's grand comic pantomime Jack and the Beanstalk. The production goes with a fine swing throughout. The scenery is very bright and effective, the dresses are dreams of loveliness, while the music is of the most tuneful description. Miss Alma Obrey as Jack and Miss Bessie Knight as Dora, his sweetheart, carry off the honours amongst the ladies; and Mr. Bob Baxter as Silly Billy, Mr. Dave O'Toole as the Dame, and Messrs. O'Malley and Brown, comedians, also score well. Amongst the other artists who keep the ball rolling merrily are Mr. Hal Forde, sen., the Squire; Mr. Tom Packer, the Giant; Miss Nellie O'Mara and Miss Kitty Chandos, Gay Lovers; Miss Marie Rayner and Miss Western, the Fairies; and Miss Trueman, a Herald.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee, Mrs. Lillie Williams; Licensee and Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts; Business-Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—An excellent bill is headed by the Five Mowatts in clever juggling with Indian clubs; the Three Bordellas, artistic gymnasts on the silver rings, are unusually good; Ruhart, assisted by La Belle Rosalind and others, keeps the house in continuous laughter; Harry and Louie Farrow score in their quaint comedy act; Jack Monks (brother of Victoria Monks) causes a furore with his chorus songs; Poole and Maguire win applause for their clever comedy act; and the Ormesby Quartette please with their refined harmonising. The Bioscope with some interesting films completes.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. Lillie Williams; Business-Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—The Prince Edward pictures are still a big draw here. Amongst the films exhibited this week is a fine reproduction of the Irish fairy story, The Leprechaun. The varieties include Mlle. Ada Gatley, an expert conjuror and slack-rope walker; and Bob Nicoll, coon singer.

NEWMAN'S PICTURE PALACE.—Mr. Fred Newman has a splendid selection of films on view this week, including Western Courtship, Kindhearted Bootblack, Two Broken Hearts, Devil and the Cornet, Grocer's Gauntlet, &c. Donaldson and Emslie have a hearty reception for their smart comic songs and patter.

EASTBOURNE. — PIER PAVILION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—A company under the general management of Mr. Cecil Barth is appearing here this week in Comrades. Splendid work, marked by culture and judgment, is contributed by Mr. Richard A. Greene as Captain Darleigh; Mr. Hastings Lynn, too, is a refined and effective Arthur Dexter; Mr. Charles J. Langley holds the sympathetic interest of all as General Dexter; Mr. Roy Byford causes much merriment and is a happy, rollicking Tom Stirrup; Mr. Basil Lynton is a capitally effective Penley Chivers, and Mr. Sidney Compton is a helpful Doctor Grumbleton. Miss Olivia Glynn is a bright and attractive Lady Constance; Miss Vere Gerald is a keen, refreshing, and clever Miss Grant; Miss Enid Ross, appealing and womanly, does good work as Lady Dexter, and Miss Evelyn Gray and Miss G. Denbeigh-Russel are excellent helpers as Hooper and Perkins.

DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Murray King and Clark.—A particularly able and well-chosen company is appearing here this week in The Reformer, and the performance is received with marked favour. The clever and gifted work of Miss Marie Polini is again in evidence, and she is a conspicuous success as Mrs. Rockingham; Miss Sylvia Morris is a most pleasing and interesting Sybil Carew; Mr. Rupert Lister, a polished and able actor, is an ideal Sir Rupert Yeld; Mr. Cecil Brooking is a highly amusing General Carew; Mr. Cyril Harcourt does easy, natural, and effective comedy work as the Earl of Crowborough; Mr. Owen Nares plays skilfully as Eric Lowndes; Mr. Ernest Benham is an admirable Captain Ross, and Messrs. Arthur Queen and Bernard Stevens give praiseworthy help as the servant and Thomas. On the Other Foot precedes, and is well played.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; District-Manager, Mr. G. Egbert; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Holloway.—The Courtiers head the bill here this week, and prove a talented combination under the direction of Mr. Paul Mill; Miss Edie Veno is warmly applauded for her good work as an eccentric comedienne; the Godfreys have a cleverly presented sketch, The Slavey and the Toff; An Extra Turn, too, receives a full measure of praise; Phillips and Bristow are smart wooden-shoe dancers; the Sisters Melba do good work as vocalists, and new pictures are added.

ECCLES.—CROWN THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs W. H. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. Albert Rogers.—Messrs. Sutton and Raynor's company had a most enthusiastic welcome here on Monday in Moths. As Prince Sergius Zouroff Mr. Cecil Wynne submitted a masterly impersonation; Mr. Raynor as Lord Jura played in a quiet, natural manner; Mr. Milton C. Curtis made the most of the character of the Duke of Mull; Mr. Leonard Laurence was well placed as Correze; Miss Henrietta Schrier was a dignified Duchess de Sonnaz; Miss Lisa Coleman caused much fun as Fuchsia Leach, and Miss Dorothy West-Symes played the rôle of Vere Herbert with charm and delicacy. Miss Frances Waring proved an adept as Lady Dolly Vanderdecken. Camille was billed for later in the week.

EDINBURGH.—ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—The D'Oyly Carte Répertoire Company opened their second week with The Yeomen of the Guard, which was performed to a large and enthusiastic house. As Jack Point Mr. Charles R. Welenn gave an excellent rendering of the part both vocally and dramatically; and in Wilfred Shadbolt Mr. Fred Billington had one of his favourite rôles, which he played admirably; Mr. Sydney Granville as Lieutenant of the Tower, Mr. Strafford Moss as Colonel Fairfax, and Mr. Leicester Tunks as Sargeant Meryll, with Mr. Hugh Blackmore as Leonard, were all in good form. Miss Clara Dow was a delightful Elsie Maynard, her singing and dancing being greatly enjoyed; Miss Beatrice Meredith made a pleasing impression as Phœbe; and both Miss Ethel Morrison and Miss Mabel Graham were happily cast as Dame Carruthers and Kate. The Mikado and The Gondoliers were repeated on Tuesday and Thursday respectively with all last week's success; The Pirates of Penzance was given on Wednesday, Mr. F. Billington appearing in his old part of the Sergeant of Police, with Miss Ethel Morrison as Ruth, Mr. Strafford Moss and Miss Clara Dow as Frederick and Mabel, Mr. Walenn as the Major-General, and Mr. Leicester Tunks as the Pirate King; and Princess Ida and Iolanthe completed the week's bill.

KING'S THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Amand Mascard.—Jack and Evelyn must take rank as two of the best entertainers in a capital programme here this week. Their sketch, Come into the Office, is highly amusing, and the artists carry through the fun in a clever and spirited style. Mr. Richard Taylor's whistling solos are admirable, his imitation of the blackbird and skylark being particularly realistic, while his powers as a ventriloquist are uncommonly good; Miss Georgette Thierry's company present a petite

"THE ERA" CHRISTMAS ARRANGEMENTS.

Important Notice to Advertisers and others.

Owing to Christmas Day and Boxing Day this year falling so late in the week, causing a consequent disruption of Postal facilities, and in order to prevent disappointment, "The Era" will be published at midnight on WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 23rd.

ADVERTISEMENTS intended for that issue must be posted not later than TUESDAY, DECEMBER 22nd., to reach us by first post on WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 23rd. Advertisements may be handed in at the counter until 12 30 noon on WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 23rd.

POST EARLY,

drama, A Daughter of the Revolution, in which Miss Thierry and Mr. Bernard Udell distinguish themselves by their excellent impersonations; Miss Rose Elliott, a contralto vocalist, with an expressive voice, is loudly applauded for her rendering of several tuneful ballads. The Smart Set give an exhilarating vocal turn, in which Miss Georgie Martin also introduces a lively dance; the Martelloni Family of five performers display remarkable dash and agility in their acrobatic feats, and the Pichel Troupe also show daring combined with extreme neatness and ease in their gymnastic turn; Mr. Dan Fraser, Scottish comedian, raises laughter by his humorous method, and the Bioscope films are, as usual, up to date.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Aynsley Cook.—In Kleptomaniacs Mr. Fred Edwards and Miss Bertha Northam provide a most diverting twenty minutes' entertainment, their exceedingly clever acting making the most of an exceptionally smart comedy sketch. Another distinctive speciality in the bill is the characteristic scena given by Alec Hurley and company under the title of The Coster's Beano, which is staged with great effect and creates an immense sensation. A third attractive combination is found in the Delevines, with their latest medley, Flipp and Flopp, introducing a weird and wonderful scarecrow dance; and two very meritorious single-handed turns are contributed by Violet Ray, 'cello soloist and soprano vocalist; and Alf. Chester, a versatile comedian. Ross and Lewis, styling themselves the Yankee Doodle Duo, appear in a "humorous idiosyncrasy"; Takio, a Japanese mimic, imitates the sounds of animals, birds, machinery, and so forth, very skilfully; expertness in dancing is shown by Bertha Winder, and also by George Rae; and the American Bioscope exhibits some new films.

COOKE'S ROYAL CIRCUS.—Proprietor, Mr. John Henry Cooke; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. C. Burns.—Novelties, from week to week, maintain the attractiveness of Mr. Cooke's entertainments. The clowns continue in full strength, their comic business being pleasantly varied by new interludes and absurdities presented in droll fashion by Walker, Shadow, Harry Dale, Talberto, Douglas, Elthardo, Pugh, and Olrac. Interesting equestrian acts are performed by Mlle. Florence, Herr Guthenberg, and Harry Stephenson; the trained horse "Siberia" is introduced by Miss Edina Marian Cooke; and a well-contested game of balloon polo proves very exciting. Horton and Linder do smart work on the horizontal bar; the Two Seymons give a clever display as equilibrists; Miss Lloyd does well as a variety artist; and the Orient Life Motion Picture Company shows a new collection of subjects. A huge Christmas tree has been on view during the week, hung with 2,000 toys for distribution on Saturday afternoon.

EXETER. — NEW HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. Karno and A. H. Edwards; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frederick Sandy.—An excellent show is this week drawing crowded houses. Julius Walther, a tenor of great ability, tops the bill; Pcp Dearly is a refined comedian, and sings and dances well; Fioretti and Elly are clever barrel and spade jumpers; Richard Corbin presents his wonderful troupe of dogs; the Maples, in an original skit, How to Treat a Burglar, are amusing; Arthur Croxon, as a mimetic comedian, is good; Daisy Hurdle is a charming comedienne; V. L. Granville, in an entirely new protean play, entitled 'Twixt Dawn and Daylight, does some marvellously quick changes; and the Hippodrome pictures complete.

FALKIRK.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace W. Ebbutt.—This house is again given up for the week to variety business, the principal attraction being the Leopolds, who appear in their sketches, The Houseboat and Those Terrible Boys. The Leopolds are sufficient to provide an excellent programme in themselves, and their efforts are well received by crowded audiences. Mr. Sanderson Moffatt's company give a highly interesting sketch, The Thin Red Line, and the other artists are Marjorie Maidment, comedienne and dancer; Harry Desmond, quaint comedian; the Stadium Boys, who offer an athletic pot-pourri; and the Boston Twins, comedians.

FLEETWOOD. — QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. J. Snelson.—The International Picture Co. is showing an excellent set of films, some of the dramatic pictures being by far the best seen in the town for some time. Miss E. Mitchell renders songs at intervals in a most engaging manner.

GATESHEAD. — KING'S THEATRE. — Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager and Licensee, Mr. Harold Arnold.—Mr. Jack Haddon's company in Babes in the Wood is here twice nightly. Robin Hood is gracefully portrayed by Miss Millie Engler, whose rendering of "I don't care if there's a girl there" rouses applause; Miss Dorma Morgan is a dainty and fascinating Maid Marion, singing "To serve the King" with much success; the quaintest comedians seen here for many a day are August and September, who play Nobby and Soppy; Mr. Chas. May cleverly impersonates Baron Skeemalot; Misses Dolly and Madge McCalla are charming Babes, and Mr. Harry Elliston is indeed funny as Euphemia. Specialities by the John Ridding Quartette and the Kentucky Trio are enthusiastically received, the "show" all round being one of much merit.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; General-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Dixon.—Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company in The Worst Woman in London has drawn large audiences to this house during the week. Mr. George Gaisford is a manly Jack Felton; Vincent Lyle is capably portrayed by Mr. Arthur Preston; the pliable old speculator James Milford is the subject of a thoughtful interpretation by Mr. F. Vernon Travers; Miss Edith Blande shows much skill in her impersonation of Frances Vere; a clever actress in Miss Dorothy Haigh gives a praiseworthy embodiment of Ruth Milford, and the comedy is well looked after by Miss Polly Marsh (Matilda) and Mr. Willie Scott (Bob Goldfinch).

GLASGOW.—ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphreys.—Mr. Robert Arthur's charming production of Cinderella has now been running merrily for over a fortnight, and is fully maintaining the grand pantomime traditions of this house, for, with its picturesque beauty, refined orchestration, and abundant humour, it affords delightful entertainment for the festive season. Mr. George Robey as William Buttons is, of course, the head and front of the comic business, and is splendidly supported on either hand by Mr. Harry Dent as the Baron and Mr. Willie Garvey as Mrs. Kilkenny. Miss Violet Loraine makes a handsome and dashing Prince, and sings the songs of the hour in rattling good style; Miss Iris Hoey is an ideal Cinderella, her representation of the heroine being at once wistful and sweet; an exceedingly smart and vivacious Dandini is seen in Miss Meg Hamylton; as the Ugly Sisters the Brothers Obo are good, and score well with a laughing song; Miss Edith Kirkwood is a singer of considerable cultivation, and is heard to advantage as the Good Fairy; the part of the Demon is filled with dramatic effect by Mr. Vernon Booth; other rôles being ably sustained by Mr. Harry Glynn (Adam), Mr. Cecil Frere (Wilhelm), and Angela Rence (Pierette). Mr. Paul Sundberg shows wonderful agility as a solo dancer; and the Martino Troupe also excel in the dancing line.

KING'S, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. Hugh Macfarlane.—This week Miss Edith Hesketh's London company, under the direction of Mr. Russell Rosse, performed the well-known comedy Betsy, by Sir F. C. Burnand. Mr. David James as Dawson, the tutor, gave a droll character-sketch; Mr. Tom Taylor-Vinson and Miss Gertrude Le Sage as Mr. and Mrs. Birkett did well; Mr. James Gelderd as Dick Talbot and Mr. Harry Morpeth as Adolphus Birkett were amusing; Mr. Maurice Denham as Captain McManus evokes continual merriment; in the title-rôle Miss Ida Chapman distinguished herself by a clever and attractive performance.

ROYALTY, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Carpenter.—Mr. Lawrence Brough's company is this week presenting The Saucy Sally, and a fairly large audience heartily enjoyed the humour of Sir Francis Burnand's lively farce. Mr. Lawrence Brough is very good as the masquerading Captain Jocelyn, and kept the fun going briskly; a clever character-sketch is the old sea-dog, Jack Buncome, of Mr. Percy Marshall. Another clever impersonation is the waiter Perkins, as played by Mr. Tom Mowbray; Miss Alice Leigh is a charming Rosie; and Miss Bessie Harrison is duly severe as the mother-in-law, Mrs. Lambert. Miss Betty Park makes a lively Cecile; Mr. Aubrey Cheshire acts with humour as Evan Evans; Mr. William Macready is a breezy Ulysses Jeffson; Mr. Harry Collier is amusing as Chudleigh; and the real Captain Jocelyn is smartly played by Mr. W. Mayne Lynton. Misses Maud Buchanan and Edith Adeson, as two servants, complete the cast. Cut Off With a Shilling was given as a first piece, Miss Olga Esmé and Mr. Tom Mowbray being well suited in their respective parts.

METROPOLE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—Messrs. O. Silverstone and H. Wright's company is here in The Nihilist. Mr. Joseph Millane gives a capital rendering of Ivan Nowaski; stage villainy is ably expressed by Mr. William Carriden as Prince Alexander; Mr. Cowell Clark is a picturesque Karl Orloff; an equally telling character is that of Father Gourko by Sir Brunelle Harvey; Alexina Orloff is full of pathos as acted by Miss Edna Clare; and Alexina is charmingly played by little Miss May Eddis. Princess Olga is effective in the hands of Miss Florrie Kelsey; and comedy is provided by Miss Jessica Ford as Katrina Zindoff and Mr. Henry Wright as Bobbie Smart.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—Mr. Carr Loates appears here this week with At the World's Mercy. The parts of the stowaway Skittles and Kitty Knott, a music-hall star, are cleverly doubled by Miss Cissie Milford; Mr. Leonard Wilson bears himself well as Captain Manley; as Alice Lloyd Miss Daisy Jags acts well and sings several ballads with taste; Mr. Carr Loates ably fills the part of Jabez Barber; and Mr. George D. Knight gives character to the rôle of Goldstein. Charlie Smart is suitably represented by Mr. W. H. Irving; Mr. F. Overton is good as Slouching Sam, as also is Miss Kathleen Saunders as Dot; the parts of Mrs. Rourke and Rosie being well filled by Misses Clara Hall and Alice Hunter.

EMPIRE.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Manners.—Miss Helen Roberts is appearing here in dances à la Maud Allan and is giving "Salome" and Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," both of which are picturesque and well received. Zeynard's Lilliputians give a smart equestrian and speciality turn, the clever feats of these little people being full of interest; Miss Teddy Edmond's company appear in a laughable sporting sketch, The Lady Jockey, which causes much merriment; Frances Letty takes well as a chorus singer, and has several good songs; Fred Wilkinson's magical turn is well carried through, and proves very mystifying; the Martineks, in their "rag-doll" speciality, contribute a most ingenious item; Albert Rees is a clever imitator of sounds; and Bernard Crook, a juvenile entertainer at the piano; Charles Vincent, comedian; and the latest films on the Bioscope complete a varied programme.

ZOO-HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Councillor E. H. Bostock; Assistant-Manager, Mr. E. H. A. Bostock.—Pantomime forms the fare here, a clever version of Red Riding Hood occupying the boards. Miss Maisie Jerrard is a tall and handsome Prince Charming, and sings the latest songs with good effect; Miss Decima Brooke makes a pleasing Red Red Riding Hood, and is a smart dancer; Miss Emie Franks acts and sings well as Tommy Tucker; and Tommy's sweetheart, Marjery Daw, is cleverly played by Miss Louie Davis. Mr. Fred Russell as the Baron Fitz infuses a lot of original business into the part, and takes well in his song "Harrigan." Mr. Howard Ward is a lively and amusing Dame Crump; and lots of funny scenes are introduced by Messrs. Will Lytton and Walter Watson as Johnny Stout and Johnny Green. Miss Florrie Page as the Fairy and Mr. Dave Laird as the Wolf ably fill their respective parts. A clever bevy of choristers and dancers, including the Poppy quartette, give animation to the various scenes.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Evan Good.—Owing to the large number of Pavilion patrons who were prevented last week from hearing Mme. Albani, the management this week wisely re-engaged her. Albani sings with great taste to appreciative audiences. On Wednesday evening and at the matinée on Thursday Mme. Albani was accompanied by that celebrated flautist, Mr. Albert Fransella, and, as might reasonably be expected, such a combination proved an excellent attraction. Another musical attraction is provided in Herr Zakovsky, whose violin selections are excellently rendered and please the most fastidious. Further, Herr Zakovsky accompanied Mme. Albani in several of her pieces in a highly proficient manner. Jack Lorimer is a favourite in the city; Ross and Grayson are always amusing; J. W. Hall's songs are well selected; and a dainty little comedienne is Stella Stahl. In an acrobatic comedy act the Havanas Troupe find scope for their tumbling work.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—The Brothers Leslie, two Australian comedians, in their sketch Music Mad display much humour; appreciation is gained by Mr. J. C. Piddock and company in The Capture of Venus; the Violas make a hit with their performance of mental telepathy; Metz and Metz are amusing, and their dancing is much above the average; Gladys Mavius sings her songs effectively; Hinton and Wood play football on cycles; the Lorrisons, Professor Morton, and Lily Arthur conclude the programme.

COLISEUM.—District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—There is a good all-round company here this week. The principal item is a realistic representation of the Johnstown (America) Flood, which occurred on Commemoration Day some years ago. The effect is wonderful, and the mechanism is very ingenious. An interesting playlet, Trapped by Telephone, is presented by Henri de Vries, assisted by Misses Dorothy Drake and M. Gordon. Its reception on the opening night was very hearty. Other notable turns include the Dumon Trio of clever vocalists and instrumentalists; Master Frisby, with illustrated chorus songs; Harris Coonie, a clever exponent in wooden shoes; the Mayvilles, Lilliputian novelty artists; Victor Travers, eccentric comedian and dancer; John Macaulay, character vocalist; F. W. Purcell and company, in an amusing sketch, That Brute Simmons, and the Bioscope.

GAIETY, LTD. — General-Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—A capital all-round programme is submitted at this popular Anderston house, and large audiences are the result. An exceptionally clever show was given by Li Chang Hi, the Chinese conjurer; Wesley's Minstrels are responsible for a great amount of fun; Webber and Williams, in a vocal scena; Rixie Moore, with songs; Hearne and Palmer, in their absurdity, The Hebrew and the Barman; and animated pictures are other attractions.

PANOPTICON.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. B. Pickard.—The programme arranged here for the week is very entertaining. The principal attraction is Mr. A. Hunnable, who became famous in a recent parliamentary election. There was a large attendance on the opening night, who fully appreciated his humorous election addresses. The variety artists include U. C. Ugo, expert conjurer; Archie Jack, descriptive actor-vocalist; and the Arnos, in an eccentric musical act. The Bioscope pictures are still popular.

GLOUCESTER. — PALACE.—Owners, Messrs. Poole's Theatres, Ltd.—Wild, West, and Willie, capital comedy acrobats, are well received; the Eight College Girls are expert dancers; Clarke's Nippers are smart in athletics; Eldra, in a capital turn, introduces a clever dog; Miss Nell Cotter sings tuneful songs; Gene Selby is a good bone soloist; the Debreans put on a shadowgraph show; and Bert and Dora, comedy artists, do well.

CORN EXCHANGE.—Proprietors, the Corporation.—Miss Harriett Greet's company, in The Sign of the Cross, is here for six nights.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—ROYAL AQUARIUM THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Mr. Horace Stanley and his company in The 10.30 Down Express are paying a welcome return visit. Mr. T. Arthur Plummer is a manly Jack O'Malley; Mr. Horace Stanley, a first-rate comedian, makes the character of Sam Wagstaff stand out conspicuously; Mr. William Hayward gives a clever character sketch of a broken-down gamekeeper; Cuthbert Leigh has an able exponent in Mr. Alaric Burton; Miss Kate Kilpack is an excellent Peggy Potts; Miss Cora Linda a charming Bessie Lee; and Miss Georgie a capital Olive Coombes.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Tully.—Miss Ella's lions are the chief attraction here this week, and give a wonderful exhibition; Jean Macduff, the lady Lauder, appears in Scotch songs, and is assisted by Peggy Lynden, who also appears in a musical act; the Cheers, with a number of well-trained cats, are responsible for a very good turn, and the Two Errols are very smart. Frank Rhliston and company in the sketch My Lady Betty are exceedingly good.

THE GEM.—Lessees, the Yarmouth Amusement Centre, Ltd.; Resident-Director, C. B. Cockran.—Excellent films are being exhibited here this week, the one illustrating Hamlet being worthy of special mention. Amateur Acrobats is the best of the humorous set.

AQUARIUM.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. Walter Kitchingman.—At the top of the bill here is John Grun Marx, the Modern Hercules, who well deserves his name; the Wambas are particularly clever gymnasts, and Tom Drew, comedian, and Bert Lytton, the swell comedian, are both well received. The sketch, The Shattered Idol, is very amusing, the artists, Mr. and Mrs. F. Shelley, taking their parts exceedingly well; Great Scott is very smart, and other good turns are given by Milvin and Max and Clincy and Clancy.

GREENOCK. — ALEXANDRA THEATRE, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—G. W. Hunter, the famous comedian, tops the bill here this week, and is well received; Charles Coborn is another artist of distinct merit, and he has had quite a flattering reception; good turns are also provided by Dot Stanley, vocalist and dancer; Bennett and Sterling, American comedy entertainers; Belle and Wright in an amusing sketch; Alix Lukos in his protean scena, The Language of Fate; the Sisters Lotus, operatic duettists, and Joseph Hennessey, horizontal bar and club-juggling performer. The Alexandroscope is also an attraction.

EMPIRE.—Lessees, the Greenock Empire Syndicate; Responsible-Manager, Mr. Edward McCormick; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. J. Colquhoun.—An attractive company is headed this week by the Jees in The Musical Smithy, in which tuneful music is produced from horseshoes, anvils, &c.; Merton and Rydon give a very original and amusing musical burlesque turn; Garden's Royal Quintette display marvellous agility in their exposition of national dances, and the Three Pirmans in a comedy gymnastic act, Lillian Lowe, a pleasing vocalist, the Sisters Clare, comediennes and dancers, and the Bioscope are included in the list of attractions.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry L. Skivington.—The Jackley Trio top the bill here, and meet with a hearty welcome; Will Godwin, in songs old and new, has had an enthusiastic reception; the Sohos submit an excellent turn, introducing good vocalism and clever dancing; Rene, the girl juggler, provides a capital item; Gladys Goodwynne is a juvenile comedienne of great promise; Ted Waite's humorous contributions are keenly enjoyed; and Roy Beavis, conjurer, and Cavalli, ventriloquist, also entertain.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—A dramatic version of Alphonse Daudet's Sapho is being presented by Mr. Frank Bateman and Mr. Stuart Lomath. Miss Lizzie Montague undertakes the part of Fanny Legrande, and thoroughly realises its emotional possibilities; Mr. Stuart Lomath appears as Jean Goussin, and gives an earnest portrayal of the young man's impulsive nature; Mr. W. Aynsleigh ably depicts the interesting personality of Famant; Mr. George Harvey is good as Henri Dechelette, and Miss Mabel Durham as Alice and Miss Ellen Owen as Cleopatra contribute excellent work.

THE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. Rhodes Parry.—A highly entertaining combination of comedy, singing, and dancing is the sketch The Cruise of H.M.S. Victory, and it is presented by a numerous and talented company; Barton and Franklin have a capital musical speciality, and perform on a wide variety of instruments; another sketch, The Window Cleaner, with Mr. Henry Carlton in the principal rôle, is productive of much fun; Ryder Slone is a successful character comedian with good songs; the Northcotes are duettists of considerable vocal attainments; Ida Evilo gives a smart gymnastic display on the trapeze, and Madge Fenton is a pleasing vocalist.

GUERNSEY.—THEATRE ST. JULIAN'S.—Lessee, Mr. Ed. Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—A season of drama has given way this week to vaudeville, and the attendance is good. Effie Vincent, an old favourite, is ever welcome; George Porter is a fresh and original patter comedian; Ethel Scheffer delights all with illustrated songs; the Ringling Trio give a smart comedy act; Rosie Gaston, comedienne, established herself a favourite; Mr. H. Leslie Bell, Lilley Pearl and company submit two novelties, A Bit of String and The Red Letter, both artistic and well interpreted. Pallister's Bio-Tableaux pictures add to the success of the programme.

HALIFAX. — THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company is paying a return visit with The Midnight Wedding. Mr. A. E. W. Barnes as the hero, Paul Valmar, gives a vigorous, manly, and painstaking rendering; Mr. John Nesbit makes a dignified and soldierly Crown Prince; Mr. Mayor-Cooke's Captain Scarsbruck is a good performance; Messrs. J. E. Page, H. Richardson, and A. Spalding as Max, Otto, and Bobo keep the comedy well to the fore; Miss Ada Champion is successful as Kathie; Miss Yvonne Orchardson gives a sympathetic and clever rendering of Princess Astrea; and Miss Nesta Sandford is well suited as Satanella. The drama is well put on, and has played to good business.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—There are some very interesting pictures shown at the Grand this week, augmented by two clever variety turns—the Reays (lady and gentleman), clever gymnasts, who perform some marvellous acrobatic feats, and the Brothers Milford, capable dancers, who introduce some smart patter.

THE PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Reg. H. Foster.—Bonnie Goodwin's Apollo Piccaninnies are very smart dancers, and are ably assisted by Miss Lily Vine; Emerson and Baldwin, a couple of clever comedy jugglers, are deservedly popular; Johnny Dwyer causes considerable amusement—his comedy is good; and Captain Devereux appears with a troupe of highly-trained dogs. Flo Inman (comedienne), Julian Ross (comedian), Lottie Bray (comedienne), and some good pictures complete.

HAMILTON, N.B.—HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. René Clayton.—Tarro Myaki, the champion ju-jitsu wrestler of the world, is topping the bill here; The Arthur Lloyd Trio are exceptionally good in a refined comedy sketch, Little Charlie; or, the Twin Sisters; Marlo is an entertaining and expert juggler; the Juanito Troupe of Spanish acrobats are daring; Chas. Dixton's company is amusing in a sketch, Uncle Obadiah; Jack Lane, in the character of a Yorkshire rustic, causes Merriment; and Lillian Travellie (light ballad vocalist), Alisop and Beckwith (comedy artists), Sam Dalton (eccentric), and the Bioscope are other attractions.

HANLEY.—ROYAL.—Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—The Coal King is here this week, and a clever representation is given. Mr. A. C. Alderson is very fine as Tom Roberts; Mr. Ulick Burke is a clever Sir Reginald; Mr. Yates Southgate is a strong exponent of the heavy lead, Harold; Mr. Sam Roberts as Jim Williams shows great versatility in pathos and comedy; Mr. Frank Dalton is good as Shirley; Miss M. Hinton is capital as Araminta; Miss Joan Wellman plays Ann, the mad woman, with decided skill; and Miss W. Love makes an engaging Grace Shirley. Business is good, notwithstanding the poor state of trade in the Potteries.

KING'S.—Lessees, Messrs. Moore and Kennedy; Manager, Mr. H. Kennedy.—Crowded houses are bearing testimony to the attractiveness of the pictures this week. They include Nick Carter, Detective (No. 4), Shocking Shocks, A Nobleman's Pleasure, The Antiquary Burglars, The Press Gang; The Postman's Daughter, Raised From the Ranks, How to Travel Cheaply, and An Artful Ruse. Miss Marion Blake's songs are much appreciated.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Eric Fielding Smith.—Variety is in the bill here again, and St. George Sylvesta is the headliner in a series of illusory novelties, which prove very popular. The Five Musical Tritons give a good turn, a mixture of electric light and music; Tom Gott, a Yorkshire comedian, is a great favourite; and Miss Vena Valma is a smart and clever dancer. Irene and Morton are a clever couple, who introduce some good patter and smart dancing; Mr. George Westland is an entertaining comedian; and W. E. Hilton a Scotch ventriloquial turn. The Five Sisters Warwick are an exceptionally smart party of cyclists.

ST. JAMES'S HALL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sydney Carter; General-Manager, Mr. F. D. Sunderland; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fred Parker.—A good selection of films are here this week, notably The Kind-hearted Bootblack and Honesty Rewarded. The Imperial Canals of China is very interesting, and the new American picture, The Patriot, is greatly to the liking of the spectators. Mozzetto, assisted by Buttons, is a clever and amusing juggler.

HASTINGS. — GAIETY THEATRE. — Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—A naval play finds ready sympathy in this old Cinque Port, and a crowded house on Monday gave its hearty approval to The Flag Lieutenant, played here by Messrs. Lyn Harding and Sidney Cooper's company. Mr. W. D. Hobbs has painted some fine scenery for the piece. The acting throughout was excellent. Mr. Laughorne Burton gave an ideal presentment of Richard Lascelles; Miss Marjorie Chard was a delightfully sympathetic Lady Hermione; Miss Florence Jackson as Mrs. Cameron played cleverly; and Mr. H. Montague Love as Major Thesiger did exceedingly well. Others attracting special notice were Mr. George Mollett as the Vice-Admiral; Mr. Edward S. Petley as the Surgeon; Messrs. Hugh Wakefield and Lyonel Watts as the Midshipmen; Mr. Herbert Gallop as Quartermaster; Mr. W. J. Yeldham and Miss Stella Leigh as General and Mrs. Gough-Bogle; and Miss Evelyn Robson as Lady Dugdale.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Vivian-Fisher; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman.—Jack Hamilton, light comedian, opens an excellent programme; Zaida, with well-trained pigeons, exhibits some graceful dancing on a slack wire; the Alhambra pictures this week are exceptionally good; the sentimental duets sung by Gould and Gould are very pleasing; Pongorila as the Man of the Woods gives an original and startling imitation of a monkey; a highly amusing comic and quaint dancer is seen in Dan Conroy; and the Three Tivoli Girls are light and graceful dancers and capital vocalists.

PIER PAVILION.—General-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—Mr. Walter Payne's animated pictures, as shown on the Bio-photoscope, occupy the principal part of the programme here. The other part of the entertainment is given by some half-dozen vocalists, who render a pleasing selection of humorous songs, duets, solos, and concerted numbers. Messrs. Chapman and Stevens, Miss Irene Greville, and Miss M. Thurgate are associated in the vocal selections under the name of Les Froliques.

HEREFORD.—DRILL HALL.—Manager, Mr. A. Lovesey.—The Hereford Juvenile Operatic Society gave a pleasurable performance of A Dream of Nursery Rhymes and The Spanish Gipsies.

HUDDERSFIELD.—HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—Nothing funnier has been seen here for a long time than the two leading turns in this week's programme. The first is the skit in which Carter Livesey, Edward Collins, and Miss Lilian Rosebery personate amateurs rehearsing a drama, the second a musical sketch, in which John Le Hay, Charles Cautley, and Miss Norah Le Hay appear. All the time these two turns occupy the stage the house rocks with laughter. Also in the bill are the Raymond Trio, in a dainty musical and dancing act; Miss Elsie Earle, comedienne; Les Montaldos, with a fine collection of well-trained birds; Spry and Monti, a lively pair of duettists; Lester Mayl, comedian; the Three Cunards, in smartly-executed solo and concerted dances; and new pictures on the Bioscope.

HULL.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Mortons, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. W. F. Morton.—The Hull Amateur Operatic Society are holding the boards this week, The Yeoman of the Guard being produced under the direction of Mr. Herbert Marchmont, late of the D'Oyly Carte Co.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Manager, Mr. Tom Bogue.—The Karnos, in His Majesty's Guests. Mr. Geo. Hestor and Miss Aggie Morris share principal honours. One has frequently alluded to the success of this extravaganza in Hull.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Mortons, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—A Country Girl in London is a production which appeals to the bulk of the patrons of this popular theatre. Mr. W. V. Garrod fills the rôle of Frank Gordon with no little success; Miss Bertha Kingston played the part of Marjorie with proper appreciation of all its calls. The rest of the company are more or less successful in their respective rôles.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Harry Dunford.—Messrs. Frank Bernard and company appear here in an amusing sketch Hello! the Four Amaranths are very clever acrobatic dancers; and other artists completing a good company are the Sisters Belmont, Frank Whiteley, Robbie Roy, Boy Glenn, and Sara Rosebury.

THE EMPIRE. — Lessee, Mr. Harry Slingshy.—A very interesting engagement is that of Jem Mace, the old-time boxing champion, who boxes with a local veteran; Rubie and Elsie Redfern give a smart and varied performance in banjo and piano playing, dancing, and singing; Major Arnold is a conjurer above the average; Wyndham and Kitty appear in a clever wire act; and Will Farrell and Fred Villiers complete an excellent company.

THE CIRCUS.—Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Emerson.—Animated pictures are still attracting good houses here.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—The company of Messrs. Neville and Carnaby is occupying the boards this week in Napoleon's Divorce and The Sinner that Repented. Napoleon's Divorce was put on on Monday, the title-rôle being ably sustained by Mr. F. F. Neville. The part of Josephine falls to Miss Kate Randolph, who achieves marked success; Mr. Terence Nerry makes the most of his opportunities as Duke d'Arville; Mr. F. H. Fortescue (Pierre) and Miss Marion Mayne (Jeanette) represent the comedy; Mr. J. Soden as Joseph Bonaparte is the evil genius.

IPSWICH. — LYCEUM THEATRE.—Mr. Charles H. Bowmaker's company, in The Education of Elisabeth, is occupying the house for the week. The company is an excellent one, and includes Mr. Wilson Gunning in the part of Harry Fairfax, a creation entirely satisfactory. Mr. Ernest E. Norris is a humorous Reggie Hankey; Mr. Whitty is well played by Mr. Fred Castleman; and Mr. C. Holt is droll as the French police officer. Elizabeth Black, by Miss Winifred Ingram, is an excellent piece of character acting; Miss Louisa Peach as Blanche Macyntire acts with much spirit; as Lucy Middleton Miss Helene Forrest is dignified; and Miss May Norris completes the cast as Lily Kerr.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Miss Harriett Vernon, a lady new to the Ipswich boards, made a great hit on her first appearance in her song-scena, "Sunshine and Shadow," and the rousing choruses to her songs add much to their popularity; Wilman, an Australian artist, has considerable ability with the posthorn and cornet; the Westbrooks have a good scena, entitled "Two little maids from school"; the Three Lloyds have extraordinary ability in balancing on a bounding cable; Natalie and Diana are also clever aerial gymnasts; Leslie Race details his adventures amongst the suffragettes in song; and Lieut. Travis scores a great success in his ventriloquial entertainment. The Pasquali Brothers are old favourites in Ipswich; and the Bioscope concludes.

JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Edward Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—The Lilly Pearl Company are playing a couple of new sketches here this week; Ethel Schaffer sings illustrated songs; the Arntees, a coloured couple, give coon songs and dances; and Fyne and Fane supply a good turn. A novelty is a cake-walk competition in which members of the audience compete.

KEIGHLEY. — QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. R. Kendall; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Carson.—A large audience on Monday was delighted with the fare provided. Caban's French Circus top the bill with an excellent entertainment; a really capital turn is given by the Ronald Brothers, whose remarkable feats of strength elicit enthusiastic plaudits; highly enjoyable are the efforts of Miss Zeta Grey and company in the amusing sketch The Lancashire Lass; Kydd and Kydd excel as patterers; Kent and Earle were accorded a very good reception; J. S. Maber renders his songs in good style; Renson and Waite, eccentric duettists, are well received; and Miss Ethel Jackson sings most acceptably.

KIRKCALDY.—Pavilion.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. G. W. Walker.—The Bohemians are foremost on the bill this week with a clever instrumental entertainment; Arthur Bright is a good vocalist, besides being a smart Milanese piper; Vincent performs some really wonderful acrobatic feats; and Mr. Olly Oban, as an illustrated song singer, is most successful.

LANCASTER.—Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. C. Howitt.—The Diver's Luck, presented here about twenty years ago, is again with us, the company on this occasion being that of Mr. Andrew Emm. As Martin Faber, Mr. Harry Cullenford cleverly sustains the part; Mr. Fred A. Marston works hard as Barney Bawn, and his efforts are appreciated; whilst Mr. William J. Miller and Mr. Kendrew Milson do exceedingly well in the villainous parts of Tom Hall and Pedro respectively. Miss Dora Pass submits a careful rendering of Helen Wyngate; and Peggy Mahoney is entrusted to Miss Pearl Noyle, who does well. The drama is well staged.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. J. Porter and W. J. Fergusson. — Slippere, the blind entertainer, tops the bill and sings well; George E. Doughty and company have a comedy sketch, Captain Cupid, which is very funny; Mabelle May is a pleasing vocalist; and the Three Panamas supply a clever turn. The remainder of the programme is filled in with the Hippograph.

LEEDS.—Empire Palace.—Moss Empires, Ltd.—District Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—Joe Elvin is the top-liner here, the sketch The King of the Castle proving an effective vehicle for much mirth-provoking business; Charlene and Charlene, with juggling and musical novelty, are very successful; the Lukushimas are a most expert Jap troupe, and win great applause; the Bros. Horne are as popular as ever with boxing novelty; there is a neat comedy act by Phil and Nettie Peters; Bessie Slaughter achieves big success as a vocalist; whilst Fred Lincoln, Mason and Bart, and May Brilliant are also popular.

Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—The Royal Tokios are a strong lead here, their expert, daring turn arousing the liveliest interest; Graham's Juveniles are doing a neat song scena; Lord, Murray, and Lord have an acceptable gymnastic novelty; Fred Herbert is a pleasing vocalist; De Vere and Kenwick win a good share of applause; and Harry Zetter also occupies a front place in popular favour.

Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Thos. Barrasford.—A remarkable juggling turn by Brinn arouses vast interest here; Fred Edwards' company appears in an uproarously funny sketch; Ted Curtis's Piccaninnies score with a song and dance turn; there is a neat comedy sketch by Lee and Kingston; and capital entertainment is also subscribed by Fred Russell, Andrews and Thompson, Geo. Carncross, the Three Carleus, the Aribos, and Mike Cray.

City Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—Eccentric comedy has a big place in this week's bill; Dave Samuels, a Hebrew specialist, has a big following; the Wedburns are old favourites in this line; Wilton Heriot takes the five characters in a protean sketch in good style; Mark Henton also submits comedy items; and there are also good turns by Georgina Leonard and Elmo and Rego.

LEICESTER.—Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. S. Buckleuch.—The great attraction here this week is Dick Turpin's Ride to York, by Mr. Fred Ginnett's company. At the other end is Lottie Lennox, whose rousing and well-rendered chorus-songs are great favourites; another artist who makes a hit is Herbert Shelley, who is particularly smart in the thoroughly interesting Irish protean play Dan, the Outlaw; Wood, Wells, and Wilkins are good in their vocal and humorous sketch The Piano-Tuner; Adams and Ward are clever acrobatic comedians; Teresa da Silva is a capital chorus singer and burlesque artist. In place of Sidney Lee Charles E. Barrett, a local celebrity, appears. His yokel mimicry and patter are most praiseworthy. E. J. Sheldon, a study in black and white, and the Bioscope are other items.

Pavilion Theatre.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joe Lawrence.—Bernard Mervyn and company take the lead here this week with the petite drama Treachery, which is well staged, the principal parts being enacted by Mr. Bernard Mervyn as Lieutenant Jack Ferrers and Miss B. Doyle as Marion Kilrae. Special interest is aroused by the turn of Elroy, the armless wonder; Leslie's Comedy Cadets (George Curzon, baritone; Vernon Noble, comedian, and Harry Leslie, ventriloquist) are delightfully entertaining in their military scena After Lights Out. Other turns of merit are Charles Jerome, coon vocalist and dancer; Tina Frank, comedienne; Marie Gray, vocalist, and Carrie Joy, comedienne. Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope retains its popularity.

Empire.—Lessees, the New Bioscope Trading Company; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles R. Craig.—The usual liberal and excellent programme of moving pictures is submitted here this week, including The Warrior's Bride, Gold Prospectors, A Victim of His Honesty, The Fatal Love Romance, A Day of Robbery, A Unique Disguise, The Unseizable Pickpocket, and Baby has Disappeared. The Mays, vocalists and dancers, are popular, and Jimmy Huntley, comedian, hat-spinner, and patterer, and Miss Maude Ethelda, comedienne, are other turns of merit.

LEIGH.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. W. Heath. — Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company, on a welcome return visit with the ever-popular Village Blacksmith, is drawing good houses. In the name part Mr. Sam Livesey plays with an artistic skill which gains loud applause; Mr. Albert Sinclair submits a clever impersonation of the unscrupulous Captain Leo; and Mr. Edwin Maydew is well placed as Lucas Marier. Miss Maggie Edwards as Kate Strong gives a clever and sympathetic rendition of a difficult part; Miss Cassie Le Grande is seen to advantage as Ruth Parkins; Mr. Fred Haming is highly amusing as Billy Twigg; Mr. Thomas E. Marshall and Mrs. T. C. Livesey as Jeremiah and Sal Parkins cause much amusement; and Miss Lily Leicester speaks her words distinctly as Harry Strong.

Assembly Rooms. — Lessees, Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Walker; Manager, Mr. J. Frank Walker.—The Sovereign Picture Company continue here, with an entire change weekly. The special film this week is entitled Christmas. Messrs. Collin and Irene are very clever in their thought-transmission; and Little Dolly Brough, child comedienne and clog-dancer, gains much applause.

LEITH.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Licensee and Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—The Majilton combination of eccentric comedians give a good account of themselves in their go-as-you-please kind of entertainment Round the Clock, which rattles along with as much bustle and merriment as ever. Mr. Charles Majilton is very successful in the part of Gadforth, who has a sufficiently severe spouse in Miss Rennie Walton; Old Gewgaw provides many opportunities for diversion in the hands of Mr. Randle Wilson, with Miss Nelly Clifford as Georgina; and Messrs. Ben Storey and Henry Granville help the fun along in the rôles of Denby and the Cabman. The leading lady is Miss Maddie Majilton, whose impersonation of Salprunelle is most acceptable; Miss Nora Christie makes a good Bertie Kelvin; Miss Jenny Hughes does well as Mary; and Mr. Jim Bond revels as the irrepressible Burke, by whom the piece is kept very much alive with laughter from beginning to end.

LIVERPOOL.—Rotunda Theatre.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—A Woman Worth Winning, presented here throughout the week by Mr. Percy Norman's company, was received with much favour. A powerful and dominating figure was that of General Borinski, undertaken in telling style by Mr. A. B. Mackay; as Roma Pauloff Miss Cissie Bellamy showed sound judgment, and earned much approbation; Miss Ida Mackay deserved thanks for her vivacious Katerina Kless; the character of Ivan Bardoff was interpreted by Mr. Wilfred E. Clark in a manner which gained for him high commendation; Mr. B. Crosby as Fergus Lovinsky showed resource and discretion; great laughter followed the antics of Peter Popples, a humorous part, for which Mr. Fred Danvers was responsible; and Mr. Louis Newman pleased with his Bertie Scribbles.

Star Theatre. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—The attraction here this week has been The King of Crime, given by Mr. Harry Battersby's company. As the villainous Ronjarre Mr. F. B. Woulfe acted with excellent dramatic intensity, his efforts being watched with deep interest; Miss Mildred Eversleigh filled the part of the blind wife, Henriette, with sound judgment, and deservedly earned general approval; Mr. William Miller did well with the rôle of the miserly Grandelu; the lighter parts were in the good hands of Mr. Sam Wilford (Mick Maloney) and Miss Edith Loraine (Clarissa), who caused endless fun; and worthy support also came from Messrs. Claude Aymond (Simon), William Melvyn (Louis Mascorot), Lionel Devere (Pergignan), Dan Mining (Tabaret), Miss Agnese D'Aragon (Mère Crouchard), and Miss Grace Evelyn (Mimie).

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole.—Here this week the popular Nellie Wallace had a cordial welcome for her songs; under the conductorship of Mr. Thomas Grundy, the 18 Lancashire singers gave an artistic and well-received musical turn; the Arthur Saxon Trio of athletes went through a clever performance; an extremely amusing sketch, The Water Cure, was given by Charles Steuart's company, including Miss Nellie Bowman; the Scottish comedians, Naughton and Gold, were responsible for much laughter; Leo Stormont was loudly applauded for his well-rendered baritone songs and recitals; Tom Haig and Millie Novel had a refined comedy act; and the list also contained the names of Harry Lawson, eccentric comedian, and Agnes Tina, child actress.

Queen's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Granville.—A bright and smart pantomime, entitled Babes in the Wood, which has been witnessed by large audiences and richly enjoyed, opened here on Monday evening, and Mr. Granville is to be congratulated upon having been the first in the local field to offer Christmas fare. The whole production was exceedingly acceptable. Miss Cissie Paris was a dashing Robin Hood; Miss Georgia Davies made a winsome Maid Marian; as the wicked Uncle Mr. N. Hall caused a deal of laughter; the Kimberley Boys proved excruciatingly funny in the rôles of the villains; Mr. Alfred Brooks helped immensely with the part of Araminta Koffkake, the village schoolmistress; the characters of Aconita and Sylvania were ably undertaken by Mr. H. Val Morgan and Miss H. Brendt; and the "Babes" were charmingly and intelligently portrayed by Violet Wilson and Baby Boden.

Lyric. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—Top of the bill here this week was a capital sketch, entitled The Little Stowaway, the characters in which were undertaken by Messrs. John K. Walton, Arthur Stratton, Horace Corbyn, G. Barton, Arthur Temple, G. Stapleton Roche, and the Misses Maude Osmond and Marjory Armstrong; an acceptable drawing-room musical act came from the Austral Trio; Fred Walmsley amused greatly with his songs and talk; as society entertainers Phillips and Merritt gave a good show; Fred Bamford as the whistling newsboy pleased generally; and some neat work as equilibrists was performed by the Stowe Bros.

Royal Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—Heading the programme here this week were Haley's Juveniles, including the little duettists "Dot" and "Spot," who gave a charming carnival scene that was watched with much interest; Joe Peterman's singing servants presented a turn of great merit; Rastus and Banks, the coloured entertainers, had a flattering reception; Thorpe and Coe pleased everybody with their merry little trifle, My Burglar; Cecile Francois and company had an enjoyable sketch, An Artist's Studio; smart work as ball manipulators and novelty acrobats was shown by the Four Athos; an amusing Scotch comedian was J. Hayworth; Milner and Storey went through some merry comedy; and contributions also came from the Sisters Ford, comedy duettists; and the Hectors, speciality artists.

Royal Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—A much-appreciated version of Trilby has been given here this week by the stock company, and Miss Florence Palmer acquitted herself well in the title-rôle; Mr. Sydney Grant's Svengali was a particularly able performance that reflected upon that artist every credit; Mr. David G. Noble made a popular Billee; as the Laird and Taffy Messrs. R. S. Innes and Cecil Ravenswood did excellently; Mr. Tom H. Solly afforded satisfaction in the parts of the Rev. Thos. Bagot and Manager Kaw; Miss Lilian Radbourne was Mrs. Bagot; Miss G. Entwistle Mme. Vinard; and Mr. Leo Montgomery Gecks. The Bioscope, under the direction of Mr. Anthony Brown, had some fine films.

Westminster.—Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—Foremost here this week was Professor Hutchini, who delighted everyone with his clever work as an illusionist and in escaping from handcuffs; the Two Perkins, coloured vocalists, patterers, and dancers, were a good turn; Will Challiner sang and danced tastefully; Stanley and Gordon proved themselves to be a couple of skilful athletes on the flying rings; the Pardys (Dot and Violet) had a cordial reception for their singing and duets on the piano; and Alf Epans, character comedian, also appeared.

Olympia.—District-Manager, Mr. Albert Bulmer; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wighton.—Fred Karno's absurdity, The Bailiff, has delighted audiences here this week, the principal characters being in the hands of Kate Forster, Julia Bassett, Lydia Weber, H. Soutar, Buchanan Wake, and Albert Bruno; a most pleasing entertainment was provided by Albert Whelan; the remarkably intelligent horse, "Billy," interested all; Goggin and Davis afforded pleasure as comedy acrobats; Joe Almasio, the jumping juggler, and his funny assistant, gave a smart turn; on the horizontal bar the Mezzettis went through a laughable titbit, The New Recruit; Jeannie Mackay, "the lavender girl," sang several songs with taste; F. W. Purcell and company, including Miss Margaret Murch, presented a gratifying miniature drama, What Women Do for Men; and Bert Weston, comedian, also appeared.

Pavilion.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. Henry Hearn.—James and Jenny Jee have been well received here this week for their clever show on the endless revolving wire; the able little artist Rachel Lowe gained much favour for her taking songs; An Airship Elopement, a sketch played by the Aeronauts, provoked shouts of laughter, the enchanted statue being a particularly funny incident; the Floradora Girls went through a lively musical comedy, entitled Two's Company, Three's None; Alman Correze, assisted by the droll Keith, gave a skilful juggling scena; a flattering reception was accorded Jimmy Shields, the one-legged comedian and dancer; and excellent items were likewise provided by Monty Walker, swell comedian; the Bros. Durant, society acrobats; Arthur Royce, at the piano; and Fred Solbey, child mimic and novelty comedian.

Roscommon.—Manager, Mr. J. M. Crewdson.—Two-houses-a-night drama has been proving popular at this house. During the week The White Boys of Wicklow was given by the stock company, principal among whom were Messrs Butler Stanhope (General Danville), A. Wilson-Rae (Major Blakeley), J. D. Geddes (Edward O'Brien), Percy M. Stevenson (Barney Nowlan), James McWilliams (Corporal Diskey), Harry Leamar (Mark Tape), and Miss Belle St. Clements (Kathleen) and Miss Florence Russell (Norah O'Donnell).

LOUGHBOROUGH.—Theatre Royal and Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne Seddon and George Robertson; Resident Business-Manager, Mr. W. Payne Seddon.—This week we have a variety company. Mr. Chas. M. Daly's side-splitting sketch I Must Have It keeps the house in a roar of laughter; Mr. R. C. Note is a sensible singer of sensible songs; Percy Maye is a clever female impersonator; Blanche and Diacoff give some thrilling examples of bicycle riding in their great cycle whizz; the Newsboys from Hull sing in a most charming manner; and the Bioscope Pictures complete.

LOWESTOFT.—Marina.—Manager, Mr. E. A. Smith.—The bill this week includes the Three Romas, gymnasts; Cummin and Seaham, comedy acrobats; Ford and Hanson, musical experts; Ethel Dove; the Woolhafs; Rudge Whitworth; and Gracie Lawn.

Hippodrome.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Géo. Gilbert; Manager, Mr. Frank Freeland.—Capital business continues at this "popular palace of variety." Taylor and Bridge, the singing mill boys, are favourably received; and Dan Noble, comedian and actor-vocalist, is also well to the fore. Jim Topping rattles off a number of successful ditteis; and another popular turn is that of the Lovelaces, in illustrated songs. Marie York, Doodles, and Little Bishop also add to the general success; while the British Bioscope Company present all the latest instructive and amusing pictures.

MAIDSTONE. — Palace. — Manager, Mr. S. Baskerville.—Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company is here in The Female Swindler, and to judge by the enthusiasm of the audience, the visit should prove successful. Miss Violet Ellicott, in the title-rôle, and Mr. Jerrold Heather as Jack Coulston share the honours, their clever acting being received with enthusiasm. The whole production is excellent. For the last three nights, Mr. Geo. Edwardes' company, in The Merry Widow, is announced.

MANCHESTER. — Gaiety Theatre. — Proprietress, Miss A. E. F. Horniman; Manager, Mr. B. Iden Payne; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edwin T. Heys.—For lovers of serious drama a fine programme is submitted here this week, consisting of five Ibsen plays, presented by a company under the direction of Mr. Leigh Lovel. Mr. Lovel played Torvald Helmer in A Doll's House on Monday with marked success, and received powerful support from Miss Octavia Kenmore as Nora and Mr. Arthur McCulloch as Nils Krogstadt; while Miss Katherine Maynard as Mrs. Linden and Mr. Arthur Chesney as Dr. Rank added to the value of the performance. On Tuesday Hedda Gabler was given, and on succeeding evenings Rosmersholm, John Gabriel Borkman, and The Master Builder.

Grand Junction Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Hewitt.—Mr. J. Gar Kiddie's company appeared here on Monday in a highly satisfactory version of Little Bo-Peep, a pantomime which is destined to enjoy a successful travelling career. Very pretty dresses and scenery are a feature of the show, and the singing and dancing leave nothing to be desired. The comic parts are in the capable hands of Mr. Harry Royde (Baron Hardup), Mr. J. W. Groves (Granny Brown), Messrs Grapho and Jackson (Johnny Stout and Johnny Green), Mr. Willie Harris (Tommy Long), and Mr. Albert Kail Stern (Rastus Brown, the Baron's flunkey); while Boy Blue and Little Bo-Peep are played with plenty of go by Miss Ivy Gallard and Miss Lizzie Payne. The living statuary, among the specialities, are capital, and the entire production was highly appreciated by a full house.

Royal Osborne Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Mason.—Mr. Stephen Pritt's dramatic répertoire company is playing here an interesting drama entitled A Woman's Passion. Miss Rosa Mervyn gives a quietly powerful depiction of Claire Trevenen, "the woman," and is ably assisted by Mr. Archie Helsby as the gipsy doctor, Mr. Edmund Grogan as the heroic Lord Hubert Vale, and Mr. David McFarlane as Sir Randall Derrick—a capital character part. Miss Emmie Barton has also a good rôle as Winifred Hamlyn, which she renders with nice discretion; and much fun is provided by Mr. William Ames, the jockey, Little Poulton, the page, and Miss Marie Desmond, the housemaid. His Wife No Longer was played on Wednesday and Friday.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Dry.—Messrs. Northway and Garrod's company is here this week in The Prodigal Parson. Mr. L. Darra plays the part of the Rev. Tom Godley in excellent style; Mr. Alfred Northway is equally good as Jaggins, the churchwarden; and Mr. C. Ashwell as Ben Jaggins does well with his opportunities. Miss V. Hammersley as Fern Godley, the parson's wife, gives an intelligent depiction, and Miss M. Gillard is commendable as Myrtle, the blind child. Acceptable humour is supplied by Mr. O. Redmonde and Miss A. Buckland. The play is given twice nightly before good audiences.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—The top turn here this week is provided by Albert Marsh's company in Chums Till Death, a dramatic episode of the goldfields, which is proving attractive. The second place of honour is occupied by the original Cruikshank, a very smart comedian. Rousby's "Greater London" is a fine electrical spectacular display; Albert and Edmund's comedy troupe in Neighbours is well described as "something to laugh at"; and other entertaining items are supplied by Tate and Tate, the barmaid and the customer; La Belle Nello, queen of equipoise; Charles Stevens, comedian; and Cissie Thompson, comedienne.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—Fred Karno's company in The Football Match is a big attraction here; and Caicedo, king of the wire, provides a wonderful and exciting turn. The Bensons give a good vocal, musical, and comedy act; Hammon and Whyatt, the Australian Sandow girls, are successful; and other pleasing items are those of Kitty Wager, comedienne; Mlle. Haydee's miniature vaudeville theatre; Fred Poplar, comedian; Walker and May, coloured singers and dancers; and Falcon and Eida in a Japanese jujitsu dancing act.

Palace. — Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Manager, Mr. A. J. Carter.—An excellent all-round programme is headed by the inimitable Little Tich, who, if possible, is more entertaining than ever. His reception nightly is deservedly great. The Borghetti Troupe go through a really surprising acrobatic performance; Lotto, Lilo, and Otto are excellent trick and comedy cyclists; Odeyne Spark is a chic comedienne and dancer; and Wyze and Adna sing well in a vocal duologue. Harry Nation, vocal comedian, is good; L. B. Athol sings "Let me keep on dreaming" effectively; Jack Rae, comedy gymnast, is clever; and Charles Hera is a smart society juggler. As usual, the Palace pictures are good.

Tivoli. — Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Kitty Colyer, who tops the bill here this week, has several catchy chorus songs, and is an excellent dancer. Elsie Bernard, an American comedienne, has some smart talk and songs, and makes a decided hit; Ruby Bijou is a very dainty dancer, barefoot and otherwise; and Duncan and Brasque are exceedingly good in a playlet entitled A Society Butterfly. Harry Meegan scores as an eccentric comedian; the Wyffs are entertaining in a comedy sketch, St. Valentine's Day; Bert Rayburn, a quaint character comedina, is good; Daisy Hicks is a refined comedienne; the Brothers Idento do some amusing juggling; and Jen Sanda, the lady baritone, sings two songs. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope pictures complete.

King's, Longsight.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broad head and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. James B. Trippett.—Joe Peterman's Singing Servants are the principal turn here this week; and Stacey and Williams provide an equally successful comedy act. Clever turns are added by the Three Alskarnos, risley comedians; Hulbert, the popular ventriloquist; and Pueblo and Cropp, Creole artists; while the programme is satisfactorily completed by Ascot and Dewey in Ballooning; Charles Rowen, comedian; Mons. de Lil, illusionist; Mike and Lena, the Dutch lovers; and Frank Sley and his nipper, comedians and dancers.

Queen's Park Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—A hearty welcome is accorded Billy Williams, who is very popular here. Evelyn and Norrie present a smart and effective sketch, Set a Thief—, which is well received; Percy Farrimond, the singing collier, is warmly applauded; Ben Harris and his Five Nippers are highly diverting in dancing, singing, and boxing ;and the Wakeman Quintet are good harmonisers. Horace Sade dances in a masterly manner; Cyril Jephson, a comedian with a good voice and presence, makes a hit with his song "My gallery girl"; the Cameos are acrobats of ability; and Herma shows some wonderful feats of strength and weight-lifting. The Tramp's Daughter on the Bioscope is a good film.

Hulme Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broad head and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas Baker.—Lester and Moure are to the front here this week in an eccentric comedy act, A Day at the Beach. Fred Maitland causes roars of laughter with his skit Talked out; or, Should Women have Votes? The Five Zingaris, in an Eastern scena, dance and sing well; La Belle Duchess introduces some well-trained animals; the Faludy Troupe of Royal Hungarian acrobats are clever; and other good turns are offered by Williams and Warden, the "Dooleyfied" humorists; Margaret Drew, vocal comedienne; E. Morrissey in clever equilibristic musical act; Jim Cheetham, boy whistler; and Lew Peterman, Hebrew comedian. The Hussar's Love is the Bioscope subject.

MANSFIELD. — Grand Theatre. — Managing-Director, Capt. Clayton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Mark Lorne.—A good house on Monday witnessed Messrs. Kimberley, Green, and Hinton's company, in The Power of the King, which was admirably staged. Miss Dorothy Clifton is very charming as Lady Anastasia, and fills the part with much distinction; Miss Georgina France is excellent as Lady Florina; and Miss Grace Barton is a sweet Margot. Mr. Gerald Blake acts in manly style as Captain Langrave; Mr. Travis Green is a great success as Crown Prince Oscar; Mr. Charles Whitlock as King of Vallambrosa has a part well suited to him; Mr. Wilton Drury is extremely clever as Fritz; and Miss Hilda Volkes is particularly good in the juvenile part of Phillipe.

MARGATE. — Hippodrome. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—Harry Tate's company has been presenting, this week, with unqualified success, the laughable sketch Fishing; this piscatorial trifle has created great merriment, and has proved an attractive item on the programme; America's Elephant Trio, "Roger," "Queenie," and "Alice," introduced by Mr. Charles Miller, give a remarkably intelligent performance; the Victas give a smart acrobatic and barrel jumping turn; Charles Cardow, vocal comedian, had a flattering reception in his up-to-date songs; Ena Richards, comedienne and dancer, and Charles Leighton, the tramp at the piano, have each given a very acceptable contribution to the programme, and the entertainment has also included an interesting series of Hippodrome pictures.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessees, the South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Albert Jackson.—The Merthyr Amateur Dramatic Society were in possession, for the first three nights of the week, playing with considerable success The Forbidden Tree, for the benefit of the local charities. For Thursday and two following evenings, Mr. Stanley Carlton and company were announced, in London With the Lid Off.

Temperance Hall.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—This week's bill includes Walter Ellis and company, in an amusing playlet, The Sleepwalker. Other capital turns are given by the Moxon Trio, acrobatic eccentrics; Oakdene, the comedy ventriloquist; Poole and Poole, comedians and dancers; Pietro, the human crocodile; the Musical Keiths; Little Maudy, child comedienne; La Petite Carlina, international dancer; and the Biograph, with some good pictures.

Methil.—Gaiety Theatre.—Proprietors, the Methil Theatre Company, Ltd.—Varieties form the attraction here this week. The Tennessee Guards provide a popular turn; Mr. Leslie Clements is a clever banjoist and dancer; Miss Retta Helkett is an attractive comedienne; Mr. Geo. Le Wist shows ability as a ventriloquist; and two turns not named on the programme prove acceptable. The Gaietyscope shows several of the latest films. An entire change of programme was billed for the last three nights of the week.

MEXBOROUGH.—Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Mrs. F. Wybert Clive's company is this week presenting The Outcast of the Family. Mr. Cecil A. Olgar gives a manly exposition of Harry Thorne; Stephen Barry is capably presented by Mr. Walter Steele; the villainous Richard Martin is vigorously played by Mr. C. H. Coleman; Abram Wasper is ably typified by Mr. E. W. Cudd; Mr. M. Platting submits a capital character study of Uncle Sam; Miss Gertrude Morella is a sympathetic Ruth; and Miss Lilian Ross shows ability as Grace Redburn.

New Picture Hall.—Proprietor, Mr. Will Hunter; Manager, Mr. E. H. Jones.—The excellent programme this week includes The Wreckers, Poverty and Honesty, Ride Through Central France, How the Clown's Prayer Was Answered, Music and Poetry, &c.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. Jno. Ed. Jowsey; Manager and Licensee, Mr. W. Ker Chatto.—The Power of the Cross is being presented here by Mr. Lingford Curson's company. As the Baron Curzola Mr. George A. de Gray, author of the play, does well; Miss Annie Hylton as Margaret Seaton ably depicts the part; Gerald Fairfax is well presented by Mr. Robert Hall, and Miss Stella Carmichael gives a capital portrayal of Rita Lascelles.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Charles Imeson.—A romantic melodrama, For Love and the King, is being presented by Mr. C. Watson Mill's company. Mr. C. Watson Mill himself portrays the character of Jorval, a young soldier of fortune, and Miss Rosalind Tate admirably fills the part of Princess Athene. Miss Joan Ellis is a delightful beggar maid, and Mr. Villiers Stanley as the Prince is exceedingly good. Mr. Geoffrey Chate does full justice to the rôle of Duke Fernand. The piece is admirably staged.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Charles G. Rembges.—Sammy Shields, the football enthusiast, creates roars of laughter here this week, and Tom Edwards provides a clever and novel ventriloquial turn; Chris Richards is an eccentric comedian, and Henry Hilton a smart conjurer. Marie Jones and Ernest Munro provide a novel turn in a duologue, in which she appears in six distinct characters; Leah Arden is a pleasing comedienne, and Lyster and Cooke give a delightful musical turn.

Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Manager, Mr. C. E. Nicholls.—George Formby deservedly occupies the star position here this week, and he is accorded a hearty reception; a most mystifying turn is presented by Sahib Gustave Fasola; Baines and Reed are clever acrobats; Katie Butler is highly amusing, and Charlie Williams, Parker and Parr, and David Poole also contribute.

MOTHERWELL.—New Century Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Hales.—Mr. W. W. Kelly's company in a new version of East Lynne is proving a strong attraction here. Mr. Frederick Harker is quiet and refined in his embodiment of Archibald Carlyle; Mr. W. H. Garbois is playing the part of Levison on conventional lines; Mr. Richard Nugent is amusing as the volatile Murty O'Flynn; Justice Hare is finely portrayed by Mr. William Lowe; and Mr. Byron Pedley is to be congratulated on his performance as Mr. Dill. Miss Marion Lind gives proof of sterling ability as an emotional actress in her finely conceived conception of Lady Isabel; the Cornelia Carlyle of Miss Sophy Shenton calls for special mention as a fine bit of quiet character acting; Joyce is admirably played by Miss Guineveve Shilton; Miss Josephine Gwynne is excellent as Barbara Hare; and Miss Doris Denville is well suited as Willie Carlyle.

MUSSELBURGH.—Gaiety Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Hugh Ritchie; Lessee, Mr. A. W. B. Kingston.—The stock company played Jane Shore on Monday, giving one of the best performances of the season. As Richard, Mr. A. W. B. Kingston had a part which fitted like the proverbial glove; and received able support from Mr. James T. Dale as Sir William Catesby. Their opponents, Lord Hastings, John Cressingham, and Matthew Shore, were played respectively by Messrs. Jack Kilpatrick, James Somerville, and Tom Mortimer. Miss Emma Poole, in the title-rôle, was seen to great advantage; and as the Queen Miss Dolores Hope both looked and played well. Other parts were taken by Messrs. Ted Mooney, James Forsyth, and Miss Clarice Jenner. Old Edinburgh, The Sleigh Bells, Robert Macaire, The Face at the Window, and Reddy's Bonnie Dochter are in the week's bill.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—Palace Theatre.—Manager, Mr. T. W. Rowe.—Patrons of this popular house are well catered for this week, during which Mr. Frank Lindo and company provide the entertainment. On Monday Home, Sweet Home, was presented before a large and appreciative audience. Mr. Lindo as Stephen Armitage and Miss Wakeford as the adopted daughter of Stephen's father proved undeniably their histrionic talents. Other leading rôles were ably sustained. On Tuesday evening Love, the Conqueror, a new play by Frank Lindo, was presented for the first time. An account will be found in another column.

Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. W. Bolam.—A capital attendance greeted the appearance of Mr. W. G. Arthur's company in The Mockery of Marriage on Monday. The company is a strong one. Mr. George Tempest as Sir Montagu Jephson and Miss Mabel Liston as Alva Kenyon filling the principal parts in a capable and convincing style.

Empire Theatre.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—Amongst many and varied items presented here this week, Terry and Lambert prove especially attractive; Mme. Alice Esty, the well-known operatic star, heads the bill, and her well-chosen selections are immensely popular; Miss Marquis and her stud of highly-trained cats furnish another big-line turn; whilst Herman Melot, an able conjurer, succeeds in mystifying his audience with his deftness in legerdemain. Another pleasing turn is that of Nance Elder, versatile comedienne and singer; whilst J. L. Shine, character comedian, Bob Hamilton, Scotch comedian, Bennie Barrow, baritone, in illustrated songs, and No. 99, an American dramatic sketch, presented by Fred Kitchen and Frank Lister, all prove most acceptable, the Bioscope completing.

Pavilion Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—A burlesque, entitled Man—the Brute, produced by Harry Grattan and company, is the premier attraction at this popular house. Other excellent turns are provided by Mooney and Holbein, Ariel and Astarte, Tony Black, Maxey and Pete, the Ongars, St. Ruth and Conyers, and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wilde.

Skating Rink, Exhibition Buildings.—Manager, Mr. F. B. Crowe.—Special attraction is provided this week by the enterprising management in the engagement of A. H. Simmons, the famous roller-skater, whose exhibitions greatly please the numerous visitors. Thursday night was set apart for special contributions to the Lord Mayor's Distress Fund.

NEWPORT.—Lyceum.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Mr. Harding Thomas and Miss Gertrude Bonser, with a capital company, produce The Old Home here this week. The Daddy of Mr. Harding Thomas is a fine piece of acting throughout; Mr. Henry Lonsdale as the Rev. Eric Armstrong interprets the character with power and dignity; and Miss Gertrude Bonser as Hazel Dean makes a charming heroine. Mr. Rowland Yorke's Lord Avondale is quite adequate, and in the lighter parts of Bridget Donaghan and Sam Adams, Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite and Mr. Fred L. Connynghame are exceedingly entertaining. The minor characters were all ably sustained. The stage effects are admirable.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—The central attraction this week is the playlet Jack the Giant Killer, presented by George Angler and his company. All the parts are admirably sustained, and a great deal of humour is introduced. Sybil St. Elmo, who has a powerful yet sweet voice, sings a couple of songs in good style; the Musical Twelve present a charming vocal and instrumental entertainment; Mlle. Lousi van Dalle, Geo. Hilton St. Gust, and T. H. Wood do well, and Alfred Holt (American comedian) gives some excellent imitations of birds, bells, and animals. Trippello (assisted by his son) provides a pleasing musical turn; Ethel Newman shows talent in her monologue, Her Wedding Day; Pat Rafferty, comedian, and some excellent pictures on the Bioscope complete the bill.

Makes the Skin as Soft as Velvet.—Beetham's "Larola" Preserves the Skin from the effects of frost, cold winds, and hard water. Entirely removes and prevents all roughness, redness, irritation, chaps, &c., and Keeps the Skin Soft, Smoo

NORTH SHIELDS.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—At Duty's Call is being played here this week by Mr. John Gerant's company. As Harold Alison Mr. John Gerant is responsible for an excellent portrayal; Mr. Charles C. Calvert displays ability as Captain George Alison; General Gordon is cleverly enacted by Mr. Ernest St. John; Mr. J. Forrester Harvey makes a hit as Terry O'Hallaron; Mr. Frank Morton is clever as Jack Spenser; Miss Beatrice Western plays with intelligence and power the rôle of Dora Drummond; Miss A. Roscoe is an effective Salema; and Miss Eva Belle is smart as Mary.

Central Palace.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—The Four Aces, comedy acrobats, top the bill here, and give a clever performance; Mr. Joe Belmont, vocalist and mimic, creates a favourable impression; and the Two Tenors, vocalists, are much appreciated; Miss Lilly Fenwick, comedienne, has many admirers; the Cleatens, vocalists and dancers, meet with a hearty reception; Mr. J. P. Fletcher, a local reciter, is well received; and the Mouldoscope still continues a prominent feature on the programme.

NORTHWICH.—Pavilion.—Proprietress, Mrs. Fletcher; Manager, Mr. Towyn Thomas.—Harry Daubney gives a smart ventriloquial turn; Venie Veldon does well; Will Willis renders a good account of himself; Rowlands and Ford are very popular; Billy Melia receives much applause for his contributions, and Ruffell's Bioscope pictures are still affording much amusement.

NORWICH.—Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—Mr. Tubby Edlin, in The Cowboy Millionaire, with a talented company, introduced by Mr. Harry Roxbury, provide an excellent turn, and are well received; George D'Albert is also much appreciated; Henry Hallam and Josephine Stanton, in a musical comedy sketch, entitled A Broken Journey, are entertaining; Harry Ray and Lillie Caldon are amusing; Gladys and Alba get much applause; and Harry Briggs, vocalist, Herbert La Martine, eccentric dancer, and La Belle Greta, vocalist and danseuse, with the Hippo-Bio, complete a capital programme.

Agricultural Hall Assembly Rooms.—Interesting and entertaining pictures are shown here by the New Era picture company, depicting life in all parts. They are well patronised, and assisted by a small orchestra. Songs by Miss Gladys Vane are well received.

Bank Plain Assembly Rooms.—The Franco-English animated pictures are continuing successfully here.

Agricultural Hall.—Mr. Charles Thurston has again opened this spacious hall as a Great Fun Carnival. In addition to the motor-cars and gondolas, there are several sideshows, with an animated picture exhibition. There is an excellent attendance.

NOTTINGHAM.—Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Harry Upton.—The stage is occupied this week by the City Amateur Operatic Society, who have for some years done much to help charitable institutions by their performances. The opera chosen is Falka, and excellent representations are being nightly enjoyed by large audiences.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—The popularity of Bella and Bijou is considerably enhanced by their latest sketch, The Suffragette, and uproarious applause awaits them at each performance. The equestrian act by Karl Reinsch and Miss Lucie gives great pleasure by its skill and neatness. Another turn of great interest is the reappearance of the blind pianist Mendel, his remarkable powers calling forth the highest praise and enthusiasm; Victor Newman's impersonations are excellently done, and Mabel Mavis supplies a musical item with taste and expression. Some merry moments are provided by Les Marsumas, comedy cyclists, and by Dennis Drew, in a musical scena; Kathleen Cogan dances spiritedly, and Harry Leybourne's song is appreciated. The Bioscope pictures are well received.

Royal Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. V. Carnell.—Amongst acrobatic performances, the Denwartz Troupe must be ranked high, their quickness, fearlessness, and skill being remarkable. No less amazing is the turn of Marcel and Boris, equilibrists, who are justly awarded a hearty reception. The Rubys rouse enthusiasm in an exhibition of contortionism, and the dancing of "My Fancy" evokes a storm of applause; Starr and Leslie are always amusing, and their juggling feats deserve unlimited praise. A delightful little sketch, A Daughter of Pleasure, is capitally played by Grahame and Harrington; B. A. Rolfe presents the American musical comedy, The Ten Dark Nights, which gains deserved favour; Parr and Jerome add to the fun as comedians; Ida Ross contributes a song; and films are shown on the Barrascope.

NUNEATON.—Prince of Wales's.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joseph Coyle.—Mr. Lingford Carson's company is this week presenting A Fight for a Throne. Mr. John S. Millwood as Capt. Jack Fortescue, the hero, plays well, and scores continuously; Mr. Gerald Byrne ably impersonates the King of Saxovinia; Mr. Charles E. Linney draws execrations from the audience by his resourceful acting as the thorough-paced villain Prince Otto; relief from the exciting incidents of the play is provided by the capital comedy of Mr. Charles H. Hughes as Tom Ferret; Miss Dora Hammersley as Prince Esmee is natural and charming, and wins much approval; Miss Margarette Tueskie gives a creditable performance as Countess Valeska; and Miss Emmeliene B. Lewis is good as Lady Pat.

OLDHAM.—Empire Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—The Carl Rosa Opera Company is paying its annual visit, and the reception obtained has been most gratifying. Carmen was the opera selected for Monday. Miss Doris Woodall appeared with great success in the title-rôle, her vivacious acting and delightful singing being highly enjoyed; Miss Elizabeth Burgess as Micaela was no less successful, her voice being greatly admired; Miss Christine Ritz as Mercedes and Miss Annie Walker as Frasquita sang in an accomplished manner; Mr. Edward Davies was heard to great advantage as Jose, and used his excellent tenor voice with good effect; Mr. Chas. Victor as Escamillo was very effective; Mr. Alexander Richard was a fine Zuniga, and Mr. Wm. Rousell and Mr. Albert Felton as Morales and Lilias Pastia respectively were excellent. Mr. Frederick Clendon as Dancairo and Mr. Wm. O'Connor as Remendado also did well. A powerful chorus do full justice to the numbers allotted them, and an augmented orchestra is presided over by Mr. Walter Van Noorden. Lohengrin, Il Trovatore, Bohemian Girl, Tannhauser, Faust, and Maritana are also in the week's bill.

Colosseum Theatre.—General Manager, Mr. Wm. Eastwood.—When Other Lips, played by Mr. T. Arthur Jones and company, is here on a first visit, good houses enjoying the drama. Miss Marie Daventry as Ruth Lindley gives a well-balanced portrayal of the part, and her sailor lover is well acted by the author, Mr. T. Arthur Jones. Mr. Juan D'Alberti is capable as the villainous Basil Cunningham. The Snare is a capitally acted part by Miss Marion Wells; Miss Iva May Clarke is very good as Nancy; Mr. Albert H. Clarke as Robert Lindley acts in a clever manner; Mr. Richard Webb as Daddie Topwash is very amusing; and some smart comedy is introduced by Miss Lizzie Lennon as Kitty Topwash, Mr. Cecil H. Raymond as Tommy Neccles, and Mr. Herbert Bentone as Phylocrates Jenkins. Mr. Dick Everton as Davey Phillips is excellent.

Royal Theatre of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Kilrow.—Jan Rudenyi in The Power of Music plays the violin in capital style, ably assisted by Miss Dora de Winton and Mr. John D. Saunders; King and Benson are clever in a musical act Round the Town; the Herald Comedy Four harmonise in a capital manner; Ike and Will Scott provide much amusement; the Four Pawles are smart in their acrobatic act; Amy Sullivan, comedienne, sings some catchy songs well, and Arthur Reece is a capital comedian. Memora has a marvellous memory, and an amusing picture by the Dottoscope concludes.

Hippodrome.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Nuttall.—Fred Moule and company cause hearty laughter with the burlesque sketch That Dreadful Detective; Tom Lloyd in eccentric comedy is well received; Don and Mabel are clever in a Scottish scena, Sandy's Return; Millie Howell sings in a very refined manner; Jack Franklin appears in a smartly worked scena with success, Dear Old Portland; Boden and Bell, juvenile artists, sing and dance well, and Clarke and Glenney are very funny in a comedy absurdity. The Dottoscope concludes.

Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, M. F. Thorne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Edmund Sharrocks.—Lafayette continues to mystify for the second week, his principal act being The Lion's Bride, which is highly appreciated. Other turns include the Lyons Trio in clever pantomime and smart dancing; Blake and Amber are very amusing in a frivolity act; Culpitt is very droll with his smart deception; Heeley and Meeley are funny in a comedy act, Two Lucky Tramps, and Bert Kemble does well as a vocal comedian. The Palace Pictures conclude.

OXFORD.—New Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. C. C. Dorrill; Assistant-Manager, Mr. G. T. Lucas.—The latter half of last week the boards here were occupied by the Summertown Amateur Operatic Society, who gave three very praisworthy performances of Les Cloches de Corneville, in aid of Lord Roberts's Veterans' Relief Fund. The amateurs drew crowded houses, the theatre being packed in every part on Saturday night, and the society hope to hand over some fifty guineas to the cause. They were fortunate in having professional assistance in the persons of Mr. Edward Ottley and his wife. To the former were due the admirable movements of a very effective and large chorus. Indeed, too much praise cannot be given to Mr. Ottley for his stage management, which resulted in everything going without the slightest hitch throughout. Mrs. Ottley not only played Christophe with wonderful vivacity and "go," but also was responsible for training the chorus to dance in a fashion that elicited universal praise.

East Oxford Theatre.—Lessees, East Oxford Theatre Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Stuart.—Messrs. Charles Freeman and George Derricke's company is here this week with A White Demon. Mr. Freeman gives a powerful and realistic rendering of Dr. Leyton; Mr. Robert Blair is an ideal hero as Robert Elliott; Mr. Derricke does well as Corey Brown; Mr. Claude Graveley is an impressive Professor Simpson; and Mr. F. T. Carroll shows ability as the detective, Frank Wilson; Mr. F. Coston causes much laughter as Jeremiah Twinkle; and Mr. A. Armstrong is a typical policeman; Dick is played naturally by Miss Josephine Blair; Miss Ivy Derry is a graceful Lucy Elliott; and Miss K. Webster a bright Mary De Bean; Miss Florence Tench as May Elliott gives an intensely sympathetic and able rendering of a difficult rôle.

PAISLEY.—Hippodrome.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. S. Stead.—Mrs. Lillie Williams's pantomime Robinson Crusoe, under the managership of Mr. Frederick Yates, is being performed twice nightly. Produced in Dundee a fortnight ago, it has already been lengthily noticed in these columns. The outstanding artists that are worthy of mention for their ability are Miss Amy Randolph as Robinson Crusoe, Miss May Carter as Polly Perkins, and Miss Dora Lindsay as Fairy Pearl, their singing receiving well-merited applause. Mr. Fred Davis as Will Atkins, Mr. Tom Gilmore in the dual rôles of Captain Scuttle and Friday, Mr. J. Telly Dillsen as Mrs. Crusoe, and Justin and Mantell as Bailiff Bom and Bailiff Bim are the chief funmakers. Exceptionally good are the specialities introduced by the Ten Dixie Girls, Lindsay and Harte, the Sisters Selwyn, the Sisters Poole Pelham, and Justin and Mantell.

PERTH.—The Perth Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Mr. Newman's British Empire Picture and Variety Company commenced this week a twelve nights' return visit. The entertainment is a popular one.

PETERBOROUGH.—New Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Fred Karno and A. H. Edwards; Manager, Mr. Frank Gallagher.—Mr. Chas. Fisher's Opera Company heads the bill this week. Mr. Alec Johnstone as Count Diluna, Mr. Chas. Fisher as Manrico, and Mdlle. Zella Lusano as Azucena are most successful. Other smart turns are those of James Graydon, patter comedian; Nellie Ridgway, in her refined novelty act; Jennie Reeve, dainty comedienne; Vendome and Chase, in different styles of dancing; Barney Vox, ventriloquist; J. H. Milburn, comedian; and W. J. Manning and Louise Gomersal, in a novel duologue Knocked Out. The Hippodrome pictures are good.

PLYMOUTH.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—The Mystery of Edwin Drood forms this week's attraction, and is admirably presented. As the opium-soaked John Jasper, Mr. Bartlett Garth utilises to the full the opportunities the part affords; Mr. William Billett acts with becoming reserve and discretion as Edwin Drood; Mr. Henry Twyford, as Neville Landless, is spirited and effective; Mr. David Phillips is quite at home as the low comedy man Durdles; and Mr. Richard Harris is a creditable Septimus Chrisparkle. Miss Addie Adair, as the opium den proprietor, Princess Puffer, does well in an uncanny part; and Miss Jennie Risley is attractive as Helena Landless.

Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. J. Field.—John Clempert, described as the original Siberian gaol-breaker, furnishes a sensational star turn, and extricates himself from seemingly impossible positions with marvellous rapidity. Kelly and Agnas, American artists, provide an entertainment above the ordinary; Olga and Otto prove warm favourites, their operatic burlesque being greatly appreciated; and Arthur Boyne has the satisfaction of arousing hearty laughter. Albert Letine is a finished female impersonator; Allis and Cassati crowd an enormous amount of humour into their turn; and the Sisters Milton are accomplished duettists. Margit and Lever (Continental eccentrics) and the Bioscope furnish the remaining numbers.

PONTYPRIDD.—Royal Clarence Theatre.—Owners and Proprietors, Messrs. Trenchard and Jones; Manager, Mr. Charles Trenchard.—The attraction this week is Mr. Montague Beaudyn's company in The Power of a Wicked Woman. Philip Carey is played to advantage by Mr. Montague Beaudyn; Horace Winter is in the able hands of Mr. Tom Robertson; Mr. Arthur Cresswell scores as Guy Oliphant; Lord Arthur Dumley is capably portrayed by Mr. James Burt; Brantby is ably characterised by Mr. Arthur A. Tomlin; Helen Terraire finds a most able exponent in Miss Irene Munro; Miss Blanche Hill shows to advantage as Denise; Miss Phyllis Rae could scarcely be bettered as Marie; and Nellie Montague is successfully played by Miss Cecilia Crawford.

PORTH.—The Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. C. W. Poole; Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth.—Excellent houses are the order here. Topping the bill are Amy Anderson and company in their successful scena, entitled The Banana Queen, which is responsible for roars of laughter; the Ettenas, globe speciality artists, meet with great approval; Baroux and Bion, the comedy acrobats, are exceptionally smart; Little Tim, quaint comedian, scores a success; Henry and Tyler are exceedingly clever trick cyclists; Yorkshire Tom, the master mimic, in his sketch, Crossley's Gas Engine, deserves special mention; May Audley, refined versatile comedienne, meets with great approval; the Three Comedy Chanters' humorous, harmonious interludes are thoroughly appreciated; Recco, the mock acrobat, does remarkably well; and the Palascope, with latest films, is a treat in itself.

PORTSMOUTH.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—Mr. Arthur Bourchier and Miss Violet Vanbrugh are here for the week, and opened on Monday evening to a large and very appreciative audience with The Walls of Jericho, which was played in perfect style. Mr. Bourchier's impersonation of Jack Frobisher maintained that high level of excellence for which it is renowned; Miss Violet Vanbrugh as Lady Alethea Frobisher submitted a delightful impersonation; Mr. Arthur Whitby as the Marquis of Steventon played admirably; a very effective portrayal of Hankey Bannister was submitted by Mr. Leon Quartermain; Miss Pamela Gaythorne as Lady Lucy and Miss Henrietta Watson as Lady Westerby were entirely satisfactory. For the rest of the week The Bishop's Move, Sizes and Sevens, The Arm of the Law, and Doctor Johnson were billed.

Prince's Theatre.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—For Her Husband's Sake is being staged here this week by Mr. Millar Anderson's company. Mr. Sidney Leyton makes an attractive Lieut. Jack Seymour, R.N., and plays capably; Mr. C. Quinton Fulford acts in fine style as Herbert Grey; Joseph Dene is well taken by Mr. Fred Blackett; Miss Lydie Donovan plays powerfully and with care Estelle Beaudet, and Miss Fay Garnet Vayne does well as Eileen Silas. The other parts are well filled, and the mounting is excellent.

King's Theatre.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Marner; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—The Lyceum Operatic Trio give the Prison scene from Faust with artistic taste and ability; Robert Carr is an amusing ventriloquist; the Three Croisits, in a novel sporting scena, From the Time of the Crusades, give complete satisfaction; Coverdale and Huxley's Troupe of well-trained juveniles, in an admirable musical scena, Pansy's Birthday, are much appreciated; Fred Sinclair's company, in farcical comedy sketch, Poor Arthur, are very good; Wright and Lawson, eccentrics, provide some capital fun; Frivola and Deep, comedy duo, are clever; Alexander and Scott, American coon impersonators, do well; Russell Wallett, "the Lady in Black," scores; and the Hippo pictures finish the programme.

Empire Palace.—Managing-Director, Captain Warren Wright; Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—A very clever tumbling act is given by Messrs. Pipifax and Panlo, entitled Humpsti-Bumpsti, which is supplemented by some side-splitting business; Ethel Arundel is a refined and taking comedienne; Frank Harwood, versatile artist, is successful; the Four Breens are a capital quartette, and their comedy juggling is smart; Keen and Waller are novel eccentrics and decidedly good acrobats; Kit Keen, ethiopian entertainer, submits some capable numbers; Chas. R. Whittle's drolleries are highly relished; and Payne's Bio, portraying popular events, concludes.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Acting-Manager, Col. Roberts, V.D.; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—The Ten Loonies, in Dotty, head the bill here, and give their mad musical sketch in diverting manner; Honors and Le Prince are amusing in their acrobatic turn; George Collins is a quaint and droll comedian; the Four Sisters Victoria, instrumentalists and dancers, provide an admirable turn; Daisy Mayer's coon studies in song and story are most acceptable; Frank Geo, comedian, is highly popular; Friscari, the hat juggler, gives a novel and extremely clever exhibition; the George Bonhair Troupe submit a clever and daring performance; and the Hippo pictures of new subjects conclude.

PRESTON.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, the Executors of the late W. Johnson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—The Preston Amateurs are in possession here this week, and are presenting Dr. Wake's Patient and Liberty Hall, in aid of the N.S.P.C.C. (League of Pity Branch).

Prince's Theatre.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—Mrs. Sam Duckworth's company, in The Conscience of a Judge, is playing to good houses this week. Mr. Stanley Bedwell as Herbert Granston (the judge) both looks and acts the part to perfection; Mr. Frank Eaglesfield displays the requisite amount of villainy as Sir Edward Mervin; Mr. Martin Pedler is successful as Cecil Bentley; Mr. Cecil Renton is also good as Geoffrey Granstone. The humorous side of the drama is capitally sustained by Mr. Dalton Bosher as John Summers, Mr. Frank Eden as Horatio Winters, and Miss Bessie Frank as Mary Wilson, all of whom create much laughter. Messrs. Fred Edwardes and Tom Carter as Old Jervis and Carter Ben respectively are good; Miss Eva Moss is excellent as Jessica Draycott, and soon succeeds in winning the sympathy of the audience; Little Elsie Isaacs is clever as Little Kitty; Miss Mabel Coleman as Ethel Vaughan is also a favourite; Miss Mona Dawlish is to be highly complimented upon her rendition of Mrs. Draycott. The drama is well mounted and cordially received.

Royal Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadbent and Son.—Reano and his famous band are attracting crowded audiences, and seldom has a more popular turn visited the town. Forrest and King give a smart display of acrobatic dancing; Primavesi, in a juggling act, performs some clever feats; a very hearty reception is accorded to The Five Bombays, harmony singers and plantation and clog dancers; Jack Truman, tenor vocalist, possesses a good voice and uses it to advantage in some popular songs; Harry Leaton, character vocalist, and Jim Cunliffe, comedian, both score; Playfair and Vera give a novel and clever turn as papierographists and vocalists; Lillie Le Main, with her living marionette show, also comes in for a fair share of applause; Melody not Forgotten, on the Bioscope, concludes an exceptionally good programme.

RAMSGATE.—Royal Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; Resident-Manager, Mr. Dan Forrest; Lessee, Mr. Ernest Mansell.—During the past week large audiences have assembled at the Royal Palace Theatre to witness the first-rate exhibitions of the Graphic life-motion pictures and the incidental variety turns. The pictorial programme is continually being changed, and all the latest and most interesting films are exhibited. A feature of the show this week has been the appearance of the aerial performer, De Ora, who introduces flying loops, trapeze acts, and concludes with a thrilling descent from roof to stage. On Sunday night there was a record "house" at the theatre, a sacred concert being given.

RAWTENSTALL.—Grand Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; General Business-Manager, Mr. A. R. Feather.—Miss Dorothy Granville's new domestic four-act drama, entitled The Better Land, was produced here on Monday by the authoress's own company. As Philip Radcliffe Mr. Leslie Austin gave an excellent interpretation; Miss Nina Blake-Adams was powerful as Doris Radcliffe; George Grant is ably represented by Mr. Leonard Marshall; Mr. Robert Archer is an equally good detective, William White; Miss Bene Bentely shone to advantage as Polly Perkins; Mr. Herbert Fuller as Tom Tadpole gives an excellent impersonation; Harry Radcliffe is admirably represented by Master Harry Collinson; and as Tessa Miss Emilie Entwistle acts and sings charmingly. Miss Flo Hallworth is an exceptionally good Aunt Jemina; and as Herbert's Spanish wife, Mercedes, Miss Theo Merries was equal to all demands. Mr. F. Cristian makes a comical Bill Bones; and as the villain (Hubert) Mr. Stanley Radcliffe is powerful.

READING.—Royal County Theatre.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred. Benton.—This week the novelty drama, The Girl who Went Astray is being presented by a capable company, under the management of Mr. Bulmer. Miss Gwynne Warren gives a powerful impersonation of the exacting part of Zara L'Estrange; Miss Ada M. Ryder is excellent as Violet Harvey; Mr. John B. Shinton is an able representative of Captain Frank Julian; Mr. Fred Lloyd is effective as Rupert Murdock; Mr. Evan Roland, as the astute detective, and Mr. Tod Squires, as James Yellowsocks, are both highly amusing.

The Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Howard Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. E. Draco.—The Five Whiteleys give a clever and diversified acrobatic, wire-walking, and musical pot-pourri turn; Baddow is an accomplished ventriloquist; Stanley and Greenop are finished performers on the banjo; Harry Friskey displays his dexterity as a comedy juggler; Harry Lynx and Tom Wootlwell are both very amusing comedians; Minnie Wheaton is a dainty singer and dancer; Leslie Clare and Alice Cheshire's company create much diversion in their sketch, Wanted, a Wife; and some good pictures are shown on the Bioscope. The proceeds on Thursday evening were given to the Distress Funds.

ROCHDALE.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Burton.—The Old Folks at Home is the attraction here this week. The play is well staged, and some good acting is presented. Mr. Frank Liston cleverly portrays the villainies of Lord Howard Kenilworth; Mr. H. E. Herberte powerfully sustains the part of Andrew Ross; Mr. Jack Locke is an acceptable Hugh Lovell; Mr. Arthur Dudley acts well as the dumb hunchback, Jock; the old folks, Christopher Robin and Martha Robin, have excellent representatives in Mr. Chas. Herberte and Miss Dora Santley; Miss Maud Warburton wins all hearts as Dorothy Robin; and much amusement is afforded by Mr. Frank Caffrey as Ben Jolly and Miss Annie White as Susan Giles.

Empire.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—H. O. Wells is a quaint and humorous comedian; Ellwanger and company present a very acceptable comedy sketch, entitled The Peacemaker; Cissie Curlette scores heavily with her comedy vocalism; Charles J. Johnson, coloured vocalist and dancer; Bonnetti and Corrie, eccentric jugglers; Celest, wire gymnast; Frank Coyle, comedian; Hillett and Hallett, comedians and dancers; and the Empire Bioscope pictures complete the programme.

Hippodrome. — Proprietors, The Jackson Family; Business-Manager, Mr. John Jackson; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Jackson, sen.—The Dayton Family of Risley acrobats are here this week, and their clever performance is greeted with hearty and deserved appreciation; The Master Card is a capital sketch, in which Dunningarto displays his skill with the cards; Violet King is a refined and clever musician. Other excellent items are those of the Saletos, equilibrists; Stuart and Evans, comedians; Max Sterling, in The Magic of Japan; Lily Shaw, a child impersonator; Mike Nono, comedian and dancer; and the Hippodrome pictures.

ROTHERHAM.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—Mr. Wilson Benge and company are here this week with The Eve of Her Wedding. Mr. Arthur Keand is seen to advantage as Squire Leverton; Mr. Wilson Benge gives a very fine portrayal of the parts of George Tremain and Nemo; Dick Leverton is capably enacted by Mr. Henry Danson; Mr. Charles Digby is a humorous Rudolph Earle; Mr. Wallace Campbell is deserving of mention as Dean Clifton; Mr. Charles Groves, jun., does well in the dual parts of Paul Canshaw and Hyram P. Younger; Mr. Arthur E. Holland scores as Jack Herne; and Mr. K. Arthur is very funny as Bill Groggins. Miss Effie Bartlett is a sprightly Reine de Telle; Miss Evelyn Derwent gives a clever rendition of Gwendoline Younger; Miss Amy Milstead scores as Edith Trevanion; and Miss Daisy Cook as Mavis Leverton gives a pleasing and finished performance of a difficult rôle.

Hippodrome, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. Edgar Fox; Resident-Manager, Mr. Claude Shayler—Miss Marie Loftus is at the top of a big bill, and the inimitable comedienne scores unmistakably; Miss Emmie Ames is a clever comedienne; Geo. Hyatt is a smartt juggler; Mr. Harry Bancroft scores; and Les Blancs are amusing gymnastic comedians. The Primrose Quartette bring down the house with their harmony; and Matthews, Cowper, and company present a very funny sketch, When the Clock Went Wrong. The pictures by the Hipposcope are up to date.

SALFORD.—Prince of Wales's.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—On Monday last a good house was drawn to witness the sensational drama Her Marriage Vow, which after a successful run of about seventeen months in the provinces made its appearance for the first time in London last week. Mr. Chas. Bedells worthily represents the villainous Gilbert Carlton; Mr. J. Forbes Knowles plays well the manly telegraphist Ned Benton; the half-witted Daffy Dan is an artistic study by Mr. Vincent Wardle; Mr. J. W. Ryder successfully presents the father William Walters; much laughter is caused by Mr. H. Vernon as Larry, Mr. Wilford Bailey as the bashful Eben Chubb, and Miss Grace Garside as Almira, the hopeful old maid; Miss Winifred Barton also amuses with her Maggie Clair; Miss Nellie Shirley is successful in her portrayal of Hester Norton; Miss Lilian Herries is excellent as Kate Walters. The staging is cleverly worked.

Regent Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—Boswell's Circus, with its ponies, dogs, and donkeys, causes much laughter; Athas and Collins are very smart in their act The Lady and the Scarecrow; Stidder and Dunbar have a clever musical performance with plenty of fun; Les Belles Americaines, four acrobatic dancers, do well; the bounding trampolinists Hayes and Merritt gain much applause; Ada Parker is a promising young comedienne and dancer. Other turns include Ellis and Watts, swell comedians; and A.E. Clifford, versatile vocalist.

Royal Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; General-Manager, Mr. H. Winstanley; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Slatter.—Mrs. Sam Duckworth's company are twice nightly presenting the drama Her Nameless Child, by Madge Duckworth and Ridgewood Barrie, to good houses. Mr. J. W. Evelyn portrays a fine blacksmith as Anthony Ford; the hero, Arthur, is well placed in the hands of Mr. Sidney C. Cranston; Miss Pattie Hastings as the heroine Phyllis plays with vigour and skill; Mr. Larry Clements as Tom Rivers and Miss Renie Douglas as Bessie Brooks combine to keep the comedy to the front; Mr. Arthur Pringle as Lord Henry Woodville, Mr. Frank Thompson as Mongrole, and Miss Mona Gray as Lady Woodville successfully contribute to the villainy of the piece. Miss Beatrice Dover (Sarah), Miss Geraldine Verner (Crayout), and the other members give adequate support. The scenery and staging are very good.

Opera House and Assembly Rooms, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. E. Percival.—The animated pictures this week are fully attractive, and include The Orphan's Christmas, The Somnambulist's Crime, The Fly, Electric Hotel, The Next of Kin, Wife's Jealousy, Magic Hoops, and Gathering Grapes. Mr. Percival's song (illustrated), "Down in the valley where the blue birds sing," catches on with the full houses.

SEACOMBE.—Irving Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kiernan.—Messrs. Matthew H. Glenville and Fred Osmond's company fills the bill here this week with A Soldier of France. Mr. Percy Ballard gets in some effective work as Corporal Jean, and Mr. Albert Guyon handles cleverly the part of Judas Delara. Mr. Freddie Edwards is amusing as Jollyboy, as is also Miss Jennie Clare as Margot. Mr. Milton C. Curtis as Duc de Laval, Miss Maggie Hobart as Rita, and Miss Carlotto Anson as Pauline Lorraine are all good in their respective parts.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—New Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. A. C. Harrison; Manager, Mr. H. D. Lyle.—The Plucky Nipper made a welcome reappearance here on Monday, when the drama was presented by Miss Bonwin Carlton's company. Prominent in the cast is Mr. Edward Surrey, who gives an admirable portrayal of Bill Burgess; Mr. W. Lowther is a dignified Colonel Fenwick; Henry Paget is well played by Mr. T. Hadlin; as Captain Frank Leslie Mr. A. P. Lee wins much popularity; Mr. J. P. Dryden skilfully enacts the part of Richard Vanborough; Tommy Atkins finds a clever exponent in Mr. C. Wilson; Miss Bonwin Carlton, who appears in the title-rôle, wins hearty approval; Miss Esther Lamont presents an artistic study of Ina Fenwick; Daisy Paget is well played by Miss Kitty Maynard. During the week The Old, Old Story was also staged.

SHEFFIELD.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. Henfrey-Aldred.—In Old Madrid is again being played here by Mr. Fred Kirke's popular company. The scenery and dresses are excellent, and the artists all work together to keep up the interest of the dramatic story. The songs, dances, and concerted pieces conduce greatly to the attractiveness of the play.

Alexandra Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr William D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—Miss Ellen Snow's company opened on Monday to a good house in the military drama Why Men Love Women. Miss Snow made a graceful and emotional representative of Violet Livingstone; and other characters were cleverly sustained by Messrs. Oliver Rogers, Lionel Gadsden, C. Slaughter, E. Griffin, W. Norman, A. Radford, Fred West, George Storm, W. Wilson, Harwood Roberts, and Misses Florence Nelson, Beresford-Glynn, Nita Owen, and Freda Vaughan. Some good scenery is provided.

Empire Palace Theatre.—The Moss Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—A well-arranged programme was submitted to a crowded house on Monday, headed by the American sketch About a Bout, in which appeared the wrestler Frank Gotch and his company. The smart musical comedy artists Eadie and Ramsden were well received; and a lively comic interlude, Me and 'Er, was presented by those diverting duettists Duncan and Godfrey; the Four Jumels are expert instrumentalists; the Chronomegaphonetic imitation of the favourite singer Miss Victoria Monks was loudly applauded; Olga and Elgar's vocal and musical entertainment was a special and refined feature; and other items were the "dandy" songs of Miss Madge Osmond, the energetic clog-wolloping of the Eight Lancashire Lads, the Bioscope, with up-to-date pictures, and the Crown Trio, vocalists.

The Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. P. D. Elbourne.—Large audiences have been completely won this week by the famous pugilist Mr. Bob Fitzsimmons, who with his charming wife are appearing in a pleasing comedy sketch, A Man's a Man for a' That. The popular pair were enthusiastically received. The Three Ausonias, in their grand spectacular act, Sports in the Roman Circus, were applauded to the echo; the Frank L. Gregory troupe of hoop-jugglers do a bright and exhilarating show; and others engaged are Clothilde and Musto, with their trained cockatoos; the Three Comerfords; Mr. H. Pollock's company, in Hester's Mystery, Messrs. Leonard and Vereker, comic musicians; Simms and Simms, in a new comic act; Mr. H. Taft and Mr. Herbert Rule. The special Bioscope film this week is a beautiful series of animated pictures of the Swiss Canton lakes.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. A. S. Turpin.—Mr. Harry Wright, vocal comedian; Miss Nelly Gannon, serio-comic vocalist, and other artists are doing well; and a fine programme of artistic moving pictures of humorous, fantastic, and instructive subjects by the Raymond Bio-tableaux company, keep up the prestige of Sheffield's cosy and popular picture theatre.

SHREWSBURY.—Theatre Royal and Hippodrome.—Lessee and Director, Mr. W. Yates Gregory; General-Manager, Mr. Thos. Baugh.—There is a strong and attractive show here this week, which is thoroughly appreciated. The Four Dorians give a remarkably clever and daring turn on trapeze and rings; the Gentrys' comedy medley, Duo in Bits, is a smart bit of work; Blarney and Kennard, comedians, with their well-trained waltzing dogs, are highly successful; Wisper, comedy juggler, gives a smart and novel performance; Beau and Belle have a capital scena entitled Past and Present; Barney Steward is a clever impersonator and descriptive actor; Beattie Bloom, a dashing comedienne, works strenuously to please; and the moving pictures are excellent.

SMETHWICK. — Royal. — Proprietor, Mr. C. Barnard; Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson.—The Girl with the Angel Face is here this week. The title-rôle, that of a young girl whose nature, unlike her personal qualifications, is anything but angelic, is well filled by Miss Florrie Green; as a sexton of ninety Mr. Fred G. Evison scores heavily; Miss Mildred Carr succeeds as Molly Maitland, an actress; Mr. H. Naylor Grimson plays Sir John Wentworth with determination and force, also doubling the part of Thomas Wentworth; Mr. Austin Mortimer makes a sufficiently villainous character of Stephen Arkwright; and Mr. Dobell Lyle earns hearty applause as the Rev. Gordon Cross. Miss Phyllis Dailley is a sympathetic Ena Wentworth; and Miss Gem Lloyd acts with natural charm as the child Nellie. Mr. Allen Charles causes amusement as the Hon. Percy Paget; Mr. James Rodd as Mark Fenning, Mr. J. L. Mann as Mark Flood, and Mr. Dicky Bird as Jim Bates, should be commended for portayals of merit. The drama is admirably staged by Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and James Willard's company.

SOUTHAMPTON. — Grand Theatre. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Weston.—Mr. James Welch's company appeared for three nights in When Knights were Bold, with the utmost success. On Thursday Mr. Fred. Terry and his New Theatre company opened in The Scarlet Pimpernel. Mr. Terry was excellent as Sir Percy Blakeney, and Miss Miriam Lewes also scored a huge success as Lady Blakeney. The visit was highly appreciated, and crowded houses gave Mr. Terry and his company a hearty welcome.

Palace.—Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wm. Trussell.—Minerva is the star attraction and scores with her barrel trick; Mr. W. H. Benson's company is excellent in The Last Halt; other capital turns are given by the Arthur Gallimore Trio, comedy artists Babusio Bros., head to head acrobats; the Fordyces, duettists and dancers; the Leonas, musical act; Norah Desmond, pictorial songstress; and Chas. Banks, comedian, and his dog "Woof."

Hippodrome.—Joint Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and W. de Frece; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Yardley.—Princess Trixie gives a wonderful performance, and receives a hearty welcome; Mike S. Whallen, the comet with many tales, scores a success; Edouard José appears in The Strike, a dramatic episode; and others who entertain are Witty Wattie Walton, Frances McNulty, Phil Rees' Stable Lads, Bert Woodward, and Wyotti.

Philharmonic Hall.—Messrs. Andrews' pictures are still proving highly popular, the dramatic film After Many Years meeting with cordial appreciation; Miss May McPherson's illustrated songs are a special feature, and the orchestra play capitally. Mr. Chas. Gaston is now the business manager for Messrs. Andrews.

Empire.—The films projected by the Walturdaw Company, under the management of Mr. Auguste Denton, are very popular; good audiences rule, and Mr. Fred. Pugh's beautifully illustrated songs evoke much applause.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—Empire Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Geo. Conquest and Richard H. Nerney; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—The Monckton-Hoffe comedy company give a first-class portrayal of the interesting play Irene Wycherley. Miss Maude Henderson delineates the name-part skilfully, her display of varied emotions in a difficult rôle winning high appreciation; the brutal and disreputable Philip Wycherley is in the clever hands of Mr. Charles Garry, who also gains success; Miss Phyllis Stuckey is seen to advantage in a pleasing characterisation of Muriel Wycherley; and Miss Marjorie Davenport is well suited as Lily Summers. Mr. Ralph Hutton as Sir Peter Wycherley, Bart., makes an able exponent of the part, and shares honours with Mr. G. Clifton Boyne as Harry Chesterton; while Mr. Claude Haviland impersonates Charles Summers with ability. The Misses Grace Illingworth, Evelyn Cecil, Emmie Creamer, Muriel Carmel, and Beatrice Mervyn sustain their respective parts with credit.

SOUTHPORT.—Opera House, Winter Gardens. —Proprietors, The Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens, Ltd.; Secretary and General-Manager, Mr. R. Singleton.—Mr. Frank M. Thorne's company is this week presenting The Woman Pays. Mr. Phil Harper submits a forceful and convincing representation of the hero, Sid Armstrong; Miss Maud Russell depicts the rôle of Madge Armstrong with great credit; Mr. John Davidson enacts the villain, Roger Marchant, effectively; the humour of the play is capitally sustained by Mr. Frank Thorne as Mickey Maloney and Miss Anene Walton in the part of Polly; Mr. Dunlop Stewart is very well placed as Luke Morland; and other good character-sketches are those of Miss Katie Blair in the pathetic part of Nell Morland, Miss Florence Thorne as Tabitha, Mr. Charles Arthur as Doctor Trever, and Mr. Beresford Innes as Cyrus Tredgold.

SOUTH SHIELDS. — Theatre Royal. — Lessees and Managers, Messrs. John and Fred Coulson.—Messrs. F. Marriott-Watson and Sanderson Moffat's company is presenting the musical drama What a Woman Did. Mr. F. Marriott-Watson appears to advantage as the Marquis de Viray; Mr. Sanderson Moffat does well as Conrad; Mr. Reginald Kloof is good as the Hunchback; Elise is charmingly portrayed by Miss Florence E. Florence; and Miss Phyllis is vivacious as La Papillon. The comedy parts are ably represented by Mr. Elton Morgan, Mr. Owen Edwin, and Miss Norah Waylett. Many catchy songs are sung, and pretty dances and specialities are introduced by the Clancy Girls.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—Charles T. Aldrich gives a wonderful exhibition of quick-changing. He makes an impression as the tramp juggler, and also in a burlesque on modern magicians and jugglers; Florence and Lillian, instrumentalists, are much appreciated; Mlle. Payne creates great amusement; Thora, ventriloquist, is deservedly applauded; Guy Ryder contributes some good whistling; Les Voces, in charming songs and duets, keep up their reputation; Little Vio Leite shows great promise as a male impersonator; and Harry Bedford, characteristic comedian, and the Bioscope complete the bill.

Tivoli, Lavgate Circus.—Proprietor, Councillor J. K. Hall.—Harry Thurston, a burlesque comedian, heads the bill, and is well received; a similar reception is given to Flo Hilton, a clever and capable male impersonater; Norman and Belle, comedy artists and dancers, make themselves popular; and the Tivoliscope provides the rest of the entertainment.

STAFFORD.—Lyceum Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Elphinstone.—Pictures and variety at two houses a night is the attraction here this week. The Lyarches, song illustrators, give a pleasing turn; English and Penley are very amusing sketch artists; Geo. Edwards recites in an able manner; and Eni Temple is a smart comedienne with catchy songs. New films by the Empire Picture Co. conclude.

ST. HELENS.—Theatre and Opera House.—Proprietors, St. Helens Theatre, Ltd.; General Manager, Mr. A. McLeod Loader; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. E. Johnson.—Man and Wife is being played here by Messrs. Van Biene and Traynor's company. Mr. John F. Traynor gives a finished performance of Paul Revere; Miss Kate Hallam presents a successful portrayal of Marcelle; as Captain d'Esparre Mr. Ed. M. Hamilton is the embodiment of evil; and Mr. George Rammell supplies a good contrast in the character of Colonel Latour; Mr. George Overs as Jean and Mr. Ambrose Horton as Sergeant Jacques, both do excellent work. Much amusement is caused by the comicalities of Bimbo and Bambo (Messrs. E. Hall Eldon and George Vinning), and Miss Dora Hamilton is a lively Rosette.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors. Messrs. Barrasford, Sley and Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Leo Weisker.—Of an excellent and varied character is the programme this week. Zona Vevey appears in a beautiful set scene, and, accompanied by that accomplished pianist Herr Max Erard, charms the house with her delightful voice and prettiness; Miss Nellie Montague sings a coster song well, and J. W. Cawley gives some good imitations; Joan Deering plays sweetly on the violin, and Elliott and Kennedy add to the amusement by their droll patter; Miss Diana Hope and company are successful in the sketch Her Good Name, and Valvero's naval bombardment has novelty to recommend it. A laughable picture on the Barrascope concludes.

STOCKPORT.—Theatre Royal and Opera House —Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—Mr. Junius Booth and his company are here in Monte Cristo. As Edmund Dante Mr. Junius Booth acts with ability and power; Mr. Conrad Heywood impersonates the character of Nortier in capable style; Mr. John Howden makes an excellent Fernand Mondego; M. Villefort is meritoriously portrayed by Mr. C. W. Crowe; Mr. Ralph Leon acts with manly grace as Lieut. Albert de Morcef; Caderousse has a capital representative in Mr. Herbert Colley; and Miss Cecilia Dare acts charmingly as Mercedes.

Empire. — Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black. —Joe Reichen, with his admirably trained dogs; and Bosanquet, the noted musician, share the chief honours of a capital programme presented here this week, which also includes George Prince, styled "the crazy comic"; Wilson Blackledge, an entertaining humorist at the piano; Jean Seul, in his "Indian Mystery" act; Kenneth and Kane, an amusing comedy duo; Leonie Dixon, comedienne and clever dancer; Clarice Clarke, a pleasing character vocalist; and La Belle Ray, a smart vocalist and dancer.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—Castle Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Cecil Imeson.—The Stockton Amateurs are playing at this theatre for four nights: Wednesday, The Lottery Ticket, The Steeplechase, and Ici on parle Français, and the remainder of the week Macbeth. During Act IV. will be introduced the whole of the celebrated music attributed to Locke by a chorus of eighty members of the Eaglecliffe and District Vocal Society.

Hippodrome.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Stainton.—Auguste Van Biene with The Master-Musician, a one-act playlet, is the leading attraction here. Paul Vandy is a smart juggler; J. A. Wilson and his dog "Private Towser" are very entertaining; the Three Sisters Duquesne are capital vocalists and dancers; Clifford Stuart is a clever comedian; Charburn's Young Stars have a pretty scena, A Picnic up the River; Barney Noble, comedian, has a good style and sings well; and the Bioscope concludes with an excellent picture, The Amateur Othello.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. John Batty; Manager, Mr. Walter Batty.—Mr. M. Montgomery's stock company are playing an Oriental drama, Secrets, which was well received by crowded houses on Monday last. Payne's Biophotoscope shows a funny film, The Stepmother.

SUNDERLAND.—King's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. S. F. Davidson; General-Manager, Mr. Alexander Telford; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Sydney Reach.—Mr. Charles Harrington's company, in Uncle Tom's Cabin, is having a rousing reception this week by crowded houses. Mr. Carr as Uncle Tom acts with simple dignity; and Mr. Charles Harrington presents Phineas Fletcher with natural pathos; Mr. Ernest Regent portrays George Harris with considerable feeling; Mr. Alfred Lagolle is good as Dan Haley; Mr. H. Mauley makes a powerful Legree; and Mr. Frank Forbes-Robertson is a satisfactory St. Clair. Mr. Walter Langford as Marks contributes much of the humour, and does some clever work as a trick banjoist. Prominent amongst the ladies of the cast are Miss Hathaway, with a refined portrayal of Eliza Harris; Miss Annie Watson, an excellent Topsy; Miss Carr, a pleasing Aunt Chloe; and Miss Hetty Johnson, an interesting Cassy.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Eeden; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Geo. Dunn.—After the great success last week of Mr. Walter Melville's play, The Girl Who Took the Wrong Turning, the management have re-engaged the company for this week. The house has been again crowded and the enthusiasm unbounded. Miss Jessie Belmore (Sophie Coventry), Miss Nannie Meade (Vesta le Clerc), Miss Zoe Davis (Lucy Coventry), and Miss Marie Kildare (Poppy Slater) were all seen to advantage. Among the gentlemen Messrs. Ronald Adair (Will Mason), Raymond Wood (James Harcourt), Frank R. Robertson (Jack Fenton), Sidney Sarl (Bill Slater), and Fred Ingram (Johnny Walker) are most prominent.

Empire Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Hy. Esden.—Heading a good programme this week is that fascinating musical sketch, Hunting Morn, the solos and choruses all going with a great swing. The Original Gautsmiths excited considerable enthusiasm, both on account of the feats of the clowns themselves, and also on account of their clever dogs; Muir, Bartlett and company produced their extremely funny comedy, The Collar Stud, with great success; and the Strolling Players were responsible for a dainty new musical pot-pourri. The human doll, Ida Kathrena, danced skilfully in a novel toy act; Lil O'Gorman contributed pleasing songs; the Bros. Bright showed dexterity in an athletic performance; and Dan Hendy executed tumbling feats while dancing in clever style.

Palace Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Lennox Barry; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Hy. Curry.—The Robertys are giving satisfaction to large audiences this week, in their act of juggling and balancing; Damerell and Rutland produce a funny sketch entitled House Full. The comedy vocal scena of Vowells and Bryan is another turn of special worth; Arthur Woodville pleases as well as he did last week; Walter Stanley is a clever comedian; Gertrude Moore gives a song and dance turn, in pleasing manner; as does also Arthur Stacey.

SWANSEA.—The Grand.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. Oswald Brooks; Acting-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. Walter Dean.—Miss Lois Esmond's company occupies the Grand this week with The Sorrows of Satan and Nana. In the former piece, presented on Monday, Mr. Edward Neville took the title-rôle in admirable fashion; and Miss Rosie Neville as Lady Sybil Elton displayed considerable talent; as the penniless author, Mr. F. Douglas Howard acted naturally and well.

The Star.—Manager, Mr. William Coutts; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. J. Powell.—Mr. T. Morton-Powell's company is creating excitement at the Star, where they play The Greed of Gold. Mr. James Jarrett makes a great impression in his character of the dumb man; Mr. Henry C. Wood's portrayal of Harry Wood is also a good one; Arthur Errol is played by Mr. Alfred Stretton with distinction; and Miss Elina C. Turner as Dora enacts a fine character capitally.

The Empires, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. P. C. Rowe; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. H. Lennon.—Arthur Roberts heads the bill here, with his new sketch, Till Sunday; L'Incognita met with instantaneous success, her voice being of unusual beauty; Daly and O'Brien are "tanglefoot dancers," whose methods are not only clever, but amusing; Baker and Balfe are real xylophone experts; and the Vetter Bros., in The Page's Recreation, give an amazing gymnastic display. Ernie Garner is a comedian of whom more will be heard; and Mazie Hibbs, as a speciality dancer, is first-class; and Walter Munroe fully sustains his reputation as an Irish comedian and dancer. Fine Bioscope pictures conclude.

The Palace.—Manager, Mr. William Coutts; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. J. Powell.—Mr. Coutts this week has arranged a wonderfully fine gallery of pictures, which, includes The Stolen Plane and A Disciple of Vidocq. Mr. E. J. Griffith, Mr. F. C. Dennis, Mr. S. Francis, and Miss Jenkins render vocal items delightfully.

SWINDON.—Empire Theatre.—Proprietors, The Wiltshire Entertainments Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Manners.—Mr. Walter Melville's drama, The Beggar Girl's Wedding, is playing to good houses here this week. Mr. Otto Minster impersonates the manly Jack Cunningham with much power; a capital piece of acting is given by Mr. James C. Taylor as Doctor Millbank; humour is supplied by Mr. Herbert Lloyd as Dicky Storm and Miss Eva Dare as Tina Torkington, both being very amusing; Norman Marsh is in the capable hands of Mr. Ernest G. Batley; Miss Olive Warne is very effective as Maud Villiers; and Mr. Herbert Morgan is seen to full advantage as Gilbert Lindsay. Joe Webster could not be in better hands than that of Mr. Harry Playfair; and Mr. Horace Kenny as the Dodger is good. The Robert Grimshaw of Mr. Ellis J. Preston is well placed; Elsie Cunningham is admirably taken by Miss Doris Whyte; and as Bessie Webster Miss Vashti Wynne gains the entire sympathy of all by her clever portrayal. The other characters are suitably filled, and the play is well staged.

TILBURY DOCK.—New Lyceum.—Prof. A. Ball and Son's animated pictures are drawing well here. The star turns for this week are T. P. Carroll, a clever comedian and speciality dancer; Miss Kitty Radley, a charming serio, in her latest songs; Miss Hetty Holland, lady ventriloquist; Miss Lucy Gray, a pleasing comedienne, Mme. Pauline, miniature vocalist, with comic and sentimental songs; and Miss Amy Robson, an agreeable serio. The whole entertainment is very attractive and amusing.

TON-Y-PANDY. — Theatre Royal.—General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ridgewood Barrie.—Mr. Walter Melville's company is successfully presenting A Girl's Cross Roads. Mr. J. Fortescue gives an able exposition of Jack Livingstone, and is well supported by Mr. E. Valentine as Dr. Watson. Mr. C. Franmore presents a clever study of old Farmer Meadows; as Cuthbert Lumley Mr. E. Chester is highly successful; Mr. T. Hodson is amusing as Toby Turvy. Miss Hilda Beverley gives a clever exposition of Barbara Wade; and as Constance Cornell a thoroughly good study is given by Miss Hildebrande, and Miss N. Langford does well as Nellie Meadows.

Hippodrome.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Will Stone.—Heading a fine programme is that clever Welsh comedian, Tom Jones; the Attila Brothers retain their popularity; Chas. Goodman is well received; and Palette, with his dog "Max," is applauded. Will Allen is a clever descriptive vocalist; a capital selection of films includes Boxing for the Army and Navy Championship and The Man in the Overalls.

TORQUAY.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—Man to Man is occupying the boards here this week, under the direction of Messrs. Edward Lloyd and Frank Adair. As the hero George Gordon, Mr. Edward Lloyd gives a capital impersonation, and Mr. Frank Adair is no less successful in the somewhat unthankful rôle of Richard Ellerton. Miss Louie Adair makes a charming Ethel Maythorne, and soon becomes a favourite; and Miss Evelyn Warde gives a powerful representation of Gipsy Madge. Mr. Bruce Williams is very amusing as Samuel Plumtree, and Mr. Clifford Bown is exceedingly quaint as Bill Burkley. The minor rôles are well filled.

TREHERBERT. — Opera House.—Proprietors, Poole's, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Stephens. —Mr. Morton Powell's company opened here on Monday with When It Was Dark. Mr. Wilfred Lyndon made a success as the Rev. Basil Goitre; Mr. Haldane Dalton was responsible for a fine rendering of Constantine Schwabe; Mr. Charles Brandon worked hard in the character of Sir Robert Llewellyn; Mr. Wm. H. Burton made an excellent Vicar; and Mr. George Tawde gave a good account of himself as the Hon. Charlie Gayfly. Miss Florence Lyndon was a charming Helena; Miss Tessa Myers a good Gracie Golightly; Miss Emilie Schular an excellent Flossie; and Miss Maria Barrett gave a good reading of Gertrude Hunt.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS. — Opera House. — Lessee, Mr. Welton Dale.—Hippodrome season, Mouillot and De Frece Circuit.—M. and Mlle. Geullard present their lion d'Artagnan and his playmate Chocolat, who astonish the audience with their circus tricks; George Grogre as the Sussex yokel proves very amusing; Harry Tate's company in Motoring furnishes a big draw, and simply convulses the audience; Mlle. Ottino, the clever lady conjurer, is well received; and Bert Marsden, comedian; Lillian Rigby, instrumentalist and dancer, together with the Hippodrome pictures, complete an attractive programme.

WAKEFIELD. — Opera House.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Mr. Charles March's company is here this week in the drama, The Gamester of Metz. Mr. Charles March gives a fine interpretation in the title-rôle; Mr. William Bradford is seen to marked advantage as Captain Henry Bedaire; the part of Louis Bedaire is well sustained by Mr. Haviland Allworth; and Mr. F. Thorpe Tracy is effective as General de Montparnasse. Miss Ethel Crawford gives a convincing and clever portrayal as Lucia Baldot, and Miss Una Lane merits praise as Countess Bedaire. Other minor characters are well filled.

Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—Wee Mona (Vivian), a great local favourite, is a clever artist, and wins hearty applause with her smart dances; Martell gives a smart and novel equilibristic act; Miss Lucy Gillett, juggler, is good; Mr. Billy Burns, singing collier, does well; Mr. Tony Iveson, tramp musician, scores a distinct success; and Mr. Fred Villars, vocalist, contributes.

WARRINGTON. — Royal Court.—Proprietor, Mr. Joseph Beecham; General-Manager, Mr. A. M. Loader; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. Smiley.—Mr. Geoffrey Fulton's company is here this week in the stirring drama A Girl Redeemed from Sin. The play is typical of Lancashire life, and has been well received. Miss Clive Fulton as Nancy Lee, the mill girl, acts with natural force, and in the more dramatic passages her acting reaches a high plane of excellence. Miss Ada Oxley as Peggy Grey is a sprightly maiden, and she is ably assisted in the humorous element by Mr. Len Thomas, as Jim Jakes; Mr. Jo. Monkhouse is a manly Will May, and Mr. Philippe Orr makes the most of the much-deceived Robert Denham; Mr. Hugh Carmichael as the remorseless Ernest Sylveston is a success. The minor parts are in adequate hands, and the staging is very effective.

Royal Theatre of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. J. Waters.—The Brothers Corcoran are seen to advantage as sketch artists, and their entertainment is an all-round good one. Crissie Cross is a dainty comedienne, and Captain Kettle, card and coin manipulator, scores in a novel turn. The pictures form not the least attractive feature of a capital show.

Palace and Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. G. D. Bradbury.—W. J. Churchill is responsible for much mirth here this week, and the house is convulsed with laughter at his songs and patter; Astley's Circus is again a much-enjoyed turn; Daos supplies a rare illusion act in the production of a complete bedroom suite; The Donatos are clever one-legged acrobats; Johnny Holland and company score with their absurdity, The Boat Builders; Margaret Radcliffe scores with illustrated songs, and Marion Armitage is a delightful chic comedienne. The pictures are entertaining.

WEDNESBURY.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Battersby; Acting-Manager, Mr. Tom Kuner.—Mr. F. E. Chabot's No. 1 Company in the new domestic drama Only a Woman is here. Miss Violet Crauford appears with success in the important and characteristic part of Marie Lestvo; Courtney Wallace is effectively portrayed by Mr. Leslie K. Manton; Mr. Fred Green submits a capable rendering of Lieut. Richard Summerfield, and the rôle of Lieut. Rodney Summerfield is admirably played by Mr. Charles Wilton; a humorous impersonation of Bill Bumkins is presented by Mr. George Willis; Miss Flo Bevan contributes successfully in the part of Eliza Jane, and as Violet Redgrave Miss Lily Lewis displays talent; Miss Rosie Fields evokes hearty appreciation for her clever interpretation of Grace.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—Grand Pier Pavilion.—Manager, Mr. J. H. Stevenson.—Mr. Lambert's Bioscope and Vaudeville Company is giving two shows daily. Of the fine films special mention must be made of The Sign of the Cross and The Wonderful Lantern. Amongst the numerous variety turns Miss Margaret Worth stands out prominently, her rendering of "A song of thanksgiving" being rapturously applauded. The Musical Ritters' humorous gags and playing on divers instruments greatly delight the audience.

WEST STANLEY. — Theatre Royal, Ltd.— Manager, Mr. M. H. Lindon; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Kelly.—Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Draycott are appearing here with their répertoire company, A Stolen Birthright being billed for Monday. As Stefano Mr. Draycott submits a clever piece of acting. The Colleen Bawn, The Shaughraun, The Ticket of Leave Man, and Shadows of a Great City are also in the bill.

Victoria Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. T. C. Rawes; Stage-Manager, Mr. G. W. Montrose.—A crowded house on Monday greeted the famous memory man, Datas, who tops the bill. Other good turns include those of T. W. Barratt, comedian; the Itrams, gymnasts; Miss Pattie Burton, a sweet singer of sweet songs; Mart and Pet, in their speciality act; and the Rangers, cyclists. A singing competition and the Vicoscope conclude a good entertainment.

WIDNES.—Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Jas. Kiddie.—This week we have here Mr. R. F. Stacey's company with A Heart's Desire. Mr. Stacey does well as Lord St. Ives; Mr. Julien Mitchell is well suited with the part of Eric May; Mr. Herbert Lawrence gives a good performance of the part of a rollicking schoolboy; Mr. Edward Leroy plays with force in the part of Luke Forrest, and Mr. Charles King as David McCullough ably supports him; Mr. Norman Clifton gives an interesting study of Coombes; Miss Hilda May plays Hilda Ross prettily; Miss Blanche Leroy is a sympathetic Elsie Beresford; and Miss Lily Prescott as Olya, a half-caste girl, wins favour.

WIGAN.—The Hippodrome.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—Mr. Lingford Carson's talented company is here this week in The Great White Chief. Mr. Mansell Fane is an imposing White Chief, and acquits himself admirably in all the vicissitudes of the character; Mr. Lingford Carson's exposition of the part of Reindeer is a notable feature of the play; Mr. George Butler presents a clever impersonation of Hartley Deane; while Mr. W. T. Hybert as Geo. Rupert Walker imparts a lively touch of humour into the performance; Mr. Hugh Brady sustains the character of John Warton creditably, and Mr. S. Eiland as Dave Carter is good. Miss Pollie Denville makes a charming Latika; Miss Dulcie Lawrence as Hester Stafford is an emphatic success; and as Martha Jane Miss Amy Ross Clyde causes much fun.

Empire.—Lessees, The New Bioscope Trading Company.—Two pictures of great interest are The Sheep-stealers and The Reprieve; and other attractive films are The Pretty Flower Picker, Hilda's Lovers, A Rustic Heroine, Dora, and I'm Absorbed in Politics. Logan and Logan are excellent patterers, vocalists, and comedians. Crowded house nightly.

WOLVERHAMPTON.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.— Managing-Director, Mr. Charles Barnard; Resident-Manager, Mr. Gerald Spencer.—A welcome change from a long run of modern drama is experienced here this week in the engagement of Mr. F. R. Benson's Shakespearean Company (North), whihc opened on Monday night to a large house with The Taming of the Shrew. As Petruchio Mr. Henry Herbert thoroughly entered into the humour of the part and gave a capital performance; Miss Gladys Vanderzee had a difficult task as Katerine, but acquitted herself admirably; Mr. Bernard Limpus gave an intelligent impersonation of Lucentio; Mr. Harvey Braban was consistent throughout as Hortensio; Mr. James Berry quite realised the part of Baptista; Mr. Victor Wiltshire as Gremio, and Mr. Fernley Bisshopp as Vincentio were both excellent; Mr. Everard Vanderlip and Mr. Vincent Holman did well as Tranio and Biondello; Mr. Arthur Fayne caused much amusement as Grumio; and Miss Violet Farebrother made a delightful Bianca. The minor rôles were all well sustained. Julius Cæsar, The Merry Wives of Windsor, Othello, Twelfth Night, and Richard III. are also in the repertory, and the plays are all staged with that excellence which characterises Mr. Benson's companies.

Empire Palace, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Weston.—Miss Vesta Tilley received a most hearty welcome here on Monday night from a crowded house. She retains to the full all her old charm, and in response to numerous recalls, after singing three songs, she generously gave "Following in father's footsteps," much to the delight of the audience. Hugo and Schmidt contribute an amusing horizontal bar act; Massona very happily combines comedy with juggling; Leoni and Hast are on a return visit with A Sea Nymph; and the Louisiana Trio, coloured vocalists; Charles F. Best, comedian; Edie Anderson, comedienne; and the Empire pictures complete a very strong bill.

WORCESTER. — Theatre Royal. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Le Wards.—A return visit from Sergeant Brue is proving attractive this week. Foremost places are held by Cookie Scrubbs (Mr. H. Cunningborough) and Sergeant Brue (Mr. Dennis Lyndon), who keep the house in hysterical laughter. Both parts are excellently filled. Miss Roy Anderson is a graceful and accomplished vocalist, and achieves a great success as Lady Bickenhall; Mr. Lister Morrah fills well the part of Michael Brue, and Miss Daisie Dale is a charming Aurora Brue; Miss Kitty Clayton's impersonation of the part of the servant Daisy is extremely clever, and Miss Dora Rose as Eva Graham displays vocal abilities of a high order. Other parts capably filled are those of Mabel Widget (Miss Mabel Davis), Vivienne Russell (Miss Kate Sabine), Lena Dare (Miss Sybil O'Brien), Louisa Clare (Miss Kitty Yates), Gerald Treherne (Mr. E. B. Davies), Matthew Habisham (Mr. Roy Travers), Inspector Gorringe (Mr. Langdon Guy), the Rev. Lamb (Mr. Phil Phillips), Capt. Bay (Mr. J. Spencer), and Mr. Croak (Mr. T. G. Warren). The comedy is capitally dressed and staged.

WORKINGTON. — Theatre Royal.—At this house the ever-popular picture business still holds sway, sandwiched by capable variety turns. Sabino, the merry musical monarch, makes his first bow to a Workington audience and is a great success. James and Alexander are popular duettists and dancers; Eliot and Warn's funny songs are accompanied by dances of a high order. The pictures include a sensational series, The Heart of Ozama. Good houses are the rule.

WREXHAM.—Empire Music Hall.—Proprietor, Mr. Jno. J. Scott.—This week the attractions have been Edgar Forrest's sketch company in Cupid's Ingenuity; Folay and Francis, quaint comedians; the Three Neros, in a laughable specialty act, Ructions in a Public-house; Little Baby Sophie, the little star artist; and some highly amusing pictures.

YORK.—Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—Variety business on the two-houses-a-night system has been tried this week, and the innovation has proved successful. The items for the greater part consist of sketches—A Son's Devotion, The Bank Robbery, The Cry of the Children, and Napoleon at Waterloo, in which the principal parts are ably taken by Edwd. Ranier, Scottie and Kittie Aden, and Mr. Scott Alexander; Mr. Tom Bassett's entertainment is original and successful; Harry Kranlee, an expert dancer, and the Sisters Merry provide a popular item.

Opera House and Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Sidney Brooks.—Walter King convulses everyone with his droll business; Mr. Will Dalton is also specially clever; as a lightning artist Vandinoff has few equals; Rousby and Rene give a neat Lancashire sketch; the Bouncing Dillons are an excellent star turn; Chariti, as usual, is enthusiastically received; L. and R. Edmonds, with their golden statues, are well received; and Nellie Walton speedily sings herself into favour.

"THE ERA" CHRISTMAS ARRANGEMENTS.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS AND OTHERS.

Owing to CHRISTMAS DAY this year falling so late in the week, causing a consequent disruption of postal facilities, and in order to prevent disappointment, The Era will be published at midnight on WEDNESDAY, DEC. 23.

Copy intended for that issue should therefore reach us as early as possible on Tuesday or by first post Wednesday at the latest. In the case of pantomime notices, plots should be kept very short, chief attention being paid to scenery, acting, and vocal specialities.

POST EARLY.

AMUSEMENTS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

JOHANNESBURG, Nov. 19.—His Majesty's Theatre.—Lessees, B. and F. Wheeler, Ltd.; Manager Mr. W. F. Woodward.—The Wheeler-Edwardes Gaiety company, who at present occupy the above house, have entirely won the appreciation of the Rand audiences. The Little Michus holds the boards this week, drawing what must be exceptionally satisfactory houses. The rôles of Blanche Marie and Marie Blanche were undertaken in a captivating manner by Misses Elsa Portis and Phœbe Johnson, the latter, on the night under notice, undertaking the rôle at a short notice in an ideal manner, owing to the indisposition of Miss Chrissie Ralland. Miss Hilda Guiver was a prepossessing and engaging representative of the Schoolmistress; Miss Florence Vie as Mme. Michu scored an unqualified success; Mr. Foster Courtenay as General Des Ifs invests the part with genuine humour; Bagnolet was amusingly accounted for by Mr. Alf. Beers. A clever study was the Market Master of Mr. Roy Cathie. The fine voice of Mr. Wm. Everard was entirely suited to the rôle of the Captain of the Hussars. The chorus is efficient and the staging leaves nothing to be desired.

Tivoli.—An event which has been looked forward to with great interest was the production of a play, entitled Love and the Hyphen, by Mr. Stephen Black, a journalist of Cape Town. The piece is a satire on the inhabitants of the aristocratic suburbs of Cape Town, and was an immediate success. Mr. De Jong was instrumental in producing the piece, which was especially interesting from the fact that it is the first of entirely South African production, nothing excepted. The principal rôles are in the hands of Misses Amy and Alice Pennington, and Messrs. R. Matthew and Kingsland.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

A performance of the first act of The Magic Flute and the second act of Carmen was given by the operatic class of the Royal Academy, under the direction of Mr. Edgardo Lèvi, on Friday evening, Dec. 11, Mr. Richard Temple acting as stage director. In Mozart's opera Miss Margaret Ismay sang the music of Pamina with much grace and purity of tone, being very successful in her duet with Papageno. Mr. Andrew Jones, who appeared as Tamino, has a light tenor voice of which he made good use, but as an actor Mr. Jones was somewhat stiff and awkward. The Queen of Night was effectively undertaken by Miss Gladys Booth; and Miss Gertrude Newson, Miss May Horton, and Miss Mabel Corran sang the music of her three ladies with grace and refinement. Mr. Cecil Pearson used his excellent voice with good effect in the part of Sarastro (High Priest of the Temple); and as Papageno, the bird-catcher, Mr. Henry Sanders sang and acted well. The subject of "Die Zauberflöte" was taken from the story of "Lulu; or, the Magic Flute" in Wieland's "Dschinnistan," and although the libretto may be absurd the opera reached its two hundredth performance on Nov. 22, 1795. Mozart's music is always welcome, and thanks are due to the Royal Academy for producing one act of an opera now seldom heard. The second act of Carmen followed Mozart's opera. As Carmen Miss Bella Newstead had a most difficult task, but she sang the music intelligently. Mr. Thomas Gibbs proved himself an excellent vocalist and no mean actor in the part of Don José. "The Flower Song" was given with much beauty of tone and expression, and well deserved the hearty round of applause which followed. Mr. James Saker also was successful in the part of Escamillo, and greatly pleased the audience in the "Toreador Song"; while a really comic Remendado was found in Mr. Percy Curnow. Mr. Harry Milner was a successful Dancairo; and the parts of Frasquita and Mercedes were well sung by Miss Gertrude Newson and Miss May Horton. The famous quintette went well, and the chorus in both operas may be heartily commended. Miss Mary Burgess at the piano, Mr. Benjamin J. Dale at the organ, and the flute of Miss Edith Penville did all that was possible in the absence of an orchestra.

At the Royal Academy on Saturday evening, Dec. 12, a dramatic performance was given by the students of the dramatic class under Mr. Richard Temple's direction. The balcony scene from Romeo and Juliet was the first performance. Miss Macdonald Martin, who played Romeo, displayed considerable ability, but the Juliet of Miss Evelyn Holmes was not entirely satisfactory. Shakespeare's heroine, who loved "not wisely but too well," had nothing of the coquette in her nature. In other respects Miss Holmes delivered Juliet's lines intelligently. The balcony scene was followed by J. B. Buckstone's comic drama in one act, Good for Nothing, in which Miss Kathleen MacMahon as Nan achieved a distinct success. The alternate humour and pathos of the part was admirably given, while her acting was as clever as that of an experienced artist. To use a hackneyed expression, Miss MacMahon is a born actress, and the loud cheers which greeted the talented little lady at the fall of the curtain were amply deserved. Nan's two kind but eccentric guardians Tom and Harry were also capitally played by Mr. Henry Sanders and Mr. Francis Fenton, the latter's make-up as a railway fireman being excellent. Mr. Arthur Lorimer impersonated the manly young carpenter Charlie successfully and the little part of Young Mr. Simpson was carefully played by Mr. Alfred Quaife. The third item in the programme on Saturday evening was the first two acts of Robert Buchanan and Charles Marlowe's clever farcical comedy Miss Brown. Mr. Andrew Shanks can be heartily praised for his able performance of the dashing Major O'Gallagher. Mr. Arthur Lorimer also was excellent as Capt. Courtenay, who in the first act —The Wedding: Major O'Gallagher's Quarters, Chelmsford—is so extremely nervous about his marriage with pretty Angela Brightwell, a ward in Chancery. Extremely funny, too, were Mr. Lorimer's appearance and comic business when, dressed up as Miss Brown, he comes to the Cicero House Academy for young ladies in the second act. In Miss Eva Rowland, who played Angela Brightwell, it would be hard to find a more charming and vivacious exponent of the young bride, while her acting was spontaneous and natural. The second act was played by Mr. Temple's clever pupils with great spirit, and if the prompter was occasionally heard it only added to the fun. Mr. Adam Dockray as Herr von Moser, the professor of music, acted to the life, while his dress and wig were so realistic that he might have just come from the platform at Queen's Hall. Excellent also was the prim Miss Romney, of Cicero House, played by Miss Cecil Martin, and the good-hearted Mrs. O'Gallagher of Miss Alta L. Handley. The sapient detective Sergeant Tanner was cleverly acted by Mr. Harry Milner, and Mr. W. Francis Fenton proved excellent as the solicitor Mr. Hibbertson. The smaller parts of Euphemia Schwartz and Matilda Jones, pupils at Cicero House, were cleverly acted by Miss Violet Leonard and Miss Dorothea Holzapfel, while favourable mention should also be made of Mr. Alfred Quaife's Mike Doherty and the dignified servant Emma of Miss Evelyn Holmes. At the fall of the curtain there were loud calls for Mr. Temple. During the evening a selection of music was given by Mr. Francis Hutchens and Mr. Arthur Alexander. Mr. Temple can be heartily congratulated, as no better dramatic performances were ever given at the Royal Academy of Music.

The orchestral concert of the Royal Academy of Music given at Queen's Hall on Tuesday afternoon opened with Saint-Saëns's "Africa" fantasia, for pianoforte and orchestra, skilfully played by Miss Elsie Jones. In the aria "Il mio Tesoro," from Mozart's Don Giovanni, Mr. Cynlais Gibbs displayed marked intelligence as a vocalist; and another very successful singer was Miss Louie James, heard in recitative and air, "Lebt wohl" (Joan of Arc) (Tschaikowsky). Of four Shakespeare songs (MSS.), by Mr. Eric Coates (student), perhaps the most effective was "Under the greenwood tree" and "It was a lover and his lass." "Orpheus with his lute" and "Who is Sylvia?" invited comparisons with the two great musicians who have set these verses to such fine music. Miss Gertrude Newson, the vocalist, has a pleasing but somewhat small voice. The other novelty given on Tuesday afternoon was three cleverly-written dances (MSS.) for orchestra, by Mr. S. Hartley Braithwaite. "Gigue-Minuet" was attractive in style; but in the "Country Dance and Carol (Old English)" Mr. Braithwaite has given such a charming old-world melody, so skilfully interwoven with the carol, and ably scored for the orchestra, that one would gladly have heard it again. The third example, "Dance of Dervishes," was not of equal merit. The three dances were capitally played by the orchestra, and the talented young composer had a most enthusiastic reception from the audience. Glazounow's Concerto in A minor, for violin, though a rather feeble example of the composer, was skilfully played by Mr. Henry O. Parsons; and Miss Jessie Bristol, who, through the indisposition of Miss Dorothy Craske, at very short notice played the solo instrument in Liszt's difficult Concerto in A, may be warmly commended. Sir A. C. Mackenzie conducted, and the concert concluded with a neatly-executed performance by Miss Alma Goatley of Tschaikowsky's Andante and Finale from Concerto in G (pianoforte).

A Copy of "The Era" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

The pupils of Mr. Benoit Hollander gave a recital of chamber music in the concert-room of the Guildhall School on Thursday afternoon, Dec. 10. The fact that Svendsen's "Octett" and Brahm's "Quintette," with no solo performances, by Mr. Hollander's pupils, were the only items in the programme on Thursday afternoon no doubt accounted for the small audience. In T. Svendsen's "Octett" the attack was somewhat uncertain, and the tone of the strings slightly rough in the opening movement, Allegro resoluto, but the performers greatly improved in the second movement, while the stringed instrumentalists gave a good account of the Andante sostenuto. The performers in the "Octett" were Misses Steed, Yates, Sinclair, Theed, Potter, Hundley, Tanner, and Mr. Leftwich. The Brahms "Quintette, Op. 34," proved the most attractive of the two examples, and was cleverly executed by the Misses Gowan, Duncombe, Sinclair, Potter, and Tanner. Mr. Hollander's pupils displayed talent, but some solo performances would have added greatly to the interest and success of the recital.

The pupils of Mr. Cairns James gave a dramatic performance in the theatre of the Guildhall School on Friday evening, Dec. 11, before a large audience. The programme commenced with a duologue by Edward Granville, entitled 'Enery Brown, and the two characters of Liza Jane and Amelia Amarylda were impersonated by Miss Violet Carmen and Miss May Farnell. Liza and Amelia are two cockney flower girls, both in love with 'Enery Brown, who it seems, is a kind of coster Tariddu, as he has jilted Liza and then taken up with Amelia. The girls are devoted friends, and Liza gives way to her younger companion, saying, truly, there are more than one 'Enery Brown in the world; but it appears this Brown is a hokey-pokey merchant, and the very man who jilted Liza. The little sketch was well received and cleverly acted, Miss Violet Carmen being particularly successful in the dialect and action of the usual London flower girl, while the make-up of both the young ladies was most realistic. An excellent performance of the Forest scene from As You Like It was the second item in the programme. Mr. Francis E. Bray made a dignified Duke; and a clever and graceful Rosalind was found in Miss Eve Tame, who being, as Shakespeare's heroine requires to be, "more than common tall," was admirably fitted for her task. Miss Tame, who spoke her lines with no little charm and appreciation of their beauty, made a most favourable impression, while she seemed perfectly at home in her picturesque and well-fitting costume of doublet and hose. Mr. Roy Thurston, also tall, was a manly and effective Orlando, and well adapted by nature for the hero's part. Although his voice was evidently affected by the severe weather of Friday, Mr. Thurston delivered his lines with good emphasis, while his acting was natural and appropriate to the situations. Mr. Charles A. Wright proved a capital Jaques, while his really excellent delivery of "All the world's a stage" gained for the clever young actor a most hearty and well-deserved round of applause. Mr. F. L. Thomas (a pupil of Mr. Henry Guy) as Amiens sang "Under the greenwood tree" and "Blow, blow, thou winter wind" remarkably well; and Touchstone was played with considerable humour by Mr. Arthur Stanley. Miss Catherine Marshall and Miss Marie J. Cox may be commended for their acting in the parts of Phœbe and Celia; while Miss Eva Robertson played the uncouth Audrey skilfully. The minor characters were carefully undertaken by Mr. Taylor Loban, Mr. Goddard, and Miss A. L. Commin; while special mention ought to be made of Mr. R. G. Commin, who successfully doubled the parts of Corin and old Adam. The programme concluded with Reforming a Burglar, an amusing farcical sketch by Cairns James and Vivian Matthews. Mr. G. Taylor Loban appeared as Philip Meredith (a journalist), Miss Maud Hartley as his wife Emily, and Miss E. Bendy as Maria. Miss Jessie Willis (a pupil of Mr. Cooke) played selections of music on the pianoforte. All the dramatic students had a most hearty reception from the large audience, and Mr. Cairns James had every reason to be gratified by the success achieved by his clever pupils.

A very successful vocal recital was given by the pupils of Madame Medora Henson on Tuesday evening in the Concert Room of the Guildhall School of Music. For two songs by Lidgey, "A widow bird sat mourning" and "Maying," Miss Lily Gammon was much applauded, and Miss Olive Barrett gave a good account of Bemberg's showy song "Chanson Baiser." Miss Mabel Gillender, who had a voice of excellent quality, was heard in "Si mes vers" (Hahn), "Un doux Lien" (Deldruck), and "L'heure exquise" (Hahn); while Miss Minnie Cox was successful in Squire's song "Love is a slave." Miss Nellie Watson, who has a voice of considerable power, which she should avoid forcing, sang two songs of Elgar's, "A Poet's Life" and "Shepherd's Song," with good expression; and Mr. Dennis Byndon Ayres, whose name is included in the list of artists engaged at Covent Garden for the season of English opera, sang "Eleanore," by Coleridge Taylor, with dramatic feeling. An advanced pupil of Madame Henson, Miss Beatrice Jeffries, a prize-winner of this year, gave a beautiful and finished rendering of Löhr's charming song, "Just four years old." Miss Helen Stranger sang "Kennst du das Land" (Liszt); and Miss Jessie Willis, pupil of Mr. Cooke, played two cleverly executed piano solos. Mozart's "Il re pastore" was ably sung by Miss Mary Anderson, the violin obbligato being played by Miss Doris Cloud. Other clever pupils were Miss Enid Cummings, Miss Eva Colton, and Mr. Gerald French. Miss Carrie McDonald acted as accompanist.

SYMPHONY CONCERTS.

The symphony concert conducted by Mr. Henry J. Wood at Queen's Hall on Saturday afternoon, Dec. 12, commenced with the first performance in this country of the Introduction and Polonaise from Moussorgsky's opera Boris Godounov. Although powerfully played by Mr. Wood's orchestra, the two excerpts failed to make a favourable impression, the audience being more interested in the first performance of M. Raoul Pugno's "Concertstück" for pianoforte and orchestra in E minor, a clever and musicianly composition, of which the third movement, "Allegro con fuoco" proved the most attractive. The solo part, as might be expected, was finely played by the distinguished pianist, who at the close was received with enthusiasm by the audience. The programme of Saturday's concert also included a brilliant performance of Dvorák's remarkable Symphony in E minor ("From the New World") and a refined interpretation by M. Raoul Pugno of Saint-Saëns' Concerto No. 4 in C minor for piano and orchestra.

Mr. A. H. Quaritch, 11, Queen Victoria-street, E.C., has acquired the English rights of the amusing one-act opera Das War Ich ("It was I"), which was fully described by our Berlin correspondent in our issue of last week. Our representative said: "Both instrumentation and harmonies are admirable; all is lyrical and merry at the same time, and there is abundance of melody. The composer, who conducted, was compelled to bow his acknowledgments times innumerable. The opera, which is charmingly staged, will enjoy a long lease of life." The piece is evidently worthy the attention of English entrepreneurs.

"THE HAUNTED MAN."

Mr. Redlaw ..... Mr. E. C. Boielle
The Phantom ..... Mr. R. L. Smith
Philip Swidger ..... Mr. W. V. D'Authreau
William Swidger ..... Mr. Max Le Feuvre
Adolphus Tetterby ..... Mr. C. F. Snellgrove
George Swidger ..... Mr. R. Le Geyt
Edmond Longford ..... Mr. C. H. D'Authreau
Mr. Longford ..... Mr. R. Graudin
A City Waif ..... Master Lester O'Brien
A City Outcast ..... Miss L. Oldridge
Madge ..... Miss A. Adams
Mrs. Tetterby ..... Mrs. E. C. Boielle
Milly Swidger ..... Miss C. Oldridge

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

In dramatising Charles Dickens's famous Christmas story, Mr. E. C. Boielle has followed the great novelist as closely as possible, introducing all the chief scenes and incidents, and including all the characters mentioned in the book. This is Mr. E. C. Boielle's maiden effort as a dramatist, and the audience showed their appreciation of his efforts by calling for him at the fall of the curtain and demanding a speech. The young author, who is on the staff of the Jersey Evening Post, has for the last few years managed the Triangle Park and Pavilion, where, during the summer months, nightly entertainments are given by the various concert parties touring the provinces; he has also been closely associated with most of the movements for the better catering for visitors in the matter of amusements, being one of the original organisers of the "Battle of Flowers," and we wish him every success in his new venture.

The first act of The Haunted Man takes place in Mr. Redlaw's study, where the Phantom appears to him, and tells him he has the power to take away his memory of sorrow, wrong, and trouble. The second act is in four scenes, the first being that of the kitchen of the happy and contented Tetterbys, where Redlaw comes in search of the poor student who, he had learnt from Milly, lodges there. His interview with the student Longford has the effect of changing the latter from a quiet, gentlemanly youth to a sarcastic and unthankful person, as evidenced by his interview with Milly which closes the scene. During the three following scenes Redlaw is led through the city slums by the waif, who alone does not come beneath his spell. In Act III. the Phantom again appears to Redlaw, and at the latter's earnest entreaty removes the spell under which he has been cast, informing him that the evil he has brought about by his transference of the gift can be set right by Milly, who is possessed of a counteracting influence, and that his memory will be restored to him also through her benign influence —all which is effected during the two final scenes.

The play contains some effective scenes, especially the second of Act II., which takes place in the street during a snowstorm. Taken as a whole the phantasy is a very creditable first effort in dramatisation; but in its present form it is a little too lengthy, and will be much improved by some judicious cuts.

Miss C. Oldridge was a sympathetic Milly Swidger; Mrs. E. C. Boielle, being an old favourite, received an ovation as Mrs. Tetterby; Miss L. Oldridge did well as the City Outcast; Mr. E. C. Boielle made a hit as Redlaw; whilst the numerous other characters were creditably rendered.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

An orchestral concert of more than usual interest was given by the students of the Royal College, under the direction of Sir Charles Stanford, on Thursday evening, Dec. 10. In Mendelssohn's overture "Melusine," the opening item in the programme, the orchestral students displayed talent, but their principal efforts were reserved for Rachmaninoff's "Concerto for Piano and Orchestra, No. 2, in C minor," a characteristic and remarkable work of the Russian composer. Broad and massive, and, to a certain extent, sombre, as the opening movement is, the Adagio and dramatic finale contain passages of rare beauty. The solo instrumentalist in this work has no easy task, and Mr. Ivan Powell displayed marked ability, while the orchestra under their eminent conductor played the Concerto with great spirit, and in the perfect storm of applause which greeted the clever young pianist they certainly deserved a large share. No less admirable was their crisp performance of Schubert's dainty "Ballet Air" from Rosamunde. An excellent rendering of Schumann's "Rhenish Symphony in E flat" was also given by the orchestra. Miss Gladys Honey, who sang Beethoven's scena, "Ah! Perfido," seemed at first slightly nervous, but in the delightful Aria was entirely successful. The other vocalist was Miss Doris Simpson, who received great applause for her singing of the graceful "Romance" from Schubert's Rosamunde. As usual at an orchestral concert, a very large audience filled the fine hall of the College.

On Tuesday evening the programme of the College concert included Beethoven's Serenade Trio for violin, viola, and violoncello, admirably payed by Mr. Sidney Bostock, Mr. Frank Bridge, and Mr. Felix Salmond. Miss Rose Fellmann who has a fine mezzo-soprano voice, gave a most poetical rendering of G. Fauré's "Les Berceaux," but was not so entirely successful in her second song, "Sonntag" (Brahms). A clever piano solo by Miss Ethel Whiteside of Dvorák's Suite, Op. 98, was much applauded, and Miss Elsie Webb in Liszt's weird and difficult song "Die Loreley" sang with ability. Rheinberger's organ music is always interesting, and the Trio for organ, violin, and violoncello in A minor (two movements) proved a charming and attractive item in the programme. Miss Adelaide E. Parker, Miss Amy K. Rydings, and Mr. Cedric Sharpe were the executants, and an excellent performance was given of the graceful "Theme and Variations, Molto adagio." Miss Dilys Jones is an experienced professional, and her fine voice was heard to advantage in "Le Nil" (X. Leroux), the violoncello obbligato being beautifully played by Mr. Felix Salmond. Miss Dilys Jones will appear in the English performances given at Covent Garden in January. The concert on Tuesday evening ended with a performance of Brahms' Quartet for Piano and Strings by Miss Ellen Edwards, Mr. Philip Levine, Mr. F. Bridge, and Mr. Felix Salmond. Miss C. Stockbridge was the accompanist.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR.

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—Sir Henry Irving.

Mr. Strong states the whole case very clearly.—Illustrated London News.

Should be found very useful.—Pelican.

The work succeeds in making plain the thorny legal path that every manager and artist must tread, and by a timely consultation of its pages they may avoid much misapprehension and trouble.—Star.

The Queen, accompanied by the King and Queen of Norway and Princess Victoria, visited the Queen's Theatre, Shaftesbury-avenue, on the 11th inst., and witnessed the performance of The Belle of Brittany. On the same evening the Prince and Princess of Wales went to the Duke of York's Theatre, and saw Mr. Barrie's play What Every Woman Knows

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

SYDNEY, Oct. 27.—Diana of Dobson's is the latest bill of Mr. J. C. Williamson at the Theatre Royal. Diana Massingbird is one of those characters peculiarly in Miss Tittell Brune's metier, ranking with her Sunday and Merely Mary Ann. All the attempts to hide the innate vulgarity of the plebeian are deliciously accentuated, and create uproarious laughter. Mrs. Robert Brough gives the most artistic portraiture in the cast, her Mrs. Cantelupe being a true blue-blooded aristocrat. Miss Emma Temple, a conscientious actress, makes a double success as Mrs. Pringle, the forewoman, and a disreputable old tramp. Both are capitally acted. Mr. Thomas Kingston is Captain Bretherton, and does good work, but he is fitted for better things than these tirades against labour called comedies. Mr. Gregan McMahon exhibits all the traits of the elevated shopkeeper, Sir Jabez Grindley. Smaller but distinctly drawn character parts are adopted by Mr. Frank Harcourt, Mr. Maurice Nodier, Mr. T. W. Lloyd, Miss Florence Kelly, Miss Nellie Calvin, Miss Edith Lewis, Miss Georgie O'Meara, and Miss Valentine Sydney. The comedy has its full value extracted by the artists, and Mr. Williamson gives it every chance in the mounting.

At Her Majesty's a change will take place at the end of this week, Miss Betty Ohls, an American comedienne, replacing Miss Carrie Moore as Sonia. The rest of the cast, headed by Miss Florence Young, Mr. Victor Gouriet, Mr. Reginald Roberts, and Mr. W. S. Percy, retain their characters in The Merry Widow, to the intense satisfaction of crowded houses.

"The Belle of Mayfair" at the Criterion is booming, with Miss Ruth Lincoln, Miss Gracie Sinclaire, and Mr. Edwin Brett in the forefront of the laughter-making fray. Miss Hook of Holland is to be revived shortly.

"Two Little Sailor Boys" at the Palace is to be replaced at the end of the week by a new Australian drama, A Miner's Trust, written by Mr. Jo Smith. The play will be mounted by Messrs. Meynell and Gunn in lavish style, and the strong dramatic company is well distributed over the many characters.

The Tivoli welcomed a delightfully novel turn in the form of Duncan's Royal Scotch collies, in which the dogs create uproarious fun by their well-trained antics. The Three McGregors created wild excitement with their performances on the xylophone and cognate instruments. These two Scotch portions of Mr. Harry Rickards's programme proved most attractive. Miss Fanny Powers introduced new impersonations. Vera Buttell and Osborne and Brooke are popular, and Miss Nita Leete scores heavily with a new Fire Brigade song.

West's Pictures, musically illustrated by De Groen's Viceregal Band, are drawing multitudes to the Glaciarium. The latest films show Tommy Burns and the negro pugilist Johnson at work training for the coming fight for the championship.

The Lyceum has added a chronomegaphone, which lets the audience see and hear Harry Lauder singing. Every week new pictures are added, and as these two shows have no dramatis personæ to pay, the financial result must satisfy the management. Besides this there are the Bijou, Victoria, Oxford, and Queen's Halls—all picture shows.

Miss Katharine Goodson, perhaps the finest lady pianist who has yet visited Australia, delighted the musical folks, but as they are a small percentage of our amusement lovers the venture of Messrs. Jack Tait did not prove by any means successful.

The Cherniavski Brothers, Leo (17), violinist, Jan (13), pianist, and Mischel (11), violoncellist, had a fine house at the Town Hall for their opening concert under Mr. Edward Branscombe's direction.

Mr. Herbert Flemming, well known as actor and manager in England, South Africa, and Australia, died suddenly on the 23rd, and was buried in Melbourne on the 25th, followed by crowds of professional and private admirers.

MELBOURNE, Nov. 10.—Princess's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. J. C. Williamson.—The Prince of Pilsen attracted another fine audience on Saturday evening. The play sparkles with pretty music and gay dressing, and the comedy element is very strong. From present appearances The Prince of Pilsen should hold the boards for some considerable time.

Her Majesty's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. J. C. Williamson; Business-Manager, Mr. E. J. Tait.—The romantic story of The Scarlet Pimpernel, which deals with "The Terror," was well patronised on Saturday night, Mr. Julius Knight and Miss Olga Humphery being repeatedly recalled. Matinées are given on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Theatre Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Meynell and Gunn.—Oliver Goldsmith's charming comedy, She Stoops to Conquer, in spite of crowded houses, will hold the boards for only four more nights. On Saturday evening next Fedora will be staged for a short season.

King's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. William Anderson; Business-Manager, Mr. Julius Grant.—A special revival of The Midnight Mail is filling this theatre nightly, and Saturday evening saw a packed house. Mr. Anderson's company all appear to advantage in their various rôles, while some excellent scenery has been specially painted for the production.

Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Rickards; Business-Manager, Mr. Fred Aydon.—The latest attraction here consists of the Barnard family of Marionettes, who perform a short comedy entitled A Lodger's Experiences, which keeps the audience in roars of laughter. Hodgson and Lowther are presenting a new sketch entitled The Chrismas Box, a decided improvement on their former effort. Excellent items are provided by Fred Bluett, Gregson and Goodfellow, the Reno Sisters, the Great Marconis, Burt Shepard, Bella Perman, the Marlow Sisters, George Bently, Baby Watson, Jack Russell, the Lewis Sisters, and Charles Tisdale; while some excellent pictures are shown by the Bioscope. Yesterday Mr. Harry Rickards, accompanied by Mrs. Rickards and daughters, arrived in Melbourne from London. The veteran manager is looking as fit as ever

Gaiety Theatre.—Lessee Mr. James Brennan; Business-Manager, Mr. Harry Brennan.—A complete change of programme was submitted to a crowded house on Saturday evening, the new turns were Renaldi, the musical king, and Will Rollon, comedian. The Regardios, the Swift Trio, Denis Carney, Jack Kearns, and a host of others completed an interesting programme.

Prince Edward of Wales took the part of an apprentice in Dick Whittington and His Cat, a pantomime performed by the officers, masters, and cadets of the Royal Naval College, Osborne, on Tuesday.

The Opera House, Workington, is this week handed over to the sacred cause of charity, and a local committee are running an amateur operetta called The Mandarin, in which local children play a prominent part. Bluebeard is announced for Boxing Day.

A one-act play and a farce in two scenes, written by Viscountess Galway, and entitled respectively My Lady's Garden and His Wedded Wife, were produced in the theatre at Serlby Hall, Nottinghamshire, on Wednesday. The peeress-playwright not only wrote the plays, but appeared in one of them, her husband taking part in the other.

AMUSEMENTS IN ROTTERDAM.

ROTTERDAM, Dec. 14.—After a most successful run at the Grand Theatre of Bourget's play Un Divorce, given here in a Dutch translation of the title Echtscheiding, Manager Van Eysden has produced here a new and original drama, Nanda, from the pen of the well-known Dutch journalist Otto Zeegers. Nanda is in four acts, and is the name of the leading female part. The main-spring of the plot is the strife between the narrow-minded, orthodox Church party and the broad, tolerant, and liberal element in a small provincial town. The first element has its chief representative in the Minister of the Community, and the second in the Principal of the public school. As a result of this clashing of ideas, a breach is brought about between the Minister and his young wife, Nanda, who is a whole-souled partisan of the liberal ideal. Unwilling to accept her husband's views, which she considers fatal to those of true humanity and fraternity, she leaves the conjugal roof, saying that their ways diverge for ever, and that she shall choose her own path, letting him continue his at will. The drama has decided merit, the language is good, and many of the ideas expressed are most praiseworthy, and could well be put into practice, but the writer has wished to embrace a too complicated problem without being able to give it the due development, so that the entire argument and conception are not carried out to their full extent. The play has, nevertheless, many good points, and did not fail to please the public. The cast was most efficient, and special praise falls to the share of Mrs. Tartand for her rendering of the title-rôle, and to Mr. Tartand as the liberal-minded teacher. Mention should also be made of Mrs. de Yong for some spontaneous and touching acting and of Mr. Vrolyk for his painstaking work in the unsympathetic part of the Minister.

An "off-night" at the Grand was taken advantage of by Messrs. Royaards and Stumpff to give a performance of Balzac's celebrated comedy Mercadet. As is well-known, this comedy is included in the répertoire of the Comédie Française, the rôle of Mercadet being one of the triumphs of Got's career. It is, indeed, the leading, and one might almost say, the exclusive part in the comedy, as the others are mere lay figures that but serve to give prominence to the dominant character. In the Dutch production, by "The Stage," Mercadet was impersonated by Willem Royaards, and his interpretation was certainly very brilliant and cleverly sustained. The other characters are of such minor importance that no particular notice is needed, though, to speak frankly, the cast was weak, barring Mr. Smith, who was very creditable as the fop, De La Brive. The setting was all that could be desired, and the costumes, which were excellent reproductions of the fashions of 1830, were unusually quaint and attractive.

Another "off-night" at the Grand was devoted to a performance of Oscar Wilde's An Ideal Husband, by the Hagespelers. This company (the Players of the Hague) is under the artistic leadership of Edward Verkade, who is at the same time the leading man of the organisation. The business-management is in the hands of Mr. M. J. de Haan, who is at the head of a concert and theatre bureau at the Hague, and thanks to whose able and wise pilotage a number of dramatic and musical attractions are steering free of the many shoals that beset the artistic main. Een Ideaal Echtgenoot was carefully staged, and the dresses worn by the ladies of the cast were rich and tasty. The play as a whole caught the public taste, many of the telling portions of the dialogue being thoroughly appreciated. The acting was fairly even, Miss Meina Irwen being entitled to a word of praise for her characterisation of the adventuress, Miss Chevely.

The Traumtanzerin, Mme. Madeleine, is in our midst, and has been seen and admired once at the Tivoli Theatre. Whether she owes her art to the hypnotic influence exercised on her medium nature by Dr. Magin, or that her talents are her own, what is most certain is that she is highly gifted, and a most remarkable artist indeed. Her mimetic powers are exceptional, the grace and rhythm of her movements form the true poetry of art, and it is a delight to see her interpret the different emotions that sway her being.

A merry and tuneful performance of Ein Walzertraum was presented at the Grand by the Original Wiener Operetten-Ensemble, under the management of Mr. De Haan's Bureau. The Ensemble is a good one, the costumes, setting, and, last but not the least, the orchestra, are capital, so that the performances prove excellent drawing cards. The Merry Widow has, of course, been put on repeatedly to crowded houses, the same luck befalling Ein Wal Zertraum. All the favourite numbers of this comic opera were encored, and the laughter and applause were general. The hit of the evening was scored by Wini Grabitz, as Franzi Stein Gruber. She is a clever little soubrette, and is full of mirth and entrain.

TRINITY COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

In the "Trio for Pianoforte, Violin, and Violoncello in D minor," by Arthur Hinton, which commenced the programme of the students' concert on Thursday afternoon, Dec. 10, Miss Margaret Withycombe, Miss Mabel Giddens, and Mr. Walter Britton gave a good account of the lively Schergo. Landon Ronald's song, "Deep in the heart of a rose," was ably sung by Miss Hilda M. Mayston; and Mr. Charles Seelig displayed marked intelligence in his performance of Schumann's piano solo, "Sonata in G minor." Miss Florence Griffiths gave a clever recitation of "The Hero of the Commune" (M. Preston); while Miss Alice M. Lees deserves great praise for her fluent execution and full round tone in Sarasate's difficult violin solo, "Zigeunerweisen." "The Swallow Song," Goring Thomas, was admirably sung by Miss Bertha Tomlin; and Mr. Patrick Thayer displayed considerable power as an executant in his piano solo, "Hexentanz," MacDowell. A recitation, "Life's Tragedy," was given by Miss Evelyn D. Cates, and the concert concluded with Lord Henry Somerset's melody, "Dawn, Noon, and Night," sung by Miss Gertrude Wallis.

At Trinity College on Saturday morning, Dec. 12, Dr. J. Warriner gave a lecture on "The Musical Training of Children and Teachers of Music." As on a former occasion, Dr. Warriner spoke of the importance of "hearing with our eyes" and sight-singing. Illustrations were given by a number of children from the County Council schools who are receiving tuition, free of cost, at the Trinity College in connection with the classes for the training of teachers of music. A short concert followed Dr. Warriner's address, the pupils of the first and third grades singing part-songs, "Song of the Wrens" (Craddock) and "Merry June" (C. Vincent), while Miss Nellie Kowin, who sang at the professor's first lecture, was heard in "The Lost Chord" and "An Old Garden." Neatly executed piano solos were also given by other pupils. Two students of the Trinity College, Mr. Harry Gray and Mr. W. J. Comley, acted as accompanists. So large a number of the "sisters and their cousins and their aunts" of the pupils attended the lecture and crowded the concert-room and passages that at his next lecture Dr. Warriner will have to hire a large public hall.

The Queen, with the King and Queen of Norway and Princess Victoria, witnessed the performance of The Merry Widow at Daly's Theatre on Saturday, and on the same evening the Prince and Princess of Wales and suite visited the Garrick Theatre, to see Miss Evelyn Millard's production of Idols.

PANTOMIME GOSSIP.

THE first pantomime to be seen in London this season will be presented at the Coronet, where Dick Whittington will make his début on Monday. Mr. Harry Randall will be the cook, Miss Constance Hyem will play the title-rôle, and Miss Dorothy Firmin should make a charming Alice. On the first night an eloquent souvenir will be given to all comers. On the following evening the performance will be under the patronage and presence of the Mayor, aldermen, and councillors of the Borough of Paddington. On Wednesday the civic dignitaries of the Royal Borough of Kensington will attend. On Thursday those of Hammersmith will be present. On these three municipal evenings Mr. Arthur has arranged for the deserving poor of the three boroughs to be entertained in the amphitheatre and gallery, which will be closed to the general public.

THE pantomime at the Shakespeare this year will be a blend of two stories—one, The Babes in the Wood and the other, Bold Robin Hood—the turning-point being the resolve of the wicked Baron to hire the two historical robbers to waylay and murder the two children, and then give information to the police as to the whereabouts of Robin Hood, with a view of obtaining the thousand crowns reward. The mise en scène will be found to be beautiful, attention being particularly drawn to Scene 2 and Scene 6 of the first part, and to Scenes 3 and 5 in the second half of the pantomime. The music, both selected and original, is by Alf. J. Lawrence, of that clever duo of songwriters, Messrs. Lawrence and Mellor. The book has been written by Mr. Maxwell Stewart, who is also responsible for the production and stage management of the pantomime.

MR. GEORGE BRYDON-PHILLIPS' pantomime of Little Red Riding Hood, which Mr. Wentworth Croke is presenting at the Lyric, Hammersmith, promises to be a great success. Miss Kittee Rayburn will appear as the Prince, and the title-rôle is to be played by Miss Ena Corelli. Other artists engaged include Messrs. Harry and James Ewins, Bishop and Vale, Henry De Solla, Tom Carrick, Will and Alice Vokes, Edith Jefferies, Maisie Mildare, Kitty Wells, and Ewan Maclaren. The scenes include the Village of Sweet Content, the Forest in Summer and Winter, Granny's Cottage, and conclude with an effective palace scene. Mr. Alfred Reynolds will act as Mr. Phillips' business manager.

"ROBINSON CRUSOE" will begin at seven o'clock on Christmas Eve at the Crystal Palace Theatre, and will be repeated twice daily at 2.30 and 7.30. Mr. Bannister Howard has secured a fine cast, and it is said that the scenery and dresses will surpass anything that has yet been seen at the Palace. The aim of the management is to have a good, rollicking pantomime, full of refined and wholesome fun from start to finish. Mr. Bowyer has once more written the book. Two of the finest scenes will be Beneath the Sea and the Sultan's Palace, which have been specially painted by Mr. Thompson Hemsley, the well-known scenic artist. Miss Lillie Lassah should make a sprightly Robinson. This clever young lady is well known in the neighbourhood of the Palace, having been born in Croydon, where she has lived all her life. Miss Venie Clements, who made such a hit as Morgania in last year's pantomime, The Forty Thieves, will be Polly Primrose, and is pretty certain to do full justice to the part. Mr. Bert Edwards as Bill Atkins, Mr. Harry Zietz as Friday, Mr. E. Harvey White as Mrs. Crusoe, and Mr. Scott Russell as Cannibal Chief, will give a combination which should prove most diverting. Amongst other important engagements are those of the sisters Allen, the Melody Four, the Passmore Bros., and Mr. Leon Dubois. The new heating arrangements in the theatre, it should be added, have proved extremely satisfactory.

MISS EDNA CRAGGE, the ideal principal boy, has been engaged to play Demon King at the Elephant and Castle Theatre.

PANTOMIME artists who are not suited with songs, write to Mr. David Day for copies of Miss Fanny Robina's song, "Visions of long ago"; and Miss Florry Cooper's "That's why I want to fly," "Blind boy," and "The thrush," and don't fail to get "The Land of Promise," an enormous success.

MESSRS. LINTONE AND HUNTER are busy rehearsing their pantomime, Robinson Crusoe, which they are producing at the Queen's Theatre, Fleetwood, next week. Included in the "specialities" are the Lintone Trio, Serpento, the Three Sisters Raymond, Stylvo, Victor Hunter, and many others.

A PAINFUL accident happened to Mr. J. C. Bontor, scenic artist at the Royal Princess's, Glasgow, on the night previous to the production of Diccory Dok. In the working of an elaborate set he had the misfortune to be struck on the chin and neck by the handle of a windlass, and suffered severely. As the mishap happened about midnight, there was much trouble in trying to obtain the services of a doctor, and ultimately Mr. Hugh Murdoch, acting-manager at the Princess's, secured a cab and drove the sufferer to the Victoria Infirmary, where the wounds were dressed. Despite the severe shock, Mr. Bontor pluckily faced the duties of the production on the 10th inst., and was honoured by several calls for his picturesque sets in the pantomime.

"BLUE BEARD," at the Opera House, Workington, will be produced on Saturday evening, Dec. 26, by Mr. Charles Constant by arrangement with Mr. Stanley Rogers. The production will be under the supervision of Mr. Johnny Clegg. Mr. Constant is sparing no expense in making Blue Beard one of the best pantomimes travelling. The singing and choruses will be a strong feature in the production, with beautiful scenery and dresses. The principal boy, Selim, will be Miss Daisy Lake; principal girl, Fatima, Miss Marie Duncan; Cashim, Miss Gertie Gordon; Narcissa, Miss Dolly Ward; Asphodel, Miss L. Wickenham; Ali, Miss Dolly Moore; Blue Beard, Mr. Ellis Carlyle; Shacabac and Abdulla, Harlin and Hanlon; Banboozium, Mr. J. Parker; Pimple, Mr. W. Frear; and the Dame, Mr. Johnny Clegg. The specialities will include Miss Bertha Hall, the Sisters Gage, Miss Vic Morella, and the Florodorean Troupe. Original music has been written by W. Neale, and the conductor will be Mr. Louis Finch, who has arranged the imported numbers.

"ALADDIN" will be produced by Mr. Charles Constant at the Theatre Royal, Bolton, on Boxing Day by arrangement with Mr. J. F. Elliston. The pantomime will be under the supervision of Mr. Victor Stevens. Mr. Constant is sparing no expense in making the production one of the best. The singing and choruses will be a strong feature in the pantomime. The principal boy will be Miss Lilie Blythe; the principal girl Miss Dorothy Dempster; Pekoe, Miss Louie Danby; Petti Sing, Miss Treasa Stuart; Chee-kee, Miss Maggie Bowman; Fairy Queen, Miss Marjorie Seymour; Abanazar, Mr. T. J. Morton; Emperor, Mr. Martin D. Pitt; Clang o' Ring, Mr. Max Stuart; Wishee-washee, Little Briton; and Emperor's Cat, Mr. Alf Summers. Mr. Victor Stevens appearing as Widow Twankey. The specialities will include Bowman and Morton, Stuart and Stuart, the Three Brendas, Hinson Brothers, and Maud May Murray in her beautiful electrical aerial dances. The music is arranged and will be conducted by Mr. W. Neale.

"DICK WHITTINGTON" AT EDINBURGH.

Messrs. Howard and Wyndham's annual Theatre Royal pantomime, which is based this year on the old story of Dick Whittington, "thrice Lord Mayor of London," was produced on Thursday evening of last week, before an audience which crowded the theatre from pit to gallery, with every appearance of popular success. The book is again written by Mr. J. Hickory Wood, who has provided ample opportunities for the clever company engaged, while outlining clearly the plot of the favourite tale. The story opens in Cheapside, outside Alderman Fitzwarren's house, on the birthday of his daughter, Alice. Dick Whittington, accompanied by his famous cat, arrives in search of fortune, and the Alderman gives him employment, at the request of Alice, who falls in love with the handsome young stranger. Eliza, the lady help, Idle Jack, Captain Tack, of the Lively Unicorn, and Rupert Raffles, the Alderman's secretary, follow in quick succession, and the pantomime begins its merry course, increasing in mirth-provoking incidents, in humorous business, in bright singing, and dexterous dancing until the fall of the curtain. The action passes from London, after a beautiful scene on Highgate Hill, where Dick sleeps, and in his dreams hears the traditional bells ringing out the message to return. This scene, by T. E. Ryan, is remarkable, not only for its artistic colouring, but for a graceful ballet, introducing skilful flying effects by Mr. George Kirby. The characters voyage to and land in Morocco. The Prince of that country is a suitor for the hand of Alice Fitzwarren; but Mouser, the cat, clears the region of a scourge of rats, and Dick is loaded with money and treasure, and is enabled to wed the girl of his choice. The cast is exceedingly strong. The management have been fortunate in the engagement of Miss Jane Eyre for the name-part. Miss Eyre possesses both charm of appearance and manner; her acting is easy and unaffected, and her singing is marked by taste and feeling. Nothing could have been more delightful than her performance on the first night, and during the evening she was repeatedly applauded for the finished rendering of the songs in her part, a notable success being achieved with "A tiny seed of love," the audience recalling her several times. Miss Ethel Erskine was a naïve, pretty Alice, acting with great earnestness and girlish freshness, and singing with clearness and refinement. Miss Mena Brae as Zoe, the Prince of Morocco's sister, acted with unbounded vivacity, and although at present her chances are not numerous, she made one of the hits of the evening by her rendering of "Oh! oh! Antonio," and her artistic sabot dance. She was enthusiastically encored, and had to appear again and again, the progress of the piece being interrupted for several minutes while the audience roared their applause. Miss Molly Maguire was a striking Fairy Bluebell, and sang in admirable style a taking ballad, which brought the fair singer a hearty recall. The comedians include several of the best-known names in the profession. Mr. Will Evans as Idle Jack, by his ingenious fooling, his unfailing humour, his immense resource in comic business, gave the audience great enjoyment, and the house shook with laughter whenever the actor was on the stage. A delicious bit of fun, Building a Hen House, was introduced into the scene in Fitzwarren's Garden, where Mr. Evans had the assistance of Mr. Ernest J. Langford (Raffles) and Mr. William Dounes (Captain Tack), two excellent comedians. The humour of this scene was infectious, and the audience applauded to the echo the diverting performance of the actors. Mr. Phil Ray made a quaint figure as Alderman Fitzwarren. He sings with admirable comic effect; his monologues in abbreviated language are clever, and his burlesque recitations are highly amusing. Mr. Harry Bickley as Eliza was very droll, his stentorian voice being startlingly in contrast with his feminine make-up. Mr. Albert Felino enhanced his reputation by another capital animal study as the Cat; his impersonation was full of humour, and showed expert acrobatism. Miss Florence Ward was an attractive Prince of Morocco, and Mr. Arthur Burgoyne was good as the King of Ratland. Reference has already been made to Mr. Langford and Mr. Dounes, who were of much service in every scene in which they took part in adding to the gaiety of the audience. The Tinto Troupe gave a capital gymnastic turn in the Ratland scene, and the Tiller Troupe of dancers—"the Scala Girls"—danced with much animation, an especially pretty effort being the dance to the accompaniment of the tuneful song "Come, be my Rainbow." Mr. T. F. Dunn, Mr. Ernest Glover, Mr. T. E. Ryan, and Mr. A. Glendinning have designed and painted the many beautiful scenes; Mr. George Sutherland has excelled himself in the properties provided for the piece; Mr. D. Torrance has been responsible for the brilliant electric lighting effects, and Mr. Wm. Macalpine has displayed much ingenuity in his mechanical appliances. The costumes are by Alias, of London, and Mrs. Smythe, from designs by M. Comelli. We have left to the last the mention of one of the most important artists in the success of the pantomime, Mr. George Burnley, the accomplished musical conductor, whose arrangement of the music is masterly. The various numbers are brought in with picturesqueness, and bell chimes are introduced with charm and impressiveness. The entire pantomime went with the utmost smoothness from the first to the last scene, and reflected the greatest credit upon Mr. F. W. Wyndham and his stage-manager, Mr. John J. Lloyd. The audience at the close raised loud calls for Mr. Wyndham, who appeared before the curtain, and bowed his acknowledgment.

"CINDERELLA" AT GLASGOW.

Moss Empires, Ltd., commenced their first pantomime season at the Grand, Glasgow, on Wednesday, 9th inst., with a beautifully staged version of Cinderella. The production has been entrusted to Messrs. R. C. Buchanan and Ernest Stevens, and is the same pantomime as scored such a decided success at the Shakespeare, Liverpoil, last year. Most of the artists who were concerned in that success are again playing the same parts, which always goes far towards making a pantomime a hit, and judging by the enthusiasm of the first-night audience over the scenery, the acting, and, more especially, the wealth of fun provided, Cinderella ought to achieve even greater success than it did a year ago. Mr. Stanley Rogers, who produces the pantomime for Messrs. Buchanan and Stevens, is also the author of the book, and has provided a smart and up-to-date libretto, full of "quip and crank, and gibe and joke," to afford unlimited scope for the comedians, and yet the simple nursery story of Cinderella is never for a moment obscured. The pantomime is divided into two parts, and ten scenes in all, and scenically it is a most artistic production. The various sets and cloths are by Messrs. Thomas Holmes, Stafford Hall, A. Terraine, and E. Ryan, and special praise is due for the scenes entitled the Glade, Cinderella's Kitchen, the Home of the Fairy Godmother, the Royal Ballroom (this in particular is a magnificent set), the Exterior of De Debtington Hall, and the concluding scene, In the Sweet Spring Time, where in a blaze of colour and to the tuneful strains of "Ring out, ye bells," the fortunes of Cinderella reach their highest pinnacle. In the selection of their company Messrs. Buchanan and Stevens have made an excellent choice. Prince Casimir is played by Miss Violet Halls (who will be remembered as Clementine in The Girls of Gottenberg at the Gaiety), and to a handsome appearance and dashing style this lady unites a voice of considerable power and quality, as was evidenced by the manner in which she gave her various songs, and the hearty applause they evoked. Her most notable successes in this line were the tuneful ditties "Anywhere will do" and "The Gay Gordons," both of which went particularly well. Miss Queenie Finnis as Cinderella acts charmingly, alike in the earlier scenes of her poverty and ill-traetment, consoled by the sympathy of her faithful friend Capers, and later in the days of prosperity, as the affianced bride of Prince Casimir. In her song, "My pretty Piece of Dresden china," she takes exceedingly well, and the humour of the "Parrot" duet with Mr. Barry Lupino as Capers was rewarded with several encores. Another fine item was her "Shadowland" song, charmingly rendered. The Baron and Baroness, as played by Messrs. George French and Tom Conway, were the cause of hearty and continuous laughter all the time they were on the stage. The contrast being the puny Baron, with his woe-begone face and subdued manner, and the aggressive and domineering Baroness, especially on her first entrance in a motor rig-out, which further emphasises her substantial proportions, was comic in the extreme. Messrs. French and Conway are, of course, the principal fun-providers, and their business in the scene where the Baron is required to take medicine, in the wrestling act, at the Prince's Ball, and, in fact, all through, keeps the audience in fits of laughter. Mr. George French is already a great favourite in Glasgow, and his performance as the Baron will enhance his reputation considerably. His song, "Maggie of Dundee," was the biggest hit of the evening, and the humour of the song and Mr. French's make-up as a Scotchman in kilt and plaid, emphasised as they were by the orchestral humour of the accompaniment provided by Mr. H. Henderson and his merry men, caught the fancy of the audience, and it took three or four encores to satisfy them. In his "Salome" song, Mr. French has another taking number, and it was also well received. As the Baroness Mr. Tom Conway does not rely so much on his vocal efforts, (though his song "Drinks" is an amusing item) as on the humour of his make-up, the malapropisms in his dialogue, and his acting of the strong-minded lady, especially in connection with the ruling of her timid husband, the Baron. This makes the fun all the more enjoyable when the Baron, after the successful wrestling bout with a gentleman of enormous physical development, takes the Baroness in hand and asserts his authority in determined fashion. The two elderly daughters of the Baroness are played by Miss Kate Walbran and Miss Nellie Cozens. The former as Araminta makes up comic, and adopts a tragedy method and a rapt expression. Miss Cozens as Elvira adopts rather the guise of a damsel of mature years affecting the methods of agushing girl of sixteen. In "Oh, oh, Antonio" Miss Cozens has one of the popular ditties of the year, and makes it go exceedingly well. For the part of Dandini Mr. Whit Cunliffe has been secured, and makes his début as a pantomime artist with results equally satisfactory to himself, the audience, and the management. The popular light comedian makes an excellent Dandini, the affected manner and pomposity of his assumed dignity, in contrast to the real Prince, being very amusing; while in his songs he fairly enrols the audience as choristers for the time being. In "The very first girl I see," "You're not satisfied," "I don't care if there's a girl there," and "I will—I won't," he has four songs that catch on enormously, and for each of them he is repeatedly recalled. Mr. Barry Lupino as Capers is another tower of strength to the pantomime, and his quaint style, lively antics, and facility at tumbling over all sorts of real and imaginary obstacles, provide a veritable feast of fun. His share in the "Parrot" duet with Cinderella, already referred to, was smartly done, and in the song and dance "My girl's a Yorkshire girl" he also scored a success, assisted by a clever lady dancer. Miss Nellie Wigley makes a smart and likely Duke of Whistbridge, and scored a hit with her song "Won't you dance the Merry Widow waltz," more especially in the final verse, where she is assisted in the humorous business by Mr. Tom Conway as the Baroness. Miss Olive Tempest is a handsome Fairy Godmother, and sang "Won't you play at sweethearts?" with much taste and expression. Miss Edie Docherty speaks her lines pleasantly as the Dream Fairy, and the local children who appear in the Haunted Corridor scene, which opens the pantomime, were well drilled, and performed their duties with evident gusto. Mr. Chas. Kean acted with humour as the Flunkey in the Royal Palace, and as the fearsome wrestler who is overcome by the Baron. Messrs. Roylat and Walker made a most amusing animal of the Baron's horse; and other parts were ably filled by Misses Marie Durand, Kitty Mattheson, Dora Balmain, and May Gordon. A strong and attractive chorus give animation to the various scenes, and makes the musical items an important feature. The Lottie Stone troupe of dancers contribute a number of picturesque dances. Mr. Stanley Rogers has given the pantomime a splendid send-off, and in response to calls for a speech, neatly thanked the audience in a few words for their hearty reception of the latest Cinderella. The stage management is in the hands of Mr. Augustus Hammond, assisted by Mr. C. H. Baker, while Mr. Ernest Dale, who has been so long connected with the Grand, deserves every credit for the manner in which the various changes were made and the expedition with which many heavy sets were got ready. Mr. H. Henderson, Mus.Bac., conductor at the Grand, is associated in the selection and arranging of the music with Mr. Harry Richardson and Mr. George M. Saker, and in this department the pantomime is specially worthy of note. On the opening night, Mr. H. Henderson had his augmented band and the large chorus well under control, and the result was most exhilarating. The handsome dresses are by Messrs. J. A. Harrison, Ltd., from designs by Mr. Robert White, and the wigs by Messrs. Fyans and Co. A beautifully-designed carriage, lighted by electricity, and four smart little ponies are important features of the production. Mr. B. G. Machlachlan, district manager for Moss's theatrical houses, was much in evidence on the opening night, as were also the representatives of the various well-known music publishers. Mr. Frank Withers is looking after the interests of the pantomime company. Mr. W. Christie Grant, resident-manager here, may confidently look forward to a very busy time for the next twelve or more weeks, as the fame of Cinderella spreads throughout Glasgow and the west of Scotland.

"DICCORY DOK" AT GLASGOW.

On Thursday, 10th inst., Mr. Rich Waldon produced the twenty-ninth Royal Princess's pantomime at Glasgow, and from the rise of the curtain to the fall there was not the slightest doubt that he has once again scored a success. Adhering to the policy he has adopted for a number of years past, Mr. Waldon studiously avoids the hackneyed subjects of pantomime, and in his search for fresh fields and pastures new he has this year adopted the subject of Diccory Dok; or, The Little Mouse and the Magic Clock. There may be different versions of the exact wording of this nursery classic, but the official wording given in the libretto is:

"Diccory, Diccory Dok,
The mouse ran up the clock,
The clock struck one
The mouse was gone,
Diccory, Diccory Dok."

Rather a slender foundation, one might think, for a pantomime scenario, but in the hands of Mr. J. James Hewson (the author of this and the two previous pantomimes at the Princess's) this becomes an advantage, for it affords unlimited scope. Mr. Hewson makes it a story of a lost heir, an unscrupulous squire with a pretty ward, a travelling doctor and his assistant, an old housekeeper and her Scotch nephew, and over all the opposing forces of Discord and the Fairy Sweetbriar to mar or make the fortunes of the hero, Dick, who of course turns out to be the lost heir and the possessor of wealth unlimited. If Mr. Waldon has this year made a feature of the novelty of his subject, he has pursued an opposite course in the selection of the company to interpret it. Never before have we had a cast here with so many as six favourites of previous years included in it, and the rousing cheers that greeted Miss Ella Retford, Mr. Peter Bermingham, Mr. Syd Walker, Mr. Cliff Lake, and that clever couple Miss Maggie Fraser and Miss Edith Haley on their respective first entrances proved that the patrons of the Princess's endorsed Mr. Waldon's selection in every case. But admiration for their established favourites did not blind the audience to the merits of the new-comers, and in Miss Flora Cromer as Dick we get a principal boy who worthily upholds the best traditions of the theatre. She has a fine presence, lots of energy and go, sings her songs with striking effect, and speaks her lines with a crispness that ensures their being heard by every member of the audience. The selection of songs given by Miss Cromer ranges from the sweetly simple ballad, "Who'll buy my lavender?" to the lively coon song, "Carolina Brown," and the patriotic ditty about "Lads in blue," and to one and all she imparts a charm that at once makes for success. As Dick's sweetheart Winnie Miss Ella Retford returns to the theatre where she was so successful two years ago, and it is almost unnecessary to say of such a popular favourite that she carries the audience with her all through the evening. Her winsome smile is infectious, and in song and dance she has a style that is all her own. For her first song she gave her own special item, "Do you want any coal?,' and later on her "Chinaman" song, with an appropriately-dressed chorus of girls, and both ditties were heartily encored. One of Miss Retford's best songs is "Won't you dance the Merry Widow Waltz?" and in this she has the assistance of Mr. Syd Walker, with the result that a plethora of amusing business is introduced by these two clever artists. This song made a decided hit, as did a duet which Miss Retford shares with Mr. Peter Bermingham, entitled "Gretna Green," a tuneful melody which secured several encores. During the evening Miss Retford was presented with two or three artistic bouquets, as was also Miss Flora Cromer, and, in fact, all the lady principals, not to speak of the gollywog bouquet handed up to Mr. Peter Bermingham after one of his songs. As a Scotch comedian Mr. Bermingham has already made a big name for himself here, and the audience is delighted at his humorous sallies, all given in the local dialect, and with plenty of those words and phrases only possible to one well versed in the tongue of the Glasgow people. The fun is fast and furious when he is on the stage, and as Wee Hughie he contributes a most amusing sketch of character. The return this year of Messrs. Walker and Lake to the Princess's is responsible for a vast deal of excellent comedy. In the part of the itinerant doctor, Professor Pillbox, Mr. Syd. Walker has a character in which he fairly revels, and his embodiment of the eccentric professor is like a page from Dickens. Mr. Cliff Lake as Squills is an excellent foil to his more volatile partner, and their numerous interludes are provocative of the most hearty laughter. Their first song is a clever parody—"Will you pay me in December what you owe since May!" and they also do well with the smartly-written song, "What's the use?" A more popular second boy and girl than Misses Edith Haley and Maggie Fraser it would be difficult to find, and their great success of last year here is likely to be eclipsed by this year's performance. Their singing makes them prime favourites, and they at once got home with the American ballad, "Sweet Sixteen," charmingly sung, while another of their hits was the song, "Whispers of love." In addition to these duets, Miss Haley secured several encores for "Isn't it lovely to be in love." Another clever couple who make their first bow to a Princess's audience are the Sisters Bartholomew (Rose and Violet), and as Matt and Jennie they make a lively and energetic boy and girl, ably taking their share in the honours of the evening. Their contributions to the harmony include "Johnny Macintyre" and "Matilda Magee," both of which take well. The Squire of Eaglesham of Mr. Harry A. Gribben is a first-rate performance, with the touch of mock tragedy that makes the comic situations seem doubly comic. He works well with the other comedians, and is responsible for many a hearty laugh. Mr. Ainslie Burton as the Dame (Mistress Amelia Tibbs) is another clever actor, and his performance was much appreciated, applause and laughter alternating with the audience all through his humorous sallies. Mr. Walter Dale as Sparkle acts the part of the villain's assistant with much versatility, and proved himself a clever comedian throughout. Miss Ivy Proudfoot as the fairy Queen, Sweetbriar, is gifted with a handsome appearance and a most melodious voice. She gives her dialogue with much point, and her songs were received with enthusiasm, in particular one with the refrain, "To live or die for you." As the demon Discord, Miss May Beatrice acts with very striking effect, and infuses into her lines the necessary vim and emphasis. Mr. Charles Stevens and Mr. Harry Brett as two knockabouts do a lot of useful work, and Misses Rita Romney, Doreen Day, Dorothy Seakam, and May Abdy as village boys and girls complete a good cast. Following up his success of last year with the rolling saloon of the Lusitania, Mr. Rich Waldon has on this occasion given his patrons a sensational scene representing an earthquake, and the realistic way in which the massive buildings round a public square collapse at the desire of the Demon Discord, and the antics of the various comedians as modern Claudians dodging the flying chimney-pots, is worth going a long way to see. Another good scene is the Model Dairy, which affords opportunity for some very tasteful dresses for the fascinating dairymaids, and lots of room for comic business in the working of the various utensils. Scene 6, The Fair Ground, also gives scope for a deal of old-fashioned rough and tumble fun. But the scenic triumphs of the year are the concluding scenes to each part, viz., Beneath the Sea and The Palace. There had been several calls for the scenic artist, but it was for these two special scenes that the enthusiasm was most pronounced, and Mr. J. C. Bontor (looking somewhat ill after his recent accident) had to bow his acknowledgments repeatedly. As in previous years, Mr. Bontor is responsible for all the scenery, and he gives beautiful examples in the opening set, Road near Eaglesham, and the attractive cloth, Near the Baron's Stables, while a touch of humour is displayed in the Home of the Wreckers and The Model Dairy. Several striking electrical devices are shown in the scenes Beneath the Sea and The Palace. The sunken galleon in the former is a triumph for the artist and Mr. David Barbour, electrician at the theatre. Mr. Henri Vollmer, conductor at the Princess's, has selected and arranged the music, which is a feature of this year's production. The mechanical changes in the earthquake and other scenes reflect credit on Mr. T. Flanagan, while Mr. C. G. Cooke is responsible for the properties and appointments, and Miss Binnie for most of the dresses, with the exception of some Parisian toilettes by Mme. Despré, Paris. Messrs. Fyans, of Liverpool, have supplied the wigs. Mr. Rich Waldon, as in past years, himself supervises the entire production, down to the most minute details, and he must have been gratified at the hearty and cordial manner in which the audience expressed their approval from first to last. In a few words he thanked his patrons at the fall of the curtain for the gratifying reception they had accorded the twenty-ninth pantomime at this theatre. Mr. George Dix assists Mr. Waldon as stage-manager, and the ballets were under the direction of Miss Fanny Boulton. In front Mr. Hugh Murdoch ably fulfils his duties as acting-manager, looking after the comfort of the large audience, with a special eye to "our good friends of the Press," as Sir Henry Irving was wont to remark.

"THE BABES IN THE WOOD" AT MANCHESTER.

Messrs. Levy and Cardwell produced their version of The Babes in the Wood at the Queen's Theatre, Manchester on the 7th inst. The book is by H. B. Levy and the music, which is catchy and tuneful, by G. F. Dodds. The story runs along the usual lines, and introduces Robin Hood and his merry men, including Friar Tuck, and of course Maid Marion. Much care and expense have been lavished on the scenery and costumes, the whole being well designed and tastefully harmonised, the principal "sets" being "The Village," "The Woodland Glade," "The Castle Ramparts," and "The Home of Good Luck," and the various ballets—the Birds, the Fairy, and the Statues—elaborately introduced. A very capable company are employed in the exploitation of the story. As one of the Babes Wee George Wood is precociously clever, and is particularly successful in his song "One thing makes me crazy, and that's the girls"; he is also smart in various impersonations. Marjorie, the other Babe, is very nicely played by Little Peggy Macdonnell, who dances well and sings "I want to be amongst the boys" and "Good-night little Teddy Bear." Miss Daisy Wood as Robin Hood, the principal boy, has a good presence and an equally good voice, and is well received in her songs "Bombadier" and "From Poverty-street to Golden-square"; while Miss Dolly Dodds as Marion pleases everyone by her rendering of "Shadowland," "The Bubble and the Sunbeam," and "Antonio." Among the vocal successes must also be mentioned Miss Jenny Hughes as Fairy Snowdrop, who renders in cultured style "Let me but hope" and "I'd live or would die for you." The comedians are brisk and resourceful, the chief success being scored by Mr. J. G. Aitken as Wee Willie, a country lad, whose methods are well suited to the Lauder class of song, examples of which are "The wedding o' Sandy McNab" and "Good-bye, Sandy." Mr. Neil Hardy as Baron Strangeways contributes "You will never be an angel, daddy"; and among other comic items, Mr. Jimmy Watson as Maggie Ann, the nurse, is responsible for "I'm going to be in the Salome fashion" and "Daisy and her Directoire." Specialities are added by Levy and Cardwell's troupe of international dancers and the Marguerite Quartet, and the show, as a whole, is calculated to give unqualified satisfaction wherever it is seen.

AMUSEMENTS IN BARCELONA.

"OLD HEIDELBERG" and The Hound of the Baskervilles continue to attract large audiences at the Theatro Principal. The Circo Barcelones announce several débuts, amongst which are those of the Sisters Courson in "Le Tourbillon de la Mort," the Four Villards, Lidia and Amelis, and the Sisters Naldy. The Sisters Proveanies, the clever troupe of cyclists, continue to prove a great attraction, and they are without doubt the success of the evening. Scarcely less in favour are the Six Juggling Girls, who work well together in many combinations of club-swinging and juggling. A capital comedy act is presented by Maxim and D'Elb, both being acrobats of no mean order. Mlle. Nitta Yô is possessed of a fine voice, and her rendering of six numbers was insufficient to satisfy the audience. Another comedienne, Mlle. Fauvette, is also well received. Jack and Joun supply an interesting item.

AT the Soriano the Zaresky Troupe of Russian singers and dancers are much applauded. Clown Brosa presents his performing dogs. They are perfectly trained. Drawee, Frisco, and Ambo, jugglers, bring a most successful engagement to a close. The Davis Troupe also appear.

THE CAVALLOTTIS, in a number combining high-class music with comedy, enter upon their last week at the Poliorama. Aafael Arcos, with frequent changes of entertainment, seems almost a permanency at this hall.

THE Palacio de Ilusion may always be relied upon for an attractive programme. Included are the Guerra Trio, acrobats; the Clown Pol, mimic; and Lerris Lenka with her troupe of educated dogs.

AMUSEMENTS IN BRUSSELS.

BRUSSELS, DEC. 15.—La Monnaie's attractions are Gluck's Orphée, Halévy's Juive, R. Strauss' Salome, and Charpentier's Louise, with Mme. Claire Friché in the title-rôle.

MME. BADY has been the star at the Parc, in Henry Bataille's strong play, La Femme Nue. Now Sardou's political satire, Rabagas, is on the bill. The Galeries and the Olympia are a gold mine to their clever manager, Mr. Fonson, who has produced at the first theatre Hennequin and Duquesnel's fine comedy, Patachon, and at the second G. Feydeau's ever-successful Dame de chez-Maxim.

AT the Molière the fare is Serpette's Cousin-Cousine. The Alcazar is presenting Jules Lemaître's L'Ainee. Le Palais d'Eté has made its transformation on the usual ice skating-rink, Le Pôle Nord, and is attracting crowds. The Scala has launched the first revue of the season, gorgeous and tuneful as is the rule of the house.

"CINDERELLA" will be produced at the Grand Theatre, Mansfield, on Boxing Day. The pantomime is by Captain Clayton, who has written the book, the lyrics being by Mr. Mark Lorne. The scenery, which has been painted in its entirety by Mr. Alec Toole, the resident artist, will be a special feature of the production. The White City, in particular, with its beautiful electric fountain, throwing hundreds of gallons of real water, will be among the finest ever presented here. An excellent cast has been chosen, with, in addition, several speciality turns.

"CINDERELLA" will be the pantomime at the Theatre Royal, Exeter, and will be produced by Mr. Guyton Heath on Boxing Day. The libretto is by F. Leslie Moreton, and music composed and arranged by F. Chevalier Le Grand, who will conduct the orchestra. The stage-manager will be Mr. Geoffrey Allsopp. Miss Cissy Hayden will again be ballet-mistress, Miss Edith Housley will be principal boy, and Miss Violet Hollom will be principal girl. Miss Kate O'Flynn will be the Baroness; Messrs. Frank Weir and Fred Park the Wicked Sisters; and Mr. Kennedy Allen the Baron. Miss Minnie Love as Dandini, Miss Ethel Monks as Lord Chamberlain, Miss Willie Atom as Page, and Miss Elsie James as Fairy Queen complete a strong combination. The principal dancers will be the Berlin Belles.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Dec. 14, the Play entitled
"UNDER THE RED ROBE."

For the concluding week of the dramatic season this popular adaptation by Edward Rose of Mr. Stanley Weyman's famous novel has been staged by Mr. Norman V. Norman's company, and has been received with generous applause by crowded audiences. The play is a stirring and vigorous one, and contains plenty of excitement, well emphasising the sensational times of Cardinal Richelieu, who occupies an important place in the drama. The hero, Gil de Berault, is played in exceedingly brisk and dashing fashion by Mr. Norman V. Norman, who as a gamester, duellist, and lover dominates the scene quite to everybody's approval. Rather too deliberate, but, on the other hand, well acted is the Cardinal de Richelieu of Mr. Alfred Gray; Mr. Reginald P. Lamb is a capital Marquis de Pombal; and M. de Fargis is very ably played by Mr. Cyril Percy. Mr. F. Ambrose Flower gives an admirable impersonation of the swaggering Englishman, Sir Thomas Brunt; most amusing is Mr. Sam Wilkinson as Captain Larolle; while Lieut. Manet is carefully rendered by Mr. Norman Leslie. Mr. Fred K. Lock represents Henri de Cocheforet in good stye; Clon, a dumb servant, is well mimed by Mr. J. A. Snaith; Mr. Casson Freer is worthy of praise as the Sergeant; as Renée de Cocheforet Miss Beatrice Wilson is completely successful, her acting showing talent of a very high description; Msis Violet Malcolm Barnett makes an earnest and pathetic Mme. de Cocheforet; and Miss Ethel Coleridge is a vivacious Mme. Zaton. Suzette in the hands of Miss Adeline Granville deserves mention. The dresses and scenery are in every way worthy of praise. David Garrick was given on two evenings later in the week with Mr. Norman as Garrick and Miss Beatrice Wilson as Ada Ingot.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Dec. 14, the Drama entitled
"THE WAY OF THE WORLD."

Mr. Herbert Scardon and Mr. H. Sherwood Martin's company present this week the above-named drama, which is written by G. Howard Watson and W. P. Sheen. The piece is remarkably well played, not a part in the cast being inadequately represented. Mr. Herbert Scardon gives quite the correct idea of a thoroughly good-hearted young Englishman as Cecil Hardy; his father, Sir John Hardy, a high-minded gentleman, finds a realistic representative in Mr. Pat Quinn; Miss Sidney Crowe as Lady Adela Hardy gives a striking sketch of a heartless, treacherous woman, and gains much applause for some powerful acting; her companion in wrong-doing, Captain Fred Slade, is effectively represented by Mr. Edward Avinal; Mr. Clarence Temple appears as Matthew Malyon, a circus proprietor, and gains the sympathy of the audience by his vivid representation of grief at the tragic death of his son, and in his subsequent display of dramatic intensity; the youthful gymnast, Eric Malyon, is played by Miss Marie Marsh; the humorous element of the drama is supplied by Mr. Victor Gordon as Horatio Bluff, a man-servant; Miss Violette Vivienne as Pollie Belle, a champion strong woman; and Mr. D'Arcy Kelway as Joe Sparrow, a circus clown, the last presenting some excellent specimens of low comedy. The part of Kate Montague, a circus rider, is sustained by Miss Violet Lyttôn in a way which secures hearty goodwill.

ARTILLERY THEATRE, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Dec. 14, Miss Florence Glossop-Harris and Company in Shakespearean Répertoire.

Students of Shakespeare are being regaled this week, while others of a less pedantic turn of mind are having their memories refreshed, by the presentation, by Miss Florence Glossop-Harris and her clever company, of several of the Bard's best-known plays, including Romeo and Juliet, Merchant of Venice, Othello, Taming of the Shrew, &c., in fact, a different play for every night in the week—surely a sufficiency. Romeo and Juliet, which was the play presented on the night of our visit, was listened to with keen attention and greatly appreciated, marked favour being bestowed upon the principal members in the cast. Miss Florence Glossop-Harris was seen to particular advantage in the character of Juliet. Mr. Arthur Goodsall gives an excellent rendering of the love-sick swain, Romeo, acting with that conviction gained by experience; he deserves the applause so liberally meted out to him. Mr. Frank Cellier as Mercutio has more or less a "resting" part, but supplies an interesting study. Benvolio is ably impersonated by Mr. Percival Madgewick; Mr. Francis Roberts puts plenty of spirit into his representation of the fiery Tybalt; Mr. E. Stuart Vinden and Mr. Leslie Newman as Capulet and Montague respectively deserve commendation; Mr. J. Cassels Cobb makes a suitable Prince; Mr. Murray Kinnell does well as Paris; Miss Janet Warden essays the rôle of the Nurse with distinction; and Miss Gertrude Tate as Lady Capulet and Miss Macy Goulden as Lady Montague are valuable members of the cast.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, Dec. 14, the Drama entitled
"A FIGHT FOR LIFE."

For the concluding week of the dramatic season the management have secured the services of Miss Ada Frank's capable company, under the direction of Mr. Courtney Robinson, and a good all-round performance of the exciting play above-named is given. Although at times the story awakens memories of the past, yet the plot is skilfully unravelled, and many thrilling incidents are watched with interest by an appreciative audience. Mr. Courtney Robinson looks and acts well as Count Adrian, the defender of the weak and helpless; Mr. Clifton Earle infuses a great amount of poignancy into the part of the crippled Jean Cardell; and the bullying Carlos Cardell is well enacted by Mr. William Matthews. Mr. Dan Ryan is full of quips and foibles as the light-hearted and merry Dan Murphy, and a fine character-study of the miser, Ferrand, is given by Mr. Templar Ellis. Miss Ada Franks is bright and vivacious as Suzanne, and Miss Florence M. Daly is excellent as the ferocious La Cardell. The pathos of the blind Marie is well shown by Miss Elsie Shelton, and Miss Rose Woodhall is capable as Adell. The remaining parts are in good hands.

NEW LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Dec. 14, the Drama entitled
"STRAIGHT FROM THE SHOULDER."

Mr. R. A. Roberts' company is concluding its first tour with a visit to the above-named house this week. Mr. Henry Herne, in the character of Dr. Bedford, plays with conviction, especially in the scenes between himself and his wife, née Millicent Grant, a part which is sympathetically and charmingly rendered by Miss Beatrice Burdett. A powerful performance is given by Mr. Leonard Clarke as the villainous David Gleeson, who later becomes Major Lucas Jim Green, alias Bunky, is a particularly well-written low comedy character, and by Mr. A. P. Kaye, an old Lyric favourite, it is played for all it is worth. Mr. Kaye also sings two songs, which "go" very well and merit the hearty applause received. Mr. Geo. B. Child is an effective Rev. John Armitage; as Mary Gleeson Miss Frances Bruce does well; Mr. George Fisher acts capably as Fred Stafford, and with Gladys Brittle (cleverly portrayed by Miss Beatrice Moore) nicely renders a love duet. Miss Edie Casson invests the part of the elderly spinster Miss Brittle with much quiet humour. Mr. R. A. Roberts's acting manager is the courteous Mr. Charles Boult.

"OLIVIA'S ELOPEMENT."

Olivia Fielding .....Miss Beatrice Wilson
Lucy .....Miss Ethel Coleridge
Sir James Fielding .....Mr. Alfred Gray

On Thursday evening last this new curtain-raiser was produced at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith. Sir James Fielding discovers that his niece, Olivia, is about to elope that evening with a young gentleman named Arthur Langdon, and that at the very moment the lover is waiting for the lady at the bottom of the garden, with horses. Sir James has other intentions for his niece's marriage, and to effectually prevent the elopement taking place he locks her in her bedroom (where the action of the piece takes place), and insists upon her disrobing and going to bed. As she undresses she throws the articles of attire at him one by one, and he collects them, and after ransacking the wardrobe and chests of drawers he leaves the room, locking the door behind him. In this quandary Olivia arranges with her maid, Lucy, that when she goes out of the room she shall inform Arthur of what the uncle has done and get him to obtain some clothes for her to, and she can then descend by the window into the garden, and so meet him as arranged. Lucy obeys her behests and obtains the clothes from Arthur, and comes back by the window. Upon being opened the bundle turns out to be composed of gentleman's attire, and with some trepidation Olivia dons them and makes her reappearance, looking very debonair. Just as she is about to descend by the window Sir James enters the room, and seeing, as he supposes, the lover, he lays his stick across the young man's shoulder and orders him out by the window, which Olivia very promptly takes advantage of, and while descending the ladder she chaffs her uncle about catching a weasel (his own description of himself) asleep. The piece is a short and merry one, and met with an extremely favourable reception. Miss Beatrice Wilson as Olivia gave evidence of her versatility by some very spirited acting, and certainly made a very brave show in male attire; Mr. Alfred Gray was successful as the irascible Sir James Fielding, and Miss Ethel Coleridge as the maid, Lucy, rendered capital assistance.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Dec. 14, the Drama entitled
"SAPHO."

For the week preceding the holiday season Mr. Frederick Melville is presenting the old favourite play, Sapho. Mr. Ernest R. Abbott is responsible for the production, and a good all-round performance of the famous French drama is given. Noteworthy in the cast is Miss Amy Abbott, who gives a vivid and realistic picture of Fanny Legrand, the "worst woman in Paris." Mr. Ernest R. Abbott is most effective as Jean Gaussin; Henri Déchelette finds a capable exponents in Mr. Vincent Wells; Mr. Edwin Keene does good work as Uncle Césaire; Mr. Arthur Bell is admirable as Flamant; and Mr. John Lester fills very effectively the part of Caoudal. Fanny's father (old Legrand) is safe in the hands of Mr. Arthur Britton; Miss Isabel Singleton makes the most of Mme. Hettema; Miss Florence Gomer sustains with marked ability the part of the notorious La Pipette; Miss Florence North is an engaging Lucy; and Miss E. Gertrude Jones is very satisfactory as Joseph. Sapho is nicely mounted and dressed, and the stage-management deserves praise.

GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, Dec. 14, the Romantic Play, in Four Acts, by Walter Howard, entitled
"THE PRINCE AND THE BEGGAR MAID."

This late Lyceum production is now on its travels, and is being well received at Fulham. There is a fine, full-blooded romantic flavour about The Prince and the Beggar Maid, and the company throw themselves into the work with the proper spirit, and so it goes down splendidly. Mr. Ivan Cleveland looks well and acts strongly as the objectionable Prince Hildred. Mr. Graeme Campbell puts in some clever work in the difficult part of Prince Michael; but of course the cheers go with Mr. Herbert Ford as Prince Olaf. He fills that romantic rôle most worthily, and acts as well as he looks, which is saying a good deal. Another good performance is that of Mr. D. Lewin Mannering as Captain Victor. Mr. J. E. Gardner shows well in his study of the dumb servant Nathan; and Mr. Francis Hawley is good as the time-serving Bishop. The military parts were generally well filled. Miss Annie Saker plays with charm and power as the Princess of Illyria; and Miss Dido Drake is effective and tender as Camiola. The parts of the youthful and irresponsible lovers, Lieut. Karl Stromberg and Viola, were excellently done by Mr. Kendal Chalmers and Miss Isla Garnet-Vayne, the latter making a most charming ingénue, and moreover displaying a nice sense of humour. The piece is well mounted and effectively stage-managed by Mr. Kendal Chalmers.

Messrs. Raphael Tuck and Co. have certainly put their previous efforts in the shade by their truly "royal collection" of Christmas cards. In the 2,000 sets of entirely new and original designs the same unremitting care is bestowed on every card, from the lowest to the highest priced, those at 1d., 2d., and 3d. possessing no less inherent artistic merits than the 6d., 1s., or still more expensive cards. The Royal Card Collection is reproduced direct from the original Christmas cards Messrs. Tuck had the honour of specially painting last Christmas for their Majesties the King and Queen of England, their Imperial Majesties the Emperor and Empress of Germany, their Majesties the King and Queen of Spain, their Majesties the King and Queen of Norway, their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales, and in former seasons for her late Majesty Queen Victoria. The "Luminous Celluloid" series, protected by Application for Royal Letters Patent, stands out as one of the gem novelties of the year. The "Dainty Porcelain," the "Mounted Gem," the "Golden Harvest," the "Pinewood," the "Greenwood," and the "White Heather" series, these, splendid in themselves, are probably not more preferable than the "India Print" series, the "Frosty Winter," the "Bizarre," the "Oak and Holly," the "Cosy Corner," "Ye Sealed Oilette," the "Goodwill," and the "Golden Vandyck" Series, and the highly original "Music" series, the "Gold and Silver Leaf," the "Glowing Sunset," the "Aero Plate-Mark," the "Gem Oilette," and the "Gold Framed" Series. The real "English Hand-made" cards, each printed separately from the engraved copper plate, are issued at low prices; and the Art and Boudoir Panels are refined and charming in their novelty, and will command universal admiration. Amongst the books and toy books are "Father Tuck's Annual," Hans Andersen's and "Grimm's Fairy Tales," "Nursery Rhymes," "Alphabets," "Natural Histories," and excellent additions to the patent "Paintbox" series of painting books, which sold so well last season. The birthday books, with daily quotations from the works of Shakespeare, Longfellow, Tennyson, Dickens, and Ruskin, are dainty, attractive, and inexpensive. Tuck's postcards and Tuck's Christmas and New Year postcards, the box of picture panoramas, and the "Mechanical Animals and Birds" are as highly appreciated as ever.

Now ready. Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906. Effect on theatres and music halls. By Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor. Price 6d. Published at The Era Offices, 5, Tavistock-street, W.C.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, Dec. 14, for the First Time in London, the Musical Comedy, in Two Acts; Book, Music, and Lyrics by William T. Gliddon, entitled
"THE FLOWER GIRL."

Lily .....Miss Kitty Hyde
Joe Wheeler .....Mr. John T. MacCallum
Johnny Wheeler .....Mr. Alfred Donohoe
The Hon. Billy Greenhill..Mr. Robert Cranny
Reginald Rackit .....Mr. Louis du Cane
Alphonse de Racquet .....Mr. Henry Adnes
Lizette de Racquet .....Miss Lilian Drake
Lady Greenhill.....Miss Elsa Brettingham
Miss Maisie Flirtington.Miss Townley Laurence
Jessie .....Miss Kitty Wallace
Maudie .....Miss L. Simpson
Kate .....Miss Phyllis Leslie
Dot .....Miss Florence Hardy
Policeman .....Mr. H. Douglas
Mr. Bunker .....Mr. Arthur Carter
Bertie .....Mr. F. Williams

The fascinations of a flower girl have been exercised with irresistible effect on the audiences at the Shakespeare, where the above-named musical comedy has this week had its introduction to London. The writer has essayed the triple rôle of author, composer, and lyricist, duties which it is customary to spread over a number of people, but he has acquitted himself with remarkable success, and the result is a pretty production, embellished by tuneful and often high-class music. The situations lend themselves readily to the creation of fun, and the house has been kept continuously alive by the efforts of the comedians. Quite a revelation of the attractiveness of the London itinerant vendors of blooms is supplied in the chorus, some of whom are well qualified in comeliness and gracefulness to compete for those matrimonial prizes which are said to await the members of musical comedy contingents. The thin thread of plot has to be traced through two acts amid an abundance of amusing incidents. The queen of the flower girl brigade is Lily, the adopted daughter of Joe Wheeler, a 'bus driver, by whom she had been discovered when a baby left alone on the seat of his cab. Joe is out of employment owing to the influx of the ubiquitous motor, and readily accedes for a consideration to the request of a foppish young man named Reggie to watch for his uncle and aunt, whom he is expecting by the Paris mail. Joe is also commissioned by the Hon. Billy Greenhill to discover the parentage of the flower girl Lily, with whom the young man has fallen desperately in love. Joe succeeds in both missions, but not until a series of comical episodes have been enacted. Billy and Lily meet, and the former proposes marriage; but his sister is opposed to the match, until the arrival of Reggie's aunt and uncle from France and the production by Joe of a medallion found upon the infant establish the fact that Lily is the long-lost niece of the foreign visitors and sister to Reggie.

A number of young but talented artists have been secured by Mr. Charles M. Bestic, who runs the company. The title-rôle has a winsome exponent in Miss Kitty Hyde, a dainty maiden of prepossessing appearance. Though showing signs of inexperience, Miss Hyde is commendably free from affectation, and gives a charmingly natural performance. She has a sweet soprano, and uses it effectively in "The song of the poses," a tuneful patriotic number in which a basket of blooms figures. "A dainty pair of shoes" is also a catchy number, and is embellished by some graceful steps, in which Miss Hyde shows much promise as a dancer. She likewise has a song called "My guiding star," in which lighting effects are used, and the chorus render valuable aid. Mr. Robert Cranny makes a smart youth of the Hon. Billy, acts with sincerity, and makes the best use of his voice in the ballad "Love laughs at locksmiths," the last verse of which had to be repeated. A love duet with the heroine was also well received, though the vocalists were rather overpowered by the orchestra. An indefatigable member of the cast is Mr. John T. MacCallum, who as Joe Wheeler carries on the fun-making with much vigour. Joe is the inveterate enemy of the motor-bus, and expresses himself emphatically on every occasion. He has a number of songs, all of which carry a fresh disguise, and he scores especially with "Mary mashes the Militia" and with "One of the force," in which as a sergeant of police he is assisted by a posse of constables. Mr. MacCallum has an equally hard-working coadjutor in Mr. Alfred Donohoe, who plays Joe's son Johnny, and generally forwards the fun. The duet in which the pair, dressed as organ-grinders, ruthlessly travesty the prison scene from Il Trovatore, is the hit of the evening. The comedy business is supplemented by the efforts of Mr. Henry Adnes and Miss Lilian Drake, who give as realistic a rendition of a couple of stylish Parisians struggling with the difficulties of the English tongue as could well be imagined. Their antics and lively dancing create continuous amusement, and the clever couple are nightly accorded an ovation. Mr. Louis du Cane also merits praise for his quaint fopperies as Reginald Rackit, of whom he provides quite an exhilarating performance. His song "Oh, you girls!" is rendered with every effect. Mr. du Cane is a capital light comedian, and is throughout a favourite. A vivacious representation of Lady Greenhill is given by Miss Elsa Brettingham, who in her capacity of a militant suffragette is called upon to address an unsympathetic meeting; and an efficient police officer is found in Mr. H. Douglas. The two acts are laid respectively in Trafalgar-square and the Italian Garden at the White City, and the opportunities for picturesque display thus afforded are fully grasped. The company has already enjoyed a prosperous tour, and is making favourable progress under the generalship of Mr. James Leslie.

THEATRE ROYAL, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Dec. 14, the Drama entitled
"THE MASTER CRIMINAL."

Miss Winifred Chalmers's company is appearing this week in the highly-exciting drama of The Master Criminal. Written by Mr. Harry Merriman, the play is well stocked with stirring incidents, which rivet the attention of the audience, and the admirably-chosen company work hard, and successfully maintain the interest in the play throughout its production. The drama is adequately mounted, and is received in a flattering manner by well-filled houses. Mr. Henry L. Osmond in the leading character of Telford Lestage, the master criminal, has a part which suits him to a nicety, and he supplies a carefully-studied and well-executed impersonation of the grim-visaged and deformed criminal. Mr. Cuthbert Taylor as the hunted-down Philip Manners acts with sincerity and conviction, and scores well in his pathetic rendering. Ren Beaudy, of Scotland Yard, has an excellent representative in Mr. J. C. Carlyle, who looks the part. Mr. C. Tolcher as Gentleman Jim offers a very amusing characterisation, which evokes much applause. Mr. H. Cooke as Tommy Dale also provokes much laughter, and is thoroughly popular. Miss V. St. Lawrence in the unsympathetic part of Cecile maintains a strong hold of the audience, and displays considerable talent and power. Miss Lillian Burns submits a pathetic rendering of Mabel Manners, and is successful. Miss Mabel Tremere essays the rôle of Peggy Perks in an amusing fashion, and affords much pleasure. Miss Frances Trevelyan undertakes the part of Wilfred Manners in an earnest manner, and her powerful voice is heard to advantage in the song, "Mary of Argyle." The remaining members of the cast render efficient aid.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, Dec. 14, for the First Time in London, the Drama, in Four Acts, by T. G. Bailey, entitled "LOVE RULES THE WORLD."

Harold Kingston .....Mr. Richard Vane
Stephen Blight .....Mr. Stephen Langton
Paul Carruthers .....Mr. Alex. Wilson Wynne
Billy Binks .....Mr. Matt Russel
Jim Dixey .....Mr. Sidney Rennef
Farmer Carruthers .....Mr. A. Fitzhugh
Sir Edward Wybrow .....Mr G. H. Langley
Inspector Ferritt .....Mr. Fred Astley
Maud Carruthers .....Miss Grace Murielle
Flo Merton .....Miss Doris Brookes
Mother Grimble .....Miss Annie Brunette
Kitty Snowdrop .....Miss Kitty Russell

Filial affection is the dominating power in the drama above named, which on Monday had its introduction to London, having been originally produced at the Star, Liverpool, on July 1, 1907. The plays begins on ordinary melodramatic lines, but develops into a touching story of the love of a woman for her nameless boy and of that son's devotion to his mother. Striking characters are contained in the piece, amongst the most picturesque being Stephen Blight, a burglar of a pronounced type. In the pursuit of his calling he breaks into the house of old Farmer Carruthers, and falls in live with Maud, the daughter of the house. His amorous intentions, however, are checked by the knowledge that Maud is betrothed to young Harold Kingston, and also by the fact that his associate, Flo Merton, raises some opposition. Flo pays for her interference in his arrangements, and is shot by Blight with Kingston's gun, a fact that enables the villain to rid himself of Harold, whom he accuses of the crime, with the result that he is sent to penal servitude. Having succeeded in betraying Maud Carruthers, Blight abandons her, and goes off to resume his nefarious habits, being joined by Flo Merton, fully recovered from the effects of the gun shot.

Many things happen in the seventeen years that elapse between the second and third acts. Maud's son, whom she calls Paul, has grown into a genius, and paints pictures, one of which secures him admittance into the Legion of Honour. The boy's mother is happy in the possession of her son, who idolises her, and has a friend and protector in a silver-haired clergyman. The felicity of the household is disturbed by the appearance of Blight, who failing to blackmail Maud retaliates by informing her son of the shame attaching to his birth. Paul, who has a high standard of morality, and has placed his mother on its highest pinnacle, is at first inclined to condemn, but decides to condone, and devote his life to her service. Meanwhile the clergyman is called to the deathbed of an old woman, who gives a demented young man into his charge. The lunatic turns out to be Maud's brother, who had witnessed the crime of which Harold had been convicted, and on recovery of his reason is able to lay it at the door of Blight. The parson is thus enabled to throw off his disguise and declare himself to be no other than Harold, escaped from gaol, and he and Maud are united; Blight and his feminine accomplice exchanging shots and conveniently making their exit.

Messrs. Sidney Rennef and G. M. Copping's company are entrusted with the interpretation of the piece. The tribulations of Harold Kingston are nobly borne by Mr. Richard Vane, who thoroughly establishes the hero's claim to sympathy, and wins unlimited cheers. Miss Grace Murielle is the wronged Maud Carruthers, and acts with distinction in the earlier passages. Later she draws a pathetic picture of the despairing mother bereft, as she imagines, of the love of her boy—a sentiment which appeals to all. The villain Stephen Blight is the darkest spot in the play, and Mr. Stephen Langton realises him effectively by a truly Satanic make-up and by robust methods that enforce conviction. Commendation is well merited by Mr. Alex Wilson Wynne, whose appearance as the youth Paul is quite in keeping with the part, his delivery being equally excellent. Comedy is furnished by Mr. Matt Russel, who as Billy Binks, a resourceful man-servant, succeeds in creating constant diversion, and is loyally assisted by Miss Kitty Russell, whose vivacity and good spirits in the part of the parlour-maid Kitty Snowdrop are quite exhilarating. The adventuress Flo Merton is made very fascinating by Miss Doris Brookes, who acts effectively, and an impressive study of old Mother Grimble is submitted by Miss Annie Brunette. Mr. Sidney Rennef plays the demented Jim Dixey with quiet incisiveness; Mr. Fred Astley is a smart Inspector Ferritt; and the remainder of the cast are satisfactory. The play has moved audiences at the Elephant alternately to tears and laughter, and has been lavishly applauded.

"THE BLUE MOUSE."

This farcical comedy in three acts, adapted from the German of Alexander Engel and Julius Horst by Clyde Fitch, has made a decided success at the Lyric Theatre, New York. It is the most mirth-provoking play in town. Augustus Rollett, who holds a subordinate position in the office of a railroad, is anxious to be promoted, and he decides to obtain the berth he is after by taking advantage of his chief's weakness for the society of pretty women. So he introduces as his wife the famous dancer, Paulette Divine, who is known as the "Blue Mouse." Paulette, who is out of an engagement, is in love with Philip Scarsdale, who has written a play. The dancer is anxious to "star" in this play and needs some money. So she agrees to flirt with Rollett's employer, Lewellyn, otherwise known as "the old boy," and worm the money out of him that she needs, at the same time persuading him to give Rollett the coveted promotion. The complications that ensue involve the jealous wife of Lewellyn, the suspicious father-in-law of young Rollett, and an adorer of the dancer. With Mrs. Lewellyn mistaking the Blue Mouse for Rollett's wife, and Lewellyn supposing the latter to be the dancer, it it easy to understand how the plot thickens. One absurd situation follows another, until the height of the fun is reached in a scene in which the Blue Mouse, for advertising purposes, decides to have an auction sale of her effects in her gaudily-furnished flat. Rollett and Lewellyn are almost trapped by their wives in this scene, but they manage to escape by disguising themselves as furniture movers. Rollett's father-in-law, from the country, evades his daughter by covering himself with a tiger skin, and is afterwards arrested for stealing it. In the last act Paulette calls at Rollett's apartments, and proceeds to make herself at home by shedding her Directoire gown and slipping into Mrs. Rollett's kimono. Mrs. Rollett suddenly appears on the scene, and while her husband holds her a prisoner in the dining-room the two "old boys"—Rollett's chief and his father-in-law—make frantic efforts to hook the Blue Mouse into her gown again. This scene is screamingly funny. Miss Mabel Barrison as the Blue Mouse, Mr. Harry Conor as the flirtatious Lewellyn, Mr. Jameson Lee Finney as Augustus Rollett, Mr. Charles Dickson as the countrified father-in-law, and Miss Zelda Sears as Mrs. Lewellyn are the principals in the best company of funmakers that New York has seen for a long time.

Children on the Stage. The Act affecting the employment of children on the stage came into force on Saturday, Oct. 1, 1904. Managers, agents, entrepreneurs, and performers wishing to possess a copy of the complete Act in a concise form can do so by forwarding three stamps to the Publisher, The Era Offices, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

Minutes of the special meeting held at 353, Strand, on Monday, Dec. 14. Present: Mr. C. F. Collings (in the chair), Mr. H. W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Messrs. Frederick Morland, J. Sebastian Smith, Frederick Morland, F. J. Arlton, Jackson Wilcox, Misses Agnes Imlay, Lucy Sibley, Rose Mathews, and Mr. Hubert Blount (secretary).

The Council met at eleven o'clock to discuss a form of standard contract sent in for approval, and it was decided not to adopt the contract. The Council then discussed each clause on the contract at great length and made numerous alterations. The meeting lasted five hours.

Minutes of the Council meeting held at 353, Strand, on Tuesday, Dec. 15. Present: Mr. F. J. Arlton (in the chair), Mr. H. W. Mote (hon. solicitor), and Messrs. Frederick Annerley, Frederick Morland, Jackson Wilcox, Cecil Raleigh, Chris Walker, J. Poole Kirkwood, C. F. Collings, Misses Lucy Sibley, Rose Mathews, Agnes Imlay, and Mr. Hubert Blount (secretary). The minutes of the meeting held on Dec. 8 were read and confirmed.

A letter was read from Miss Cameron with reference to her scheme for a sixpenny theatre, and the secretary was instructed to write to Miss Cameron pointing out that the matter was too large a one to be undertaken at the present moment, but that if she would draw up a resolution the Council would see that it was on the agenda at the next general meeting.

In reply to Mr. Cecil Raleigh, the chairman stated that the A.A. were not prepared to accept the contract which was submitted at Monday's meeting. A unanimous vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Raleigh for his exertions in the matter.

Miss Sibley proposed and Mr. Raleigh seconded the rescinding of the motion carried on Nov. 17 with regard to sending the hon. solicitor's advice to the Lord Chamberlain. The matter was discussed at very great length, Miss Sibley, Mr. Raleigh, Mr. Walker, and Mr. Kirkwood speaking in favour of the sending of the letter, and Miss Mathews, Mr. Morland, and Mr. Collings speaking against. The chairman, Mr. Mote, and Miss Imlay also gave their views, and on the matter being put to the vote it was lost by five to two.

The secretary was instructed to put up a notice to the effect that the next general meeting would be held early in February, and asking members to send in their names for the new Council as early as possible.

The question of propaganda was discussed at considerable length, and an explanation was given by Miss Rose Mathews of her scheme for starting a School of Acting as a branch of the A.A. A motion was carried to the effect that the Council wish before the end of the official year to have a definite statement of policy, and that one or more general meetings of the members should be held in January, preferably on Sundays, to discuss this policy.

The secretary was instructed to put up a notice to the following effect:—"The rooms will be closed from Wednesday evening, the 23rd inst., to the following Monday morning. Letters may be obtained up till twelve o'clock on Thursday morning.

The secretary was instructed to put up a notice to the effect that the Council are considering the question of providing lockers for combs, brushes, towels, &c., at a nominal rental, if twenty members will notify their desire to have same. The Council sat till 6.30.

ACTORS' UNION.

The usual Committee meeting of the A.U. took place on the 11th inst., at 49, Bedford-street, and the following were present:—J. W. Braithwaite (chair), F. Rawson Buckley, Gerald Mirrielees, H. Tripp Edgar, Walter L. Rignold, Frank Gerald, and Kenneth Blackmore (secretary). Communications received from Messrs. Fred F. Loyd, Geo. P. Lester, J. Hastings Batson, E. Howard Templeton, Frank S. Strickland, Leslie Arthur, H. Naylor Grimson, Edward Chester, Edwin J. Collins, Jerrold Heather, A. Maitland Stapley, Henry Bedford.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

The secretary reported that a member had received a cheque for £10 from a manager for breach of contract after some correspondence between the hon. solicitor (Mr. W. H. Bulbeck) and the manager in question.

A complaint having been received from a landlady with respect to the non-payment of her bill by a member, the secretary was instructed to investigate the matter.

The next Committee meeting will take place on Friday next at 2 p.m.

Members are asked to forward their cards (1908) fully paid up to the secretary at the end of the present year, when their card for 1909 will be forwarded to them.

The Actors' Union held its third social dinner at Hummum's Hotel, Covent Garden, on Sunday, and the function was well attended. Those present included Mr. H. Tripp Edgar, who presided, Mr. Franklyn Walford, Miss Alys Turner, Miss May Conrade, Mr. Langford Reed, Mr. A. Maitland Stapley, Mr. Fred Storey, Miss Lilian Holmes, Miss Kate Ruskin, Miss Dorothy Sparrow, Mr. D. Vernon, Mr. Frank Gerald, Mr. Paul Lovett, Miss Olive Buckingham, Mr. S. F. Freyer, Mr. Merrion, Mr. Wilfred Noy, Mr. F. Rawson Buckley (vice-president), Miss Kitty Marion, Miss Millie Vere, Mr. John Hastings Batson, Mrs. Walter Bentley, Mr. Dudley Beresford, Miss Amy Coleman, Miss Gladys Everard, Miss D. Drew, Mrs. J. Anderson, Mrs. Hill, Miss Dorothy Barrington, Miss Ethel Avis, Miss Laura Vernon, Mr. Doré Lewin-Mannering, Mr. Kenneth Blackmore, Mr. George Thorne, Mr. H. Carnellé-Joye, Mr. Cecil G. Calvert, Miss M. Ames, Mr. E. Y. Rae, Mr. A. Gale, Miss G. Trewman, Mr. Horace Calheam, Mrs. Carnellé-Joye, Mr. Walter Calheam, Mr. A. Calheam, Miss Florence Tressilian.

After the dinner an excellent programme was arranged. Among those who entertained the company were Mr. Dudley Beresford, Miss Alys Turner, Mr. Arthur Gale, Mr. Vernon, Mr. O'Calagan, Mr. George Thorne, and Mr. Fred Storey.

BROADWAY THEATRE.

On Monday, Dec. 14, the Comedy Opera entitled
"DOROTHY."

The admirable revival of Dorothy is repeating the success of its former visit. Mr. Hayden Coffin is still the Harry Sherwood, and his performance both as actor and vocalist is delightful. That Mr. John Coates is an admirable Geoffrey Wilder goes without saying. Mr. Arthur Williams's quaint humour makes him a huge favourite as Lurcher. Miss Ruth Davenport is a charming and attractive Dorothy Bantam, vocally and histrionically. Messrs. Percy Yorke (Squire Bantam), Tim Ryley (Tom Strutt), Fred J. Vigay (John Tuppitt), Lester Carey (the Parson) and R. White (the Postman) are capital in their respective rôles. Miss Hebe Bliss is a pleasing Lydia Hawthorne, and Miss Aimée Roberts a vivacious Phillis Tuppitt; Miss Emily Spiller is good as Mrs. Privett, and Miss Primrose Harding is a clever Lady Betty. Scenery and costumes are remarkably elegant and tasteful. Mr. Frederick Rosse skilfully presides over the orchestra, Mr. W. H. Willats is the courteous acting-manager of the company, and Mr. Bertram Iles, the resident-manager, is ever attentive to the comfort of the patrons of the theatre.

A Copy of "The Era" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Nothing affords more pleasure to those who are intimately acquainted with the past and present affairs of the theatre than to see a favourite and clever player who has apparently retired into the background come to the front again to enjoy a renewal of all of his old-time popularity. This is likely to happen in connection with the present engagement at the Garden Theatre of Mr. Henry B. Dixey, whom London playgoers with good memories will recall to mind as having appeared at the old Gaiety Theatre in the eighties. Mary Jane's Pa, a drama in three acts, by Edith Ellis, was produced at the Garden Theatre on the 3rd inst., with Mr. Dixey in the title-rôle, and a pronounced success was scored by the play and the principal player. It is an odd character that Mr. Dixey has to represent, and the story of which he is the central figure deals with a course of events that would be hardly likely to happen outside of the theatre. But improbability is not a serious defect when the story is unfolded in such a manner as to make it plausible, especially if the characters are cleverly drawn and cleverly acted, and the play under notice has these things in its favour. The scenes are laid in Gossport, Indiana, where Portia Perkins runs a printing office and publishes the local newspaper called the Clarion. She is the mother of two daughters—Lucille, who is sixteen, and Mary Jane, who is eleven. Hiram Perkins, Mary Jane's pa, disappeared soon after she was born, and, after waiting in vain for his return, Portia moved to Gossport and started in business for herself. She is devoted to her children and fairly prosperous, and Rome Preston, the Republican candidate, for whose nomination her little paper is fighting tooth and nail, wants her to marry him. This is the situation when the long-lost Hiram saunters in as if he had been merely absent for a few hours. Shabby, but debonair, and with a manner of speech that proclaims him to be both a philosopher and a scholar, he makes himself at home and informs his wife that during the eleven years that have elapsed since he left her he has visited nearly every country on the globe. His only excuse is that he had the "wanderlust" in his veins. Portia was only sixteen when he married her, and she confesses that she accepted him on his promise to take her to Niagara Falls. She had the "wanderlust," too, but while he has been seeing the world she has been working hard at the printing press and rearing his children. She gives him a meal and tells him he had better go. When he opens the door and prepares to leave, however, his wife weakens and calls him back. Vagabond as he is, he is still the father of her children, and a way of getting over the difficulty occurs to her. Hiram was always a good cook and handy man, and Portia is badly in need of such a person "around the house." Failing the usual "hired girl," she offers him the job at ten dollars a month and his board, with the privilege of every Thursday afternoon "off." Hiram thinks for a moment and accepts. To the children and everyone else he is to be merely the man-of-all-work, and thus the play begins. How he redeems himself, how his love for his children and his wife's goodness reawaken the better nature of the vagabond, and how he prevents his daughter, the unsophisticated and impulsive Lucille, from running away from home for almost the same reason that her mother had before her, the author has shown in a charmingly unconventional manner. As the play proceeds the story improves in the telling, and the rural characters, instead of being the familiar group of "hayseeds" that we have seen in plays innumerable, arouse a genuine interest because they are not only true to life but out of the ordinary. Furthermore, every part is played to perfection, and the representation as a whole is decidedly novel and refreshing. Incidentally, the action is enlivened and the audience diverted by a faithful depiction of the excitement and bitterness attending a political contest, and also by the introducing in a humorous way of the petty personal items that form the chief interest of an American country newspaper. The Clarion succeeds in securing the nomination for Rome Preston by publishing a story that "shows up" the rival candidate, Joel Skinner. The latter, in revenge, stirs up the townspeople against Portia Perkins because she, a lone woman, is employing a male "hired girl." The printing office is attacked, and the mob marches on Portia's home to demand an explanation. The result is the disclosure of the identity of the cook. Largely through Mary Jane, the younger daughter, played with charming naturalness by little Gretchen Hartman, the affection between the parents is rekindled. Mr. Dixey's embodiment of Hiram Perkins, in the opinion of many, is the best thing he has ever done. He portrays the lovable character of the man with an engaging cleverness that wins the sympathy of the audience and compels enthusiastic approval. As Portia, Miss Ann Sutherland presents a charming picture of ideal womanhood; and Miss Marjorie Wood plays Lucille in a delightfully girlish and unaffected manner. A sweet and wholesome play, Mary Jane's Pa leaves a most agreeable impression.

"THE WINTERFEAST," a tragedy in three acts, by Charles Rann Kennedy, was produced at the Savoy Theatre on the 28th ult., and was admirably interpreted by Mr. Henry Miller's company, of which several of the members had lately contributed to the conspicuous success of Mr. Kennedy's previous play, The Servant in the House. The Winterfeast is a story of Iceland in the year 1020 Thorkel, an old viking, a poet and singer, has a son named Valbrand and a foster-son named Bjorn, the former being like his father, versed in the arts of peace, while the latter is mighty with the sword. The beautiful Herdisa gave her heart to Bjorn, and all unasked told him of her love, and placed her bracelet upon his arm as a pledge of her affection. Then Thorkel and his two sons set sail for Vineland, the new country, the father returning presently with Valbrand to tell Herdisa that Bjorn has scorned her love and sent back a taunting message. When the action begins, some twenty years after these things have happened, Herdisa is the wife of Valbrand, and it is through the malevolent utterances of Ufeig, a renegade priest, that the old story is revived. He comes to the Viking and his son, both of whom have forsaken song for the sterner arts of war, and sues for peace, promising to keep secret the fact that Bjorn is still alive, and that the message to Herdisa was a lie. It is the night of the Winter Feast, a night on which a peal of thunder is an omen of fearful significance, and on which, too, Herdisa's beautiful young daughter, Swanhild, will dream of the lover who may come, and for whom she has been longing. In an impressive scene the mother, unconscious of whom she may be welcoming, sets ready the guest chair and awaits the visitor, whose trumpet-blast has heralded his approach. Bjorn enters and is coldly received, but he refuses to regard himself as an unwelcome guest, and ultimately, in a powerful scene, he learns of the trick that has been played upon him and the woman he loves. He has been married in the far-off country of the red man, but he tells Herdisa that she alone has possessed his heart through all the years. Then she sends him forth to take vengeance. In the combat that takes place on a bridge at midnight Herdisa is led to believe that her husband has been slain, and in the revulsion of feeling that follows the news of his death her heart goes out to Valbrand. In the meantime Bjorn's son Olaf appears, and is welcomed by Swanhild as the lover for whom she has been longing. An exquisite scene between these two is followed by the entrance of Herdisa, who calls upon Olaf to avenge the death of Valbrand. The boy swears on the hilt of a sword, but discovers that it is his father's, and that it is he whom he has promised to kill. Unwilling now to keep the compact, he withdraws and falls upon his own sword. The death of Herdisa and her daughter follows soon after, and it is then disclosed that Bjorn and not Valbrand was the one who was killed in the duel between the brothers. Meanwhile Valbrand, returning to discover the havoc that has been wrought, has wandered away and leaped into a fiord. Only the aged Viking and his old enemy the priest survive the feast of horrors.

A WORK of high literary value, The Winterfeast appears to be too gruesome and too long to appeal to the general public. Miss Edith Wynne Matthison's Herdisa was an exquisite portrayal, and Mr. Walter Hampden's Olaf was a fine embodiment of youthful strength and impetuosity. Mr. Arthur Lewis played the malevolent Ufeig in a highly effective manner, and as the flaxen-haired Swanhild Miss Gladys Wynne was graceful and charming. Mr. Robert Cummings as Thorkel and Mr. Frank Mills as Valbrand deserve praise for their impersonations. Mr. Ben Field as a "thrall," or serf, who describes the fatal duel, rendered the speech in an admirable manner. It has just been announced that The Winterfeast will be withdrawn and The Servant in the House revived again.

NOT Fanny and the Servant Problem, but The New Lady Bantock is to be the title of the comedy in which Miss Fannie Ward will begin her American tour at Troy, N.Y., on New Year's Day. On the following night she will play in Utica, and after that will appear at the Park Theatre, Boston.

IN The Pied Piper, a musical play in two acts and five scenes, by Austin Strong and R. H. Burnside, with music by Manuel Klein, Mr. De Wolf Hopper assumes a jovial character that is very becoming to him. He appears, of course, in the title-rôle, and his performance of the part is calculated to make all lovers of harmless, wholesome fun rejoice to see him back again upon the local stage. The Pied Piper, now running at the Majestic Theatre, solves the problem of what became of the children after they had followed the Piper to the Koppenberg Hill. The old legend tells us that they disappeared, and after diligent inquiry the authors of this play discovered that the Piper founded the City of Innocence, and peopled it with the children that the strains of his magic pipe had lured away. Once in every twenty years, at a quarter to eight by the big clock in St. Valentine's-square, the Piper came down out of the yellow moon and paired off the eligible young men and women of the perfect city. When he played on his pipes they fell in love with one another, and at eight o'clock they were married, and were supposed to live happily ever after. When the Bad Boy of the community became unusually boisterous the Piper made him good again by playing on his pipes, and employed the same means to preserve peace and quietness generally. It was ruled that each pair was to have only one boy and one girl, and everything went on all right until the model couple of the town broke the rule by producing twins. Thus it came about that when the Piper appeared to carry out his usual programme there was an odd girl, named Elviria, left over. This upsets the whole scheme, and necessitates a consultation with the Official Adviser, the Official Reminder, and the Board of Aldermen, consisting of one individual only. It is found to be the law that the Piper may summon a stranger from the outer world and marry him to the odd twin. So the Piper blows on his pipes, and an airship swoops down on the City of Innocence, bearing Willie Van Cortlandt, a gay New Yorker, with his two servants, Lizzie Dizzy, the cook, and Sammy Struggles, the chauffeur. These people know nothing of the City of Innocence. They are of the earth, earthy. Elviria falls in love with Van Cortlandt, and Lizzie tries to come between them. Goodness departs from the city, and pandemonium reigns. Lizzie steals the Piper's pipes, and the gay Willie makes him heavy with wine. In the end, however, the City of Innocence is saved by the discovery that little Elviria has remained good during the interval of lawlessness, and when the pipes are recovered she blows on them and makes everybody good again.

THE play is handsomely staged. At the beginning there is a beautiful allegorical scene showing Father Time surrounded by Romance, Poetry, and Song. They remind him that the day is at hand for the wedding festivities in the City of Innocence. Then St. Valentine's-square is disclosed. Mr. Hopper is certainly at his best in the fantastic character of the famous rat-charmer—the "Pie-eyed Piper," as he calls himself. His description of the after effects of his first carouse in 365 years is very funny. In a vein of melancholy philosophy he declares his lack of faith in modern physicians. In his opinion, "if the doctors opened more windows and fewer people the world would be better off." What with his droll discourse, his song and dance with Elviria, "I should like to know the reason," and his gambol with the children about "Nursery Rhymes," his performance is most enjoyable. Miss Marguerite Clark is a bewitching Elviria. It is a genuine treat to hear her sing "I'm looking for a sweetheart" and "It really was a very pretty story." She is childish innocence personified. Miss Grace Cameron as Lizzie Dizzy, Mr. Edward Heron as Sammy, Mr. William Cameron as the Official Adviser, Mr. W. L. Romaine as the Board of Aldermen, and Miss Ada Deaves as the housekeeper contribute to the fun of the piece. Dainty, melodious, and witty, The Pied Piper is the sort of entertainment that is enjoyed by one and all.

MISS VESTA VICTORIA and her manager, Mr. James Solly, were arrested at the Lincoln-square Theatre on Sunday, the 6th inst., and charged with violating the Sunday concert law. Miss Victoria had been allowed to go on the stage and begin her turn, but when she changed her costume and donned a ballet skirt she was taken into custody. Bail was furnished, and on the following day the magistrate decided that the police had failed to prove any violation of the law. This sort of thing happens quite frequently. The laws and ordinances relating to Sunday performances at the theatres seem to be in a hopeless muddle. They were amended some time ago, but it is doubtful if any manager knows what he is and what he is not permitted to do. The police act towards the managers as they do towards the saloon-keepers, and, with a sudden access of zeal, arrest one or two unfortunates and take no notice of the others. The alleged offenders are immediately released on bail, and in most cases nothing further is heard of the matter.

MISS MARIE CLAVERING has been compelled, owing to breakdown in health, to resign her long engagement and rest by doctor's orders. Miss Clavering has made a notable success in Miss Neil's latest production. After a month's rest Miss Clavering will be ready for work again.

MR. WALTER CROSS has been engaged by Mr. Trevor Lowe to play Prince Hotstuff and act as assistant stage-manager in the Christmas fairy play at the West Pier, Brighton.

THE home team for the match Fulham v. Derby County in the Second Division League, at Fulham, this afternoon, will be selected from Skene, Charlton, Lindsay, Collins, Parsonage, Goldie, Suart, Millington, Dalrymple, Wyllie, Brown, Lipsham, and Harrison. Kick-off at 2.30. Fulham Reserves v. Tunbridge Wells Rangers, at Tunbridge, will begin at the same hour.

DEATH OF EDGAR LEE.

We announce with much regret the death, which happened on Monday morning at his residence, King-street, Covent Garden, of Mr. Edgar Lee, for the past twelve years editor of the Encore, at the age of fifty-eight. When we last had a chat with Mr. Lee he did not speak hopefully of his state of health, but the end seems to have come with great suddenness. Those who were numbered among his friends at the Yorick and Savage Clubs will mourn the loss of a genial Bohemian, who took the buffets of fortune with an equable temper, and who never lost his sunniness of disposition. His vast experience in various fields of literature and journalism had brought him into contact with many celebrities in the world of letters, and he had a rich store of anecdote.

Born at Haverfordwest, the deceased gentleman came to London thirty years ago, and as "Rambler" in the Sunday Times he wrote for that journal during 1876-77. From 1878-81 he edited the Critic and the Railway Service Gazette, and for some years was on the staff of Moonshine. He was also editor of St. Stephen's Review and the Court Circular, and in conjunction with Florence Marryat he conducted Once a Week for three years.

He was also the author of "Pharaoh's Daughter," "The Great White Spot," and one or two other novels, and was at one time lessee of the Elephant and Castle Theatre, which he took over from Joe Cave. He also ran the Edmonton Theatre. Some two years since he lost a favourite son, which to him was a great grief. Another son, Mr. Sydney Lee, is the well-known conjurer, who has but recently completed an engagement at the Palace Theatre.

Edgar Lee was educated at the South Wales Grammar School, where he won a scholarship. He was destined for a commercial career, and began as a junior clerk with the firm of Defries and Co., of Houndsditch. He was next with Leaf and Son, the silk merchants, and afterwards with Copestake, Moore, and Crampion, the wholesale drapers, where his marvellous eye for colour secured for him a post never held by anyone in the firm before, viz., that of colour matcher. He shortly afterwards drifted into journalism, but in the course of his fifty-eight years of life he introduced the patent Piedmount pipe to Great Britain, ran a big laundry at Banner-street, St. Luke's, introduced a new smoke-consuming furnace, kept horses both for racing and breeding purposes, and exploited a new petroleum field in the Carpathians.

During the rule of the late Sir Augustus Harris at Drury Lane, the historical knowledge of Edgar Lee was frequently called into requisition, and the artist impresario invariably consulted him whenever there was the possibility of an anachronism. When the Drury Lane pantomime was in rehearsal Sir Augustus frequently called Mr. Lee into consultation, and many of the telling hits were due to his fertile invention and ready pen.

In his early days Edgar had a bent towards literature and the drama, and found time when matching colours and gauging the values of merinos and silks to pen many a little article, besides found a dramatic society, called the "Thalian Dramatic Club," in connection with which he had played with such notables as Geo. Alexander, the late Wm. Terriss, and W. S. Penley ere they had emerged from the amateur ranks. The friendship struck up in those days was not allowed to die out, and many tales of their youth have this quartette had to tell of one another.

Edgar Lee was a capital chess player, and at the City of London Chess Club, in the old days, he was looked upon as a man not easily vanquished at the chequered board. He was a fast runner, and won the 150yds. Public Schools Championship two years running while completing his education. His knowledge of Scripture and Ancient History was surprising, and many a student of ancient lore has had to confess that Lee's acquaintance with subjects of this nature was phenomenal. As a poet he produced much graceful verse, and his ode to the Queen on the occasion of the Jubilee of 1887 was shown in one of the positions of honour at the display of the Jubilee presents in St. James's Palace.

The deceased writer married Jane Fraser, of Inverness, one of the Frasers of Lovat, who survives him. He leaves two sons, Sydney, well known on the halls as "The Gay Deceiver," and Harold, who is engaged in the office of the Board of Education.

The funeral arrangements were in the hands of Theophilus Dunkley, of Westminster Bridge-road, and the mourning cortège left 9, King-street, Covent Garden, at 12 noon on Thursday for the Great Northern Cemetery, New Southgate, where the interment took place at three o'clock. The Rev. G. Vasey officiated at the last sad rites. Among the numerous wreaths were those from the following relatives and friends:—Mrs. Lee (the widow), Sydney and Harold (sons), Mrs. Plumpton and nephews and nieces, Mr. Philip Thomlinson, Mrs. Richardson, Ivy (granddaughter), Miss Marie Lloyd, Mr. George Gray, Savage Club, Yorick Club, Encore Staff (office), Encore Printing staff, Mr. Alfred Davies, Brixton Sports Club, Mr. and Mrs. Allison, Mr. and Mrs. Pike and family, Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Barritt, Mr. and Mrs. Gainsford, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Lawrence, Mr. Leslie Barrington, Mr. Alfred Appleyard, Mr. E. Edevain, Mrs. Einwold, Mr. Will A. Bennett, Misses E. and H. Robinson, Mr. A. Baker (Sporting and Dramatic), Mr. R. H. King, Thorpe family, Mr. Kensett Stylos, Miss Tomkins, Mr. David Potter, Mr. J. Uccelli, Mrs. Davey, Mr. Dick Goddard, Mr. Scott, and Mr. R. Wilson. Notable among the mourners were Mr. Frank Macnaghten and Mr. W. Allison, "special commissioner" of the Sportsman.

MISS RUBY HELDER, the lady tenor, who scored a success in her solos last summer at the Bournemouth Winter Gardens, has been re-engaged by Mr. Dan Godfrey for a special concert on Boxing night. Miss Helder is also singing at the Alexandra Palace concert to-day.

BERLIN, THURSDAY, Dec. 17.—So great was the success of the Danish playwright's comedy Twice Two is Five that almost any piece from his pen would be accepted by any manager. Unfortunately, however, none of Wied's succeeding plays have come near his one great success, and Thummelumsen is no exception to the rule, notwithstanding the very cordial reception accorded to it. That there are plenty of witticisms scattered about is a matter of course, but the hero fails to arouse interest, and the plot is unquestionably poor. The play has been adapted from the author's novel "Die Leibhaftige Bosheit," to which it is distinctly inferior. Thummelumsen is the nickname (it probably has a meaning in the Danish language, though it conveys nothing to our ears) of Emanuel Thomsen, son of the widow Thomsen, who keeps a little shop. Emanuel has been possessed of but one idea for years, and that is to buy back the farm which he and his mother were compelled to leave when Thomsen, sen., died. It seems an impossible task, and although Thummelumsen does menial work of every description, becoming man-servant at the "Guzzlers' Club" among other things, he still lacks the necessary means to the coveted end. He has tried his luck in the State lottery, too, and when he one day wins 1,300 crowns his joy is naturally great, and we equally naturally conclude he will now purchase the farm of his dreams. Emanuel, however, does nothing of the sort. He disappoints everyone, loses his head, and squanders away his fortune, giving himself contemptible airs and graces. A widow—with five children—wishing to be revenged on Emanuel, snaps up the farm, and he, finally, loses the remainder of the little sense he possesses, and marries her. The interpretation of the piece was capital, and the mounting, under the capable direction of Herr Björnsen, the famous Norwegian writer's son, who is head stage-manager at the Hebbel Theatre, was in excellent taste.

THEODOR WOLFF'S Japanese drama Niemand weiss es has been produced at the Chamber Playhouse of the Deutsches Theatre with some appearance of success. It is not new to Berlin, having been given some years ago at the Royal Schauspielhaus, and at that time fully described in your columns. The love of Yori and Tajo is much the same as that of Tristan and Isolde and many others, but the old, old story is none the less fascinating by reason of its Japanese milieu. Acting and setting were both good.

SARDOU'S four-act comedy Rabagas met with a cordial reception at the New Schauspielhaus on Saturday, Harry Walden giving the title-rôle. The characters were all satisfactorily sustained, and the play should run for some time. A dramatised fairy tale, Schneewittchen, is doing well at afternoon performances at this theatre, delighting the juveniles.

THE ever-popular farce Madame Bonivard, by MM. Bisson and Mars, has made a tremendous hit at Friedrich Wilhelm Städtisches. Being very brightly played, it will probably run well through the holidays.

THE new German contract between managers and artists has fallen ignominiously through. At a general meeting of the Actors' Union a few nights ago it was unanimously decided to refuse to accept the agreement. Dr. Max Pohl, chairman of the former committee, has been dismissed, and Herr Nissen elected in his stead. The troubles between directors and members are now beginning all over again.

"LOVE, THE CONQUEROR."

William of Orange	MR. ALBERT SEFTON
Brian Norval	MR. FRANK LINDO
Sir John Mortimer	MR. NORTON SHIELDS
Count Leon Lascelles	MR. D. LAWRENCE DOYLE
Captain Rupert Armadale	MR. HARRY LLOYD
Andrew Albertree	MR. HARRY BELFORD
Peter	MR. RICHARD WALSH
Dame Norval	MISS NELLIE BENSON
Susan Shortly	MISS MAUDE LESLIE-CUDD
Mistress Beatrice Mortimer	MISS MARION WAKEFORD

Mr. Frank Lindo, the talented author, and all concerned, are to be heartily congratulated on the distinct success achieved on the initial presentation of the romantic drama, Love, the Conqueror, at the Palace Theatre, Newcastle-on-Tyne, on Tuesday evening. The plot is laid in the period of the Prince of Orange's coming to England, and runs through five acts. The various scenes are cleverly conceived, and illustrate the story in a realistic and attractive manner.

The drama is based on the thrilling adventures of a highwayman, who falls in love with a lady of rank, and endeavours to redeem his past. He is, however, soon recognised and imprisoned, but by assuming the garments of his fiancée, who visits him in gaol, he eludes the vigilance of his captors and makes his escape. Subsequently he enlists in the forces of William of Orange, and after a distinguished career obtains a free pardon, and the play ends happily with the hero and the heroine united.

Mr. Frank Lindo won the highest honours for his vigorous embodiment of Brian Norval, the outlaw and highwayman, and gained hearty cheers for his delivery of many a stirring line. His sweetheart, Mistress Beatrice Mortimer, daughter of Sir John Mortimer, was charmingly delineated by Miss Marion Wakeford. Admirable support was given by Mr. D. Lawrence Doyle, who as Count Leon Lascelles, and rival of the hero, gave an able assumption of an exacting part. Mention should also be made of Mr. Albert Sefton, Mr. Norton Shields, Mr. Harry Lloyd, Mr. Harry Belford, Mr. Richard Walsh, Miss Nellie Benson, and Miss Maude Leslie-Cudd, who all acted creditably. An encouraging reception awaited the new piece at the hands of a large audience.

PARIS, Dec. 17.—M. Alexandre Bisson, the well-known farce-writer, has in the course of his long and successful career given his audiences many opportunities to laugh heartily. This time he has tried his hand at melodrama, and the attempt has proved thoroughly successful. The story opens at the house of Fleuriot, a magistrate, whose four-year-old little boy Raymond has fallen dangerously ill. Jacqueline, Fleuriot's beautiful young wife, ran away some two years ago. She returns unexpectedly and tells her husband that she has come to see her sick boy, begging to be forgiven. The incensed Fleuriot, however, disregards her piteous appeal, and turns her out of the house. This is the prologue; and when the curtain rises again, twenty years are supposed to have elapsed. Jacqueline has led a vagabond life. Falling lower and lower she has thrown in her lot with Laroque, a shady individual, whose acquaintance she made in Buenos Ayres. The couple have just landed in Bordeaux, and are staying at a third-rate hotel. But the thought of Raymond has never left Jacqueline, and the secret desire of seeing him once more is the chief reason that brought her back to France. A few hours after their arrival Laroque receives the visit of Périssard, a former pal, who at once secures his services to assist him in his blackmailing schemes. Jacqueline has never divulged her name to her companion; for all that, the few words she dropped about her past have aroused Périssard's curiosity, and the scoundrel, having discovered that Fleuriot—now risen to the post of President of the Toulouse tribunal—is her husband, he sees a splendid opportunity for blackmailing him and also Raymond, just been called to the Bar. The woman guesses the plot these men are hatching against her boy. Mad with terror and rage, she remonstrates with Laroque, and, as the villain casts her roughly aside, she pulls out a revolver and shoots him. Jacqueline, whom nobody recognises, is arrested, committed for trial, and, as she obstinately refuses to utter a word, she is called "La Femme X——," the unknown. The only statement she made at the time of her arrest was that she killed Laroque to prevent scoundrels from perpetrating a crime. She declines to engage counsel, and, according to usage, a young member of the Bar is officially appointed to defend her. He is no other than Raymond. The scene in Court is most impressive. The woman is not aware that this young, good-looking barrister is her son. The latter, too, is ignorant of the fact that he is defending his mother. By chance, however, his name is revealed to her, whereupon she utters a piercing shriek and nearly swoons, especially as she sees among the audience her husband, who ruined her by his cruelty. He, too, recognises her, and, with a groan, he buries his face in his hands at the moment Raymond rises to open his speech for the defence. Raymond knows nothing of the woman in the dock, but he is convinced she spoke the truth when she said that her object in killing Laroque—who bore a detestable reputation—was to prevent him from committing a crime. Moved by a secret impulse, Raymond then makes such a passionate appeal to the jury that the woman is acquitted. These emotions, however, have proved too much for Jacqueline. The poor, wayworn sinner is carried fainting to the Judge's private room, and before dying she can clasp her son in her arms. In the rôle of the luckless Jacqueline Mme. Jane Hading scored a genuine triumph. She was intensely pathetic, and the poignancy of the trial scene was worked up by her in magnificent style. M. Dorival as the stern husband, M. Belluci as the blackmailing Périssard, M. Laroche as the villian, Laroque, M. Monteux as Raymond, and M. Jean Coquelin in a somewhat effaced rôle were likewise first-rate.

A CURIOUS play by M. de Faramond, La dame qui n'est plus aux Camélias, has been produced at the Théâtre de l'Œuvre, a bitter satire on the spirit of the age. As the title implies, Camille, the heroine, a courtesan, has nothing in common with the sentimental Marguerite Gautier created by Dumas fils. M. de Faramond's Camille is a symbol. She impersonates the destructive power men worship, and at whose shrine they deposit their ill-gotten gains. We are shown Camille surrounded by sycophants—one of them a Prince of Royal blood—living under the protection of two influential gentlemen, a duke and a scheming financier—antipodes on the social ladder. Both, however, are wealthy, which places them on a par in Camille's eyes. The financier exploits the credulousness of his fellow creatures, and as on the list of his victims figures the name of one of the Duke's relations, that infuriated nobleman challenges the shady company promoter to a duel. When this news is brought to Camille she bursts out crying; but her emotions, like everything else with her, are sham. Little she cares for the danger her friends may run. True to the spirit of the age, she is of a practical turn of mind, and it is the dread of possible financial troubles that draws tears from her beautiful eyes. The duel, however, does not take place, because the financier, having been caught in a swindle, promptly absconds. As to the Duke, he fears a scandal, and therefore withdraws from Camille. That lady then passes some anxious moments, but her fears prove unfounded. Her fame brings to her another trafficker in money, who will lavish his gold on her, and, like his predecessor, will decamp after having scattered ruin around him. The work, somewhat pretentiously written, met with a good reception. Mlle. Madeleine Carlier gave a characteristic rendering of the rôle of Camille, and M. Lugné-Poe was irresistibly funny as the financier, Aufman. The other parts were also well sustained.

"JEANNE QUI RIT," a new comedy, by MM. Maurice Soulié and Charles Darantière, brought out at the Théâtre Réjane, is a poor production. Moreover, it is so coarse that I can only delicately hint at the plot. Jeanne always laughs, no matter what happens. On her wedding day, when alone with her husband, she starts giggling; and as giggling is contagious, the pair spend the time laughing. Night after night the same thing happens during three months, so that Bréguet, her husband, at last decides to divorce his giggling wife. Jeanne then becomes engaged to another gentleman, but she happens to meet Bréguet. They are alone. This time she does not laugh—and you can guess the rest. They become reconciled, and marry again.

THE London and North-Western Railway Company are providing a special dining-car saloon train, leaving Euston to-morrow (Sunday) at 9.45 a.m. for the purpose of conveying the Butterflies company, some seventy strong, under the direction of Mr. Wilfrid Cotton, to Glasgow. The train arrives at the Central station at 6.36 p.m.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Sir Charles Wyndham's clever and spirited speech at the Actors' Benevolent Fund dinner on Sunday was a model of genial oratory, and some may have wondered where the lines about "Stubbs buttering Freeman, Freeman buttering Stubbs" came from. They are to be found in the present Poet Laureate's satire in rhyme entitled "Juvenal in London," which first appeared in instalments in Temple Bar in the seventies. Doubtless the brilliancy of the speeches at the Hotel Metropole on Sunday may be partly attributed to the stimulating influence of the bevy of beauties who admired the eloquence of their men-folk from the ladies' gallery.

Miss Lena Ashwell, in accordance with her custom, will close the Kingsway for five nights next week, namely, from Monday, the 21st, to Friday, the 25th, inclusive. A novel departure in the always excellent musical programme at the Kingsway will be made on Boxing Night, when Grit will be preceded by a brief selection of chamber music by a quintette, comprising first and second violins, viola, 'cello, and piano. For fifteen minutes before the rising of the curtain the musicians will play on the stage itself, but for the intervals will take their places in the orchestra.

Sir John Hare has brought to an end his farewell tour of a large number of provincial towns. At Swansea, where the veteran actor played on the first three evenings of last week, the theatre was filled to overflowing, and the enthusiasm was intense. Sir John has now in contemplation a series of flying matinées in other towns to which he has not yet said "Good-bye."

Mr. Arthur Bourchier ends his autumn tour this evening at the Royal, Portsmouth. A brief holiday will be spent on the Continent, and then Mr. and Mrs. Bourchier start rehearsals of Henry Bernstein's play Samson, in which they reappear at the Garrick on Feb. 2.

Mr. Lewis Waller will put on his promised revival of Henry IV., Part II., at a series of matinées at the Lyric. His present production of Henry V., which is being liberally patronised, will suffice for the Christmas holidays, and will run through next month. It will then be followed by a new play by R. McDonald, called The Chief of Staff, a modern romantic piece, the action of which is laid in South America. Mr. Waller will have the part of an Englishman who conforms to the manners and customs of the country, thus gaining in picturesqueness, and the heroine, in whose veins Spanish and English blood runs, will be played by Miss Evelyn D'Alroy, a young actress whose talents were noted in the recent production of After the Opera at the Empire and in The Builders at the Criterion last month.

Miss Evelyn Millard will revive The Adventure of Lady Ursula at the Garrick, where it will go into the evening bill on Jan. 5. Miss Millard's next production, it is anticipated, will be The Pride of Jennico, by Agnes and Egerton Castle, in the dramatisation of which Captain Basil Hood will assist. Mr. Henry Ainley joins Miss Millard for this play. Meanwhile Mr. Allan Aynesworth is severing his connection with the Garrick, where he has been appearing so successfully in Idols, and will take a short holiday.

Mr. George Edwardes has secured a successor to The Merry Widow when that popular piece shall have reached the end of its tenure at Daly's—a circumstance which, to all appearances, is far distant. Mr. Edwardes' latest selection will contain parts for Miss Lily Elsie and Mr. Joseph Coyne. Mr. Edwardes has also in hand for eventual production at Daly's a new musical play by Lieutenant-Colonel Newnham-Davis, entitled The Young Dragoon, which may be said to owe its inspiration to the celebrated Irish romancist Charles Lever. The action begins at Eton, passes to Spain, and thence travels to Paris at a period immediately following the Battle of Waterloo.

Mr. Martin Harvey's Christmas contribution to the Actors' Benevolent Fund, in which the popular actor has always evinced the greatest interest, has taken the form of a further sum of £3, collected by means of his autograph.

Mr. Charles Manners dealt with striking facts and figures in regard to the production of Grand Opera in English at a recent meeting of the Concert Goers' Club. He said that fashion, which looked askance at Grand Opera in anything but a foreign tongue, was a sad obstacle. He had lost many thousands of pounds in producing Grand Opera in London, and any scheme for a National Opera must be on a business footing from the commencement. If he could ensure that every seat at Drury Lane would be taken at prices ranging from sixpence for the gallery to six shillings for the stalls, he could give different operas there each week with a chorus of 150, a band of 100, a prima donna and a tenor twice a week at not more than £600 a performance, baritone and bass £100, and a contralto at £50, and then have £200 or £300 over.

Mr. Manners added that he was sending to the members of the National English Opera Union an appeal to support the production of three new operas by English composers next May at popular prices. Londoners, he concluded, were immensely behind the people of the provinces, where workmen paid a few pence a week for six months into a club to get seats for Grand Opera in English. When he was last at Burnley crowds waited from two in the afternoon for the evening performance, and as they were admitted early because of the rain, they spent two hours singing hymns before the performance of Faust.

Miss Mary Moore will take a short Christmas holiday and the Criterion Theatre will close for a few days on Dec. 21. The run of Lady Epping's Lawsuit will be resumed on Boxing Day, when there will be the usual Saturday matinée. Miss Mary Moore will remain at the Criterion until the end of January, when Miss Evelyn Millard commences her tenancy. Later Sir Charles Wyndham and Miss Mary Moore will make a welcome reappearance.

A meeting of the Executive Committee of the Referee Children's Dinner Fund was presided over by Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree on Monday afternoon at His Majesty's Theatre. The Committee voted the sum of £1,040 to relieve immediate wants, and arranged that another meeting should be held shortly when a further large sum would be available. Last year 570,400 meals were provided by the Referee Children's Dinner Fund, at an average cost of 1½d. a meal.

In the course of a small northern tour last week, Mr. Acton Bond, one of the joint hon. directors of the British Empire Shakespeare Society, visited the Darlington, Glasgow, and Aberdeen branches of the society, where he directed and headed the cast in public dramatic readings. In all cases the remainder of the casts were composed of selected members of the centre in question. At Darlington on Monday Macbeth was successfully given, with the Mayor in the chair, and on Wednesday, at Glasgow, Othello was read to an enthusiastic audience. On Friday, at Aberdeen (a newly-formed branch), the programme consisted of excerpts from The Merchant of Venice, Twelfth Night, and Henry VIII., Mr. Bond taking the parts of Shylock, Malvolio, and Wolsey.

At an early hour on Thursday morning an outbreak of fire was discovered at the Irving Theatre, Seacombe. Prompt measures were taken for its suppression, the local fire brigade was quickly at work, and after several hours of strenuous exertion the fire was subdued. The interior suffered considerable damage—the basement, orchestra stalls, and boxes—from the flames, and a large quantity of scenery and a number of dresses by water. The theatre is insured, but we understand that the property belonging to A Soldier of France company, which is performing there this week, is not covered.

The O.P. Club intend to celebrate a world-famed success by giving a "Merry Widow Dinner" on Sunday, Jan. 31, at the Hotel Cecil. Mr. George Edwardes has accepted the club's invitation on his own behalf and that of Miss Lily Elsie and Mr. Joseph Coyne, who will be the guests of the evening. It is also the intention of the club to invite the principal members of the company. Tickets, it should be added, can only be obtained by members of the O.P. Club.

The activities of the O.P. Club are also to be noted in other directions. A ladies' concert will be given to-morrow (Sunday); on Jan. 2 there will be a New Year's dance for children; and on Jan. 17 Mr. Rutland Barrington will address the members, an announcement that is sure to prove attractive.

The funeral of the late Herbert Flemming, whose death we recorded in a recent issue, took place at the Melbourne General Cemetery on Oct. 24, and was attended by the leading members of the theatrical profession in Australia, and by many prominent citizens. Amongst the many beautiful wreaths were those sent by the deceased actor's mother, brothers, sisters and son in England, the Margaret Anglin Co., the William Anderson Co., the Savage Club, Greenroom Club, Mrs. Brough, Messrs. Meynell and Gunn, Miss Margaret Anglin, Mr. Allan Hamilton, Miss Beatrice Day, and the Bohemian Dramatic Co. The wreath from the members of the company was accompanied by a card, on which the last lines spoken by Mr. Flemming in Olivia were written:—

"God gave—God has taken away;
Let us submit ourselves to him."

A largely-attended and representative reunion was held on Tuesday, the 8th inst., at Glasgow, under the auspices of the British Empire Shakespeare Society, to hear an address from Mr. Acton Bond on the aims and objects of the society. In the course of a genial speech at the close of the meeting, the Rev. Professor Cooper, president of the branch, who was in the chair, proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. Bond, which was seconded by Mr. F. H. Newbery, the director of the Glasgow School of Art.

Mr. Tom B. Davis, who is associated with the management of no less than five theatres in the vicinity of the Royal Ear Hospital, has kindly offered the use of the Queen's for a matinée in aid of the institution mentioned. The hospital is the oldest in Europe for the special treatment of deafness and diseases of the ear. It is not endowed, but relies entirely on voluntary contributions, and is faced by a heavy deficit. Lady Constance Hatch is organising the matinée, and has secured some of the most influential names in England to form a committee.

In the Court of King's Bench on Wednesday Mr. Walter Bentley sued Mr. Edward Kenyon-Collis, theatrical manager, for alleged breach of contract to produce at a London theatre a play entitled For the King. Defendant, by his pleadings, denied the contract, and said that if there was a contract it was rescinded by mutual consent. Plaintiff appeared in person, and stated that he had toured in this country, America, and Australia, where he was best known. He came to London in May, 1907, with the acting rights of the play For the King, which he was desirous of having produced in London. London was the Mecca of dramatists and actors. Mr. Walter Howard was the author of the play, and recently he had had a successful run at the Lyceum Theatre.

After negotiations with several people, defendant read the play, and suggested that certain steps should be taken with a view to its production. An agreement was drawn up between witness and defendant on Dec. 5, 1907, under which the latter, in consideration of plaintiff's transferring to him his rights in the play for a term of three years, agreed to produce it at a London theatre as early as possible, and to pay the plaintiff 25 per cent. of the net profits, £10 a week for rehearsals, and £10 a week for the performance of the part of Oliver Cromwell, during the run of the play in London and on tour, and a royalty.

Evidence was given by Mr. David Cope, professor of music, who said that when he read the play he was so impressed with its situations that he composed music specially for it. Under favourable circumstances the play ought to have gone exceedingly well. Defendant did not appear to support his defence, and the jury found for the plaintiff, awarding him £200 damages and costs. Judgment was entered accordingly.

We regret to hear that Mr. Walter Beaumont, for so many years the Spettigue with Mr. W. S. Penley and Mr. Brandon Thomas's Charley's Aunt companies, has been for six months an inmate of University College Hospital, where he has undergone three serious operations. Happily they have proved successful, and he is now gaining convalescence at All Saints, Eastbourne. Mr. Beaumont has had several engagements with Chas. Frohman, and was the original Earl of Loam on the suburban tour of The Admirable Crichton.

Mr. Alfred Northway and Mr. W. V. Garrod's autumn tour of A Country Girl in London concludes to-night at Hull. The company reopens at Scarborough on Boxing-night, and the piece is practically booked up to Easter, 1910. The production of Are You the Man? by Frank Price, will take place early in the spring.

Miss Florence Ray, a pupil of Mme. Kate Flinn, is to appear as Fairy Queen in Red Riding Hood at the Kennington Theatre.

The suburban and provincial rights of that funny comedy, The Early Worm, by F. Lonsdale, which has just concluded its successful run at Wyndham's Theatre, have been secured by Mr. Lionel Rignold. He has arranged with Mr. Frank Curzon for the original scenery and production, and after Christmas will visit most of the suburban and the principal provincial theatres. Mr. Rignold will fill the title-rôle, supported by a powerful cast, and will also superintend the production.

The Bandmann Comedy Company have lately concluded seasons of five weeks in Calcutta and thirteen nights in Rangoon, Burma. Though the work is strenuous, for thirteen plays were presented in Rangoon, the company seem to be in good spirits and enjoying themselves thoroughly. Mr. Bandmann is fortunate in having so able a producer and stage-manager as Mr. Thomas Sidney, when the répertoire includes such a variety of plays as Zaza, Mrs. Wiggs, Little Minister, Mrs. Dot, The Scarlet Pimpernel, The Flag Lieutenant, Lady Frederick, and A Royal Divorce. Mr. Sidney speaks in the pleasantest terms of the good-fellowship existing in the company.

We regret to record the death of Mr. Harrington Baily, the veteran theatrical manager and agent, who passed away at Wimbledon on Monday last. Mr. Baily had suffered from a very long illness which made it impossible for him to follow his business for some considerable time, although right up to the end he retained his interest in all theatrical matters. A descendant of Henry Marston, the tragedian, he was at one time known amongst his friends as "the Matinée Demon," a form of theatrical enterprise in which he excelled. His schooling as an actor in the old stock days at the Prince's Theatre, Bristol, under the late Mr. Chute, made him a very keen judge of histrionic ability, and his agency register contained the names of many who are now famous. Mr. Baily was buried on Wednesday.

Mr. Blake Adams, who finished a most successful engagement as James Hogg in Sins of Society on Dec. 5, opens at the Royalty Theatre, Glasgow, in the part of Mr. Podmore in Butterflies, under Mr. Wilfrid Cotton's management.

Mr. Herbert Ford concludes a fourteen weeks' special suburban engagement as Prince Olaf in The Prince and the Beggar Maid to-night. He has been engaged by Mr. Percy Hutchison to play Hugh Coleman on the tour of Idols which starts Jan. 25.

Mr. Holeery Hardy, the energetic manager of the Theatre Royal, Rotherham, is taking his annual benefit on Monday next. An excellent programme has been arranged, and a bumper house is anticipated.

Mr. Henry Kitts has terminated his association (extending over four and a half years) with Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton. Mr. Kitts' pronounced success as Grumio in the Taming of the Shrew at the Adelphi Theatre and other parts under Mr. Otho Stuart's management will be recollected. He has had an offer to visit Australia with Mr. Oscar Asche, which he was reluctantly compelled to decline.

The Duke and Duchess of Argyle (Princess Louise), who were present at the performance of Milton's Samson Agonistes, given before the Royal Academy on Wednesday evening, shook hands with and personally congratulated Mr. Ian Maclaren on his performance of Samson. The distinguished audience also included the Italian Ambassador and Sir Frederick Bridge.

At the fifty-ninth general meeting of the Crystal Palace company on Thursday, Mr. Ernest Schenk, the chairman, referred to the formation of the Mansion House Committee, the purpose of which is to urge upon the Government and public authorities the importance of making the Palace a national institution, and to promote a Parliamentary Bill. He mentioned that the Prime Minister had intimated his intention of receiving a deputation and considering the question generally. A suggestion worthy of consideration was made by Mr. George Starr, the manager, who thought that employers might give their employees season tickets, adding that it would only take 100,000 to put the company on an absolutely good footing.

Mr. Norman V. Norman, whose production of Under the Red Robe has been so successful this week at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, gave two special performances of David Garrick on Thursday and Friday to enthusiastic audiences, Mr. Norman and Miss Beatrice Wilson being repeatedly called before the curtain. David Garrick was preceded on both evenings by the new one-act play, Olivia's Elopement, by Affleck Scott, of which an account appears in another column.

Another play designed to support the principles of Free Trade was produced at Chester on Thursday. It is called A Message from the 'Forties, and is written by Mrs. Alfred Mond, the wife of the Member for Chester. The play, which it is intended to reproduce in London and the chief towns of the provinces, is an adaptation of Dickens's "Christmas Carol," and after a number of episodes have been enacted portraying the iniquities of "Protection," Scrooge awakens on Christmas morning a new man, and a Free Trader.

Mr. Allan Wilkie concludes his autumn tour to-night at the Theatre Royal, Huddersfield. After a few days spent on the Yorkshire moors Mr. Wilkie reopens at the magnificent new King's Hall, Ilkley, for seven nights, commencing on Boxing Day. Mr. Wilkie now enters on his fifth year of tour, and his bookings extend to September, 1910.

Mr. Cecil Brooking has been engaged by Mr. Stanley James for his spring tour of My Wife and Her Father. Mr. Brooking has just finished a long association with The Hypocrites, in which he played Dr. Blaney at the Hicks Theatre, Daubeney on tour, and Viveash as an understudy for five nights at Edinburgh. For the last two weeks Mr. Brooking has been appearing at Hastings and Eastbourne as General Carew (Mr. O. B. Clarence's part) in Mr. Cyril Harcourt's witty play, The Reformer.

In order that misunderstandings with regard to correspondence, &c., may be avoided, Mr. Reginald Payne wishes it known that he has been transferred from the North Company of The Prince and the Beggar-Maid to that of the South. He re-opens at Southampton on Christmas Eve in his old part of Lieut. Karl.

Miss Florence Lovell has been re-engaged by Mr. G. D. Day for the spring tour of The Prodigal Son for the part of Anna Magnusson, of which she has given 264 performances.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Beresford (Miss Dorothy Milne) conclude to-night at the Theatre Royal, Stratford, a successful starring engagement as Lawrence Gray and Geraldine Lucas in Convict 99.

Mr. Martin Comstock concludes to-day his third engagement with Miss Maud Hildyard, and is re-engaged for her spring tour, commencing at the Grand Theatre, Brighton, on Feb. 15. During the vacation, opening on Monday next, Mr. Comstock will be with Mr. James Travis (The Loyal Dominion Animated Picture Co.).

Miss Gertrude Netterville has been engaged by Miss Mouillot to play Minna in Little Lord Fauntleroy at the Court Theatre. On the recent summer tour of the piece she enacted Mrs. Errol, and in that rôle she is to be the understudy of Miss Eva Moore in the coming production.

Mr. W Henry Hargreaves, recently returned from abroad, has been engaged by Mr. Wentworth Croke to play Michael Sunlocks in The Bondman.

Mr. George Grossmith, jun., who has just returned from America, has left his mark there as a playwright as well as a comedian, and will be represented in the forthcoming season by four plays, namely, The Girls of Gottenberg, Havana, The Dollar Princess, and a new play, called The President's Daughter, the score of which is the work of Mr. Jerome Kern. In each case the libretto is by Mr. Grossmith and Mr. L. E. Burman. The President's Daughter, which is to be produced—under the management of Mr. Frohman—first in America and then in London, is in two acts, which are laid in a South American Presidency, and the interesting question as to whether the son of a King can marry the daughter of a President is propounded.

Mr. Wentworth Croke will send a company on tour in East Lynne from April to August. The cast will be a strong one, consisting as it will of the pick of Mr. Wentworth Croke's present companies now playing The Christian, The Bondman, and The Prodigal Son.

Mr. Croke's companies have this week finished their autumn tours, and on Christmas Day the various members and the staffs will dine together in their respective towns at Mr. Wentworth Croke's invitation. After a week's vacation the companies start again on Boxing Day for the spring tours. So great has been the success achieved by The Prodigal Son that a second company of the famous Drury-lane drama will be sent out.

An extraordinary tragedy of the stage is reported to have taken place at the Imperial Theatre at Novgorod. The principals in the affair were the leading actor and actress of the theatre who appeared as hero and heroine in a melodrama. The heroine—a handsome married woman name Ludmilla Ragoskin—was in real life pestered by the leading man, an actor named Krasnoff, for whom she had an intense aversion. Just before an evening performance last week Krasnoff made yet another love avowal to Mme. Ragoskin, who repulsed him, warning him against being too affectionate during the love passages which were shortly to take place between them on the stage. Carried away by his feelings, however, Krasnoff kissed Mme. Ragoskin again and again.

The enraged actress waited till the interval, when she demanded an explanation. "I so lost myself," replied Krasnoff, "that I forgot I was on the stage, and acted as my heart dictated." In the last act it was Ludmilla's duty to stab her lover with a property hatpin, but, to the horror of all present, Krasnoff, instead of falling gracefully on the stage, crashed with a yell among the footlights. As the woman bent over him with a look of mockery the unhappy man cried, "Why did you do it, Ludmilla?" "I so lost myself," replied Mme. Ragoskin, "that I forgot I was on the stage, and acted as my heart dictated." The actress is now incarcerated in the Alexander Prison.

The Prince and Princess of Wales and Prince George witnessed the seventy-second performance of The Lyons Mail, with Mr. H. B. Irving as Lesurques and Dubosc, at the Shaftesbury Theatre on Thursday evening. It should be noted that King René's Daughter and The Lyons Mail will be played in the afternoon of Boxing Day as well as in the evening.

Miss Georgie de Lara, who last Saturday concluded three years' engagement as heavy leading lady with Mr. Walter Melville, has been engaged by Mr. Charles M. Bestic to open on Monday as Miss Greenhill, "the Suffragette," in his new musical comedy production The Flower Girl.

Miss Helene Forest has been playing a special week for Mr. E. E. Norris at Ipswich in her old part of Lucy Middleton in The Education of Elizabeth prior to her taking up heavy lead in The Soldier's Wedding (Chattell) at Christmas.

Mr. Algernon Syms was called upon at short notice to play Sexton Blake on Monday. He received the thanks and congratulations of the management on his success.

Mr. Alfred B. Cross brings to a conclusion this evening a continuous tour of seven years with The Manxman, the play adapted by the late Wilson Barrett from Hall Caine's novel. He and his wife, Miss Minnie Watersford, will now take a few weeks' well-earned rest, Mr. Cross having played the part of Pete close upon 2,000 times and his wife nearly 1,500 times with brilliant success in almost every town in the country.

The Incorporated Society of Musicians will hold a conference in London at the end of the month. The proceedings will include five concerts, consisting of numerous new compositions by the members. On the 31st inst. there will be an orchestral concert at Queen's Hall, for which the London Symphony Orchestra has been engaged, and the conference will be concluded on Jan. 1 with a performance of William Boyce's "Ode to Charity," which was written in 1748, for the Leicester Infirmary.

"Charley's Aunt" will again figure among the Christmas entertainments, Mr. Brandon Thomas having decided to revive his evergreen farce at the Aldwych on the afternoon of Boxing Day. The run is to last three weeks, during which two performances will be given daily.

The next venture of the Dramatic Productions Club at the Court will consist of a new play named The Test, written by K. W. Eastwood, and a one-act piece, called The Generous Past, by Clotilde Graves. There will be two performances of both plays, one on Sunday, Jan. 3, and the other on the following afternoon.

Miss Ellaline Terriss pays this week an affectionate tribute to the lamented William Terriss, whose death on Dec. 16, 1897, caused such widespread regret. The "In Memoriam" runs:—"In memory of my darling father. Never forgotten by his devoted daughter, Ellie. 1897."

Mr. Frank Emery, we learn, is to be welcomed back to Liverpool in the capacity of theatrical manager. Mr. Emery was a notable figure at the Prince of Wales's Theatre in that city in the years preceding the Nelsons, Captain Wombwell, and Fanny Josephs. Now he goes north to the Haymarket, in Bean-street, where he opens this evening.

The corner-stone of America's National Theatre, which has been founded by rich Americans, was laid in New York on Tuesday. The statutes under which it will be run provide that it is to be without any thought of profit, and that any pecuniary benefits which may result from its operation shall be used for the creation of an endowment and pension fund for the maintenance of a school of dramatic art and for other purposes of the same kind. The new theatre will begin its first season next November under the administration of Mr. Winthrop Ames, director; Mr. Lee Shubert, business manager; and Mr. John Corbin, literary manager. Modern and classic plays are to be acted by a stock company of eminent players.

The jocularity of the Judge was the cause of roars of laughter in the Southwark County Court on Thursday. A moneylender informed his honour that the man he was suing made a lot of extra money as an actor. "An actor?" said Judge Willis, in astonishment. "Why, he is a carman! Whatever part does he take on the stage?" "I believe," averred the plaintiff, "he is filling the rôle of a policeman at the present moment, sir." "Policeman, eh?" retorted his honour. "I should have thought he would have been afraid to take the part of a policeman when he borrows money." Much merriment greeted the remark, and thus encouraged, the Judge added, "I see that his name is Faut, so he only wants an 's' and he would be Faust." The name of his Honour, it is curious to relate, has not yet appeared among this year's pantomime librettists.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

The Happy Fanny Fields Laugh.

The stage laugh is not so simple as it appears. Many a performance is spoilt by the harsh, unmusical laugh of a perhaps otherwise musical artist, and many a beautiful scene in pantomime or musical comedy is ruined by the diabolical "altogether" laugh of an otherwise well-trained chorus. Quite different is the Happy Fanny Fields laugh, which is spontaneous, natural, and, above all, highly infectious, as the little lady's audiences soon discover. Questioned by a Pressman recently, Miss Fields said:—"My laugh! Well, it had rather a humorous origin. I was playing a soubrette part in Our Boys in California, and in one scene I had to throw some ashes out of a window. One night, when I had thrown the shovelful out (they were real ashes), I noticed, too late, that the man who was playing the Detective was standing by the window directly in the line of fire. He got the whole thing in his face, and I heard a splutter, followed by something that began with a mighty big D. Well, the humour of the thing took me on the spot, and, forgetting I was on the stage, I just dropped the shovel and shrieked with laughter. Afterwards I tried to keep out of the stage-manager's way, but it was no use; he was looking for me, and he found me. To my surprise, however, instead of rating me, he said, 'My dear girl, if you can do that laugh every time, there's a fortune in it.' And that set me going."

The Principles of a Principal Boy.

"The great ambition of my life," says Miss Queenie Leighton, as quoted by Tit-Bits, "is to play strong, dramatic, and tragic parts, like Lady Macbeth or Desdemona." As "principal boy" she is in her element, and she gives a little good advice to aspirants for this rôle. "To be a successful principal boy," she says, "you want to make the audience feel that you are enjoying yourself, and want them to do likewise. Metaphorically speaking, you want to pat them on the back and say, 'Come along, old chap; throw physic to the bow-wows, and let's forget there are such things as landlords, rate-collectors, toothache, mumps, and humps in the world.'"

Quite Unexpected.

"I sit in a corner," writes a Daily Chronicle representative, in a description of a rehearsal of Pinkie and the Fairies at His Majesty's, "chatting in undertones with Whisper and Twinkle, two of the most charming children it is possible to imagine, and the Fairy Queen. The Queen believes in real fairies, not in toy ones, she tells me—a cryptic utterance to which I have not yet discovered the key; Twinkle assures me that fairies are realities, whose dancing rings are in full evidence close to her home in Putney; Whisper shyly admits that she used to believe in fairies once, 'when she was very little,' and I seize a passing child. 'Are you too a sceptic concerning the fairies?' I query. 'No,' is the delightful and wholly unexpected reply. 'I am a black beetle.'"

Testing a Conductor.

"Another fact which occurs to one's mind," writes Mr. J. M. Glover in a most interesting article on "The Pirates" of Paignton in the Daily Telegraph, "is that all the managerial interests primarily associated with the successful Gilbert and Sullivan régime were musicians first and managers afterwards. The late Michael Gunn was a rare musician, and played the viola in the Dublin Philharmonic Orchestra. D'Oyly Carte himself was a composer of no mean merit, and wrote many songs and operettas. Of the latter, Happy Hampstead, with words by the popular Frank Desprez, was played in the country by an opera company of which D'Oyly Carte himself was the musical director. Carte conducted until a Mr. William Ferdinand Glover (now settled in America), having got married one morning in Accrington, and then walked eighteen miles for employment into Manchester, came to see Carte at his office. He had known the future Savoy manager in London, and burst into him at the Princes Theatre, saying, 'I want work.' 'What can you do?' said Carte. 'Anything in the musical way,' was the reply. Carte threw down the score of La Perichole, and said, 'Can you play that?' Glover did so at sight, and was immediately engaged as chorus master and assistant conductor."

Four Shows a Night.

"I have seen it stated lately," writes Mr. Butler Stanhope, "that a well-known actor had performed in three towns on the same night. I think I can beat that record; for I presented an entire comic drama, namely, Robert Macaire, in four towns on the same evening when I was lessee of the Theatres Royal, Runcorn, Birkenhead, and Grand, Liverpool (now called the Queen's). I was running stock seasons at each place. So I commenced at Runcorn at 7.30; then went off to the Royal, Warrington, where I went through the same performance; then down by the Manchester express to Liverpool, and across the Mersey to Birkenhead, where I finished at 11.10.

A Tribute to "Lal" Brough.

Mr. Tom Crayen sends us the following:—

I know a garden fair to see
And in it sits one dear to me—
"Lal" Brough—God bless him!
He standeth like a sturdy oak,
And ever meets you with a joke
If you address him.

The sun shines on his dear old face,
This vet'ran of an honoured race,
And worlds caress him.
Let all of us in love combine
To pray the sun for ever shine
On "Lal"—God bless him!

A Practical Solution.

"At the Garrick Club, not very long ago," says The Bystander, "an old actor, Mr. Smith, and a young actor, Mr. Brown, were discussing the art of acting. Young Mr. Brown put forward an idea which greatly annoyed old Mr. Smith. During the heated argument Mr. Smith went so far as to call Mr. Brown 'an ass.' Next day poor Brown hunted up Mr. Brookfield for advice. After telling him the whole story, he said, 'And Smith ended with calling me an ass! What am I to do now?' Brookfield pondered for a moment. 'Consult a vet,' was his reply."

Mr. Beerbohm Tree's Bear.

Mr. Beerbohm Tree received a big "Teddy bear" under his arm as his birthday present from the children who are to play in Pinkie and the Fairies at His Majesty's this evening. Miss Iris Hawkins, the Pinkie, in making the presentation, read the following verses, specially written for the occasion by Mr. Graham Robertson, the author of the play:—

"Fairies are old—so old—nay, who can number
The drifted æons of our long ago,
Who in the Never-never calmly slumber,
Nor reck of Time's ebb tide or overflow?
Yet through the Ivory Gate we watch with care
Our little Herbert pattering up the stair.

"Five years ago—or ten—or maybe twenty—
He saw the light—dates are not my strong point.
Ask any passer-by—he'll give you plenty,
Yet will you find his 'times are out of joint.'
So, Folk of Faerie, take your time from me,
(lifts glass)
'Our little playmate, Herbert Beerbohm Tree!'"

ACTORS' BENEVOLENT FUND DINNER.

£1,100 FOR CHARITY.

The eighteenth annual dinner, held on Sunday evening at the Whitehall Rooms of the Hotel Metropole, and presided over by Mr. CYRIL MAUDE, was characterised by the excellence of the speeches delivered and the enthusiasm and generosity of the assembled company. For, in response to the Chairman's touching appeal, spoken with heart-stirring eloquence, a sum of more than eleven hundred pounds was collected at the tables. The company included many eminent representatives of the Stage, Music, Literature, the Law, Medicine, the Navy, the Army, and Society. In short, it was a gathering of brilliant men in many walks of life. And for no nobler purpose could a Sabbath evening be utilised, for an appeal in the cause of Sweet Charity is worth a thousand sermons on the saving of the soul when the body is starving! The distressful condition of many members of the theatrical profession was described by Mr. Maude in language that admitted of no misunderstanding, and Mr. Maude spoke of what he knew. Had not he, as well as other actor-managers, been forcibly reminded of the unhappy state of some of his brothers and sisters by the pitiful requests at the stage-door for only a shilling? Most of the applicants, as well as those who applied for assistance to the Actors' Benevolent Fund, were placed in the position of doing so through no fault of their own. With all the joy and hopefulness of youth they had set out upon life's journey through the storm and calm of a theatrical career, and numbers of them had been more buffeted by the storm than had been permitted to enjoy the calm. This Benevolent Fund, therefore, surely had a beneficent work in view—that of helping by loans, gifts, and allowances people who had fallen on hard times and who had, in many ways, assisted to brighten the lives of their fellow beings. Could it be said, then, that the gentlemen who sat down to dinner on this Sunday evening were any less gathered together in the name of Him Who ever preached Charity and Forbearance than the members of the congregation engaged at the same time in the devotional service at St. Paul's Cathedral?

Amongst those present were:—Mr. Alfred D. Acland, Mr. Henry Ainley, the Earl of Albemarle, Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Oscar Asche, Mr. James H. Atkins, Mr. Oliver Atkins, Lord Balfour of Burleigh, Sir Squire Bancroft, Mr. J. Bartlett, Mr. J. D. Beveridge, Mr. Alfred Bishop, Mr. W. Boosey, Mr. Austin Brereton, Mr. W. H. After the toast of "The King, and members of the Royal Family" had been honoured,

The CHAIRMAN, who received an enthusiastic ovation on rising to propose the toast of the evening—"The Actors' Benevolent Fund"—said:—

"Public speaking is the very divil," as an old Irish friend of mine with, I regret to say, Fenian proclivities, said to me once some years ago. He and a certain member of Parliament were speaking at an open-air meeting not many miles from Dublin, and they noticed that a representative of police was taking notes of all they said. My Irish friend turned to his colleague, who was also a Fenian of the deepest dye, and said, "Take care what you're sayin', man; they're takin' notes; don't run down the King of England, or call the English a dirty race, but just give a quiet conciliatory kind of speech." My Irish friend then gave "a quiet concilitory kind of speech," and was followed by the M.P., who had not been speaking more than about five minutes when shillelahs were swung, heads were broken, and the whole meeting ended in a turmoil. The two speakers were arrested, but in the excitement the police notes got mixed up in some extraordinary way, and when, some time afterwards, my friend was referring to this, he said, "You see, I gave a few nice quiet and subdued words, and then got six months' hard labour for the other fellow's speech; but (this with a wink) I got even with him, he got eighteen months for mine." Now for the moral. I personally am hoping that my speech may become mixed up in your minds with those of the brilliant men who follow me to-night, and that, though I may receive the credit of their speeches, they may get money down for mine. I remember hearing once that "All things come to those who know how to be disagreeable at the right time," and, alas! I find myself, to my sorrow, put in the position of the disagreeable man to-night. It is an unsympathetic part I have to play, for to invite a number of men to a banquet is one thing, but surely it is the height of bad manners to ask people to dinner, to ask them to pay for it, and then do one's best to imitate the highwayman of Hounslow Heath and demand money from them at the mouth of a champagne bottle; but what could I possibly do after being urged for two years by our excellent President, Sir Charles Wyndham, to take my turn to play the game, and to go in and try and score for our side?

To score for our side! Gentlemen, have you ever experienced the awful feeling of walking with your bat across a long stretch of turf from the pavilion to the pitch on a large cricket ground surrounded by a large concourse of people at a critical point in the game, and with the full consciousness of being a poor bat. Well, then, you have my feelings in a nutshell to-night. Or perhaps you will be better able to appreciate my position by remembering the story of the young curate preaching his first charity sermon, and who, in the course of his firstly, secondly, and thirdly, saw, to his horror, the rich members of his congregation gradually withdraw sovereign after sovereign of the money they had placed before them on the ledge of the pew as their faith in the advantages of the charitable institution poorly advocated by the timid youth seemed to them to gradually diminish. Gentlemen, I trust that such may not be my fate to-night. Spare my complexion; do not drive the roses from my cheek! Although they are not on the ledge of a pew before you, still I see them gleaming in your face—bright golden sovereigns, crisp white notes. Bear with me a while. This Benevolent Fund of ours is doing always, has done always, good work. It is a charity administered on genial English lines. Every case is thoroughly looked into, but it is looked into with good kind eyes, full of sympathy and tender heartedness. Gentlemen, I want you to picture to yourselves the committee-room of the Actors' Benevolent Fund some years ago. Around the table are seated some dear, well-remembered old friends of ours dealing out kindness and help to many a poor fellow wounded in the battle of life by the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune. At that table was seated on the day I speak of our late President; among the cases being discussed was that of a promising young actor who had been obliged, owing to an accident, to have a leg amputated. The case had attracted a great deal of sympathy, and the Actors' Benevolent Fund contributed largely to the poor young fellow's support. It had begun to be felt, however, that the young man was taking undue advantage of the sympathy extended, practically trading on his misfortune instead of trying to secure fresh employment in some other walk of life. At this particular meeting I speak of, one old actor who had been scandalised by meeting the young man smoking a big cigar suggested that his application for further relief should be refused. Sir Henry Irving listened to all that had to be said, and then, in his dear quaint way remarked, "Well, because the poor fellow has had his leg cut off, that is no reason why you should cut off his cigars. Benevolence, you know; we are a Benevolent Fund, not Providence." And it is the Benevolent Institution for which I have to plead to-night. For two long lean years of trade depression and Stock Exchange stagnation there has been much outgoing and no incoming. Surely in no profession is the fluctuation of trade more acutely felt than in ours. Besides being a mirror of the times, we are, so to speak, the weather-glass in which a man may read the state of the financial weather; and, alas! the hand has pointed for the last two years to stormy and cloudy at intervals. Down here by the riverside one realises very poignantly the prevalent distress and, indeed, despair. Walk under the bridge there across the road late any night on your way to the District or the Tube, and you will realise the fate from which the Actors' Benevolent Fund is trying daily to save many and many a poor struggling actor and actress. "Is it as bad as that," you say. Yes, surely. If not why those piteous little appeals, not for large sums, but for a shilling, half a crown, which so many of us get at our stage doors. I am not exaggerating when I say that practically every night at my little theatre over the way some poor creature or another comes begging for a loan or a lift from one of us. Unemployed? Yes, in these days we hear a great deal about unemployment and about Socialism. No, don't be afraid, I am not here to make a political speech or trespass on your patience by wearying you with my views on politics. Besides, I mustn't forget that there up above is a gallery, and without a grille. I do not propose to go into the question as to which is the cause of which, whether it is unemployment which brings Socialism into prominence, or Socialism which creates unemployment; in a word, which is the head and which is the tail of the serpent which encircles us and which many think is squeezing the life out of us as a nation. It is not to discuss economic problems, the governing of a people by the State, that I have managed to do what people call get on, but in getting on we have learnt all too well all the wants, difficulties, and dangers of our less successful brothers and sisters. Over and over again with a monotony that is painful do we see men and women through absolutely no fault of their own forced to sit idle for months and months—men and women who have made money, who have got accustomed to spending it. Suddenly idle—no money coming in, no means of making any, other people dependent on them. In a profession so overcrowded as the stage I do not dare to think how many such there are; but here we differ from the out-of-work of other states we do not speak of being unemployed—a confession of failure. If acting teaches nothing else, it teaches the value of self-confidence. As you advance to middle age you get accustomed to putting a good face on a bad case. No, when times are bad, when work is scarce, we only say to the outside world we are resting. Resting—there is splendid pluck in that expression. Resting, we tell the world, when really we are eating our poor hearts out for the work that does not come. Resting—the bitter irony of the word as many poor fellows have to use it. Help us to dig these poor chaps out of their trouble, and the holes they leave behind them will be the graves in which you will bury your own. Perhaps almost too much light has been thrown on the stage artifices during the last twenty-five years, and stage tricks and devices which pleased and mystified our fathers have been cleared up, taken to pieces, and made as plain as daylight. On the other hand, however, no one believes now that life behind the scenes is one long orgy of champagne and idle luxury. Very few people believe that we put on plays without any trouble at all, or that a business which involves such great financial risks as our does can be carried on without any work during the daytime; but there is one belief which I fancy will always be difficult to break down, and that is, that the members of our calling are absolutely thriftless and careless about money matters, and that they take no thought in any possible way for the morrow. Thriftless! Have you ever tried, gentlemen, to be thrifty with a wife and family on 25s. a week. Members of any other class may break down through ill-health, through competition, through a hundred and one difficulties that beset the paths of all; but, no, the actor's failure must be through thriftlessness; they do not take into consideration the awful struggle to get work, the enormous overcrowding, the wretched salaries paid to the great majority. Year by year the struggle to keep their heads above water becomes more and more difficult, and it is just when all seems hopeless and when they feel inclined to say "What is the good of trying at all," that the Actors' Benevolent Fund is able to step in and by a gift or a loan make life possible and even hopeful again. As Englishmen we pride ourselves on our love of fair play; pluck and perseverance are as much thought of as ever, thank God! I am pleading to-night for a body of men and women who when they were young and vigorous started full of courage, full of belief in their powers, and in their own ultimate victory to run in the Marathon race of our profession. Gentlemen, you who have stood by and watched the race, you the audience who have at different times applauded their efforts, you know how heavy the track has been, you know the difficulties they have had to face; their powers of endurance have been tried to the uttermost. The very encouragement they have received—pats on the back, so to speak, have nearly done for them. Absurd flattery and scathing criticism alternately have elated and oppressed them, but at last they near the goal. A bad time comes, illness, what not, they fall to rise again, then fall once more, and as they lie so near and yet so far from what they have promised themselves, so very far from what their mothers and admiring friends felt so sure would be their glorious fates, as they lie there fainting and hopeless, this fund of ours comes like some succouring angel and puts within their grasp power to go on once more and fight on; fight for their homes, their children; fight to take their places as good strong men and women in the terrible race they undertook in the pride of their youth and strength, before they realised all the danger and difficulties that must inevitably beset their paths; they, poor souls who, once upon a time each thought they would be Wyndhams, Trees, or Alexanders, the Dorandos of the race. They are unemployed, eating their hearts out, hoping, waiting, watching, but come with me and you shall see them. Spend an hour or so at the offices of the Actors' Benevolent Fund; I wish I could take you round there and let you see the little daily procession. Could you but see them for yourselves, pity would be so great no words of mine would be needed to enlist your help. That old fellow there who used to make you laugh so—is it his fault that rheumatism contracted on a draughty stage has laid him low?—you recognise him, how he used to cheer you up after an unsuccessful day of worry in the city. By gad, sir, I should have to stop you from running after him down the street and begging him to accept even more help than the fund can at present afford. That little woman there with the grey hair and sad, worn face; ah! you remember her even better than the old fellow. She alive still? Poor! Starving! Disaster, illness, and old age have done their work. That small boy—what a white, wizen little face. Heaven forbid that your little chap or mine should look like that. The son of an actor too ill to come himself. Let that little chap go back empty handed! Gentlemen, there are some things one prays one may never be forced to do, and to refuse a little child who comes to you for help is one of them. Charity tempered by justice all the time, not justice tempered by charity, and at this time of year, when all that is generous-hearted in man is uppermost, Christmas-time, I beg of your greatest mercy and kindness, take no notice of the Pharisee who passes by, merely priding himself on never entering a theatre; but think kindly and tenderly of those broken men and women who have tried in the past to do their best in the state of life into which who among us can say God did not call them. Sometimes it is said of us by our enemies that we are a useless folk, that we fulfil no useful purpose in the State, that we exist only to give, only for the sake of enjoyment of other people. Let them say so. For myself I ask for no greater post. It is a fine one. To bring romance into the dull lives—visions of love to the unloved—interests to the monotonous—to cheer the tired ones—to give relief to the worried—to widen the sympathy of men and women with types alien to their own—in a word, to add not only to the gaiety of nations, but to the kindly sympathy and understanding between men and women—the entente cordiale of humanity. What more can you want? Surely the part her actor people play in the life of the State is no mean one; is one which, seeing the weariness and the greyness of many people's lives, should have their gratitude. But gratitude is a shy grower. Will you allow me to tell you a story. Once to an hotel came a millionaire, a man who had everything that money could give him. To the same hotel the same day came a doctor—overworked, underpaid—a man who had been ordered complete rest and who had with difficulty snatched a precious fortnight from his busy life to take a much-needed holiday. Each went their separate ways; they did not meet. The hotel was large for one thing, and the millionaire stopped in his own apartments—the doctor lived with the common herd below. One day the millinaire was at dinner, a fish bone stuck in his throat, he choked, grew purple in the face, the fish bone was immovable. He felt the hand of death upon him, the life that he loved withdrawing from him. Someone remembered the doctor. Luckily he was near at hand—he came into the millionaire's sitting-room—he attacked the bone—he saved the millionaire's life. The millionaire's gratitude was enormous—gigantic—colossal. "My dear fellow, what can I possibly do to show you my gratitude. Ask me anything and I will give it; no fee can possibly be too large to ask." But the doctor, seeing how the excitement and strain had told on him, gave him a soothing draught to make him sleep, and said they could discuss terms another time. "Come to my room to-morrow, come early," said the still grateful millionaire. So the next day the doctor went. He found the millionaire, but not the gratitude: that had all evaporated in the night. "Thanks, yes, I feel quite myself again; an absurd thing to happen, don't you know, and, by the way, what do I owe you for the little service you rendered me last night?" "A trifle, sir," said the doctor, drily, "I only ask for half the fee you felt inclined to give me when the bone was still in your throat." Often you have felt, after being cheered or deeply moved by some piece of acting in the past, a great feeling of gratitude to the man or woman who had made you feel so moved. If the next day you had heard they were in distress you would have thought no sum too great, no purse too full to give them. The bone was in your throat. Gentlemen, all I ask you to give me for my poor struggling, helpless, and in some cases hopeless, brothers and sisters of the stage is just half what you would have felt inclined to give when the bone was sticking in your throat.

ACTORS' BENEVOLENT FUND DINNER
AT WHITEHALL ROOMS, HOTEL METROPOLE, ON DECEMBER 13TH, 1908.

Sir CHARLES WYNDHAM, in submitting the toast of "The Drama," said: An enormous subject has been rashly committed to my charge—no less than the Drama. I suppose the idea was that as I have responded to the toast before, I ought by this time to be competent to propose it. That does not follow. The coy respondent does not necessarily make a dashing petitioner. However, it is to Sutro to whom is allotted the proud duty of answering for the wayward muse. It is he who takes her under his wing. I merely place her there. And, after all, what a theme I present to him. A theme wide as the earth, deep as the roots of Being, enduring as Time itself. All humanity is drama: so I'm giving Sutro humanity itself. If, however, in thus giving, I give Sutro something to play with, what will happen if I anticipate some of Sutro's ideas? All plots of plays, we are told, have been used up, and so perhaps, all the fine things one can say about the Drama in general are used up too. If it should turn out so, will Sutro hate me with the undying hatred of the unconscious plagiarist? or will he accept the situation in the spirit of benignant philosophy and attribute the accident to our not having freely and frankly consulted one another beforehand? That is what we ought to have done. I really think that the proposer and the respondent in such parts as these should each regard himself as trustee of his ideas for the other. Each should deliver to the other an abstract of what he means to say, and then, in friendly negotiation and conference, duplication of views could be provided against. Stop! On second thoughts, no—it wouldn't work. Especially in our case. An awkwardness would arise. To set a professional representative of the theatre to glorify the Drama in the person of one who so successfully contributes to it would not be treating you gentlemen fairly. You would never know whether the respondent whilst saying pleasant things has his eye on the proposer for a part in his next drama, or whether the proposer in his flatteries was trying to wheedle a play out of the respondent. And, once let this suspicion run riot, would you not begin to fear that there was no sincerity in either of us, and we should shortly be imitating the touching performances of a pair of great English historians—

"When, ladling briskly from adjacent tubs, Stubbs buttered Freeman, Freeman buttered Stubbs."
